THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Mayor Keith Offers Many Suggestions for City's Progress.

Says the Time Has Now Come for Us to Consider in a Broad Way the Improvements.

Recommends Committee on Welfare of the City---Would Equalize Taxes Regardless of Rate.

GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL:

By custom the inaugural address of the Mayor is composed of two parts, information of what has been accomplished by the city government during the past year and recommendations and suggestions concerning what is shortly to come before us. It has always appeared to me that the first, having been carried out during the preceding administration, should be furnished in an address by the retiring Mayor, as he is the only person who is acquainted with the doings of all the departments. In the short time between the announcement of the result of the election and the day of inauguration it is a difficult matter for any other person to inform himself thoroughly of the events of the year. You will therefore pardon me if I do not attempt to give you much enlightenment in that direction. I shall try, however, to have the heads of departments forward their respective reports at the earliest moment possible and shall endeavor to have them printed before they become "ancient history." Prior to their publication, they will be at your service as soon as they may be received.

In regard to matters to come before us, such observations as occur will be given under their appropriate heads. Subsequent ones will be presented to you in other communications.

Following the example of our predecessors we will first see how much we can spend during the year.

Under the statutes we can raise, by taxation, for the current expenses of the city, $12 per $1,000 on the average of the assessors' valuation of estates for the preceding three years, less abatements. This sum is $18,161,517, which at the prescribed rate would give a tax of $217,938.20. Add to this the debt maturing in 1899, $81,950.00, and the interest accruing in 1899, $52,914.95, and we have a total of $352,803.15, which is all that can be raised by this method.

Another plan, authorized by law, but not as yet made use of in Quincy, and one not to be recommended, is to raise for current expenses $12 per $1,000 on the valuation of 1898. This gives $229,648.45, being about $11,710 in excess of the amount afforded by the first method.

So much for the amount we can raise and spend. Our next thought should be devoted to seeing how much of this we can avoid raising and still have the city's affairs managed properly. On this point we shall have need to exercise all our wisdom and by so doing we can gain the hearty support of our conservative fellow-citizens in our efforts to lighten the burden of taxation which weighs upon them so heavily. The old question, "How to have an unlimited expenditure with a limited income?" will always be before us.

The amount of our debt is now $1,350,505 86

IT IS DIVIDED AS FOLLOWS:

Municipal debt, ...	$265,505 86
Park debt, ...	45,000 00
Water debt, ...	720,500 00
Sewer debt, ...	319,500 00

The municipal debt has been decreased $12,009.75 during the year, and the Park debt, $1,000. The Sewer debt has been increased $94,500, and the Water debt, $1,500, making the net increase of the entire city debt $82,990.35.

Water Department.

During the past year the principal work has been the laying of a 16-inch pipe from Common street to Adams and Beale streets, thus making a connection with the Metropolitan system. There have been many calls for extensions and the Commissioners have laid about five miles of pipe, and have made two hundred and sixty house connections. One million five hundred thousand gallons per day are now supplied to the city, showing a decided increase in the consumption of water.

During the next year we shall be supplied, through the above connection, with water from the Metropolitan system, and it is expected that the construction of a stand-pipe and reservoir on Third Hill, in Wollaston, will be commenced and that the stand-pipe, and possibly the reservoir, will be completed during the latter part of the year.

When the stand-pipe and reservoir have been tested and are in good working order, the present plant at the pumping station will be of no further use to the city, and should be disposed of forthwith.

The estimated assessment for 1899 by the Metropolitan Water Board is $8,000: from this amount there will be deducted a credit for the water furnished by the City of Quincy from its own sources from June 1, 1898, to May 31, 1899, inclusive, which will probably be about $3,000, making the net assessment for 1899 about $5,000, which sum must be raised by taxation this year.

Fire Department.

The Chief of the Fire Department in his forthcoming report will make certain recommendations which I think the

ELEVENTH YEAR OF CITY.

Hon. Harrison A. Keith Becomes Mayor of Quincy, Massachusetts.

Legislative Branch Composed Largely of Men of Experience.

George A. Sidelinger, Esq., Elected President of City Council.

Again Quincy is favored with a pleasant inauguration day, and the cold did not prevent a very large atendance at the exercises this noon at City Hall. Every seat was occupied and as many more stood in the rear. The gallery was nearly filled with ladies.

Promptly at 12 M. Hon. Harrison Alonzo Keith, the Mayor-elect entered by the rear stairway, escorted by City Messenger Tirrell, City Clerk Cleaves, Mayor Sears and Rev. Walter Russell Breed of Christ church, and was greeted with applause. A brief prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Breed, invoking the blessing upon our servants, the President, the Governor and the Mayor of our city, also that God would direct the government of our city.

City Clerk Cleaves then administered the oath of office to Mr. Keith as Mayor, and the answer came clear, "I do."

The oath was then administered to the gentlemen present who had been elected to the City Council of 1899.

Mayor Keith was introduced and read his address to the City Council. It was longer than in recent years, requiring twenty minutes. The Mayor made no attempt at oratory and was confined closely to his manuscript. There were no manifestations of approval or disapproval during the address but at the close the applause was generous.

The desk at which the Mayor stood was entwined with smilax and upon it were two beautiful bouquets.

City Clerk Cleaves continued to preside, and proceeded to call the roll for the choice as President which resulted as follows:

Whole number of votes	22
Necessary for choice	12
George A. Sidelinger had	13
Walter S. Pinkham had	7
Richard R. Freeman had	2

and George A. Sidelinger was declared elected.

The vote was as follows:

Charles Alden,	for Sidelinger
William E. Badger,	for Pinkham
Frank W. Blanchard,	Absent
Charles M. Bryant,	for Sidelinger
Alexander Clark,	for Sidelinger
John J. Dugan,	for Sidelinger
Richard R. Freeman,	for Pinkham
Walter P. Hill,	for Pinkham
Thomas F. Hogan,	for Sidelinger
Eugene N. Hultman,	for Sidelinger
Edward E. Jameson,	for Pinkham
John L. Johnson,	for Sidelinger
Aubrey R. Keith,	for Sidelinger
Daniel McLennan,	for Sidelinger
John W. Nash,	for Sidelinger
Arthur W. Newcomb,	for Sidelinger
Harry S. Nicoll,	for Sidelinger
Michael Owens,	for Sidelinger
Elisha Packard,	for Pinkham
Walter S. Pinkham,	for Freeman
John E. Poland,	for Pinkham
George A. Sidelinger,	for Freeman
John Swithin,	for Pinkham

Councilman Sidelinger was sworn as president by City Clerk Cleaves, and in taking the chair sincerely thanked the members for the expression of confidence and honor in electing him to the office of President. He considered it an honor to be a member of the City Council and to be mentioned and elected as President. Nothing gave him more pleasure than in this his fifth year of service to be elected president. While the choice had not been unanimous, he felt sure the Council desired that things should be unanimous during the year.

The following officers were then re-elected unanimously by roll call:

Clerk of Council and Committees, Christopher A. Spear.
City Auditor, John O. Hall.
City Messenger, Harry W. Tirrell.

The election by ballot of two trustees of the City Hospital resulted in the election of Councilmen Sidelinger and Hultman the former receiving 13 and the latter 15 votes. Councilman Packard, Clark and Owen had 1 each, Councilmen Bryant, Badger and Nash 2 each, and Councilman Pinkham 5.

Upon ballot Clarence Burgin was elected a manager of the Woodward fund.

Councilman Hill moved that old

Good Afternoon.

Welcome 1899! And a Happy New Year to Mayor Keith and the new City Council!

For the benefit of the busy man we have culled from the address of Mayor Keith, in brief, his recommendations promises and comments. Space will not admit today of extended comments by the editor, but we find much to concur in and but little to criticise. A few comments follow the summary:

NOTED BY MAYOR.

A reduction in the Municipal debt.
Adequate return not received from playgrounds.
School expenses large but not extravagant.
Satisfaction with the School Committee and their responsibilities.

RECOMMENDATIONS BY MAYOR.

1—To keep well within the amount that can be raised for current expenses, and reduce the taxes.
2—Disposal of pumping station of Water department.
3—More permanent men for Fire department.
4—Further division of fire alarm circuit.
5—Pay for Houghs Neck firemen.
6—Portable booths for voting.
7—Building ordinance and inspector of buildings.
8—Prompt appropriation for Sewer extensions.
9—Bath houses at Merry Mount park.
10—Consideration of further paving on Hancock street.
11—Special appropriation for paving of part of Quarry street.
12—Repair or new construction of Brackett street.
13—More permanent sidewalks.
14—More and better street crossings.
15—Large appropriation for highways.
16—Assistant for out door work of Commissioner of Public Works.
17—Establishment of department of engineering.
18—Broad method of improvements.
19—Comprehensive scheme of street development.
20—Broad avenue to Boston.
21—Equalization of taxes regardless of tax rate.
22—Committee of Council on welfare of the city.
23—That all be neighbors.

AGAINST.

Law permitting a tax based on valuation of last year.
Raising the valuation of property to keep down the tax rate.

PROMISED.

Early issue of City Book.
Frequent communications during the year.
To investigate needs of more police at Merry Mount park.
To investigate needs of Brackett street.
To consider cost and feasibility of new street from Water street to Granite or School street.
To take better care of crossings.
Change in Board of Assessors.

It will be observed ere this that Mayor Keith has made more recommendations than many of his predecessors, probably more than any one, and yet he has avoided extravagance, advocating only those things which seem to be demanded in a progressive city. Singularly, the Ledger has noted just twenty-three important recommendations, one for each of the Councilmen.

The only avenue opened to the Council to reduce the tax rate for 1899, is to keep down the current expenses, as it is already determined practically what the other items of the tax levy order will be. Mayor Keith has noted the two limits; he is emphatically opposed to the higher, and would "avoid raising" all of the lower. For permanent improvements like Nos. 10, 11, 12, 13, 18, 19 and 20 he would go to the Legislature if necessary.

The suggestion of a "Committee on the Welfare of the City," is an excellent one, but we query whether it should be selected by the City Council or the Mayor. Such a department, established by appointment by the Mayor, with the Mayor as chairman and a small appropriation for incidentals, could accomplish much. Suggestions could be made to the City Council when advisable.

The comments upon the public schools are unique, and place the responsibilities where they belong; a position that has not always been recognized.

That there is need of equalization of taxes is very apparent since the publication of the land values and the frequent sales of real estate for less than the assessors' values. There is land on some of the main streets that is not taxed for what it is worth, while there are estates on side streets that are valued by the assessors altogether too high.

Concerning the assessment of taxes, the widening of Hancock street, the new street at South Quincy, and other recommendations, we will write more at length in coming issues.

We also invite comments of ex-Councilmen and prominent citizens upon the improvements suggested and the address in full.

Watched the Old Year Out.

The Highland Whist club held the fourth whist party of the season Saturday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Merrill, No. 5 Winthrop avenue. The club played whist from 8 to 10 o'clock, then watched the old year out, and the new year in; wishing the host and hostess a happy new year as the clock struck the hour of twelve.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

George A. Sidelinger, the new President has shown by his excellent handling of the finances of the city the past year, as chairman of the Committee on Finance, Accounts, Claims, Contracts and Salaries, that he may well be entrusted with the new position. He has also served three years on the Committee on Ordinances, Licenses, Printing and Rules and Orders, two years at chairman, and on the Committee on Legislative Matters, Elections and Returns, and the Committee on Sewers, Drains and Water Supply, giving him valuable experience.

President Sidelinger, is like the Mayor, a Quincy boy, having been born Nov. 2, 1858, at Quincy Point, where he has always resided. He was educated in our public schools and is today widely known and respected all over the city. His business experience dates back nearly twenty-five years, and for the past fifteen he has been associated with Cushing, Bliss & Co., of Boston, dealers in plush, etc.

Mr. Sidelinger is a gentleman who makes a determined stand for what he believes is right and has frequently taken the floor and ably debated some order in support of the report of his committees. Aside from the City Council he has been associated with the Young Men's Christian Association and was its treasurer for several years.

COUNCILMAN NEWCOMB.

JOHN L. JOHNSON,

One of the new members from Ward Three, is a Swede by birth, having first seen the light of day in Kattarp Skone, Sweden, Nov. 20, 1857. He received his education in the public and high schools of his native town. Leaving Kattarp Skone at the age of 16 years he followed the sea for a year and then came to this country. For the first five years of his residence in Massachusetts he worked at various employment and then went west, where he was employed for five years with the Illinois Steel Co. in Chicago, the last two years as foreman. He returned to Massachusetts, coming to Quincy in 1885, and associated himself with the granite firm of Johnson Bros. At the end of five years he retired from the firm and since that time has been employed as foreman for several well known granite firms, at present being with the Lyons Granite Co. The office of Councilman is the first public office he has ever held, although for seven years he has acted as local treasurer for the Security Savings & Loan Association of Minneapolis.

COUNCILMAN DUGAN.

JOHN J. DUGAN,

A new member from Ward Four, is a Quincy boy, and first saw the light of day Oct. 29, 1871. He attended the Willard school and then learned the trade of a tool sharpener, at which he was employed for six years. Five years ago he associated himself with the Metropolitan life insurance company by whom he is still employed. He will see his first public service as Councilman. He is at present Vice Grand of Granite lodge, M. U., I. O. O. F.

DANIEL McLENNAN,

Also one of the new Republican members from Ward Three, was born in Prince Edward Island, April 23, 1858, receiving his education in the schools of his native place. In April, 1880, he came to Quincy where he has since resided. Before becoming a resident of Quincy he served an apprenticeship to a carpenter and builder. Since his residence in Quincy, however, he has followed the occupation of a granite polisher. Like his colleague from the South Quincy Ward, the position of Councilman is his first public office.

Small Brothers and their freak boats are now making the Yacht Racing Association lots of trouble. The Quincy Yacht club sized them up all right.

The noon temperature Sunday was not only the lowest this winter, but lower than any day last winter. It grew colder and colder hour by hour, and reached zero before midnight. This morning different glasses in Quincy said from 5 to 13 below.

Sergeant Kenibbs of the 7th U. S. Infantry, will give this evening at the rooms of the Y. M. C. Association his experience at the battle of Santiago and exhibit relics. He was wounded several times and still carries the scars of several battles. The reader is cordially invited to annual New Year's reception from 7 to 9.30 P. M.

The annual reunion and dinner of the Class of '83, Thayer Academy, was held Saturday evening at the Thorndike Boston. Prof. J. B. Sewall, the first head master of the academy was a guest. These officers were elected: President, Everett Litchfield; vice president, Annie R. Dyer; secretary, Maria Heward.

NEW YEAR GAMES.

Old Fashioned Amusement to Wind Up the Holiday.

The old fashion of game playing seems to be left to children nowadays, in spite of the merry frolics that memory can recall. But in holiday time the most staid and stately are willing to be foolish for the sake of the little ones, and then all games, new and old, are welcomed.

Did you ever try "brothers of pity?" Sheets of newspapers are twisted into hollow cones so as to completely cover the heads of the players. Two small oval holes are cut in each cap so that only the eyes of the wearer are seen. Six or eight people put on these caps and sit in a row, with a big sheet or tablecloth held in front to conceal the whole of their bodies. These brothers are set in a good light, and the rest of the company is then brought into the task of guessing their names. The fun lies in the fact that one's nearest and dearest is often a little doubtful as to the color of one's eyes, and much laughter is provoked when "mother" does not recognize "father" nor sisters their brothers.

The "game of moods" is a good one. A person is sent from the room, and the rest agree to answer his questions in a particular tone—rudely, patronizingly, absently, lovingly or as they decide. On his return he questions each player in turn, and when all have answered in the chosen mood he must guess what the word is. If he guesses wrong, he must go round again, but each must spare no pains to make the mood clear.

"Hunt the whistle" is an old favorite, but it can only be played once at the same party, since all but one know the secret. A player is led blindfolded into a ring of chairs on which all the others are seated. A deft hand fastens a small whistle to the back of the blind victim by means of a long string with a hook at one end of it.

For this whistle he must hunt, the others catching it and blowing it at every turn, and the effort to discover it [illegible] is often long delayed.—Philadelphia Ledger.

OUR NEW MAYOR.

Fitted by Education and Experience for Duties of Office.

Hon. H.A. Keith a Quincy Man by Birth.

City Clerk for Four Years and Town Auditor for Many.

Hon. Harrison Alonzo Keith, who today took the oath of office as Mayor of the city for 1899, is essentially a Quincy man; being born here in 1858, when the population was but 3,300, and having continued a resident a greater part of the time since. His birthplace was on Spear street near the Thomas Crane Public Library, in one of the houses now owned by Mr. George W. Prescott.

As a boy he was a brilliant pupil and few have graduated from our High chool so young. He next went to Antioch college, then under the presidency of Horace Mann of educational fame, and was graduated at the age of 19. For a while he engaged in mercantile affairs, but in 1868, at the age of 30 years, he was appointed master of the Quincy High school. This position he held for 22 years, and during this long term he showed rare ability and tact in the management of the school. He did not take kindly to the new methods in teaching, and refused to adopt them, and retired in 1890.

The voters gave him their endorsement in the fall of that year by electing him at large as a member of the School Committee. After one term of three years he declined a re-election.

At the inception of the Quincy public library in 1871 Mr. Keith was elected a member of the Board of Trustees. Under the town form of government he was continuously re-elected, usually without opposition, and since the inauguration of the city government he has been annually reappointed upon the board by each Mayor, making over a quarter of a century of service. During these years the present memorial hall has been built and endowed and the library has taken front rank in the State.

Under the town form of goverment Mr. Keith was for many years one of the Town Auditors, and was entrusted with the issue of the annual Town Books. He was also clerk of the Assessors and prepared the annual valuation books which were models of neatness.

In 1864 Mr. Keith was appointed City Clerk by Mayor Hodges, serving under him two years, and the next two under Mayor Adams. When the Republican again came into power last year a change was demanded and he retired. During 1898 and in recent years, he has been employed as expert accountant with various houses.

The earliest recollection of yachting of many Quincy people carries them back to the time when the Wildfire, Rocket and Red Lion were battling for supremacy, and skipper Keith of the Wildfire was the winner of many a brush. He successively filled the offices of secretary, treasurer, vice commodore and commodore of the Quincy Yacht club, and he is now a life member.

Mayor Keith is married and has two sons, both progressive and smart young men. One is a manufacturer at Hudson, and a Selectman of the town, and the other holds a goverment position at Washington. A brother of Mr. Keith is a member of the City Council.

New Year's Bells.

Ring in the new year with gladness,
Ring out the old with a tear;
There's always a feeling of sadness
As we witness the death of a year,
A year so swift in its fleeting.
With sorrow we watch its last hour,
Then give the new one a greeting
From the bells in each steeple and tower.

A sigh for the year that is dying,
A tear where the memory dwells.
Then banish the past with its sighing
And list for the voice of the bells.
The song of thanksgiving and pleasure
That welcomes the birth of an hour,
The soul stirring, vibrating measure,
That rolls out from each steeple and tower.

Afar o'er the night shadowed city
The surges of harmony roll.
In anthem triumphant or ditty,
They lighten the sorrowing soul.
A voice from each country and nation
Responds to the jubilant hour
And joins in the wild exultation
Of the bells in each steeple and tower.

A thought for the dead, calmly sleeping,
Below in earth's dreary gloom;
No song of thanksgiving or weeping
Can pierce their dull ears in the tomb.
But above, where all heaven rejoices,
And heralds with praise every hour,
They greet with sweet welcome the voices
That ring out from each steeple and tower.

members be allowed to retain their old seats.

Councilman Bryant offered an amendment that the two Democratic members have seats adjacent.

Councilman Packard objected. We do not know a Democrat from a Republican here.

Councilman Bryant thought it all wrong to have members retain old seats. If they did it was a matter of courtesy to them.

Councilman Jameson would like to ask if the two members desired to be together.

The amendment was lost and the motion prevailed.

CO. K IS ANXIOUS.

Will They Be Ordered Home or to Cuba.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Dec. 29.

We are having fine delightful weather, the only trouble, being the cold and chilly nights. This morning there was a heavy white frost.

Colonel Whitney and Major Morrison left this morning on the 6 A. M. train, bound for Washington.

The boys are still in a quandary to know whether it is to go home or to Cuba. We have what we call "pipe dreams." Whenever a new rumor comes to light, someone asks whose "pipe dream" was that? One-half the regiment claims that we are going home, while the other half say Cuba.

The proper way to look at this question is this. Here is the 5th Mass., camped in southern air, with a temperature on an average of 70 degrees, while in Massachusetts at the present time is rain, hail and snow, with temperature ranging about 20 to 36 degrees. It would be better for the boys of this regiment to remain in the South until next May, and then be mustered out. They would then escape all the cold weather, and reach New England in its most delightful season. Notwithstanding, most of the boys heartily wish to be sent home.

General Lawton had a brigade drill yesterday afternoon, in which the 5th Mass., 201st New York, and 4th Missouri participated.

Corporal McIntosh and Private Doran arrived in camp last night after a furlough of fifteen days, looking much the better for their vacation.

Sergeant McGrath has been appointed regimental wood master. Every man wanting a stick of wood to burn in his Sibley stove must first consult with the sergeant, before receiving the same.

Private Clements is preparing the pay rolls in anticipation of pay day.

The health of Private Tucker gains each day.

Private P. Sheahan has been detailed to 2d Division headquarters as orderly for a week.

Private Ross looks attentively after the mess house fires, so that the boys have warm quarters to eat in.

The guard detail for today consist of Corporal Mahoney, Privates Colburg, Desiauries, Dunlevy, Dougherty, Faxon and Fitzgerald.

The boys are in good health.

AS BRYAN VIEWS IT.

Asserts There Is No Need of a Large Standing Army.

Immediate Necessity For the Relief of Volunteers.

In Favor of a Special Force For Temporary Army of Occupation.

New York, Jan. 2.—In a statement to The Journal, Colonel Bryan opposes any increase in the standing army, asks for the release of the volunteers, and suggests the raising of special troops for a temporary army of occupation for the new territories. He says:

"It is strange that the president's request for so large an increase in the permanent army should be asked of a peace loving people just at the time when the Czar of Russia is urging the nations of the world to join in the reduction of military establishments.

"Progress in Europe; retrogression in the United States! In the old world 'the currents of destiny' seem to be running in the direction of relief to the people from military burdens; shall they run in an opposite direction here?

"During the recent campaign the people were urged to support the party in power until the 'fruits of victory' could be made secure. Is the fruit of victory to be realized in the transfer of a large body of men from the field and workshop to the camp and barracks—from the ranks of the wealth producers to the ranks of the tax consumers? Such a transfer will lessen the nation's wealth producing power, and at the same time exact a larger annual tribute from those who toil.

"Any unnecessary increase in the regular army is open to several objections, among which may be mentioned:

"First—It increases taxes, and thus does injustice to those who contribute to the support of the government.

"Second—It tends to place force above reason in the structure of our government.

"Third—It lessens the nation's dependence upon its citizen soldiery—the sheet-anchor of a republic's defense.

"The army is the impersonation of force. It does not deliberate, it acts; it does not decide, it executes; it does not reason, it shoots. Militarism is the very antithesis of democracy; they do not grow in the same soil; they do not draw their nourishment from the same source.

"An army of occupation for service in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines is made necessary by the conditions growing out of the war. But such an army is temporary in character, and should not be made a pretext for an increase of 200 percent in our standing army.

"The president assures us, in his last message, that the only purpose our government has in taking possession of Cuba is to assist the Cubans in establishing a stable government. When that is accomplished our troops are to be withdrawn.

"The number needed in the Philippines will depend largely upon the course pursued by the government in regard to those islands. It will require fewer soldiers and less time to give self-government to the inhabitants of the Philippines than it will to give them a military government or a 'carpet bag' government. Since our standing army was sufficient for all domestic purposes prior to the war, and since there is much uncertainty in regard to the army of occupation, it would seem the part of wisdom to separate the two branches of the service and make provision at once for the latter, leaving the friends and opponents of a large standing army to settle that question after the volunteers are mustered out.

"In recruiting the army of occupation opportunity should be given for the reenlistment of such volunteers as desire to continue in the service. The pay of enlisted men serving in the army of occupation should be considerably increased over the present rate to compensate for greater risk to health incurred in the islands.

"To recapitulate: There is no immediate necessity for the consideration of the proposition to permanently increase the military establishment; there is immediate necessity for the relief of the volunteers."

A Vienna "Ripper."

Vienna, Jan. 2.—A second murder of an unfortunate girl in the "Jack the Ripper" manner occured Saturday night. The man who committed the first was arrested yesterday. He proved to be a butcher's assistant named Schortowitz, and is about 20 years old. While under examination he said he stabbed his victim, after a quarrel, because she refused to give him brandy. He is believed to be guilty of both murders.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

attention, and though it falls wholly within the province of the executive authority, I think it proper on this occasion to offer some thoughts, with which I may frankly say I do not expect all to agree.

Equalization of taxes is the grand point to be accomplished. This is not gained either by raising or lowering all valuations indiscriminately. Regard should be had to what property will bring if purchased for investment. Regard should be had for what property will produce or may be made to produce. Locality should be a large factor in assessment, and the fluctuations caused in localities by changing circumstances should be considered. For instance, property in one ward may be actually decreasing in desirability and therefore in value, while in another ward there may be a constant or increasing demand. Assessors should bear in mind what property brings or would bring if sold under ordinary circumstances. Lastly, raising the valuation in order to keep down the tax rate is an unwise plan for two reasons. First, it usually deceives the taxpayer for a time into thinking that his tax is to be smaller, but when he gets his bill he finds that he has more money to pay. Second, and more important, as the borrowing capacity of the city depends on the valuation, it is increased by an increase of valuation, and the council of the succeeding year is offered the temptation of spending a larger sum.

Furthermore, the fixing of the tax rate is only an incident, not an object of the assessors. They are sworn to assess the property of the city according to law; they should do that and let the tax rate take care of itself.

I hope to be able to notify you soon of the appointment of a Board of Assessors who will make their assessment in harmony with these views. It will take more time and labor than is usually devoted to the task, but I trust that the result will be satisfactory.

Committee on the Welfare of the City.

I would recommend that the Council appoint a Committee on the Welfare of the City. Such a committee could exercise the duties of a Board of Trade in considering matters pertaining to the good of our fellow-citizens, such as the establishment of new industries, methods of attracting residents or capital, and other things which might tend to improve our situation financially or our conveniences as inhabitants. This committee could be a centre to which members of the Council and other public-spirited citizens might come with suggestions and advice, and more particularly with news of approaching business changes in other places, and of intended enterprises in the business world. Among other things, it might well begin by an effort to get better train service and better depot accommodations from the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. I think that this last benefit could be attained if a concentrated and determined effort were made.

A hundred years ago the people of Quincy all knew each other and were neighbors. To-day no one man here knows more than a small fraction of our population; but that should not make us any the less neighbors. We are all members of the corporation of the City of Quincy, and have been selected to manage its business for 1899 with an eye to the welfare of the whole city.

As the executive authority, it will be my duty to carry out the orders of the Council and to expend with promptness and economy the moneys appropriated for the various departments. If during the year which has now begun, occasion should unfortunately arise when we differ in opinion, be assured that I shall be guided in my action only by a sense of what I owe to historic Quincy.

I shall never lose sight of the affection which I have for the place in which I was born and in which I have spent most of the years of my active life.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

A RESORT TO FORCE.

Extremity to Which General Miller Was Forced at Iloilo.

Insurgents Refused to Submit to His Demands.

At Last Accounts He Was Preparing to Land Armed Forces.

Manila, Jan. 2.—In all probability a battle is raging at Iloilo. Judging by the latest advices from the island there was nothing to prevent a fight between the insurgents and the forces sent from here by General Otis, under command of General Miller.

General Miller made his demands, as he was instructed, but the insurgents, flush with victory over the Spaniards, would not submit. There seems to be nothing left but to resort to force. The following dispatch, dated Friday afternoon, Dec. 30, at Iloilo, island of Panay, has just been received here by dispatch boat, telegraphic communication with Iloilo not having been resumed:

The situation at Iloilo is grave. Fifteen hundred natives, fully armed, are at Melo, a suburb of Iloilo. Seventeen thousand more, it is reported, are awaiting orders to embark at several points on the island of Negros, 15 hours' sail from Iloilo.

All the women have withdrawn and many families have taken refuge with the Americans. The rebels, after a consultation, insist upon inaction until General Aguinaldo shall have been heard from. General Miller, when his demand was first made, declined to concede them and insisted upon an answer being given him by noon today. At the same time he gave assurance that lives and property would be protected.

GENERAL MILLER.

The foreign residents then petitioned General Miller to grant the extension desired by the rebels, as a fight would cause inevitable loss. This also General Miller refused.

At the designated time a native commission again boarded the United States transport Newport and asked for delay, saying they were unable to control the army, which commanded the city and the surrounding country. General Miller refused and prepared to land forces, sending an emissary back to Manila for instructions.

The rebels are strengthening their position and are preparing to resist. The streets of Iloilo are full of armed soldiers, who are constantly entering in either direction. There is great excitement, which is increased by the appearance of the gunboat El Cano, flying the Spanish flag. The public buildings, churches and boats along the river are filled with rebels.

The Newport's boats, as the dispatch boat which carries this message is about leaving, are being lowered, with four machine guns mounted in their bows. The lighters are alongside the United States transport Arizona. The United States transport Pennsylvania lies three miles to the south, with steam up.

Heavy Exports From Boston.

Boston, Jan. 2.—The year 1898 was a remarkable one in the history of the port of Boston in the matter of exports to the European market, and shows a steady increase over the previous year. Statistics show that the number of steamships leaving Boston for European ports was about 412, whose tonnage would figure into the millions. These steamers took out 13,021,229 bushels of wheat, 11,799,265 bushels of corn, 8,720,931 bushels of oats, 266,925 bushels of rye, 69,968 bushels of barley, 149,026 barrels of flour, 2,128,059 sacks of flour, in addition to a vast amount of provisions, cotton, leather, machinery, steel, cattle and sheep. The exports of cereals for the year shows a grand total of 33,878,318 bushels, compared with 27,285,529 bushels for the preceding year, an increase for the year of 6,599,789.

Still on Devil's Island.

London, Jan. 2.—The Daily Telegraph publishes the following from its correspondent at Cayenne, capital of French Guiana: Today (Sunday) I interviewed the governor of French Guiana, who denied that there had been any modification of the severe treatment of Dreyfus, or that the French government had ordered his return to France. The documents forwarded him by the court of cassation reached him on Dec. 23, and his replies will be mailed by the steamer leaving Jan. 3."

Occupants Narrowly Escaped.

Exeter, N. H., Jan. 2.—The Goodwin block was visited by fire early yesterday morning, causing a damage of $28,000 to the block and tenants. The occupants of the upper floors barely escaped with their lives, being unable to save their clothing and valuables. The block was erected last year, had a large number of occupants and was owned by Goodwin Bros. There were three stores on the ground floor.

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

THE DAWNING OF THE YEAR.

When the snowflakes of December robe
the earth in spotless white,
And the stars in dazzling beauty decorate
the wintry night,
We watch the old year vanish like a ghost into the past,
To the music of the sleighbells and the dirges of the blast.
We bless it for its kindness and we sigh
above its dead,
Across the heart graves it has left most solemnly we tread;
But we turn with hope and gladness as we brush away a tear
To pleasures which still hidden lie within the glad New Year.

When it dawns in all its glory we shall put the past away,
And, trusting in its coming, greet its bright, initial day.
The sun will burst in grandeur on the era that it brings,
And loves unknown today will touch the heart's melodious strings.
Oh, when it breaks upon the world may every mist depart,
And may its bells ring joyously in every human heart;
For everywhere on land and sea the millions wait to cheer
The banners which in splendor wave

I can almost see its footsteps in the soft and fleecy snow
And hear its wondrous anthems as its bells swing to and fro,
For Father Time is standing 'twixt the new year and the old,
He rings for one a parting dirge, for one
the chimes of gold.
Aye, in the crisp, clear night he stands,
a smile upon his face,
And wishes joy, the while he rings, for all the human race;
For in the sweet tones of the bells what heart can never hear
The promises of peace that crown the dawning of the year?

—New York Clipper.

A LEGEND OF NEW YEAR'S EVE.

This is the 30th of January, 1871, said Dame Madeleine, laying down her knitting with a serious look in her brown, shriveled face, like one about to tell a strange story. I'm 91 years old today. I have lived to see many wonderful changes. I have seen the French at Berlin and the Germans in Paris, and now I thank the God that these good old eyes of mine can see but little more evil in this world.

It is seldom enough that I stir from home now, for my own limbs are not so lissom now as they used to be in the days of the great emperor, when I danced down all the village girls at our fete of Paques (Easter) and New Year's eve and prayed for the soul of our young lord, Henri de Mortemar, for it was upon that day that he sinned his greatest sin, and sorely indeed was he punished for it. May God have mercy upon his soul! You say you would like to hear the tale? Well there are not many gentlemen who would care to sit and listen to an old woman's idle stories, so if you're good enough to wish to learn it you shall have it, and welcome.

There's but little remaining now of the old chateau of Mortemar, and if monsieur the marquis could come back to it he would hardly know his own home again, for when the people rose up in 1793 they scarcely left one stone upon another. You can just see a half burned corner of one of the towers, and that's all. But in the days before the revolution what a place it was! Such feasting all day long! Such music and dancing and gayety of every kind! Such troops of servants in rich liveries, and fine gentlemen with laced coats and silver belted swords, and beautiful ladies with powdered hair, and glittering with jewels like the shrine of the Holy Virgin in the cathedral yonder. But to pay for all this splendor we of the people had to make soup out of nettles and to go without fire in winter, and that's why I'm glad the times are changed now.

M. Henri was the only child, but his father, the great marquis, had adopted a young lady, the daughter of an old friend of his who had been killed by his side at the battle of Minden. These were all that lived in the house, but there were always plenty of young gentlemen from the neighborhood hanging about the chateau—and well there might be when such a pretty girl as Mlle. Adela was in it. It would take a good hour to tell you of all her admirers, but the two gayest and wildest of them all were Gaston de St. Cyr, and Raymond de Mericourt, whom they used to call the Black Eagle.

Holy St. Joseph! What a wild set they were, those young madcaps! I can remember as if it were yesterday (though I was only a child then) how they used to racket about the streets of the town at night, kissing every pretty girl they met and pricking every quiet old burgher with their swords till he jumped and hallooed like a dancer at a fair. It was no use complaining, for no one dared to touch a gentleman in those days, and once, when the mayor ventured to object to their doings, they answered by hanging a dead dog at his door with a piece of paper in its mouth saying, "A ton tour, mon frere!" (In your turn, brother.) Little did they dream, then, that their own friends and kinsmen were to be hung along those streets in the very same way only a few years later.

But there was one among the roisterers so different from the rest that he quite put me in mind of that picture of St. Antoine among the demons which hangs above the font in our church. This was young Armand de Courval, who had been bred up for the church, only his elder brother died suddenly and left him heir to the family property. But every one said he would have done much better for an abbe than for a lord, he was so grave and so gentle and so quiet, hardly ever speaking or lifting his eyes from the ground. Our wild young gentlemen used to make fine fun of him, as you may think, but he bore it all without a word, till at last they got tired and left off.

Now, of course, there was a good deal of talk in our neighborhood about the young lady and her admirers, and plenty of guesses were made as to who would be the man. Some said it was M. Henri, while others declared that, having been brought up together like brother and sister, they would never think of each other in any other way. Most people were for M. de Mericourt, and indeed it wouldn't have been easy to find a handsomer or a bolder man if he only had not been so terribly wild, but just then a thing befell which gave us all something else to think about.

It was terribly hot all over France that summer of 1788, and the older men shook their heads and said that if we didn't get some rain soon it would be all over with the harvest. This was bad news for us poor folks, who had little enough to live on anyhow, but upon it came another piece of news that we liked still less—namely, that several dogs of the neighborhood had gone mad and were running about the country biting every one whom they met.

Now, one evening about that time Mlle. Adela went out to stroll among the trees by the riverside, which was a favorite walk of hers. All at once there came bursting through the bushes a huge black dog, raving mad, with its tongue lolling out and the foam flying from its open jaws. She shut her eyes and sank helplessly to the ground, too much terrified even to scream.

Just then, when all seemed over, out from behind a tree (where he had been reading all the afternoon) sprang Armand de Courval, the scholar, the dreamer, the man at whom every one laughed. He ran right at the savage brute, weaponless as he was, flung his coat over its head, so as to blindfold it for an instant, and then quick as lightning seized and hurled it bodily into the river.

When the other gentlemen heard what had happened, they were greatly amazed, as you may think, and praised his courage up to the skies, but he only said: "Why do you extol me? Give the praise to God, who helped me." And then he slipped away, as if he didn't want to hear any more of it.

But the next day Mlle. Adela came to him as he sat in a nook of the great eastern window and said very earnestly:

"M. de Courval, I can never thank you enough for your bravery. I think few of these gay cavaliers who make sport of you would have faced such a death half so well."

But De Courval only smiled a sad, sweet smile, such as one might fancy on the face of a martyr when the flames are rising fast around him.

"Ah, my child," said he in his soft, low voice, "it is better to be doing good than to live doing nothing."

And for several days after that our young lady was strangely silent and thoughtful.

The summer passed, and the autumn passed, and as winter began to draw on every one made his preparations for the Jour de l'An (New Year's day), which, as you know, is our great day in France. There used to be a great fete every year at the chateau of Mortemar, and this time it was to be even grander than usual, for monsieur the marquis had invited friends from all parts and had announced that he should give a feast on New Year's eve to all the tenants on his estate, of whom my mother was one.

So then the young gentlemen began to talk about getting up some kind of show to amuse the tenantry, and M. Henri, who was always foremost in every kind of fun, cried out:

"Hark ye, gentlemen, these good people say we're wild as devils, so suppose we take them at their word. We'll dress up as demons and treat them to a demon dance."

The others shouted with laughter and said it would be just the thing; but Armand de Courval shook his head.

"For heaven's sake, my friends," said he, "don't make a jest of such things! You know"—

"We know that you have a right to be shocked, my dear abbe," broke in M. Henri, laughing, "but it can't matter much for poor sinners like us. I'm sure if satan himself likes to come and head our dance he'll be heartily welcome."

New Year's eve came at last, and the tenants were there in their best clothes, my mother and I among them. The great courtyard had been covered in with canvas and warmed by a big fire at each end, and there we had our supper. Monsieur the marquis and our young lady went out among us to see that we had enough, while the rest sat at the windows and looked on.

When supper ended, there was a sudden burst of wild music. Up went a curtain at the end of the yard, disclosing a stage painted to represent the depths of a forest, and out came M. Henri and his two friends, dressed as demons, and began dancing and hallooing and waving burning torches till they scared us children so that we cried as loud as they did.

The fine folks at the windows clapped their hands and applauded lustily, but all at once somebody cried out:

"I thought there were only three of them. Who's the fourth?"

And when we looked, there, sure enough, where there had only been three dancers a minute back, there seemed now to be four. But no one could tell exactly what the fourth was like, for he flitted about like a shadow, now here, now there and sometimes seeming to be everywhere at once.

Then a strange horror fell over the whole assembly, and every one saw in his neighbor's face the terror that was upon his own. The lights burned blue, and the air suddenly became foul and stifling, like the air of a charnel vault. And as the courtyard grew darker a pale, dismal light, like a half quenched fire, began to rise over the stage, showing us that the faces of the dancers had grown haggard and ghastly and that their dancing was like the writhings of men in mortal agony. Many of the great ladies, who had always mocked at such things and believed neither in God nor the devil, fainted outright, and the boldest of the gentlemen were little better.

Then, amid all the tumult and terror, forth came M. de Courval. Up he went on to the stage, and, lifting his calm, commanding face above the tortured visages of the doomed men, said solemnly:

"Stranger, if you are of mortal mold come forward and meet me like a man. If you are a spirit of evil, begone in the name of him who died for us all."

There came a clap of thunder that seemed to rend the very sky, and all was dark as night, but through the darkness and the silence wailed a low, dying groan. When the light came again, all the gay guests were huddled together like scared sheep, while the three dancers lay prostrate upon the stage, with their dresses all scorched and blackened as if by lightning, but the terrible fourth was nowhere to be seen.

Monsieur the marquis sprang upon the stage and called to his son, but Henri made no answer. He was dead. It fared even worse with M. de Mericourt, for he, the bold, high spirited, reckless cavalier, was a hopeless idiot ever after, crying and cowering like a frightened child. As for Gaston de St. Cyr, the shock sobered him once for all. Thenceforth he devoted his life to good works, and died long after in a foreign land, reverenced like a saint.

"And the young lady?" ask I, as Dame Madeleine pauses.

"She married M. de Courval six months later, and went away to America, where they lived many years, working manfully for their own living and beloved by all who knew them, and only two years ago their grandson (he's an officer in the American army, and such a fine fellow) came over to see the place where his ancestors had lived, and seemed quite pleased to find old Madeleine still alive and hearty. So, you see, monsieur, the good can bring good out of evil, after all."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MANY AFTER THE CUP

Doubt as to Ability of Recruit to Defend Q. Y. C. Trophy.

From the way that orders are being placed for new challenges to sail for the Quincy Yacht Club's cup, it is quite evident, says the Herald, that a new boat must be built outside the Recruit, else the cup will be lost to the club.

Mr. C. D. Mower, the designer of the 18-footer, the Duchess, which sailed for it last year, has a new 21-foot ready for her deck, and she is now being completed by her designer, who has done all the work on her. She will have 1-4 inch cedar planking, and outside this she will have a canvas skin. Mr. Mower is quite willing to give all dimensions, but as he is to have competitors, he does not think it advisable just now to tell them.

Beside this boat, Designer John R. Purdon, now of the firm of Stearns & Purdon, has an order for a 21-footer for Messrs. Blanchard, Parker & Hayden, owners of the Duchess. The lines of the Purdon boat are hardly finished, but she will be a racer to the limit, and her designer will take all he can out of the liberal rules of the Quincy Yacht Club, which permit experimenting on 21 feet waterline to the fullest.

This 21-footer will sail under the colors of the Nahant club.

A third 21-footer for the Quincy cup is in the air, and she will probably be from Crowinsbield's design. This full-fledged racer will be for the Horton brothers, Edward and Kenneth. Crowinshield will be in his own craft, and this means that she will be well sailed. Beside the above, a fourth boat is looked for, to be designed and built by Mr. W. E. C. Eustis. With boats from Designers Mower, Purdon, Crowinshield, and possibly one from the West, it is quite evident that the members of the Quincy Yacht Club should get a move on, looking to the building of a new defender. With a free hand given all, the new ones are bound to be fast, and away ahead of any of the 21-footers ever built. So much for liberalism in the deed of trust. The Purdon boat will be built in Marblehead. Another party is talking of building a second Purdon boat, but the contract has not been placed yet.

The more the merrier, for the members of the Quincy Yacht Club are deserving of all encouragement. The club did well to make its own rules, and go it alone.

ARIZONA NEW YEAR'S

HOW THE RECKLESS COWBOY CELEBRATES THE DAY.

Exhibits His Skill In Roping Cattle. The Call to Dinner—Help Yourself From Roasted Quarters of Beef. Dancing In the Evening.

Roughly lettered posters of wrapping paper for weeks had announced that a cowboy tournament and fiesta Mejicana would be held on New Year's day at Agua Caliente.

Two races, each of four heats, have been run in the morning, when the faint popping of a six shooter, supplemented by a distant roar of "Grub! Oh, grub!" announces the hour for dinner. Spectators and racers rush back to the plaza.

Back of one of the principal saloons, between it and the base of the mountain, a long trench has been dug and filled with mesquite wood, burned to clear, red coals. Over these coals, resting on well soaked green poles, quarters of beef have been roasting for the last 12 hours. These quarters are hung in the different verandas and from them each man cuts such portion as seems good to him and retires to eat it, together with whatever provisions he may have brought with him, while in the burning sun of the plaza the Indians and dogs dispute for and gorge themselves on the refuse.

Soon there is a general movement toward a corral at the foot of the plaza, where the principal business of the day, from a sporting standpoint, is to begin. For a week the founders of the feast have been collecting cattle suitable to their purpose, and the cottonwood pole corral is as full of them as it will hold.

Twenty feet in front of the corrals a long line has been drawn in the sand, then an interval of 40 yards and another. A little to one side the timekeeper, watch in hand, sits on his horse. The first contestant, in this case a handsome young Mexican, places himself with his back to the corral, and the fore hoofs of his pony just toeing the first line.

The bars are lowered and a long legged red cow is allowed to escape. Across the space she runs like a greyhound. The instant she crosses the second line the vaquero plunges in his big spurs and starts in pursuit, his riata whistling around his head. The cow points straight for a growth of scrub, as though she knew that no lariat could be thrown in such a place. The little horse gains on her rapidly. Before she has made more than a third of the distance to her goal he is at her flying heels. Then the rope flies out so quickly that the eye can hardly follow it, but the cow makes a quick turn and gallops on, still free.

The Mexican makes no second attempt. The loss of time caused by his first failure would prevent his winning the coveted prize. So he sulkily withdraws, and his place is taken by another, who sits with straining eagerness as a gray bull is sent careering across the dead line.

"Off fore foot," he cries as his pony springs forward. Then follows a quick cast, a couple of turns around the saddlehorn, and the horse braces back, tucking his head well down to keep it out of the way—while the bull, his flight suddenly arrested, turns a half somersault and lands on his back, caught by the leg his captor has named. Securing the line, the man dismounts and runs toward his prey as fast as his high heels will allow. It struggles fiercely, but the pony is far too well trained to let the bull rise, and, with a tightening of the lariat, neatly foils every attempt. The captured fore leg is quickly made fast to a hind leg—"hog tied"—and then the cowboy holds up his hand to show that it is completed.

The judges having pronounced that the animal is properly secured, the time taken to accomplish the feat is entered and another man tries his skill.

The twilight comes at last. Dusk is soon followed by darkness in these latitudes, and hardly has it fallen when the strains of rude music announce the opening of the great social feature of the day, the ball. The ballroom is the whole upper floor of the hotel. The walls are of rough adobe, the floor of unplaned planks. From the rafters of the flat roof hang all the lanterns that can be borrowed in the neighborhood—that is, within a radius of ten miles—and candles burn on bits of board stuck in the interstices of the sun baked brick of the walls. Benches of planks laid across boxes line three sides of the room. At one end of the hall, on a rough stage erected there, sit the musicians. There are three of them, all Mexicans, one playing a squeaky fiddle, the other two guitars. All of them wear their hats and smoke crooked cigarettes of brown paper as they play.

There are about 20 girls, many of them pretty and all of them dressed with a neatness and taste quite remarkable when one considers their limited resources. About the same number of older women complete the feminine contingent, and all are in demand, for the men number a hundred or more.

The men are all dressed for the occasion, each in the manner that happens to suit his fancy. Many retain their spurs, in which they are popularly supposed to sleep. One young fellow is especially swell, wearing a white shirt and red necktie under a long black cutaway coat, and clad as to his nether man in the leather "chaps" of the cowboy, with the jingling "petmakers" still fast to his high heeled boots.

Dance follows dance in rapid succession. The measured pounding of the feet as they noisily caper over the resounding boards almost drowns the music. It is thoroughly enjoyed until nearly daybreak, when the company disperses. Horses are saddled, blankets unrolled, and soon, save for the snarling of the coyotes as they quarrel over the remains of the supper, the little village is silent.

HONORED BY VERMONT.

Funeral Services Over the Late Senator Morrill at Montpelier.

Body Viewed by Hundreds at the State Capitol.

Eulogy Pronounces Him a Typical Vermonter and a Thorough American.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 3.—The body of the late United States Senator Justin Smith Morrill arrived here yesterday from Washington. On the train which brought the body to Montpelier was also the body of the senator's wife, who died at the capital several months ago. In the funeral party were the delegations of representatives from congress and senators appointed to attend the obsequies here and a number of personal friends of the late senator.

Emblems of mourning were everywhere visible in Montpelier. Flags draped in crape floated at half-mast and other emblems of mourning were displayed throughout the city. A handsome arch of evergreen had been erected over the gate entrance to the grounds of the state capitol. The interior of the capitol building was appropriately decorated with crape, the national colors and beautiful flowers.

All places of business throughout the city were closed in the forenoon and business was not resumed until after the funeral. The weather was fine and clear, but very cold, the thermometer registering 25 below zero.

All trains arriving in the city in the forenoon brought large crowds of people from all parts of the state, most of whom had known Senator Morrill personally.

The body was borne from the train to the capitol, where it lay in state in the corridor before representatives' hall, which had been elaborately decorated with flowers, crape and the national colors. During the day hundreds passed the casket.

The services were held in representatives' hall and were largely attended. Men from all parts of the state came to pay final respects to the memory of the late senator. President H. M. Buckham of the University of Vermont delivered the eulogy.

He said this was a day of sadness for Vermont, she having lost a son whom she loved and cherished, and one who stood as a peer among her foremost men. Senator Morrill, he said, was a typical Vermonter, born of plain parents in a country village. He displayed a thirst for learning early in life, and indomitable energy in acquiring it. He possessed attributes which appealed to men, so that they sent him to congress first as their representative, then as their senator. In the domain of finance he became a master, his judgment being unfailing. His pre-eminence was due to judicial, rather than brilliant, qualities. He was witty, courteous, of attractive presence, holding the respect of all, although a good party man. Besides being a typical Vermonter, he was a thorough American. He rendered many services to his country for which his name long will be remembered. "We loved him," said the speaker, "for the virtues which we saw in him, his simplicity and gentleness. With all the amiable virtues, he had the fortitude of a Roman father, a prophet's love of righteousness, and the Puritan's love, integrity and conscience." The speaker also made touching reference to Mrs. Morrill.

At the conclusion of President Buckham's address, Rev. Dr. Lovett of Washington offered prayer. Then the lobbies were cleared and the bodies of Senator and Mrs. Morrill were taken to Green Mount cemetery, where they were placed in the vault. They will rest at Green Mount until spring, when they will be taken to Strafford for interment.

Heavy Gales and Floods.

Paris, Jan. 3.—The heavy rains of the last 36 hours burst the main sewer at Blevre yesterday, causing a landslide and flooding the new works of the Orleans railway terminus. The workmen escaped, but their carts disappeared under six feet of water. Much alarm is felt throughout Paris, because the disaster reveals the overflow of the subterranean river Blevre, an affluent of the Seine. In the avenue de l'Opera the water has risen to the level of the pavement, and it is feared that the foundations of the exposition buildings are endangered. The gale has caused much damage in Paris, destroying palisadings and fragile structures.

Good News For Operatives.

Boston, Jan. 3.—A meeting of the assignees of the Assabet Manufacturing company, the large woolen concern which failed last week, was held in this city yesterday. The affairs of the company were carefully considered, and the announcement was made that the mills at Maynard would keep in full operation while arrangements were being made to make a settlement with the creditors. It is anticipated that the mills will run all winter.

THE HUB POLICE.

Interesting Statistics Covering the Work of the Past year.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The police board has submitted to Governor Wolcott the 14th annual report of the police department of Boston. The chief items are as follows: The department as at present constituted includes 1298 men. The total number of licenses issued of all kinds, except for the sale of intoxicating liquor, was 21,561; transferred, 179; cancelled and revoked, 1722. The fees collected and paid into the city treasury amounted to $38,826.70. The total number of places licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquor on the first day of May, 1898, not including druggists and clubs, was 992. There were issued 242 druggists' and 71 special club licenses.

The total number of persons arrested was 41,816, against 45,659 the preceding year and 48,796 in 1896. This is a decrease of 3843 from 1897. There were 5113 persons arrested on warrants and 35,619 without warrants; 1084 persons were summoned by the court, 39,258 persons were held for trial and 2258 were released from custody.

The number of males arrested was 36,806; of females, 5010; of foreigners, 20,130, or approximately 48.14 percent; of minors, 4862. The number of persons punished by fines was 14,432, and the fines amounted to $115,682.03.

The total expenditures for police purposes during the past year, including the pensions, house of detention, station house matrons and liquor license expenses, but exclusive of the maintenance of the police signal service, were $1,627,-375.59.

The cost of maintaining the police signal system during the year was $56,-582.38. The invested fund of the police charitable fund on the 30th of November last amounted to $207,550, and there was a balance of $38.41 unexpended income. There are 60 beneficiaries at the present time and there has been paid to them during the past year the sum of $9312.

No Arrests,

New York, Jan. 3.—The Adams poisoning case is still a mystery, and no arrests have been made. The startling reports, amounting almost to accusations, are the most sensational features this remarkable case has so far developed, but they receive no confirmation from the police. It appears that Captain McCluskey has known that the match safe which held the bottle containing poison was sold by Emma Miller, in the employ of Charles Hartgeden & Co., Newark, on Dec. 23. The publication of this and other clues, Captain McCluskey stated, has materially handicapped the police in their efforts.

Roosevelt's Reception.

Albany, Jan. 3.—The public reception given by Governor Roosevelt in the executive chamber yesterday was a marked feature of the day. Fully 6000 people grasped his hand and congratulated him and full 2000 more were unable to gain admittance. The governor's arm was tired when he had concluded the handshaking. The thousands who paid their respects constituted a representative gathering. There were state officers, city officials, members of the legislature, officers of local military organizations and the public in general. The members of the governor's staff assisted in receiving.

Cavalier Military Changes.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The Herald says: In the reorganization of the Sixth regiment, M. V. M., Major Darling will get all the votes for colonel; Captain Gibon of Wakefield will secure a large majority for the lieutenant colonelcy, and Lieutenant Colonel Ames will be dropped; Captain Goodale, who resigned during the Porto Rican campaign, will get all the votes he needs for one of the majorships. There are other things that may come to the surface after the command is mustered out that may make interesting reading.

Bulwer-Clayton Again.

London, Jan. 3.—The British foreign office, in response to a request made during the last session of parliament, has just issued an interesting paper containing a collection of the treaties and documents relating to the engagements and guarantees still binding on Great Britain with regard to the territories or governments of foreign powers. It includes the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and treaties whereby Great Britain guarantees the integrity of Portugal.

Workmen In Battle.

Ashland, Neb. Jan. 3.—Several men were injured at the Armour & Co. ice plant at Memphis yesterday in a clash between strikers and men on duty. Eighty members of the night force struck Sunday for increased wages, and when the day force refused to join the strikers a vicious hand to hand fight resulted. One striker was struck on the head and is reported dying. The attacking party was defeated and several of the men have been arrested.

Awful Fall to Death.

Peace Commissioner Day Talks to Lawyers on the Topic of the Day.

Canton, O., Jan. 3.—Judge William R. Day, president of the peace commission at Paris and late secretary of state, received a welcome home last evening which took the form of a banquet at the Barrett House, given by the Stark County Bar association.

W. A. Lynch was master of ceremonies. Judge G. E. Baldwin delivered the welcoming address, to which Judge Day responded.

JUDGE W. R. DAY.

Judge Day paid high tribute to the legal fraternity of Stark county, closing with an eloquent reference to President McKinley, a member of the association, and reciting his devotion to the country during the war, and the incidents leading thereto. He then spoke as follows of the matters which took himself and his colleagues to Paris:

"Recognizing that there are certain matters which may not be properly discussed on an occasion of this kind, I think I may nevertheless say something to my brethren of the bar of the events which have occurred in the period of our separation.

"If I were called upon to state the most gratifying circumstances of our foreign relations during the war, it would be in the uniformly cordial and hearty friendship of the English before and during the struggle. Observing the obligations of neutrality, and never stepping outside the requirements of international law, we had the sympathy and good will of that great power. I do not believe either nation seeks or would be benefited by a formal alliance. Nevertheless, the existence of cordial relations between people kindred by blood, speaking the same language and having the same ideals of civil liberty and good government, is a fact the potency of which can hardly be overestimated.

"I have been asked about the work of the commissioners, viewed from a lawyer's standpoint. I think I may say something to you about it. On Aug. 12 the protocol of Washington was executed. It may be said to have been the preliminary contract, whose final execution was to be embodied in the treaty. As to Cuba, Porto Rico, minor West Indian islands and an island in the Ladrones, it was capable of execution by a simple deed of cession of these islands, except Cuba, where final relinquishment of Spanish sovereignty was required. As to the Philippine islands, their disposition, government and control was left for final determination in the treaty. I have often been asked how it was possible to make progress in a commission having equal representations from the two nations.

"Whilst this fact did not prevent the fullest discussion, the United States, having made all the concessions which it believed just and fair, was obliged to insist that its terms be accepted. The publication of the proceedings will show that nothing can be farther from the truth than to assume that the United States adopted toward Spain a policy of 'stand and deliver.'

"The American commissioners heard with respect and endeavored to answer with firmness every position advanced by the Spanish commission. For better, for worse, the work of the commissioners is done, and needs but the ratification of the president, by and with the consent of the senate, to become the supreme law in the land.

"It cannot be a matter of regret to any American that the rising sun of the new year beholds the ensign of our glorious republic floating from the walls of Morro, where for so many years the ropal banner of Spain has looked down upon so much corruption, misery and shame. Tonight not one foot of American soil remains under Spanish domination, and the people so long oppressed are to have a new birth of freedom.

"This is not the time nor place to discuss our policy in the far east. If this treaty should be ratified it brings to the United States title to the archipelago, to be dealt with as the American people in their wisdom may see fit. In one thing I think we're all agreed, that when the line of our duty has been determined, it must be discharged as becomes a great, free and liberty-loving nation. Whether or not we have so willed, the days of our international isolation are past. It does not follow

Good Afternoon.

Now that Mayor Keith has been inaugurated the slate makers are again at work. When his honor gets ready he will smash them all at one blow.

The proposition to seat together the two Democrats elected to the City Council was the first attempt to divide the Council chamber politically, since the inauguration of the city government and it is well it was promptly squelched. It is unlikely that the two gentlemen desired such action, and it was unkind to call the attention of the large assemblage to the fact that only two Democrats were elected to the Council of 1899. Politics are seldom exhibited in the City Councils of Quincy, even though the Mayor and Council are different parties, and the new Council should continue on these lines. As one of the Councilmen remarked, "We do not know a Democrat from a Republican here."

The new year makes many changes in the municipal governments of the Commonwealth, and the Lynn Item well sums up the addresses of the Mayors, when it says: It is the old, old story of economy and reform, ideas that seem so large and powerful in the opening months, and which shrink away to such small proportions as the year draws to a close. Still, if the new Mayors did not start with economical desires and purposes, where would they finally arrive? The limitations are after all determined by the popular wish. If the people want improvements and are willing to be taxed for them, their official representatives will furnish them. If, on the other hand, they are willing to exercise restraint and insist on retrenchment, they will get that, for Mayors and members of City Councils desire to carry out the wishes of the people, and they generally do. So, after all, the responsibility rests with the citizen, although he may not realize it as he should.

It is pleasing to note that Mayor Keith does not intend to wait for the appointment of a Committee on the Welfare of the City before moving for better depot accommodations at Quincy. The railroad officials have told us in the past that we must wait until Boston got its new station. This has now been realized, and while much has yet to be done in Boston it is by the Boston Terminal Company and not the New Haven officials. Quincy is sadly in need of a new depot. It has been entitled to one for a number of years and has been patient in putting up with what has been offered. We believe it is a fact that cannot be denied that more passengers daily use the Quincy depot than any other station on the Old Colony system outside of the Terminal, not excepting Brockton. Whether this is a fact or not, the present Quincy station is inadequate as well as antiquated, and unsightly if not unhealthy. Quincy is a city of 25,000 population, and although there are other depots in the city, the people of the whole city use the central depot. They come to the centre on business, either with the city government, the stores, the banks, the court, the newspapers, etc. The trains are not frequent enough, and it often happens that there are not cars enough or trains. A committee or board on the Welfare of the City may well supplement the work of Mayor Keith in this direction.

Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION.

War Experience of a Young Soldier an Interesting Feature.

The Quincy Young Men's Christian Association held is annual New Year's reception Monday evening.

The rooms were very attractively decorated with holly and evergreen. The guests numbered one hundred and fifty and were received by the reception committee and board of directors.

During the first part of the evening an opportunity was afforded to inspect the rooms. This was followed by an entertainment consisting of selections by the Wollaston orchestra; violin duet by Wason brothers; readings Mr. Charles E. Snow; banjo solo, Mr. F. H. Lord; and guitar and mandolin duet by Mr. Lord and his pupil, Master Muers.

Secretary Hoehn then made a few remarks fitting to the occasion and introduced Sergeant Kenibbs, of the 7th U. S. Infantry. Sergeant Kenibbs was wounded five times during the recent war with Spain and he spoke in a highly interesting manner of the experience of his regiment in Cuba, and of the memorable charge on San Juan hill, and the victory at Santiago. He spoke for over an hour, and although he has partially lost his voice through his wounds, so interested were his hearers that his remarks were plainly audible. He also showed many relics gathered during his service.

Refreshments of chocolate and cake were served by the ladies auxiliary.

The reception was a pronounced success.

To a Boston Church.

The Quincy friends of Rev. Arthur L. Bumpus are pleased at his advancement. He is now rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Natick, and St. Andrew's church, South Framingham, but the Herald says he has accepted a call as coworker to the Rev. Edward L Atkinson, vicar of the Church of the Ascension, corner of Washington and Newcomb streets, Boston. He will begin work in his new field Feb. 1

The Rev. Mr. Bumpus is the son of Judge Everett C. Bumpus. He was born in Quincy about 28 years ago. He graduated from Adams Academy in the class of 1887. In the fall of that year he entered Harvard College, and, after completing the course there, was graduated in 1891. While in college, he was quite prominent in athletics. After leaving Harvard, he became a student in the Cambridge theological school, graduating from it in June, 1894. He then went to New York, and became an assistant to the Rev. Dr. Rainsford, rector of St. George's Episcopal church. For about a year he did institutional work in connection with his church duties in New York city. He then was appointed rector of the two parishes of which he now has charge. Both churches have prospered under his guidance.

At the Church of the Ascension the Rev. Mr. Bumpus will have charge of the institutional work, which includes classes in gymnastics, shoe mending, Sloyd, sewing and cooking, the various clubs of the church, the temperance kindergarten, the Girls' Friendly Society, Woman's Guild, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the Choral Society, Temperace Legion and the Stamp Saving Society.

Mayor Keith made the following appointments on Monday:

Randolph Ladies Entertain.

Notwithstanding the intensely cold weather of Monday there was a large gathering of ladies at the January meeting of Adams Chapter at the John Adams birthplace. Roaring fires were blazing in the big fireplaces, around which the ladies were glad to cluster.

Mrs. Charles Belcher, Mrs. John. J. Crawford, Mrs. Macomber and Mrs. Granger of Randolph were the hostesses of the afternoon and the guest of honor was Miss Clara B. Adams of Lynn. Miss Adams entertained the chapter and friends reading a most interesting paper and short sketch. Although just recovering from the grip Miss Adams was as bright and entertaining as usual and was enthusiastically applauded.

The hostesses served chocolate, and light refreshments.

The regent and state officers are expected as guests at the February meeting.

MISSTATEMENTS.

Writers Take Exceptions to Comments of Granite Manufacturer.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

Will you allow us to correct the misstatements in an article in your issue of December 31st in regard to the fire at the Eagle Polishing Mills? The assertion that the building was little better than a fire trap is not true, and if based upon the writer's false statements outlined in his letter, should receive but little weight. What his object was in endeavoring to mislead the public as to the exact facts is best known to himself.

The wooden partition of which he speaks was much farther from the brick work of the boiler than stated by him, and any one that knows anything about the bricking of boilers knows that no heat from this brick work could have ignited the woodwork.

He states that there was so heavy a head of steam in the boiler that it blew out the safety valve. Will he be frank enough to tell when this happened, and who imparted this information to him? We have owned the property two years, and during all that time there has been no accident to the boiler.

His statement that the furnace doors are usually left open, is false and without foundation, as our fires are banked carefully every night and the furnace doors securely closed.

He speaks of the large fire under the boiler, when as a matter of fact there had been but little fire in the furnace since Dec. 24th, when the shop was shut down for a week. Just enough steam to keep the pipes from freezing.

One who has the interest of the city so much at heart that he is willing to distort facts to demonstrate his philanthropy should certainly have the moral courage to sign his own name to a communication of this kind.

Eagle Polishing Company.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In your issue of the 31st I noticed an article relating to the fire which destroyed the Eagle Polishing Mills, signed "Granite Manufacturer." In reading the article I was surprised at the number of statments that were at variance with the facts in the case.

Regarding the building being a fire trap, etc., I would state that it was built by a contractor known as the best fire engineer that our city ever has had. I do not consider myself competent to criticise his plans.

Regarding the head of steam that was so heavy that it blew out the safety valve, I would say that the owners say that they never made any such statement.

Regarding the furnace doors being left open at night, the engineer states positively such is not the case.

If before the fire we had an inspector of buildings and he condemned this building, I think that but few polishing mills in this city would stand his inspection, those of "Granite Manufacturer," not excepted.

There is no doubt in the minds of unbiased people who saw the fire, and have seen the ruins, that it was the work of an incendiary. There are witness to prove that a person was seen going towards the mill, and others who saw a person coming from there just before the fire, and their descriptions agree.

Regarding the criticism of police, would say that in my judgment it would be hard for any policeman or ex-policeman to be at both ends of a beat at the same time.

School Attendance.

In the past some cities have had peculiar methods of figuring the percentages of attendance. By the new State law: "In reckoning the average membership and the percentage of attendance in the schools no pupil's name shall be omitted in counting the number of persons belonging to the school and the number of absences of such persons, until it is known that such pupil has withdrawn from the school without intention of returning, or, in the absence of such knowledge, until ten consecutive day of absence have been recorded."

"Every pupil shall be considered a member of the school from the time of his first entrance.

MAYORS' OPINIONS.

Other Cities Have Some of the Same Problems as Quincy.

A few extracts from the addresses of Massachusetts Mayors may be of interest.

RECOMMENDS GRANITE.

Mayor Shepherd of Lynn in his inaugural said: "Considerable progress has been made in carrying out the policy, adopted some years ago, of paving our principal thoroughfares. There are so many different pavements and the results obtained in different cities are so varied, owing to different conditions under which the work is performed, that it is a difficult thing to say which is best for our own use. During the past year, brick pavements have been used to some extent on the streets in the vicinity of the new post office. A fair trial will demonstrate as to their desirability, but until convinced that there is something better and more durable, I recommend the continued use of granite pavements in those streets subjected to heavy traffic."

That it is impossible for even the large cities to obtain good streets is further shown by Mayor Shepherd.

He says "There is no department of the public service which is subjected to so much criticism as that of streets and highways, but until some better method of control is adopted and the state of our finances will permit of more liberal expenditure, the cause of dissatisfaction is sure to continue. Lynn has, at the present time, some 130 miles of streets, and the usual appropriation is inadequate for the proper maintenance and care of the whole. My judgment is that the department has been well conducted and as good results have been obtained as could be expected with the limited appropriations made."

THOUGHTFUL FOR SOLDIERS.

Mayor Webber of Beverly was thoughtful for the soldiers. He said: "It should be the duty of the city government to endeavor to faciliate every proper measure tending to the comfort welfare and health of the officers and men of Company E, 8th Massachusetts infantry, United States volunteers as well as all other sons of Beverly serving in the army or navy, and to lend its official influence in every legitimate way in cooperation with our citizens whenever opportunity presents or occasion seems to require so that when the day happily arrives for the return of these brave and loyal men the ranks may not be depleted through any neglect of ours."

MORE PAVING AT BROCKTON.

Quincy will be pleased to furnish Brockton with more pavers, and therefore endorses the opinions of Mayor Low in his inaugural that macadam should not be used on streets in the centre, where heavy teaming is the rule, but on residential streets, and that the former should be paved. He thinks the trunk line streets of the city, like Main and Montello streets, should be paved their entire length, and feels that it might be wise to do the work under a loan, believing that money would be saved in repairs if this was done. Mayor Low also came out practically and unequivocally in favor of a board of public works, and says that in the end he believes the city would save money by having the business of the principal departments transacted by such a board instead of by city committees. The matter is an important one, and he takes the same stand upon it that has been taken by some of his predecessors.

In relation to the police department he recommends for consideration the formation of a reserve police force under a recent act of the legislature, the creating of a mounted squad for the outlying sections of the city, and the appointment of roundsmen, as is done in other cities. He promises that so far as he is concerned the department will execute all laws impartially, and, recognizing the meaning of the big vote on the no-license side of the liquor question promises that the liquor laws will all be enforced and that the marshal will so be instructed. Proper lighting of the almshouse, wisdom in making appropriations, the necessity of meeting needful demands, and other matters, are considered briefly, and good words are said for the departments he has examined. He urges that the time of the Mayor or city officials should not be demanded at social functions to the degree that has been the custom.

JUST NOTED.

The municipal debt of our twin city, Woburn, is $332,700, against $265,505.86 for Quincy. No reduction of the big tax rate in Brockton is looked for by the new Mayor.

HEROISM OF TODAY.

Dr. Roblin Says It Is Not a Bygone Virtue.

The lecture by Dr. Roblin at the Universalist church, Monday evening, was a wholesome enforcement of the fact that courage and heroism are not bygone virtues of the race, but are still dominent in human life. Let the occasion arise and men will meet it as boldly as ever. Wrong ideas concerning these admirable qualities were pointed out, and the speaker cited many instances in which men and women of today have exhibited the true martyr spirit in the line of duty.

One brave incidents in the life of the present Chief of Police of New York city was told so dramatically that one could almost witness the wonful act of heroism Reference was also made to the child hero, who only the other day perished in the brave attempt to save his little girl companion, who had broken through the ice while they were skating together; and other acts were noted of like kind, which neither the brilliant exploits of Dewey nor Hobson, nor the knightly deeds of old could outshine.

All in all, it was an eloquent and thoroughly enjoyable lecture and taken as a specimen of Dr. Roblin's customary effort would indicate that those who have the privilege of hearing him from Sunday to Sunday were to be envied.

The next and final lecture of the course will be given next Monday evening by Edward Mason Fuller of Boston, who will give personal incidents of life in Cuba with over 100 splendid stereopticon illustrations.

L. O. L. Installation.

Bay View Loyal Orange lodge, No. 187, had a crowded lodge room Monday evening. Promptly at 7.30, Worshipful Master Frank Tinney, called the meeting to order. It being the annual meeting of the lodge, the officers made their reports which showed a large increase in membership and a good financial standing. After the private business of the lodge was transacted the doors were opened to the friends of the order, and daughters of John Adams Ladies' Loyal Orange lodge were presented, while Miss Jennie McLeod presided at the organ.

W.M. Tinney on retiring from chair, thanked the members for the past confidence they had placed in him. State Grand Master John Shaw and installing staff were reported in waiting. The grand master then installed the following:

THE PEOPLE PLEASED

Favorable Comments on Mayor's Inaugural Address.

The Ledger hears considerable favorable comments on the address of Mayor Keith, and but an occasional criticism. Some expected reference to the No-license vote, others an endorsement of the boulevard, etc., but all seemed pleased with the comments of the Mayor and his recommendation.

We invite all to express their opinions in the Ledger on the address as a whole or upon any of the recommendations.

Ex-Councilman Charles H. Johnson writes: I consider the inaugural address of Mayor Keith the best and most interesting ever listened to by our citizens. I believe the present Mayor to be the stamp of man to carry out the recommendations mentioned, and if he does this, a decided improvement in all departments of the city will mark the term of office of Mayor Keith. Two points in the inaugural especially interested me.

First,—Street Crossings. If the present Mayor will see that the street crossings, especially in the centre of the city, are well cared for, he will confer a great favor on pedestrians. Their conditions in the past have been wretched and a disgrace to the city.

Second,—Tax rates and valuations. I believe in this part of his address the Mayor has struck the key note of a great deal of the complaint heard in the city in regard to taxes. That valuations have been excessive here in many places, is proved by the fact that nearly all the property sold by private sale and public auction the last few years has in nearly every case been way below the assessed value. High valuation also retards selling real estate, thus no improvements or changes take place in the city. Especially is this the case in regard to property held by non-residents who in every case held their selling price at the assessed value. Give us the Board of Assessors in accordance with the view expressed in your inaugural, Mr. Mayor, and I believe real estate in the city will feel the benefit.

NEW YEAR'S IN SCOTLAND.

Superstitions Regarding the First Caller of the Year.

It is an exceptional thing for a Scottish family to go to bed on Hogmanay. On the contrary, they sit up waiting for the "first foot," or the one who is the first to put his foot over the doorsill after the clock has struck 12. Refreshments have been prepared and are kept in readiness on tables decorated as elaborately as possible.

There are many superstitions connected with "first footing." The most marked of these has to do with the luckiness or unluckiness of "first foots." It is generally believed that the prosperity or adversity of any family is due to the "first foot" of that year. So strong is this belief that when it is known that a reputed unlucky person intends to "first foot" a family all sorts of schemes are resorted to in order to prevent it. A lucky friend is besought to get there first, or a member of the family stands outside the door to enter as soon as the moment arrives.

But all this is done with the greatest delicacy, so as not to violate the stringent laws of hospitality or offend in the least the unlucky "first foot."

The lucky "first footers" are friends and wellwishers, a kind man, a good man, a sweetheart, people who spread out their feet, those who were born feet first, a man on horseback, a man with a horse and cart. Unlucky "first footers" are thieves, pigeontoed people, cripples, deformed or weakminded folk, a stingy man, an immoral man, a hypocrite, the hangman, a gravedigger or an undertaker, a midwife, all who were suspected of dealing in witchcraft, those whose eyebrows meet and men with red hair.

There is always great rivalry among the young men for the honor of "first footing" the home of the reigning belle. Excitement runs high when four or five athletic young men reach such a house before the hour has struck. It is the wise youth who incites his companions to a bout at wrestling to decide the disputed question, and himself steps over the threshold on the stroke of the hour while the others roll and tumble out in front.—New York Herald.

—New York's assistant secretary of state, David J. Hill, is right when he declares that a malignant disposition could have designed no more offensive word than imperialism to designate the beginning of the present era of expansion. He claims for "expansion" that it is expressive of the actual condition of affairs, and considers it to represent the principle that has been acted upon since the beginning of our national growth. And he approves of expansion, because he cannot believe it is a misfortune for the stars and stripes to float over any people whatever. Those over whom it has floated from birth will generally endorse his statement.—Boston Home Journal.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about 1-4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Are the Women Bashful?

Some Young women are bashful. They are afraid to go into a Clothing store to trade. Bless you! a clothing store is one of the easiest places in the world to get acquainted in. All you've got to do is to come in and you feel at home the minute you get in. You can go around and look at things all alone if you want to and you are always sure to find things that a man wants. The only trouble is you won't feel acquainted with such prices if you come into our store.

You'll see two thousand Ties strung out in all the swell styles and shapes at 25c.—Puffs, Techs, Imperials, Strings, Band, Bow and Four-in-Hands. These are the kind the dry goods stores sell for 37c, marked down from 75c. If you want the kind they sell for 25c., you'll see them here, too, only at 19c.

You'll see the swellest line of Umbrellas you ever saw at $3.00 for $5.00 ones, down to 98c. for $1.50 ones.

You'll see so many things that men want that you'll wish you had more friends to buy for. Come in and get acquainted—not with us particularly, but with our prices on Suspenders, Hosiery, Arm Bands, Mufflers, and the hundred and one things that men want. You'll be glad you saw us.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Benjamin Constant, the French painter, has just finished a portrait of Mme. Calve. It will be exhibited at the next salon.

One of the first things that Israel Zangwill did when he arrived in Chicago was to go to the Jewish quarter and visit his old friend and playmate, Abraham Halprin.

Sir Walter Besant celebrated his sixtieth birthday on Nov. 1. The event calls to mind that he has never suffered any of the hardships which were the lot of so many of his contemporaries in fiction. From the very beginning he has found a ready market for his work.

James Whitcomb Riley thinks the lot of a poet a hard one. In a recent interview he said: "If you're called as witness in a lawsuit, some little attorney squares himself off and says with withering scorn: 'Let me see, you're a poet, are you not? H'm, yes. Gentlemen of the jury, the witness is a poet'—and your testimony is killed dead as a door nail."

The French officer was touched and deeply gratified by the presentation.

Agoncillo to Wolcott.

Boston, Jan. 3.—Governor Wolcott yesterday received the new year's congratulations of Felipe Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo in this country. It was a handsomely engraved card from Aguinaldo's ambassador, which said: "Mr. Felipe Agoncillo presents you his compliments and the greetings of the new year, 1899." The governor replied warmly to the Filipino and thanked him for his kindly expression of good will.

Goulette Was Plucky.

Rochester, Jan. 3.—Goulette of Rochester and McCue of New York fought a 20-round draw here last night before the Rienzi Athletic club. Goulette broke his left hand by a swing on McCue's elbow in the third round, but he continued the fight to the end. Goulette did all of the aggressive work. Both appeared strong at the finish, although McCue received a great deal of punishment on the body,

PHILIPPINE FARMING

To Be Thoroughly Investigated by the Agricultural Department.

No Further News Received From General Otis.

Officials Believe That General Miller Is Able to Cope With Present Difficulties.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The administration intends to ascertain, as precisely as possible, what can be done toward making the Philippines of agricultural value to the world. Naturally this work falls to the lot of the secretary of agriculture, and, discussing this subject, Secretary Wilson said:

"We expect to learn more about the Philippines and their resources in three months than the Spaniards did in 300 years. Fortunately for our purposes, we have in the volunteer army now at Manila a force of men fully competent to do this work. Some months ago my attention was called to the fact that A. P. Hayne, professor of viticulture and olive culture in the University of California, and of the agricultural experiment station of that state, was attached to the volunteer forces in the Philippines as a second lieutenant of artillery.

"Knowing Mr. Hayne to be a man of scientific attainments, I requested the secretary of war to detail him to make a thorough examination of the agricultural resources of the Philippine islands. He has organized a force of 40 or 50 men to aid him in the researches, among these gentlemen, who are all in the volunteer army, being eight or 10 graduates of agricultural colleges.

"The moment peace is declared formally, after the ratifications of the treaty have been exchanged between Spain and the United States, the work under Mr. Hayne will be pushed forward vigorously.

"I feel sure, from the reports we have received of conditions of soil and atmosphere in the islands," said Mr. Wilson, "that many of the vegetables and some of the grains common to the United States can be produced in the Philippines. It is not so much, however, to learn which of our vegetable and grain products can be successfully transplanted to the Philippines as it is to ascertain what vegetables that grow there are suitable for introduction here, and what products indigenous to the soil of the islands can be made profitable crops in the United States."

Nothing New From Manila.

Nothing more has been heard at the war department from General Otis at Manila. The situation is irritating in the fact that, according to the experience of the last few days, it is not to be expected that anything more can be heard from Iloilo for a day or two at least, except in the very improbable event that the American force has been repulsed in the effort to make a landing and has been obliged to return to Manila.

It is surmised from the reports that General Miller is proceeding with more tact and with less roughness in his dealings with the insurgents than appeared from a first impression of the reports. His purpose apparently was to avoid such a formal recognition of the insurgents as might tend to embarrass the United States government hereafter, but at the same time not to deal harshly with them if they can be brought to see the rectitude of his decisions. Therefore the officials are of the opinion there will be no actual hostilities between the forces arrayed against General Otis and his own, but that at the worst the former will retire from the city without accepting or rejecting the American overtures until they have heard from Aguinaldo. General Otis has taken steps to acquaint General Miller with the very latest instructions of the president and a special messenger is now on his way from Manila to Iloilo.

Although officials profess the strong belief that no serious trouble will occur, they have taken the precaution to expedite the dispatch of military reinforcements to General Otis' command in the Philippines. Orders have been issued for the Twentieth regiment of infantry at Fort Leavenworth to time its departure so as to be in San Francisco by the 7th inst. In order to embark on the military transport being fitted out to sail for Manila on that date if possible. The two other infantry regiments which are under orders to proceed to the Philippines by the Pacific route—the Third and Twenty-second—will follow as soon as means of water transportation can be secured. Three other regiments are also under orders to proceed to Manila by way of the Mediterranean and Suez canal These are the Fourth, Twelfth and Fourteenth infantry. They will make the trip on the new transports Mobile and Mohawk, and, unless present plans miscarry, they will embark at New York on the 17th inst.

Major General Lawton, the hero of El Caney, who has been ordered to take command of the military forces in the Philippines, under the direction of Major General Otis, as military governor of the archipelago, will accompany the expedition from New York after a conference here respecting the administration of affairs in the Philippines.

The Cuban Situation.

London, Jan. 3.—The Times prints a letter this morning from a "distinguished American naval officer," giving an interesting account of the situation in Havana, and expressing sincere pity for "the many gallant Spanish officers." He describes the "fatalistic resignation" of the Spaniards and the riots resulting from the dismissal of the Spanish police without pay.

Commenting editorially upon the foregoing letter, its correspondent's opinion and the transfer of sovereignty in Cuba from Spain to the United States, The Times says:

Such a transfer was the best thing that could have happened to the Cubans. For their own sakes it is to be hoped that their political education will be rapid and complete, since it is certain that the Americans will not tolerate the impatience of law which a long and demoralizing struggle has engendered.

Regarding the non-payment of the police, The Times says: A bankrupt generally manages to pay his servants' wages. The completeness of the Spanish downfall is more fully brought home to us by those squalid domestic tragedies than by the greater events of the war.

White House Reception.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The senate and house of representatives were well represented at the White House new year's reception yesterday, although two notable absentees from the house were noted—Speaker Reed, who is attending the funeral of his sister at Portland, and Representative Dingley, who is confined to his bed with a dangerous attack of pneumonia. Four striking military figures headed the army and navy callers, Messrs. Miles, Shafter, Lawton and Corbin. The officers were in the full uniform of their high military rank. After their greetings were given to President and Mrs. McKinley and the receiving party, the president invited them back of the line. In rapid succession delegations were received from the Smithsonian and from all the government departments, veterans of the Mexican and Civil war, the Grand Army, Loyal Legion, Oldest Inhabitants' association and finally the general public. The public reception lasted until 1:15, when the doors were closed and the President and Mrs. McKinley led the receiving party back to the private quarters of the mansion. The two hours of continuous handshaking had passed without an unpleasant occurrence. Mrs. McKinley remained seated most of the time. The greetings extended to her were particularly heartfelt, some of the callers bending to kiss her hand as they passed. Altogether the reception was regarded as a most auspicious and happy opening of the new year.

Bad Weather at Sea.

Boston, Jan. 3.—Several belated steamers reached port yesterday, among them being the English King from Antwerp, Sarmatian from Glasgow, Bay State from Liverpool, and the Etolia from Avonmouth. The captains all report violent weather at sea, especially after passing Sable Island. Steamers Essex from Baltimore and Norfolk and H. M. Whitney from New York, which were due Sunday night, did not arrive until late last night, having been obliged to anchor at Vineyard sound owing to the severity of the storm. Steamer Indian, from Philadelphia, came up the harbor looking like an iceberg.

No Respecter of Persons.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The grip and the ailments attendant upon it that are now included in its train of ills has prostrated an unusual number of residents of Washington. Senators Sewell and Cockrell have been sick for two weeks or more, and Senator Allison has the grip. Senator Turpie of Indiana is suffering from an attack of pneumonia. It is not at all likely that he will go to the Capitol for at least two weeks. Justice Gray is sick with the grip. Justice Weldon is ailing, Justice Alvery and Justice Morris are both afflicted, and Justice Bingham and Justice Cox are sick. The present freezing spell, it is hoped, will kill the germs of the disease.

Pana Disturbances.

Pana, Ills., Jan. 3.—The reported massing in Pana of 1000 union miners from central and southern Illinois towns yesterday for the purpose of driving out the non-union imported negro miners failed to materialize. Many arrests of negroes have been made. The mine operators, who have heretofore been securing the release of negroes by going on their bonds, notified Sheriff Downey yesterday that no more bonds would be signed by mine operators. In consequence, the county jail is fast being filled with negroes. Twenty are now confined therein.

A Hard-Hearted Wretch.

London, Jan. 3.—Some remarkable facts have been developed regarding the suicide of Mrs. Marx-Aveling last March. It appears that she learned that Dr. Aveling, the English Socialist leader, with whom she had lived for a number of years, had secretly married a young lady. He admitted that this was true, and intimated that he was tired of her, whereupon Mrs. Aveling said the best thing she could do was to commit suicide. Dr. Aveling allowed her to send to a drug store for poison, and went out walking while she drank it.

Cash Galore.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—An imperial decree just issued directs the payment of 75,000,000 roubles out of the free cash reserves in the imperial treasury for the redemption of a large portion of the state debt to the imperial bank. The issuance of the ukase is regarded as disproving the reports spread abroad of Russia's embarrassment and of her efforts to contract a loan. It is declared that the question of a loan in no way engages the government's attention.

Dewey May Attend.

Toledo, Jan. 3.—City Clerk Harris is in receipt of a letter from Admiral Dewey, who was invited to be the guest of honor to open the Ohio centennial, May 1, 1903. The admiral expresses his thanks for the honor, and says that while it is impossible for him at present to make any definite arrangement it would give him much pleasure should circumstances at that time render it possible to accept the invitation.

Condition Still Critical.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The slight improvement in the condition of Representative Dingley, noted yesterday morning, continues, and his family are hopeful that the change for the better is permanent. The fever has been slightly reduced and the pulse is a little stronger. One of the attending physicians says he believes the patient now has a chance to recover. His condition, however, remains critical.

Tomorrow's Almanac and Forecast.

Sun rises—7:14; sets, 4:25.
Moon rises—Morn.
Full sea—4 a. m.; 4:15 p. m.

The weather is becoming unsettled in the west, with conditions favorable to storm development. This is moving eastward and will be felt in New England by Wednesday, with higher temperature. At present there is little indication of foul weather in this district before Wednesday night or Thursday. The temperature will continue freezing or below, except during midday; westerly to southerly winds.

THE ARMED CUBANS.

Cheapest Method Would Be For United States to Pay Them Off.

Havana, Jan. 3.—The continuance of the Cubans in arms is the most puzzling question connected with the administration of the island. The negotiations for the payment of the soldiers are to be conducted from Washington, so as to relieve Major General Brooke of this difficulty. For the present the Cuban commanders are holding their men closely together and under discipline. General Davis, military governor of the department of Pinar del Rio, has gone into the matter fully with General Mario Menocal and other Cuban commanders. They say that they expect the United States to pay them, and that they will not disband until they get an answer. The majority of military observers here seem to think that probably the easiest way out is to make the payment, taking a mortgage on the revenues of Cuba in the form of bonds.

There are probably 35,000 men able to work, but now sponging on the country. If paid off, on condition that their arms were surrendered, they would have no excuse for not working. The United States military authorities do not look with favor upon the notion of forcible disarming.

The Quay Fight.

Harrisburg, Jan. 3.—Senator Quay has taken personal direction of his campaign for re-election to the United States senate. He reached Harrisburg from Washington with his colleague, Senator Penrose, and will stay until after the senatorial caucus. Ex-Senator Cameron came to Harrisburg yesterday from his country residence, and was a visitor to the Quay headquarters. The former senator came all the way from England to take a hand in the contest for his old friend and colleague. Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker is on the ground working against Senator Quay with the assistance of ex-Judge Gordon. The Business Men's league opened headquarters yesterday, and the members are here from all over the state, to help fight Quay.

Not In the Market.

Lisbon, Jan. 2.—King Charles opened the legislature yesterday. In the course of his speech from the throne, the king said that during the war between the United States and Spain, two friendly nations, Portugal proclaimed and, as was her duty, maintained strict and absolute neutrality. He greatly sympathized with the czar's disarmament proposals, and made a reference to the colonies which apparently disposes of the rumors of the sale of Delagoa bay. He said: "It is not sufficient to preserve our colonial domains in their complete integrity as the sacred heritage of the nation, but they must be developed as the solid basis of our economic regeneration."

The Confederate Dead.

Atlanta, Jan. 3.—General Clement A. Evans, chairman of the commission appointed in response to a resolution adopted by the last legislature, requiring the members to secure information as to the location of the graves of Confederate soldiers who died in northern military prisons, has sent a copy of the committee's report to General Wright, agent of the war department. This report is by no means complete, but it shows that nearly 22,000 Confederate dead are buried in northern states.

An Ohio Tragedy.

Middletown, O., Jan. 3.—News has been reached here of the killing during a quarrel of Philip Kuch by John Gifford at Jacksonboro. The altercation arose over the division of a crop of tobacco which Kuch had raised on the Gifford farm. Gifford fired a shotgun at Kuch, the charge tearing away his face. Officers went to arrest Gifford, who barricaded himself in his house and threatened to kill any one who might attempt to arrest him. Later on Gifford committed suicide.

PRAISE FOR ENGLAND.

that the advice of the immortal Washington to avoid entangling alliances is less potent today than when the words were written.

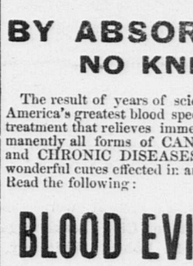
"The American citizen has a right to go wherever trade and enterprise may legitimately seek an outlet for the product of American thrift and industry, and there must follow, if need be, the overshadowing protection of the flag."

Supremacy Undecided.

New York, Jan. 3.—Before the Greenwood Athletic club of Brooklyn a 20-round bout at catchweights between Owen Zeigler of Philadelphia and Matthew Matthews of this city, both welterweights, was hard and fast, each displaying a great deal of science and good judgment. Before five rounds had been gone through each man's face was well marked up. The bout was declared a draw.

German For Germans.

Berlin, Jan. 3.—The Army Gazette publishes an imperial cabinet order substituting German for words of French origin now employed in the army. The order declares that Emperor William is desirous of promoting the use of pure German in the army.



Most women approach the critical period of motherhood for the first time with a sense of dread and foreboding lest the ruthless hand of death should snatch them away and leave the expectant little darling motherless. But no woman who fortifies herself with the strengthening power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription need feel one instant's misgiving about either herself or the prospective little one.

This matchless "Prescription" will give her exactly the kind of healthy vitality she needs and at the time she needs it most. It will give elastic endurance to the entire delicate organism involved in motherhood. It will make the coming of baby absolutly free from danger and nearly free from pain.

It will insure the baby's start in life by imparting, through its influence upon the mother, that sturdy infantile vigor which gladdens a mother's heart. It is the only medicine which can be implicitly relied upon for this purpose; and the only remedy expressly designed by an educated, experienced physician to give perfect health and strength to the delicate, special organism of women.

Mr. Joseph Ramsey, of Williams, Colleton Co., S. C., writes: "I have been using your medicines for some time and am happy to say that they have done all that you claim for them. I think they have no equal in the world. I would advise all women while in a delicate state to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It shortens the time of birth and makes the labor easier. My wife is the mother of five children and she suffered almost death in the birth of them until this last one; the time of birth was short, and labor easy, from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser used to sell for $1.50, now it is free. It tells all about the home-treatment of ordinary diseases. Several chapters are devoted to the diseases of women. For a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.: Cloth binding, 31 stamps. "Favorite Prescription" can be obtained in any good medicine store.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Imperialism and Anti-Imperialism Discussed by Men of Note.

Resolved Into Joint Debate Without Prearrangement.

List of Arguments Presented at a Banquet of Merchan's of Boston.

Boston, Jan. 4.—"What should this country do with the Philippines?" was the question at the annual banquet of the Boston Merchants' association last evening at the Hotel Vendome.

The association was fortunate in securing men of national reputation to present the various phases of the issue, and the speakers were fortunate in having as representative an audience of Boston business men as it would seem possible to congregate at one time, and in one place.

The speakers were evenly divided on the question of expansion, three being in favor thereof and three unequivocally opposed.

The anti-expansionists were Senator G. C. Perkins of California, Congressman David A. DeArmond of Missouri and Congressman Charles A. Boutelle of Maine.

Those favoring the expansion policy in the treatment of the Philippines were Attorney General Hosea M. Knowlton of Massachusetts, Mayor Josiah Quincy and Congressman Samuel J. Barrows.

While the discussion of the question resembled a joint debate, it so resolved itself without any prearrangement.

Applause was liberally given, and it is somewhat of a toss-up as to whether the expansionists or the anti-expansionists received the greater applause.

Mr. Knowlton, in speaking for the commonwealth, referred to the indisposition of Governor Wolcott, and said: "We have expanded time and time again by conquest, by purchase and by treaty. In my judgment those people who are annexed and who come under the political jurisdiction of this nation, unless there is some treaty right to the contrary, become citizens of the United States, and whatever appertains to the United States appertains to them. I know of no law which brings this imperial nation, which has the absolute right of sovereignty over everything it takes, whether by conquest, by treaty or otherwise, excepting what the states take to themselves, I know of nothing to prevent the United States administering to Cuba, or Porto Rico, or Manila for an indefinite time the laws as are administered to its present territories. It having been conceded that the acquired territory becomes part of the United States I know of no reason why the provisions of that constitution should not be carried out."

Mayor Quincy was enthusiastically received, and after the cessation of applause, in speaking to the point on the evening's subject, said:

"The common sense of the average citizen of this country—learned or unlearned—recognizes the fact that we have assumed certain duties and certain obligations as a consequence of our late war with Spain, and that whatever it may cost in dollars and cents, whatever it may cost in toil or trouble and disturbance, we have got to face the duties which we have undertaken with the peoples who have lived under the government of Spain, and whom we have taken the responsibility of directing that government. I believe that we must give them self-government—free government—representative institutions, but at the same time I believe that we must give them good government."

Senator Perkins prefaced his remarks by complimentary allusions to New England's wealth and business energy, and also spoke of the great productiveness of California. He spoke enthusiastically of shipbuilding on the Pacific coast, which had turned out such fine vessels as the Oregon, Olympia and Monterey.

After referring to the annexation of Hawaii he said: "The war with Spain has developed other questions. We made a declaration of itself more far-reaching than any of us anticipated or imagined. Congress made a declaration, the president made a declaration that this was not a war for conquest—it was not a war for acquisition of territory. We have acquired Porto Rico, the Ladrones, and a thousand more of the Philippine islands. We have paid, or are to pay, for them $20,000,000; that, therefore, divested it of all sentiment and makes it a business proposition. I do not think that it is a very good business investment. I have only to call your attention to the fact of the pestilential character; that there is not a congressman today who is not daily receiving hundreds of letters from volunteers in Manila urging him to have those volunteers discharged. We will come down now to the humanitarian standpoint. Now, who is going to emigrate to that country with a soil capable of producing everything and with wages at 10 cents a day for the ordinary laboring man—mechanics may get 50 cents a day. My manufacturing friends, I do not believe you will find very much of a market in future for your wares and merchandise. General Aguinaldo says Spain does not own the island. He says the United States have only got Manila, and we have got 20,500 men there. Today I see there are six more regiments to be sent, and that will take another city in the island of Luzon. You say I am not an expansionist. I think I would be in favor of the annexation of Louisiana if I had lived at the time, but is there any anology in taking in these isolated groups of islands with 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 Asiatics? They say the flag should not come down when once raised. I have but to recite the fact that General Taylor and General Scott raised it in Mexico and it came down with honor. It is today flying over the forts in Cuba and in Havana, and it will come down when its mission is ended. I believe in building up American trade and extending our commerce, but in doing it through those channels that will best elevate and promote the dignity and honor of our American people."

duty to the children and young manhood of the country."

Mr. DeArmond referred to the terms of the treaty and the disposition of the islands. He said: "Some one has said what would you do, turn them back to the dominion of Spain? No, I say, that cannot be. If the meanest yellow cur that ever escaped from the Spanish dominion, and found protection somewhere, where the American flag floats, I would be the last to kick him back into their hands. We entered upon our recent war for the purpose of freeing the Cubans. It was to drag the shackles of slavery from an afflicted people. We declare that there was no purpose or object to acquire territory, or enter upon a war of conquest. If we are to perform our full duty to our own people, we will allow them to enter in their own way and set up their own government.

"The Monroe doctrine is thrown to the winds if we cross 7000 miles of ocean. We are no more a world power after that act than we are today, but we are launched into the malestrom of the world's troubles. How soon before we will be plunged into a great war with some of the other nations when we are mixed up in these matters? We are in danger of a war now with the question of the Philippines.

"This nation now can perform such a glorious act as has never been performed in history. Having freed the Cubans and the Filipinos, we can complete the glorious work by leaving them to retain the glorious freedom which we obtained for them by the expenditure of our money and our blood. We have freed them, the Spaniard has gone. We annex them, they are to have the government we give them. We are to hold them as Great Britain holds India and Ireland, as a subject people. We are to deny them the rights which we claim for ourselves."

Congressman Boutelle said in part: "We have heard a good deal intimated about this Philippine question, but I confess I have never heard anything said about it until tonight. I have not yet heard from anybody any reasonable suggestion, and I cannot conceive of any, why we should annex the Philippine islands. I confess that I am an anti-imperialist. It is utterly unworthy of the dignity of American citizenship for us to treat a question of this kind in the way it is being done today. I don't know of anything that has occurred since the declaration of war that has in the slightest indicated that the American people are precluded from governing their own country in their own way. The secretary of the navy, or somebody in the navy department, when war was declared, ordered Dewey to sail and destroy the Spanish fleet wherever he found it. This was dictated by every idea of reason and prudence, and he did so. Did anybody suggest at that time that Dewey should go and capture Luzon or Manila, or make Manila a principality or a state. The congress of the United States never gave the president any mission to go into the harbor of Manila or capture those islands. We were to release Cuba.

"When you come to think of it, there are many disadvantages in this whole thing. We are going to throw the protective policy to the winds. The last time the president was here we had a Home Market club—with gold letters on a maroon background. Now we are going to have the 'open-door' policy.

"I believe we can settle this question and get rid of the fuss with Spain without changing the fundamental principles of this republic, without departing from the traditions of the great men who founded this government on the rocks on which it was built, and if we only use a little common sense, and put on our thinking caps, we will do what is best for the great, free, intelligent, patriotic, liberty-loving people, under Anglo-Saxon laws, and under the American flag."

Hon. S. J. Barrows spoke very briefly. He said: "It is too late for anybody who is an expansionist to see anything. I just want to say that if you will take my friend Boutelle on the one side and say that I disagree with him, you will have my speech. There are more than two sides to this question. There are a great many sides to it. I have refused to be called an expansionist or an imperialist. I am willing to be called a liberationist. I think that it was in the spirit of liberation that this war was begun, and that it is in that spirit that the problems that have come to us must be met."

RELATIONS STRAINED.

Will Require Tact to Avoid Collision With Philippine Insurgents.

The Strength of Aguinaldo's Party a Factor.

Officials at Washington Think the Trouble Due to Colonel Rios.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The news received in Washington regarding the attitude of the rebels and natives at Iloilo and vicinity, officials say, shows that the relations between the Americans and those with whom they are dealing are much strained, and it will require tact to avoid a collision. The information received here does not indicate that General Miller has landed with the American troops.

The rebels, it is reported, at a meeting on Saturday ratified the action of a delegation which assured the Americans that they might land unarmed, but if the latter landed armed the natives would be uncontrollable. It is further said that every preparation is being made for resistance upon the part of the rebels, and that re-enforcements are arriving from Negros and the neighboring islands in spite of the efforts of the United States cruiser Baltimore and the gunboat Arizona to scare them with searchlights. The Spanish gunboat El Cano is still at Iloilo, but as her status is not defined she has not been molested. It is understood that she is destined to go to Samboangan, a town of the Philippine islands on the southwest extremity of the island of Mindanao. The American troops are restless and the rebels are drilling on the beach, evening and morning, in full view of the American expedition, which is still afloat.

General Otis has cabled the war department that in his opinion General Miller has the situation well in hand at Iloilo, and that he fully understands the purpose of the president not to crowd the insurgents unduly.

It is highly desirable that a hostile collision between the American forces and the insurgents be avoided at all hazards, at least pending the ratification of the peace treaty, and as General Miller understands this purpose on the part of the president, he will be guided by it, and may be relied upon to resort to force only under absolute compulsion.

The officials here are now fully satisfied that the trouble at Iloilo may be traced directly back to Colonel Rios, who was the senior officer in the Philippine group, and directly in command of the Visaya group, including the principal island of Panay and the city and garrison of Iloilo. General Otis' report shows that, though besieged with his 800 soldiers in Iloilo by a superior force, the position of the Spanish was thoroughly tenable. They had repulsed every attack of the insurgents, and had inflicted great loss upon the latter, and altogether there was no reason why they should not have held out indefinitely. This was particularly the case, in view of the knowledge on the part of the Spaniards that by the terms of the treaty the United States government had undertaken to carry them back to Spain, involving, of course, their release from the siege at the earliest practical moment. It is significant that Rios delayed the evacuation of Iloilo until he became informed that the Americans were coming, and there is curiosity here to learn how that important information reached Iloilo in advance of the movements of the American transports, and in the absence of cable connections. Undoubtedly it was conveyed by a vessel, and there may be a question raised as to the legitimacy of the transmission of news of the intentions of the American troops in advance in this fashion.

One feature of General Otis' report that has escaped mention so far is his notice of the approaching meeting of the so-called Filipino parliament, which is to gather, presumably at Malalos, about 20 miles from Manila on the island of Luzon, tomorrow.

A good deal of interest is attached to this meeting, as General Otis reports that by the attendance the strength of Aguinaldo's party can be gauged. That this is waning rapidly is not doubted, and General Otis feels that when the attempt is made to convene the parliament it will be found that Aguinaldo has lost his control of the majority and cannot command even a working coalition. Such a state of affairs would tend to make easier the task of the military authorities of the United States of establishing peacefully a temporary form of government for the Philippines that will command the support of the people and receive the approval of the civilized world.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

The new city of Melrose has adopted the Quincy plan, and will have a one-year term for mayor and one board for the city council, to consist o f 21 aldermen, two from each of the seven wards and seven at large.

An interesting summary of the membership of the various City Councils of Quincy, prepared for the Inaugural Day Ledger, will appear in the Saturday eight-page Ledger this week. It will tell the years and number of years each gentleman served.

There is need of a reliable train to Boston shortly after 7 P. M. The 7.12 is a through train from Newport and frequently late, so that Quincy people who desire to attend the Boston theatres and concerts are greatly discommoded. It was eight o'clock last night when the 7.12 train arrived in the Terminal.

With her twin gems of architecture, the Public Library and the Terminal station, Boston, deserves more than ever to be called "the Athens of America." The latter building, like the former, is an honor to the city, and both public intelligence and the spirit of modern enterprise are fittingly enshrined in the "frozen music" of these noble structures. Fourteen millions of dollars is a large sum of money to put into a single building, but we are glad to see that in this instance, it does not serve the purposes of utility alone, but is put into a grand work of art, and a permanent form of grace and beauty. In the midst of the busy hum-drum of the metropolis, practically till time shall be no more, this magnificent building will stand not only as the model of convenience and comfort to travellers, but as a silent influence to thought and deed, and an inspiration to things more excellent than the mere pursuit of wealth.

Winslow—Ellis.

A pretty wedding is a common comment, but it rightly belongs to the happy gathering at the residence of Mrs. E. F. Winslow, Edwards street, Tuesday evening, when Mr. Harry Earle Winslow and Miss Jennie Clifford Ellis were united in marriage by Rev. Edgar W. Preble of the Universalist church. Miss Esther Ellis, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Everett Winslow best man. The house was decorated with potted plants and pinks. After the wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow left for New York. Their future residence will be at No. 9 Edwards street, Quincy.

THE INQUEST.

Mr. Shaw's Family and Others Before the Judge.

An inquest was held this morning before Judge Humphrey at the District Court, in Quincy, to determine the cause of the death of the unknown burglar, found in the residence of Hon. John Shaw at the corner of Washington and Elm street, in the morning of Dec. 22. The witneses examined were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann; Edgar Pierce, Mr. Shaw's colored coachman; David Ring, the baker at Ring Bros.; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown, Chief of Police Litchfield, Officer Holleran and Larkin.

Mr. Shaw was summoned, but was unable to be present, having been detained upon a case in New York.

The inquest was private and the several witnesses were examined separately and alone.

The inquest occupied all the morning, and from what could be learned at its close, no facts, bearing upon the case, other than those already published, were brought out. As stated above Mr. Shaw was not present, but he will probably be examined upon his return. Judge Humphrey will render his finding later, and it will be read with interest.

Not a Bad Year.

The shipments of granite from Quincy this year exceeded that of last year by nearly 90,000,000 pounds. All points showed an increase, but the most notable was over the Quarry R. R. line, where there was an increase of nearly 80,000,000 pounds. The shipments for December, 1896, is from an estimate from freight agents at the different points. The following figures are from the Monumental News:

Would Like a Photograph.

It will be remembered, that the fellow held on suspicion on the morning the dead burglar was found at the residence of John Shaw gave the name of Frank Clayton, and his home as Syracuse, N. Y. The following day Chief Litchfield sent a letter to the Chief of Police at Syracuse making inquiries as to the fellow. Tuesday he received a reply stating that the only Frank Clayton they could find in the directory was in 1895, and he was a newsboy. He however said his detectives would see what they could learn and would be assisted by a photograph. Unfortunately the Quincy police have no photograph of the fellow.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS.

This Tells of One, but It Happened on Christmas.

Speaking of Christmas cheer, new year resolutions and mended ways, here is a little story that embraces them all.

"It comes from the lower walks of life," as the story teller would put it—those walks that the dainty woman of good fortune seldom sees the dismal and intricate windings of. But it is down among these winding ways that I think the echoes of the Christmas chimes and the hope that comes from the beautiful Christmas story mean most when they are heard, and so I will tell it.

There was small promise of a happier day than usual in the little two rooms "back" where an industrious little woman—what her name is does not matter—and her three tiny children, all as neat as new pins, sat and waited. Waited—for what?

It was Christmas eve, and there is always plenty to wait for on that eve—even Santa Claus himself might come! But the waiting in the little two rooms "back" was of the anxious sort. It was for an unsteady footstep. Holidays always meant that the footstep would be just a trifle more unsteady than at other times.

It was presently heard—just as the faintest sound of the chiming bells stole up to the two rooms "back"—but it was a lighter and more sober tread than the industrious little woman and her three neat toddlers had heard for a long time. It was the step that was the outcome of a good resolution made just a little in advance of the new year and in time to make Christmas day very bright for all in the two rooms "back."

There was a tiny Christmas tree next morning for the children, who had been hurried into bed as soon as the footsteps were heard in the court below, and there was a turkey for all, and "all that with the turkey goes."

This was a year ago and now a few days over. The little industrious woman does not do so many "family washings" nowadays as formerly, and when she took home her last small bundle of beautifully ironed linen to its owner on the Christmas eve that has just gone her face looked very rosy and smiling, for she said: "The children will have a good Christmas tomorrow. John he hasn't drank a drop for this night one year."—St. Louis Republic.

OVER SIX MONTHS.

Co. K Enters on Last Half of First Year of Service.

With Co. K, 5th Regt.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Dec. 31.

The members of K Company wish the citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and the Hinghams a happy and prosperous New Year. And also thank the citizens of Quincy for their continued kindness. We are not having as pleasant weather today as the first of the week, it being very wet and misty, causing the boys much discomfort. Although it has stormed, the temperature reads 68 degrees. So we have comfort in the warmth of the atmosphere

This is the semi-annual muster day, being six months since we were mustered into the United States service as volunteers. The majors of the three battalions have been kept busy all day making an account of every man whether absent from regiment on account of sickness, furlough, or death. There has to be a complete account of every enlisted man.

Through the inclemency of the weather, the muster in inspection was postponed until Monday.

The boys will have to rise early Monday morning in order to prepare their rifles, mess kits and uniforms for inspection. Every tent and piece of government property will have to be thoroughly examined Monday, Colonel Whitney will be the inspecting officer.

The 5th Massachusetts has at last been sent a detail of Hospital men. These men have been detailed to this regiment from the 2d Division Hospital Corps. We now have a permanent organized and efficient corps ready for immediate field service, which looks very much like foreign service. This Hospital Corps, which is part of the United States Hospital Corps, will be mustered out at the same time as the 5th Massachusetts. except that they take all orders from the 2d Division headquarters, instead of the regimental headquarters.

K company is represented on the corps by two of its former members, a non-commissioned officer, and a private. They receiving their final transfer papers the first of the week.

The corps consists of: F. Pearl, Surgeon Major; W. E. McPherson, Surgeon 1st Lieutenant; F. N. Barney, Surgeon 2d Lieutenant; Sergeant Huntington, Sergeant Matthews, and Sergeant Allison, Orderlies Higbee, Esterbrooks, Thompson, Keene, Bailey, Champagne, Boothby, Tenney.

At this writing, the writer finds there are only seven men in the regimental hospital, sick with colds and grip. This makes an excellent record, for such a large body of men. We hope the number may decrease instead of increase.

Private Randall Faxon was a member of yesterday's guard until midnight. A friendly wild cat, tried to make an acquaintance with Randall that hour. Randall thinking it much better for the cat to patrol his sentry beat, called for the corporal of the guard, and asked for relief. It being granted he returned to his quarters on K street, and related his thrilling story to the boys. Many wished to rise from their slumbers and witness this strange freak, but were not permitted, so they turned over for the night. Randall is again on duty today, finishing his tour of guard. He thinks he will shoot the cat next time.

All pay rolls are being signed, as we expect another visit from the paymaster in about ten days. The boys are not "broke," same as last month, therefore his presence is not so urgent.

Sergeant McGrath has again adopted his original appearance, having shaved off his pretty little moustache.

Sergeant Mohan reported for duty this morning, being absent on a furlough, visiting friends in Jacksonville, Florida.

Nothing new or startling has been heard in accordance with our mustering out or shipment to Cuba.

Corporal Mahoney, Privates Gilbride, Hennessey, Jones, and Faxon are the guard for today.

Private Logan having stuck a nail into his foot, is confined to quarters; fortunately it is nothing of a serious nature.

Private Tucker continues to recover rapidly.

The boys of K are in good health and in hopes of moving either towards home or Cuba. Volunteer.

Varying New Year Dates.

In all Christian countries it is now nominally celebrated on the 1st day of January, but this day in the Gregorian calendar occurs 12 days earlier than in the Julian. For this reason Russia and Greece, which still go by the Julian calendar, celebrate Jan. 1 on our Jan. 13.

Many of the ancient nations began their new year on Sept. 22, at the autumnal equinox. The Romans reckoned, until the time of Julius Cæsar, their new year from the winter solstice. The Jews, to this day, begin their new year at a date which, roughly speaking, corresponds to our September.—Selected.

Left No Will

New York, Jan. 4.—A petition for letters of administration on the estate of the late Calvin S. Brice was filed in the surrogate's office yesterday by the attorneys for his widow. The petition states that no real property was left by the decedent, and that his personal estate is valued at $600,000. Mrs. Brice gives the names of the heirs of her husband and next to kin as Stewart M. Brice, Helen O. Brice, Margaret K. Brice, Walter K. Brice and John F. Brice, the children of the late senator, who are all of full age. Surrogate Arnold granted the application and appointed Mrs. Brice as administratrix.

Rough Experience.

St. John's, Jan. 4.—British steamer Arcadian, from Sydney, C. B., laden with coal, had a terribly rough passage. She encountered a terrific storm, with the thermometer below zero. Her decks were swept, and the lifeboats, buoys, bridge and steering gear were carried away by the sea. The ropes, booms, bulwarks and decks of the vessel were covered with ice to the thickness of many inches, and it was impossible to move anything. So much ice was formed on the bows that the ship's head was sunk almost level with the water, and she narrowly escaped foundering.

Fair Enough.

Albany, Jan. 4.—Governor Roosevelt has established a code of rules to govern his consideration and determination of applications for pardons and commutations of sentence. He will not exercise executive clemency in behalf of a man who has been convicted of murdering or abusing his wife, nor will he pardon any habitual criminal. His mercy will be shown only to those whose sentence seems to have been too severe, or whose commission of a crime was the result of influence.

AT THE STATE HOUSE

Sheppard and Sprague Quincy's New Representatives.

The Massachusetts Legislature for 1899 met today, and Quincy sent two new Representatives Eben W. Sheppard and Eugene H. Sprague, and this senatorial district also sends a new member to the Senate, Hon. B. Herbert Woodsum of Braintree.

All are successful business men, and at the same time young and progressive, and Quincy should feel that it is represented by those who will reflect credit upon the city, and work for the best interests of the State and its people. While reelected members are usually more prominent because of their experience, the present Legislature is composed largely of new members, and we shall expect the Quincy members to be among the foremost.

Representative Sheppard is a successful coal merchant, and a shrewd business man, just in his prime. He was born in Greenwich, N. J., May 7, 1860; lived in Braintree during his school days and for the last sixteen years has been a resident of Quincy, conducting the Quincy end of the well known firm of J. F. Sheppard & Sons, who also have wharves at Braintree. It is Mr. Sheppard's first public office. He is a Mason, a member of the Granite City Club, a prominent member of Bethany Congregational church, and popular in the business and social life of Quincy.

Representative Sprague has had more experience than his colleague, and is a ready speaker. For three years he was a member of the Quincy City Council and one of the foremost and most active members. He is in the wholesale provision business, and a member of the firm of Sprague Brothers & Co. of Boston, and has been very successful. Eugene H. Sprague was born in Islesboro, Me., May 23, 1864, and has been a resident of Quincy since 1882. He is a property holder in the Wollas-ton ward, active in the Unitarian church, an ex-president of the Unity club, and he and his family are prominent socially in the city.

Senator Woodsum is a manufacurer of Braintree and has served in the House of Representatives. He has also been prominent in State politics, being a member of the Republican State Committee and the chairman of the executive committee during the recent campaign.

A great treat is in store for those who will hear Mr. Booker T. Washingtons' lecture before the Teacher's Association tomorrow evening. Mr. Washington, who is spoken of by Secretary Long as the finest orator in America, was born in slavery, and although a comparatively young man has made a remarkable record as an educator of the colored race. Miss Florence Emery has kindly consented to sing during the evening. There will also be instrumental music.

Secretary Lull called the meeting to order and Dr. Hallowell was elected chairman pro tem and Miss Adams secretary.

Charles H. Porter was upon ballot elected chairman of the board and Herbert W. Lull secretary.

Mr. Lull was also elected superintendent of schools.

New Year In China.

New Year is the national pay day in China. All accounts must be squared up at that time, and the man who can't raise money enough to pay his debts has to go into bankruptcy, says an exchange. The laws are such that the creditor can enter the debtor's house and take what he pleases if there is no settlement. To prevent such action families club together and make all sorts of compromises to keep up the business reputation of the clan. New Year is a great day for the pawnbrokers. Their shops are crowded with people who want to redeem their best clothes before the new year. There are crowds also who want to pawn other things in order to get money to pay their debts. Pawnbrokers receive high rates of interest, in which they are protected by the government.—Omaha World-Herald.

A Roman Peace Jubilee.

Probably the most gorgeous peace jubilee that the world has ever seen was that celebrating at Rome the four triumphs of the first Cæsar. So magnificent were these triumphs that they were celebrated at intervals of several days lest the populace should be cloyed by very splendor. They commemorated the final conquest of all Gaul, the defeat of Ptolemaus, the subjection of Pharnaces and the victory over Juba. Never had the Eternal City, then standing upon the threshold of empire, ever seen the like. The Egyptian Princess Arsinoe and the son of the king of Numidia walked captives behind the car of the conqueror.

Costly figures and portraits of the slain enemies of the republic, representing the manner of their death, were borne by Gallic slaves or carried in litters by the men who had fought under the originals. Scipio, too, was shown plunging into the sea; Cato, burying his sword in his own bosom, and Demetrius, wounded in the back in token of his flight. Nor did the celebration stop with the processions. The most sumptuous banquets were served in the public squares, in one of which citizens reclined before 22,000 tables groaning under the accumulated weight of the most luxurious delicacies.

Public games were given and gladiators recruited from the most courageous prisoners fought with wild beasts from the ends of the earth and the circus was hung with huge awnings of silk brought from India at a time when a queen could not afford that material for her coronation robes.—Philadelphia Press.

A Dangerous Bouquet.

A short time ago a man and his two sisters were alone in a compartment on a German railway. At a station an elegantly dressed, thickly veiled woman entered the carriage, carrying a superb bouquet of roses. When the train started, she asked her fellow travelers if they would object to her closing the window. The man hastened to close it for her, and, in moving to get out of his way, the stranger dropped her roses. He picked them up for her, and, thanking him charmingly, she asked him to keep one. Then, turning to his companions, she graciously offered each of them a few of the flowers. Naturally the courtesy was accepted, and the next thing of which the travelers were conscious was that the train had arrived in Berlin; that their veiled companion had disappeared, and that all of their money and valuables had gone with her. Of course the roses had been drugged.

The police have discovered that the criminal is a young man, and that he has conducted a number of daring robberies in similar fashion. One must admit that it is the refinement of robbery, and, if one must be robbed at all, the rose method is preferable to sandbagging or garroting; but, after all, one may as well fight shy of veiled women with roses.—Exchange.

Woman In India.

The present position of women cannot be better shown than by the following extract from a government prize book for the girls' schools in the Bombay Presidency: "If the husband of a virtuous woman be ugly, of good or bad disposition, diseased, fiendish, irascible, a drunkard, old, stupid, dumb, blind, deaf, hot tempered, poor, extremely covetous, a slanderer, cowardly, perfidious and immoral, nevertheless she ought to worship him as a god, with mind, speech and person.

"The wife who gives an angry answer to her husband will become a village pariah dog. She will also become a female jackal and live in an uninhabitated desert. The woman who eats sweetmeats without sharing them with her husband will become a hen owl, living in a hollow tree. The woman who walks alone without her husband will become a filth eating village sow. The woman who speaks disrespectfully to her husband will be dumb in the next incarnation. The woman who hates her husband's relatives will become from birth to birth a muskrat, living in filth."—Church Gazette.

A Ball at Balmoral, 1860.

Nobody was in mourning, as it was a birthday, the queen in white, with a floating sash of royal Stuart tartan from her shoulders; about half the men in kilts. The queen made a circle, and then we went into the ballroom, where about 150 of the tenants, servants, etc., with their wives and daughters, were assembled. Reels then began, which were danced with great energy and also jigs—very droll. Prince Arthur danced like mad, and Princess Alice was "weel ta'en out" by the gamekeeper. I stood in a corner talking with the Duke of Argyll, etc. At last the prince came round and conversed very courteously for ten minutes. He had heard I had been in Germany lately, so we soon got into the heart of German and Austrian questions.

All this lasted two hours, and then the queen withdrew into the supper room, where there were sandwiches and champagne. She went round again and talked to Lord Melville, behind whom I was standing, and then made me a very gracious bow, but without saying anything to myself. — "Memoirs of Henry Reeve."

A Strange Marriage Story.

While a woman, aged 26, an ironer by trade, was being charged before the Harlesden magistrates with bigamy a curious scene took place. The mother was the chief witness against her daughter and told how she and the husband had sat in a pew in the church while the second marriage went on. The mother said she had told her son-in-law he had better stop the proceedings, but he answered: "I don't want to. I hope he'll be a better husband to her than I've been." The second husband, she said, knew it was a bigamous marriage. When she had finished, the first husband came forward to corroborate the strange story.—London Answers.

VACATION IS ENDED.

Statesmen Prepared to Settle Down For Two Months' Work.

Many Important Measures Are Pressing For Action.

Peace Treaty Will Run the Senate Gauntlet Without Factious Opposition.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The holiday recess has ended and congress reassembled today. The senate almost immediately adjourned out of respect for the memory of Senator Morrill.

A session of the senate will be held tomorrow, but there is a movement looking to an adjournment from that date until the following Monday, based upon the probability that there will not be a full attendance of senators so soon after the holidays. This plan will be antagonized by the friends of the Nicaraguan canal, and by other senators who are championing especial measures, and it now appears quite probable that they will be able to hold the senate for at least another day of the week.

There will be two months to a day of the session left from the date of reconvening, and the time will be fully occupied if half the work is to be done that is planned. None of the regular appropriation bills have passed the senate, and the river and harbor bill is to be added to the regular list this session. None regard the treaty of less importance than the supply bills, and it will be passed along with them when reported, practically without regard to other bills.

Of other measures of magnitude which will press for consideration in the senate during the session, the Nicaraguan canal bill will take precedence, but there will be urgent pressure in behalf of the Hawaiian government bill, the anti-scalping bill and the interstate commerce commission bill, to say nothing of the probabilities concerning measures for the increase of the standing army and of the navy.

Senator Elkins, and other friends of that measure, will also continue to urge the bill regulating the registration of foreign built vessels wrecked in American waters. These are only the most important questions demanding consideration in the few weeks remaining. Every senator has a number of measures of less importance.

The Nicaraguan canal bill will command the right of way at the beginning of the session, and will hold its place if it is made evident that a vote can be secured upon it before the appropriation bills and the treaty are to be taken up. If it cannot be disposed of before these are brought in, it will be temporarily displaced from time to time. The friends of the bill maintain, however, that debate is practically exhausted, and they are hopeful of securing a vote at no very distant date. They profess to feel very much encouraged by the preliminary report of the Walker commission, which was made public last week. Senator Cullom has given notice of a motion to take up the anti-scalping bill as soon as the canal bill may be out of the way.

There is a growing belief that the treaty will not be made the subject of a long debate. Nothing less than some unforeseen emergency can prevent the senate's favorable action upon it at the present session. There are features in the treaty which many senators consider objectionable, but the fact that it is a treaty of peace, and that they, as a rule, have nothing in its stead to offer, will prevent any factious opposition. So far as the opponents have a plan, it is to let the treaty go through and then devote themselves to shaping legislation consequent upon its ratification. They may offer their amendment committing this government against an attempt to exercise sovereignty in the Philippines, but they do not expect it to become a part of the document.

The treaty will be discussed in executive session, but the senators will continue to make speeches in the open senate on Senator Vest's anti-expansion resolution.

The consideration of a code of laws for the territory of Alaska, reported from the committee on the revision of the laws, is expected to take up the greater portion of the legislative day in the house today. If that body follows its usual custom it will adjourn some time during the afternoon out of respect to the memory of Senator Morrill. Tomorrow is to be given to the committee on the judiciary, and a number of measures reported from it are likely to be passed. There is no fixed program for the remainder of the week. The executive, legislative and judicial appropriation bill may be reported during the week, in which case an effort will be made to secure consideration of the measure by the house.

To Examine Hospitals.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Surgeon General Sternberg has left here for a two-weeks' trip to Havana and nearby points in Cuba, to examine into military hospital facilities and decide which of the Spanish hospitals we fall heir to shall be used by our troops, and what additional hospital facilities will be necessary. The condition of the troops in Cuba, according to the most recent report General Sternberg has received, is excellent, but it is necessary during the two or three months which will intervene before the unhealthy season arrives that every preparation should be made to provide for any contingency which may then arise. Five Spanish civil and military hospitals have been turned over to us in Havana, but General Sternberg is of the opinion that only one of them, the Alphonso XIII, will be available for our use.

All Bills Settled.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 4.—Governor Ramsdell and his council met last night for the last time officially, in order to close their accounts with the state. The last batch of bills against the state were approved and other routine business closed up. This administration turns over $78,000 to Governor Rollins, with all bills paid up to Jan. 1, 1899.

WITHOUT RESULT.

Conference Between Howe and Gompers Did Not Change Situation,

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 4.—The conference between S. H. Howe and Samuel Gompers, held yesterday, lasted three hours. The different phases of the situation were discussed, yet no decision was reached, and when the conference was ended the situation remained the same as before.

The shoe workers held a mass meeting soon after the conference. Mr. Gompers was the principal speaker, and in the course of his remarks he explained the interview with Mr. Howe. He advised his hearers to remain true to their cause and to be orderly at all times and observe the law, but to exercise their rights as American citizens. He promised to do everything in his power to aid the strikers. He was loudly cheered when he said: "When you go into the factories, go in together, the same way as you came out." Mr. Gompers closed by asking all those who are in favor of going back to the factories under the present conditions to make it manifest. Not a single voice responded, but there was a storm of "Nos" when he asked those who are not in favor of returning.

John F. Tobin was the next speaker, and his remarks were on the same line as thise of Mr. Gompers. He said the strikers are stronger today than they were when they left the factories at the commencement of the strike.

The state police received attention from the speakers, their presence being condemned. One of the speakers announced that aid is promised from the American Federation of Labor, and that every union from Maine to California will help the Marlboro strikers.

Pennsylvania Senatorship.

Harrisburg, Jan. 4.—The Republican members of the legislature met in caucus last night. Out of 164 members and senators, 109 were present, 19 less than the number necessary to elect a senator on joint ballot. Nine senators and 46 members of the house remained out of the caucus. Quay and Jones were put in nomination as candidates for United States senator. The vote resulted: Quay, 98; Jones, 9. C. L. Magee received two votes. The Quay leaders during the past few days have claimed from 118 to 135 votes in the caucus. The fact that the actual figure was away below their lowest claim is regarded by many here as a source of great disappointment to them. This class of prophets is strong in the belief that Quay is beaten. Undoubtedly the decision of Senator Martin to remain out of the caucus had much to do with the success of the efforts of the anti-Quay people.

Judge Acted Correctly.

Lyons, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Four Italians who were unable to read or write, who did not know the state or county in which they lived, or who were unable to name the President of the United States or governor of New York, presented themselves for naturalization before County Judge Sawyer yesterday. All were rejected, the court announcing that hereafter applicants must be fairly educated regarding the country and be qualified to vote intelligently before they could receive papers.

Board of Trade Dissolves.

New York, Jan. 4.—The stockholders of the cycle board of trade yesterday decided upon the dissolution of the corporation. The meeting had been adjourned from Dec. 20, on which date the act of dissolution could not be effected, owing to legal technicalities. At yesterday's meeting 614 shares were represented. The number required for such action was 594. The cycle board of trade was organized in 1894.

Accidentally Shot Dead.

Halifax, Jan. 4.—Victor Baker, son of the president of the Yarmouth Steamship company, went out hunting with his brother Seymour and Mr. Cain, principal of a local school. He was walking beside a wagon containing the guns of the party, and took hold of one gun by the muzzle to straighten it in the wagon when it went off, the load passing through his lung. He died almost instantly.

Strike Averted.

Cleveland, Jan. 4.—Eight of the 15 foundries in Cleveland have conceded the demands of the coremakers for a wage rate of $2.50 per day. The general strike of coremakers in this city, which was scheduled to begin yesterday, therefore did not take place. The officials of the coremakers' organization state that the remaining seven foundries are willing to compromise on the wage question.

Eleven Men Drowned.

London, Jan. 4.—The Italian steamer Voorwaarts has been abandoned near Trevoso Head, on the west Cornwall coast. She went ashore in the gale that has been raging in the Irish channel. Eleven members of the crew, who put off in boats, were drowned. Nine, who clung to the rigging, were rescued by the coast guard lifeboat.

Savannah, Jan. 4.—Troopship Roumanian sailed for Cuba yesterday with the Second South Carolina regiment, and the Mobile with the Fourth and Ninth Illinois regiments. There remain only in this city the Third Georgia regiment, the Maine volunteer artillery and six batteries of United States artillery.

Crisis Not Yet Reached.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Representative Dingley passed another comfortable day yesterday, the slight improvement noted Monday continuing, and the attending physicians express renewed hope that the patient will recover. The crisis in the case is not expected until tomorrow or Friday.

Fatal Shooting Accident.

Cohasset, Mass., Jan. 4.—Michael Coyne was accidentally shot while gunning in the woods near here yesterday. Medical Examiner Howe found no cause to hold John Kennedy, who was with Coyne at the time. Coyne was 40 years old, and leaves a widow and four children.

GOMEZ' SENSE OF DUTY.

Awaits Completion of the Work to Which He Has Dedicated His Life.

Havana, Jan. 4.—Maximo Gomez, from his camp 200 miles westward, near Narciso, has addressed a proclamation to the Cuban army advising against disbanding until the proceedings at Washington regarding the pay of the insurgent troops have been completed. It is dated Dec. 29 and is, in part, as follows:

"The moment has arrived to give a public explanation of my conduct and my purposes, which are always in accord with my sense of duty to the country I serve. The Americans, tacitly our allies, have terminated the war with Spain and signed a treaty of peace. I believed it was my duty not to move, for any political or other object, from the spot where I had drawn my sword, so long as the enemies of the army had not completely evacuated the island. My presence elsewhere would have disturbed the repose and calmness necessary to consolidate peace; nor ought I to have caused the Cubans trouble by unnecessary manifestations during the jubilee.

"The period of transition is terminated the army of the enemy is abandoning the country; the sovereignty of the great United States is beginning, as stipulated in the protocol, over all the island. But Cuba is not yet free or independent. Self-government is not yet constituted. For that reason we must dedicate ourselves to bringing about the disappearance of the causes for American intervention.

"But above everything else, in the spirit of justice to the Cuban army, it is necessary that, before the liberators of the people can dissolve as a guarantee of order, the debt which the country owes to its soldiers should be satisfied. Awaiting this result, I remain in my present position, always ready to help the Cubans finish the work to which I have dedicated my life."

Fighting Trusts.

Columbus, O., Jan. 4.—Attorney General Monett yesterday filed in the Ohio supreme court a petition to oust the National Biscuit company from doing business as a trust in this state. The petition filed relates that complaint has been made to him by wholesale grocers regarding the methods of the trust, which he holds is contrary to the anti-trust law passed by the state legislature.

Cincinnati, Jan. 4.—Judge Smith of the common pleas court, upon application of the Bell Pottery company of Findlay, yesterday allowed a temporary restraining order against 18 pottery companies in the state to prevent them from organizing a trust contrary to the statutes, which prohibit such action. The hearing for a permanent injunction is set for Jan. 9.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 4.—The great and general court convened at 11 o'clock today for the session of 1899. The Republicans, who are largely in the majority, nominated the entire list of last year's officers, and no opposition was made to their election by the Democrats. The list is as follows: President of the senate, George A. Smith of Everett; clerk of the senate, Henry D. Coolidge of Concord; chaplain, Rev. Edmund Dowse of Sherborn; speaker of the house, John L. Bates of Boston; clerk of the house, James A. Kimball of Lynn; chaplain, Rev. D. W. Waldron of Boston; sergeant-at-arms, John G. B. Adams of Lynn.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

RESULT OF A PLOT.

Cuban Editor's Allegation Regarding Blowing Up of the Maine.

Says Facts In the Case Will Soon Come to Light

United States Engineers May Show Evidence of Official Connivance.

Havana, Jan. 5.—Senor Hernandez, editor of El Reconcentrado, issued yesterday a third attack upon his old enemy, Zacarias Bresmes, whom, with three others, he accuses of blowing up the United States battleship Maine. Bresmes, who was a judge and politician, sailed for Spain about two weeks ago. The installments of the story thus far have been devoted to the alleged felonies and treacheries of Bresmes. The editor tells his readers to be patient, as in due time they will get the facts regarding the Maine explosion. He describes his proof as "largely moral."

Captain Sigsbee, in writing in The Century of the sinking of his ship, has insinuated in language as strong as is permissible to a naval officer dealing with state secrets that the end was not yet, that circumstances tended to show the existence of a Spanish plot, and that light might yet be shed on the mystery. Nor does the fact that the peace commissioners have treated the tragedy as "a closed incident" prevent the curiosity of naval and other high officials from improving the opportunities for investigation that come with possession of the wire and torpedo stations ashore, and untramelled liberty to search the harbor bottom to their hearts' content. During the original investigation the board of inquiry held its sessions under the yawning mouths of Spanish cannon, and the Spanish torpedo arrangements might as well have been in the moon as within pistol shot, so far as their inspection was concerned.

Unless the Spaniards took precautions before they retired on Jan. 1 to obliterate all clues whereby the operations of their secret mines may be traced, it is probable that the experts of the United States engineering service will, ere long, be in a position to write a new chapter in the history of the Maine. Should their report show evidences of official connivance on the part of the Spaniards in a plot for destruction of the ship, and should the charges against Zecarias Bresmes, the fugitive Spanish judge, prove to be well founded, the influence thereof may be very decidedly against the acceptance of the treaty of peace which yesterday was presented to the United States senate, and might result in its ultimate rejection.

The specific charge against Judge Bresmes is that he was one of those actively engaged in the plot which resulted in the destruction of the Maine. El Reconcentrado, the Cuba libre official organ, says:

"When the Maine came into Havana harbor Bresmes declared in the Spanish cafes that such an act of audacity on the part of the Yankees could not pass without punishment. His threats were direct, and boded destruction to the American ship. His associates were Felipe Gonzalez, Dio Sio Vega and Eusebio Azcue, violent Spaniards.

"These men boasted that the Yankees were about to get their due, though no charge can be directed against any save Bresmes.

"He and the hot-headed Spaniards of Murallo street met nightly at a house near the corner of Murallo and Habana streets, where the police know the plot against the Maine was concerted and all arrangements completed.

"When the explosion took place Bresmes was in the Tacon theater with friends. At the sound of the explosion he cried, 'There goes the Maine.' Champagne was drunk in honor of the terrible event at the moment when others were vaguely inquiring of one another what had happened."

Bresmes' name was mentioned before the American court of inquiry, but not sufficient evidence was then forthcoming to warrant any action, and all reference to him was suppressed in the published reports.

Patriotic Societies Invited.

Boston, Jan. 5.—A public meeting will be held at Association hall, corner of Berkeley and Boylston streets, Boston, on Tuesday, Jan. 10, at 3:30 p. m., for the purpose of taking action in aid of the erection of the proposed monument to Major General Lafayette. A cordial and fraternal invitation is extended to all the patriotic societies throughout the commonwealth. The meeting will be addressed by His Excellency Roger, Wolcott, Hon. Josiah Quincy, Hon. Ferdinand Peck, commissioner general for the United States, and others.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

Bold Scheme to Chloroform and Rob Failed to Materialize.

Boston, Jan. 5.—A man who gave the name of John Parker was arrested by Chief Inspector Watts yesterday upon suspicion of having planned to rob the store of Shreve, Crump & Lowe by chloroforming the clerk and obtaining possession of a tray of diamonds valued at $10,000. The plan was disclosed to Chief Watts by a man who stated that Parker had tried to induce him to join in the project. At first the chief did not believe the story, but afterwards decided to arrest Parker.

According to the story told by the informant of Chief Watts, Parker was to enter the store at a time when only one clerk was at the diamond counter—about 1:30 p. m.—and ask to see the diamonds displayed in a tray in the window, then the accomplice was to throw the contents of a bottle of chloroform into the clerk's face and Parker would grab the tray and escape. Parker was arrested at his room after a detective, hidden in a closet, had heard him discuss his plans with the man who had told the police. After his arrest Parker admitted the plot. A bottle of laudanum was found in his pocket. The police are trying to trace his record.

A Grand Affair.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The first formal state dinner of the season at the White House took place last night, when the president and Mrs. McKinley entertained the cabinet. The public portions of the mansion had been elaborately decorated, and all available space was made fragrant and beautiful by the use of flowers from the White House conservatory. There were three centerpieces of brides roses with a groundwork of maiden-hair ferns, partly concealed, in which were colored incandescent lights. Lady slipper orchids were also in abundance, while at the plate of each guest was a boutonierre of carnations. Graceful palms were set in appropriate places around the room, while the ceiling and the walls were hung with southern smilax. In the east room there was a profusion of cut flowers, potted plants and trailing ferns. The marine band occupied a place in the conservatory.

Discussed Farm Topics.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Jan. 5.—The woman's auxiliary to the Vermont Dairymen's association met here yesterday in annual meeting. The day was mostly occupied by the annual meeting of the Butter and Cheese Makers' association. The Maple Sugar Makers opened their 11th annual meeting last night, with an address by President Bell of Walden. The first annual banquet of the combined socities was held last night, President Bell of the Sugar Makers' association acting as toast master. Governor Smith arrived by special train, and responded to the toast, "Vermont's Future." The speakers included prominent farmers from all sections of the state.

Watson's Aspiration.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Commodore Watson, at present in command at the Mare Island navy yard, has applied for the command of the Asiatic station to succeed Admiral Dewey, when that officer shall have relinquished his command. Unless Admiral Dewey changes his mind that date will not be much before the end of the current calendar year, for he has resisted all invitations to accept relief from the onerous duties imposed upon him, believing that he could best serve his country at Manila. He will retire from active service next December, providing the law is not amended in his interest.

Locomotives Met

Mattawamkeag, Me., Jan. 5.—There was a head-on collision on the Canadian Pacific railway at this station yesterday. A Montreal train ran into a freight train, derailing and damaging both engines, the baggage car, second-class coach and three freight cars. The dining car was somewhat damaged and most of the crockery broken. No passenger was injured, but all were well shaken up. Engineer McCluskey was somewhat bruised. The passengers were entertained at a local hotel for some hours, when they were transferred to an extra train and sent to St. John.

A Healthy District.

Washington, Jan. 5.—For the eighth consecutive day General Henry at San Juan reported by cable to the war department yesterday that there were no deaths among the American troops garrisoning Porto Rico. This is a most remarkable showing, indicating that camps there are now healthier than any city in the world.

Sailors Brought Home.

New York, Jan. 5.—Steamer Maasdam, from Rotterdam, brought 10 American sailors, sent home by United States Consul Listoe at Rotterdam. They were the captains and crews of the lumber schooner Bertram N. White and the coal carrying schooner barge Quinnebaug. The crews, in each case, consisted of five men.

NOT AN EXPANSIONIST.

Senator Hale Dreads Results of Annexation of Philippines.

Republican Party, However, Will Decide For the Best.

Our Ties With England as Distinguished Between Ancestry and Business.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 5.—The opposition to Mr. Hale for United States senator failed to manifest itself last night, and all the hurrah made the past few days was for nothing. Without a murmur, the members sat in their seats in the caucus and renominated the senator by acclamation while he told them with emphasis and without hesitation that he was an anti-expansionist. After thanking the members for their confidence in his ability to represent them, he said:

"The Republican party has gone through the storm of controversy, and sometimes of defeat, upon great questions that affect the every day welfare of the people, not only of Maine, but of the United States. It has established, not to go back upon in the last years of its life, certain things that are elemental and at the foundation of human prosperity, of thrift, of good business, of the success and of the independence and dignity of labor. It has settled the great question of protection; it has determined that the legislation of the country shall be in the interests of our own labor in competition with foreign labor. It has settled the great question of the currency of the people. It has a president, a leader of the party today who has secured the confidence of the country, who has not been rash, who has not been forward, who has not precipitated issues, who has guided the country successfully and with marked, wonderful, unprecedented success through a war, and has been able to show and will show that notwithstanding the attacks that have been made upon the administration and upon its different branches in the conduct of the war, the wonderful thing is that, in the state of unpreparedness, and with the great force that was called out, there has been so little friction and little loss; and the cry that arose six months ago of complaint against the president and his administration in the investigations that have taken place has ceased, and that storm has ceased to beat upon the administration.

"Upon the question which perhaps today is occupying men's minds more than any other, the question of what is called expansion, there are two sides. I do not fancy that you are all agreed upon that. I am not an expansionist. I dread the annexation of territory thousands of miles away of a foreign people with no habits and no life like ours. I dread the results of it.

"Nobody can tell what is in store, but the Republican party can be trusted. If it has got to go forward, it will go forward unitedly. If it has got to take any back steps, it is not ashamed to take them. And no man can tell now, in the present circumstances, with the great subjects that are coming before us, what will be best. That we have got to settle in the future. And so much for that.

"There are other things that are of the greatest importance. There is a commission made up of our own people and Englishmen and Canadians that are sitting in judgment and scrutiny over all the legislation that has been established by the Republican party for the benefit of Maine in the tariff bill. Now I realize the force of what is said of common blood and common ancestry with England. Her past and her traditions are ours as they are hers. Her national life, her literature, her splendid development, are all ours as much as hers. But it is entirely true that when England is engaged in any negotiation that affects her material interests, blood counts for very little with an English commission. It is the business of an English commission, a Canadian commission, to get the benefit of that; and the Canadian commission that has been sitting for months has at last come to the point where the demand of the Canadian and the English side is the practical destruction of the tariff which Governor Dingley in his bill put upon Maine products and especially upon lumber. The state will never know the debt that she owes to Governor Dingley in holding that commission, in refusing to yield and keeping up the backbone of members of the commission who are weaker than he on the subject; and whatever happens to that great man—may the Lord restore him to health and usefulness—Maine will learn, if she does not know now, what he has been and is doing for her. And in that we are all united. The delegation as one man has been backing the governor up, upholding his hands, making him strong and making it seem to the Canadian commissioners that he has the support, not only of the Maine delegation, but of congress. I hope the issue will go right. I know it will go right if the governor is spared. I hope it will go right if he is taken from us.

"I have been before the people of Maine, in one branch or another of congress, for 30 years. I could tell you very little about myself that you do not know now. I could tell you nothing more about my opinions or sentiments than what I have already told you. In closing I wish to give to you my profound heartfelt thanks and gratitude for all the trust reposed in me."

Mills to Start Up.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 5.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Robeson cotton mills yesterday Horace W. Tinkham was elected treasurer and will act as superintendent. The mills have been idle nearly a year. The original capital has been changed from $260,000 to $78,000, and this amount has been guaranteed. It is expected that the machinery will be started in about two weeks.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

Notice of Board of Health.

Good Afternoon.

President Charles P. Clark of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company is planning for a brief vacation. He proposes to visit Egypt and the Nile. He should leave directions for plans for a new station in Quincy.

In the order for the extension of permanent sidewalks this year, should be included first of all Coddington street for its whole length, leading as it does to the Coddington school and Mount Wollaston cemetery; also Chestnut street, which has considerable travel; Adams street, as far as Presidents bridge; and Elm street between Hancock and Washington, which is a thoroughfare from one part of the city to another and has a church at each end.

The South is feeling the wave of prosperity, if we may judge from an editorial in the Greenville News, which reads in part: "Everybody here is in good shape and good spirits. Money is abundant everywhere in the country and is seeking investment offering small interest or fair profit. We ought to be stirring to build something which will help to keep the town moving and growing. People who intend to go ahead can not stop to rest. They must keep going."

Councilman Newcomb is entitled to credit for the interest he has awakened in the city on "Hancock Day." We pride ourselves upon our historic associations, and yet the birthplace in Quincy of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence has for over a century been unmarked. Thanks to the Councilman who is a member of the society of the Sons of the Revolution, the matter was formally brought before the city government, and the necessary money was promptly and unanimously voted. Considerable has been written in recent years of John Hancock, and "Hancock Day" is likely to be observed annually in this city in coming years.

It has not been the practice of the city to lay out and build streets to develop property, but there is considerable merit in the new street from Water street along the valley of Town brook to Granite street in the vicinity of Goffe street. The large owners of the land could well afford to give the necessary land, waive all land damages, and pay a betterment beside. A betterment might not be demanded, but the work should not be done unless the large land owners would do the proper thing. Another outlet might be of more benefit than Granite street and that would be under the railroad to Hancock street, opposite Cottage avenue. In that case there might also be an extension of Whitwell street into the new avenue.

In the Inauguration day Ledger it was stated that Mayor Keith was born on Spear street in the house now owned by Mr. George W. Prescott. this was an error, but the honors remain in the family, as His Honor was born at 78 Washington street in the house now owned by Mr. Frank F. Prescott. The value of the latter estate is said to have jumped up $1,000.

Some were surprised to learn that only nine of the twenty-three Councilmen were born in Quincy, and that six were born in foreign countries, but this is about the usual proportion, and shows that many are attracted to Quincy, and that there are opportunities for all to advance. A majority were born in Massachusetts. The average age of the members of this Council is under 40 years, the limits being 24 and 57.

Episcopal Parish Meeting.

The annual meeting of Christ church was held in the parish house on Wednesday evening. At seven o'clock a bountiful supper was served by the Woman's guild to over 150 members of the parish. Music was furnished by Smith's orchestra. After supper the men adjourned to the guild rooms and the warrant calling the meeting was read by the clerk. The rector, according to the custom of Episcopal churches, acted as moderator. The following officers were elected:

Wardens,—George H. Brown, C. Theodore Hardwick.

Clerk,—James Smith, Jr.

Treasurer,—John E. Sprague.

Vestrymen,—Dr. John A. Gordon, Zenas S. Arnold, Henry W. French, Frank F. Crane, Lewis W. Lathrop, Solmon Fuller, Hazen E. Ricker, Edwin W. Newcomb, Dr. Henry C. Hallowell, Thomas E. Furnald

Mr. Elisha Packard, who has been warden for many years, declined a re-election.

The treasurer presented his annual report printed. The report shows $4,495 raised for current expenses and charities during the year. The finances of the parish were pronounced in a better condition than at any time for ten years.

A feature of the annual meeting was the presentation of a beautiful silver mounted cane to the treasurer Mr. John E. Sprague, and a gold fountain pen to the clerk, James Smith, Jr. The gifts were presented by George H. Brown, Esq., on behalf of the vestry.

After the parish business had been transacted the men returned to the dining room and enjoyed the entertainment furnished by Arght Jadie, humorist and impersonator.

The annal meeting of 1899 marks a red letter day in the history of Christ church.

Christ Church.

The Episcopalians of Quincy had a new and delightful experience Wednesday evening. They had their first parish supper, and it was unanimously voted that it should be the preliminary of many others. It was also voted that the parish should go to housekeeping and that the Women's guild should hold a sale in the spring, the proceeds to be devoted to furnishing what is needed to complete the kitchen and dining-room furnishings.

A great many necessary articles were very kindly loaned Wednesday evening and many were hired. This should not be necessary in a well ordered household. The viands however were all contributed by the parish and consisted of turkey, chicken, ham, tongue, and escalloped oysters all cooked to perfection with salads, cake and coffee all the very best. After the supper the company were entertained by an impersonator and some excellent music. But to those present the best of the evening was the opportunity "to break bread together," and to sit down as one family.

Mayor Would Not Sign.

The prospect of a new street railway line between Neponset and Forest Hills has been indefinitely postponed. After two years' battle the new company were granted a location last week by the Boston board of Aldermen. The main opposition to the proposed road has been from the West End on the Boston Elevated Railroad, while they do not care to build the line themselves they are strongly opposed to having any other company come into their territory.

When the order granting the location was given to Mayor Quincy, it was supposed by many that he would sign the order as he is a director of the Quincy & Boston street railway. The ten days, however, have expired and Mayor Quincy refused to sign, and as the Board of Aldermen who passed the order have gone out of existence the order is therefore dead.

Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Joseph C. Morse was severely burned on Tuesday while burning some old papers. Mrs. Morse stood by the stove burning the papers when her apron, which was also full of papers, took fire, and before she was aware what had happened her clothing was all ablaze.

Mrs. Morse with rare presence of mind extinguished the flames with difficulty, but not before she had been severely burned about the arms and hands. Her clothing prevented her being burned about the body.

Hancock Day.

The city of Quincy will place a bronze memorial tablet to the memory of John Hancock on the Adams Academy building on the twelfth of January. This day will be observed by the public schools of Quincy as "Hancock day" with appropriate exercises. The Woodward Institute will also take notice of the event.

Hicks—Lincoln.

The marriage of Miss Mae Arnold Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Annes A. Lincoln of Wollaston, and Mr. Ernest Abbott Hicks of Boston, son of the late Dr. Darius Hicks of Providence, R. I, took place at the residence of the bride's parents, on Grand View avenue, Wednesday evening, at 7 o'clock.

The ceremony which was witnessed by only the relatives and immediate friends was performed by the Rev. Frederick Alvord of Newton Centre.

The best man was Mr. Irving Clifton Hicks of Portland, Oregon, brother of the groom.

The bride wore white corded silk, trimmed with pearls. The bridesmaids, Miss Kate Leland Lincoln and Miss Nannie Louise Lincoln, both sisters of the bride, were gowned in Swiss muslin and valenciennes over pink.

The ushers were Mr. Walter Scarborough and Mr. Ralph F. Alvord of Boston, Mr. William H. Barron of Danielson, Conn., and Mr. Daniel T. Woodbury of New York.

After the ceremony a reception was held to which a considerable number of invitations had been issued. Guests were present from Providence, New York, Boston, Brookline, Newton, Cambridge and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks were assisted in receiving by the bride's father and mother, and by the groom's mother and brother. The bridal party received under a canopy of holly. The other decorations in the house were of the same character and appropriate to the season.

The groom is the junior member of the firm of Scarborough Bros. & Co., brokers of Boston, and a graduate of Brown University, class of '91. The bride graduated from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts in '96.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks will sail on the 14th on the North German Lloyd steamer "Ems" for Naples. They will also visit Italy, Greece and France. After their return from abroad in the early summer they will be at home to their friends in Brookline.

☞ The Board of Directors of the Waltham Young Men's Christian Association, after a careful consideration of all of the existing conditions, have voted to discontinue the work of the organization. The association was organized about 15 years ago, and for about five years it flourished, but since that time there has been a constant falling off in the support and debts have been incurred which cannot be paid with the small amount of money in the treasury.

No prayer meeting tonight at the First United Presbyterian church that all may go to the lecture to be delivered by Booker T. Washington at the High school.

Mr. Brasee, appreciating the good work done by his lady clerks during the holiday trade, gave them a treat last evening to the Boston Museum. The ladies enjoyed the occasion immensely.

The date for the opening of the new building of the First United Presbyterian church has been set for February 5th. Preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. Dr. McCrory of Pittsburg, Pa., a man of national reputation.

A resident of Hancock street drove to Hingham yesterday morning early with a horse and sleigh. When he got ready to return at night he was looking all the way for snow. There was no rust on his runners when he arrived at Quincy.

Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., will hold a public installation tonight at Hancock hall to which the members of the Women's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans, and Ladies' Aid society have been invited. A supper and dance is also on the programme.

The dance held by the Neponset Nail factory girls at Music hall, Atlantic, Tuesday evening, was a very largely attended affair. The floor was in charge of the girls who deserve credit for managing so skilfully. An orchestra from Boston furnished good music.

Mrs. John Adams Thayer, the wife of a well known advertising man of Quincy and Boston, was the lady who enjoyed the distinction of having witnessed the formal downfall of the Spanish rule in Cuba on Sunday. Her name was incorrectly given in the dispatches as Mrs. John Adams Fair.

The game of Razzle Dazzle (something new to Quincy people) was played at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Winslow, Wednesday eight. A merry time was enjoyed, vocal and instrumental music helping to make the time pass all too quickly. During the evening light refreshments were served.

Talk about your New Year's resolutions when a fellow is taken down with the grip, has to be shut up in the house four or five days, and starts in and soaks his feet in hot water and mustard, put to bed and smothered with bed cloths, a hot water jug at his feet. You can't eat, you must take quinine pills and drink hot lemonade; you must gargle your throat with alum and water; a flax-seed poultice red hot, laid on your throat at night; and you cough, cough, and some of the good neighbors come in and wish you a happy New Year.

All to Have Seats.

Every patron of the Consolidated road will hereafter be provided with a seat, says the Herald. The practice of dispatching trains with the aisles filled with passengers was abolished by a dictum from the New Haven office, bearing date Jan. 1. Of course, there will be conditions where it would be impossible to observe this order strictly, but it is the purpose of the company to have it enforced as far as possible.

The new order is to the effect that the public shall be given seats when traveling on any cars of the company. Such a rule has virtually been in force for years on the New Haven road, but it had become a dead letter. In reviving it, superintendents have been instructed to inform their trainmen to exercise care in seeing that there be a sufficient seating capacity for all passengers on leaving terminal stations, and, where necessary, to add cars for the accommodation of the passengers.

The trainmen have been cautioned against allowing patrons of the road an opportunity to complain of their being an insufficient number of seats in the cars, and against compelling any passenger to stand. They were instructed to see that all seats in the cars making up the regular trains are occupied, if there be passengers enough, and not to allow, under any consideration, any single passenger to occupy more than one seat, either with his person or baggage. Each seat, says the general superintendent, is intended for two persons, and no one passenger will hereafter be allowed to occupy the whole of it. Trainmen are asked to exercise "firmness and diplomacy" in carrying out this rule. The new order will be hailed with delight by many of the travelling public.

New High Sheriff.

Samuel H. Capen, Sheriff elect of Norfolk County, took the oath of office Wednesday morning at Dedham, and immediately assumed the duties of his position. He appointed Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Jenny of Hyde Park as Court Crier to succeed himself.

Samuel Howard Capen was born in Canton March 2, 1848, and has always lived in that town, where he received his education. He was appointed Deputy Sheriff by Sheriff Wood in 1878. May 15, 1893 he was appointed Court Crier by Sheriff Endicott, which position he has held up to the present time. He will move to Dedham, where he will make his residence.

Sheriff Capen also appointed Deputy Sheriff George H. Field of Quincy as Officer of Probate and Insolvency courts.

☞The trainmen on the various divisions of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad are reported to be displeased over the latest order issued by the company forbidding their smoking or chewing tobacco while on duty on the road. Whatever may be thought of the merits of the order as affecting the men, there is no doubt that it would fill a long felt want if it were made to apply to passengers to the extent of prohibiting the squirting of tobacco juice on the floors of the cars. The steam railroad company that will undertake to enforce reform in this direction will earn the gratitude of decent people generally.

The street car companies in some of our great cities are ahead of the steam railroads in this particular.

Mr. Furnald's Theory.

Constable Furnald who has given the matter of the killing of the unknown burglar, at the residence of Mr. John Shaw, considerable investigation says he traced the footsteps of the man who shot the burglar down the board walk on the Washington street side of the Shaw house, across the lawn, over a fence and down the driveway of the house of Walter H. Cobb, a newspaper man who lives at the corner of Edwards and Washington streets.

Only part of the way were the footprints visible. That was where the man had run in the snow. On the bare ground, of course, the footprints could not be seen. Mr. Furnald, however, had seen enough of the footprints to know that they were made by a No. 9 boot. The man must have been very tall, for the footprints were pretty far apart.

Later on he went to the house of Miss Floretta Vining, on Washington, near Union street, and found evidence of some one's having been there.

Earn Their Salaries.

That the Councilmen of the city earn their salaries ($000,000) is very evident from a scrap of paper picked up in the Council chamber on "moving day." It was not from the diary of an "ex-member" and is therefore unbiased and of interest:

Massachusetts Day.

The 5th Massachusetts regiment is making arrangements to take a day off on Saturday, the 7th, and give the citizens an exhibition of a series of athletic sports at the ball park. It has been arranged to have the entire regiment take part in the sports, to which the citizens of the town and the officers of the other regiments will be invited. The entertainment will begin by the regiment parading through the streets to the park.—Greenville News.

☞The Daily American of Lawrence says of the entertainer who will appear in the People's Course this week: "We have yet to see the humorous reciter who surpasses Charles T. Grilley in talent. The well-worn phrase "A host in himself," belongs to him par excellence. He is fun personified, and he excels in pathos also. He seems to have an inexhaustible fund of humorous anecdotes, and his versatility is wonderful. His face ought to be his fortune, for he can portray there every line of thought from grave to gay. One at last gives up counting the number of his recalls and gives himself up wholly to enjoying the whirlwind of fun which he seems to provide without any effort, for his ease upon the platform is remarkable.

A Music Supplement.

In line with the record of steady progress of the Boston Sunday Journal comes the announcement now that that paper is to add a music supplement regularly to its previous varied and numerous attractions, beginning with the issue of January 15. This supplement will be of eight pages of sheet music size, and will include each week vocal and instrumental compositions of striking merit. The announcement has received a hearty welcome that bespeaks instant success for the new feature.

With this new section the Boston Sunday Journal will consist each week of more than a hundred pages divided in this way—40 pages of news and features, 8 pages of photographic illustrations, 8 pages of music, and a 48-page bound magazine.

LOCAL NEWS TRACK.

Some Colts which are Sure Winners Every Heat.

J. W. McClone has opened a blacksmith shop at Quincy Neck.

Mayor Keith was among those who attended the inaugural today of Governor Wolcott.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Adams and children of Wollaston, will pass the winter in South Carolina.

Mr. James C. Hall, Jr., of Wollaston, who was dangerously sick with the pneumonia, is more comfortable.

There is a large amount of sickness prevalent throughout the city. The grip and kindred diseases are working havoc.

The venerable Mr. John Gray of Brook street, Wollaston is quite ill. Mrs. Gray is also suffering from a recent accident.

Tug Marie had hard work yesterday towing out the barges Kittery and Durham, being low course tide, and it was feared they would run aground at one time, but they were towed out past Hayward's grove into the channel and waited for next high tide.

A subscription whist party was given at Brasee's hall, Wollaston, on Wednesday evening. The committee of arrangements consisted of Mr. Charles T. Baker, Hon. H. O. Fairbanks and Mr. E. H. Sprague. There were sixteen tables. The ladies who won were Mrs. C. M. Bryant and Mrs. Waterman; the gentlemen, Mr. Fairbanks and Mr. J. F. Emery.

Comment on Address.

John Curtis, an ex-Assessor writes:

I was very much pleased with the address of Mayor Keith, particularly on two points.

First,—in regard to our principle thoroughfares which should be widened, straightened and paved; thereby saving the annual expense of repairs and giving the city substantial streets.

Second,—Valuations and taxes.

I believe the valuations of the property of Quincy are excessive, particularly on buildings.

I should like to see a board of assessors, who would put more time into this work and let the tax rate go where it will. I do not think that any three wards of this city can be assessed by three men in fourteen days, as it has been done, and give satisfaction to the tax payers.

☞The reassuring news that Congressman Dingley is better and that there is a chance for his recovery will be welcome to the country. The man from Maine who gave a name to the latest tariff enactment is too useful a member of Congress for his loss to be little less than a calamity. Others would be found to take his place, as he was selected to fill what seemed a critical vacancy, but men of his stamp are not too numerous, and it will be good news when his complete recovery can be announced.—Lynn Item.

☞Augustus B. Endicott of Dedham, sheriff of Norfolk County for thirteen years, who will retire today was waited upon by his deputy sheriffs at the Dedham Court House Monday evening and presented with a solid silver tea set, suitably inscribed. The presentation speech was made by Deputy Sheriff Samuel H. Capen of Canton, sheriff-elect of the county.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Boston, Jan. 5.—Lieutenant Jeremiah G. Fennessy, quartermaster of the Ninth Massachusetts regiment, M. V. M., has resigned and been discharged. Lieutenant Fennessy was the quartermaster who was charged with cowardice while with the regiment on its Cuban campaign, and whom a court of inquiry recently exonerated. Lieutenant Fennessy assigns "business reasons" as his grounds for leaving the service. The lieutenant joined the Ninth regiment in 1874. He was appointed quartermaster July 7, 1897.

His remarks were a discussion of the expansion idea and strongly against it. He contended that it was wrong for the United States to annex any of its conquests during the war with Spain, and predicted much trouble for the country if it annexed Porto Rico and the Philippines.

QUITE A DISTINCTION

Should Be Made Between a Report and a Transmission of Funds.

Friction Over Cuban Customs Question Is Unnecessary.

Intention Is to Use Funds For the Betterment of Condition of Cubans.

Washington, Jan. 5.—When the attention of Assistant Secretary Meikeljohn of the war department was called yesterday to the reports of excitement in Cuba over the customs question, and the alleged friction between General Brooke at Havana and General Wood at Santiago, he said:

"If the order upon which General Wood is acting can only be printed, the matter will be fully understood. There is no controversy existing. The trouble is, some persons do not seem to make a distinction between a report and the transmission of funds. An order was framed, having in view the perfecting of a system of collecting duties on the island, and this order, in speaking of the officer in charge of the sub-ports of entry, said: 'He shall make weekly reports to the collector of customs of the island, at the chief port, of all transactions at the sub-port over which he has jurisdiction, with copies of all entries of merchandise truly certified.'

"Now," continued Mr. Meikeljohn, "that does not mean cash. Weekly reports must be made in order that we may keep track of the revenues of the island. This does not say that these reports must be accompanied by currency, but simply that they shall be made."

"And is General Wood to be at liberty to make use of the funds received from customs for improvements in the province?" was asked.

"It is distinctly understood that these funds are for the island of Cuba, and they will be expended upon the presentation of plans and specifications for public improvements, made by the military governor of the island, and by him referred with recommendations to the secretary of war."

The customs from all the ports in the island are to be used for the betterment of the condition of the Cubans, not only in Havana and Santiago, but elsewhere. Expenditures will be divided as equitably as possibly, so as to relieve distress existing in various quarters, and to make this relief correspond as nearly as possible to the emergency. It would be just as equitable, it is urged, for the port of New York to retain all the customs funds collected there for expenditure in the island of Manhattan as it would be for Havana or Santiago or any other town in Cuba to retain all of the customs receipts for expenditure within its own borders.

So far from the war department contemplating any curtailment of the relief work in Cuba, an order has already been issued to the governor general directing him to furnish work to every able bodied Cuban applying for it at a fair weekly wage, measured by Cuban standard. The order suggests that the best lines of employment are in sanitary work, road improvement and municipal works of various sorts. It is intended to offer a chance for remunerative work to all who are able to take advantage of it, and to cut off the gratuitous distribution of rations among those natives able to work for what they eat. The employment contemplated will not be offered, however, to any resident of the island who retains his allegiance to Spain.

The plans so far formulated by the war department do not touch the payment of the Cuban army, which has been urgently requested by General Gomez, but this matter is now under advisement, and it it not impossible that the war department will hold that it has quite as much right to apply the income of Cuba to paying off these men, and thus giving them a new start in life, as it has to employ laborers on public works, with the same general end in view.

Congressional Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The first session of the senate after the holiday recess occupied only 14 minutes, although in that brief time two open sessions and an executive session were held. Mr. Frye recognized Major Pruden, assistant secretary to the president, who presented a message from the President of the United States. The message contained the treaty of Paris. The senate then went into executive session in order that the message might be referred to the committee on foreign relations. The treaty was not read, but the message accompanying it was. This was a simple message of transmission without any recommendations or suggestions, and was only a few lines in length. The treaty was referred to the committee on foreign relations, and ordered printed for the use of the senate.

The house spent the day considering the bill to define and punish crimes in Alaska and provide a code of criminal procedure for the territory. The bill was prepared by the commission appointed to codify the laws of the United States, and is a voluminous measure of 232 pages. Sixty-seven pages were completed yesterday, and the bill was made a continuing order under disposed of, not, however, to interfere with appropriation bills or other special orders. The only section in the bill which promises to cause a contest is that providing for the sale of liquor in Alaska. Upon this question considerable difference of opinion developed. The house adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Morrill.

The secretary of war transmitted to congress a letter from the state claims commission, recommending legislation to provide for the payment of all meritorious claims for materials or supplies furnished and services rendered by individuals during the Spanish-American war, together with a draft of a bill to accomplish that purpose. The commission states that there are many just claims which cannot be paid without this legislation, as the present act provides for the reimbursement only of governors of states and territories.

EXPANSION AND COMMERCE.

Cobden Club Thinks All Nations Should Adhere to Open Door Policy.

London, Jan. 5.—The executive committee of the Cobden club has issued a manifesto, signed by Baron Farrer, pointing out that the policy of territorial expansion on the part of all the great powers raises the question of free commercial intercourse in a new and extremely important form, and renders it desirable that the club should reconsider its former attitude of reticence with regard to foreign affairs. The manifesto says:

"The world is gradually recognizing that this question cannot be finally settled by any nation as a purely domestic matter. In the opinion of the committee some understanding regarding commercial policy must precede any satisfactory results from the disarmament proposals of the czar. "The manifesto concludes with this declaration: "In our judgment the club should hereafter make more comprehensive endeavors to shape Great Britain's foreign policy, so as to secure the adhesion of other nations to the 'open-door' policy, especially in the derelict countries now passing into the control of strong civilized powers."

The Cobden club's new departure is the chief subject of editorial comment in the morning papers, the drift of which is good humored chaff that the club has at last been compelled to abandon its original strict tenets and to adopt itself to present necessities.

One View of It.

London, Jan. 5.—The Daily Chronicle this morning quotes the opinion of an American now in China, who has recently toured in Siberia, Mongolia and Manchuria, as to American relations with Russia and Great Britain. He is represented as saying: "The United States has nothing to fear from Russia and nothing to gain by helping England in the coming war. As soon as Russia's railway schemes are completed, they will Russianize and develope a country whose mineral wealth is unlimited. England's only hope is to organize the Chinese into a large army to oppose Russia. This may mean war, but better war now than 50 years hence, when Russia will have consolidated her power."

Esterhazy to Testify.

Paris, Jan. 5.—Comte Esterhazy, now known to be the author of the Dreyfus bordereau, has been summoned to appear before the court of cassation on Jan. 12. It is expected that the Dreyfus depositions will be received on Saturday from Cayenne, and the court will then decide whether his actual presence is necessary in Paris. It is believed, however, that the whole examination will be conducted by telegraph, at an enormous expense, in order to avoid dangerous manifestations here.

They Can't Agree.

Paris, Jan. 5.—The recently formed league known as La Patrie Francaise, whose avowed object is to "knit intellectual France into a union for counteracting the Dreyfus agitation," seems still-born, owing to the incompatibility of Mm. Brunetiere, Coppee and Barres and the dissensions among the authors, professors and scientists who have signed the membership list.

Thrown Out of Court.

New York, Jan. 5.—Judge Newburger yesterday discharged the bail in the case of Edward M. Field, son of the late Cyrus W. Field, who has been under six indictments since 1892 for grand larceny. The bail has been $25,000. Field was a member of the banking firm of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co., which failed for $3,000,000 in 1891. Field was afterward indicted, but a commission decided that he was insane. He was sent to an institution in Buffalo. After being there for two years he was released and locked up in Ludlow street jail. He escaped from that institution. He is said to be now in a sanitarium on Long Island. When the firm failed Field was supposed to have $400,000, but no trace of the money could ever be found. The discharge of the bail means the practical abandonment of the case.

Engineer Exonerated.

New York, Jan. 5.—At the inquest yesterday to find the cause of the explosion on board the steamer Alamo, while in this port, causing the death of six men, the jury rendered a verdict completely exonerating Chief Engineer Canning of the Alamo, who had been arrested. The jury found that the men came to their deaths by being scalded, caused by the partial drawing out of the "slip joint," thereby weakening the steam pipe to the point of the breaking of its flange.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

THE HAVANA PRESS

Finds Plenty of Sensational Matter For Edification of Readers.

Havana, Jan. 5.—The afternoon papers yesterday sent a thrill through the city with the report that a torture and execution chamber had been found at the residence of the Spanish military governor, adjoining the palace. The papers declared that ...ore the Spanish officials questioned and murdered political prisoners. According to their accounts, the floor of the "chamber" was covered with dried blood, and its walls were indented with machete strokes.

An excited crowd soon gathered outside the residence, which was last occupied by General Parado. The reported "torture chamber" is a room about eight feet by eight, just off the dining room. As a matter of fact, it was probably used as a pantry. In the wall there is a dirty iron bar evidently used to hang meat on, and a piece of discolored rope is suspended from it. It is inconceivable that General Parrado practiced torture in his dining room.

Attorney General to Decide.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Assistant Secretary Howell of the treasury department has under consideration the case of several Chinese laborers and others seeking readmission to Hawaii. Under the Hawaiian laws they were allowed to visit their native country and return upon complying with certain conditions as to registration, etc., before leaving. When the exclusion laws of the United States with respect to Chinese were applied to Hawaii the question of status of those who had left the islands was immediately presented to the treasury inspector, Mr. Brown, holding that they were debarred. The Hawaiian supreme court, however, has held that they were entitled to land, and the question has been referred to Attorney General Griggs for an opinion. About 800 Chinamen will be debarred if the inspector's decision is sustained.

To Have "Old Ironsides."

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 5.—The Chronicle says that the Constitution will be towed from Boston to Portsmouth some time in April next, according to present plans. This announcement was received with a vast amount of gratification by the residents of Portsmouth and Rockingham county, owing to the fact that a general protest has been entered to the government in allowing the Constitution to remain in Boston. A great deal of campaign work has been carried on since the Constitution was towed from the Portsmouth navy yard by those who are of the opinion that she rightfully belongs here, and if it is finally decided to return the old ship to this port she will be given a royal reception upon her arrival.

Booze on Transports.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 5.—Two weeks ago Hugh McClair, steward on the transport Roumanian, was discharged by the ship's quartermaster. McClair said it was because he had demanded of the quartermaster his share of profits made from the ship's storeroom. Officials have been making an investigation and have sent a report to Washington. The sale of liquors at one time must have come close to the verge of a scandal. Nearly every one of the transports was running a bar and selling considerable liquor to soldiers. It was alleged that exorbitant prices were charged on some of the transports, with big profits for somebody.

Wealth Awaiting Development.

Washington, Jan. 5.—In a personal letter received here, Surveyor General W. L. Diston of Alaska speaks of the mineral outlook of that territory as follows: "The general concensus of opinion is that Alaska will yet astonish the world with her mineral wealth and resources. The opportunities and possibilities will be great in this vast domain. Development of course means much. One should be possessed with energy, push and 'get there' qualities, and come prepared to endure hardships and deprivations. The Atlin district is attracting considerable attention, and fortune hunters are rushing to that district."

State Police Absent.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 5.—A large number of the state police, who have been in the city since last week, left last night for Boston, to attend the inaugural exercises at the state house today. It is expected that they will return here tonight. There is no change in the strike situation.

Many people burn the candle of life at both ends. Some men who never go into vicious dissipation use up their energies just as much by overwork or late hours; and nearly all women are compelled by circumstances to use up their vital powers beyond all reason: It may be in housework; or social demands; or the bearing and rearing of children: At any rate the candle of life is too rapidly consumed.

Some people need to have their natural vigor constantly reinforced in the same proportion that it is used up. They need the fortifying help of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a powerful alterative and invigorant of the digestive functions and liver; it cleanses the blood, and makes fresh blood and healthy flesh. Nervous, debilitated women should take it in conjunction with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription which is specially designed for female weakness and nervous troubles.

Mrs. Sallie Kauffman, of Virgil City, Cedar Co., Mo., writes: "I had suffered from displacement of internal organs and female weakness for one year. Had a bearing down sensation and very disagreeable feeling after my second child was born; I could be on my feet only a few minutes until he was six weeks old, then I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription.' I took seven bottles in all. After taking the first bottle I felt much better. I think I am entirely cured of all my troubles. I can do all my work and am on my feet all day. I am in much better health now than I have been in four years; am fleshy and gaining strength very fast."

By writing to Dr. Pierce who is chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., careful professional advice will be obtained free of cost and specially adapted to the individual case. Dr. Pierce's great 1000-page Medical Adviser will be sent free for 21 cents; the cloth will be sent free cost of postage.

CORNISH'S STATEMENT

Regarding the Mysterious Poisoning of His Aunt, Mrs. Adams.

Goes Into Details of Receipt of "Christmas Present."

A Friend Had Previously Proposed to Take a Dose of the "Bromo Seltzer."

New York, Jan. 6.—In the great double poisoning mystery yesterday the police concentrated all their efforts and energies to identifying, by final and conclusive evidence, the man, formerly a member of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, whom they have had under suspicion for several days as the sender of the cyanide of potassium to Henry C. Barnet, and also to Harry Cornish, and which Cornish gave Mrs. Adams, causing her death.

A statement was issued by Cornish, in which he reviews the details of receiving the poison, the giving of it to Mrs. Adams, and subsequent events. He says:

"On either Friday night or Saturday morning before Christmas I found in my mailbox a package addressed to me. I carried it to my office with the rest of my mail and there opened it. It was covered with what appeared to be ordinary manila wrapping paper and was tied with a string. Inside of this was an ordinary Tiffany box, and on opening the box I found in one end thereof a silver article. In the other end of the box was a bottle of what appeared to be Emerson's bromo seltzer. In between the two articles was packed some white tissue paper. I took up the silver article and the bottle, and underneath the bottle found a small Tiffany envelope, the kind that is generally used for inclosing cards.

"I took the articles out of the box and threw the box into the waste basket under my desk, where I had previously thrown the outside wrapper. I remember joking about it with Mr. Finneran, who was in the office at that time, and it was at his suggestion that I regained the outside wrapper and cut out the address, as he suggested that in that way I might eventually determine who had sent it to me. I took the whole affair as a joke on me when I saw that the bottle was labelled 'bromo seltzer.'

"This bottle was covered with what I supposed was the usual bromo seltzer cover. It was sealed at the top and had a revenue stamp on it. I tried to put the bottle in that condition into the silver holder and found that it would not fit; therefore I tore off the outside wrapper and threw it away. Then the bottle would go in the silver holder, and I placed it to one side in my desk. It remained there and was the source of considerable joking during the day.

"I think it was on Saturday that Mr. King made some remark about it, saying that he would take a drink of it. I was writing at that time and paid no further attention to it than to shove the silver holder and bottle toward that side of my desk, and I understand that he took it and put it on Mr. Finneran's desk, which is next to mine, and then went to the gymnasium water cooler to get the necessary water. Not finding any water there he gave up the idea of taking it. The articles were then placed in my desk.

"On Sunday I happened to remark at the house that I had received such a present, and both Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Rogers joked with me about it, and in a joking way hinted that I did not dare bring it home—that the sender's name was probably marked on it, and remarks of that sort.

"I thought nothing more of it until Tuesday night, when I took home with me my dress suit case, which had been at the club and which contained some dirty linen. I was in the club house all that evening and remember playing billiards up to at least 11:30. On going to the gymnasium to take my dress suit case, it suddenly occurred to me that I would take home this present to show them.

"I must have arrived home somewhere in the vicinity of 12:15, and was lying on my bed reading when Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Rogers came in.

"Mr. Hovey, who had just come from Hartford that afternoon, and who had gone down town that evening, had not returned. I showed the present to the ladies and Mrs. Rogers remarked that the pattern was similar to some toilet pieces which she already had.

"I then told her that the thing was of no use to me and that she could put it with her other articles, which she did, placing it on her dresser.

"In the morning, Mrs. Rogers came to my door and made a remark something like 'Mamma has a fearful headache, and would you give her some of your bromo seltzer?' On this suggestion I went into her room and took the bottle to the dining room, sat down at the table and opened it. I read the directions on the outside which said 'A heaping teaspoonful,' and this amount I took from the bottle. Mrs. Adams brought me a glass, in which I put the powder, and then she went to the kitchen to get the required half goblet of water.

"She came back and poured the water into the glass. I stirred it repeatedly and then she drank it. Mrs. Adams must have left about an inch of the mixture in the glass, and as soon as she had swallowed it she made some such remark as 'How bitter it is.'

"Then she started to walk towards the kitchen. When she took it up to drink it, I had reached for the paper which was on the table, and when she made that remark, I said something like 'Why, that's all right,' and I took up the glass and tasted it myself, taking a good sized swallaw. I noticed that it burned a little bit, but paid no attention to it and started to read. Then I heard Mrs. Rogers cry from the bathroom 'Come here and help mamma. Just as I arrived there, Mrs. Adams dropped on the floor, and could not do it. The the floor. I attempted to raise her from moment I made an effort to raise her I began to vomit. I then called loudly for Mr. Hovey. He came running to the bathroom in his night dress, and assisted me to carry Mrs. Adams to the couch in the dining room.

"I remember that all this time I had this feeling of sickness. I ran to the door, and going out into the hall called 'Henry' (the hall boy), and told him to run and get a doctor, quick, because Mrs. Adams was very sick. I then went back to the bathroom, where I was sicker than I ever was before in my life. As soon as I could I ran to my room, put on my shoes and trousers, put on my overcoat over my pajamas, and, taking the bottle, ran down and across the street to the drug store. During all my running around that morning I was continually vomiting.

"In the drug store I put the bottle on the counter, told the clerk that a woman had just drunk some of that and asked him what I should give her. He put up some sweet spirits of ammonia, and I ran back to the house with it, taking the bottle with me. When I arrived there the doctor had not come, and I told Henry he must go after him, as some one was poisoned. I started downstairs myself, and around the corner with Henry, and as we came near Sixty-seventh Street, the doctor was coming down the street.

"I went back to the house with him. The doctor did what he could. He then took some of the powder from the bottle, placed it on his tongue and remarked that it was bitter. He finally said that the case was so serious that he would like to have me call Dr. Potter. I ran all the way to the doctor's office, and was still troubled with nausea. Dr. Potter was apparently in an inside room in bed, and I am sure that I did not see him, as immediately upon his assuring me that he would come, I ran back to the house alone.

"He came soon, but then it was too late. After we were satisfied that Mrs. Adams was dead, I explained the entire circumstances to the doctors. They had previously told me that it was a case for the coroner to look into. Up to that time I have no recollection of Mr. McIntyre's name being mentioned, and I am positive I was the first one to mention it.

"As I knew how unpleasant it would be to pass and repass through this room during the day, my thought was to see Mr. McIntyre, and see if he could not use his influence at the coroner's office to have them attend to this at once. That was my sole idea in going to him. Not being able to get Mr. McIntyre on the telephone that morning, I went to the criminal court building and there saw him. From there I went to inform my cousin, and then returned to the club. I had been very sick all during the day, but felt that I ought to keep on my feet as long as possible. On my return to the club, however, I found it necessary to send for a physician, and both Dr. Philips and Dr. Coffin attended me.

"I was severely sick from Wednesday night until Thursday noon, and was confined to bed by the doctors' orders until Friday morning. I lost 12 pounds in weight during that time, and I understand that my physicians think that the amount of running around that I did was what saved me from the fatal effect of the poison."

A Daring Holdup.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Six highwaymen, who were endeavoring to escape after having help up the drygoods store of H. C. T. Borman, engaged in a shooting affray with Policeman Edward Wallner and John McCaulley last evening, and both officers were wounded, Wallner dying three hours later. McCaulley was shot in the arm and hip, but will recover. When Wallner and McCaulley were called to the scene of the robbery, they started in pursuit of the men. The robbers reached an alley, ran behind a fence and opened fire on the officers. After firing more than a dozen shots at the officers, the six robbers ran up the alley. McCaulley followed them and received a second wound. He was then forced to give up the chase, and the robbers escaped. Borman and his clerk, Charles Carson, were alone in the store when five robbers entered, one remaining at the door. They robbed Borman of $35 and a watch, and took $5 and a watch from Carson. There is no clue to their identity.

OFFICIALS ANNOYED.

Think General Wood Has Been Indiscreet, If Not Insubordinate.

More Serious Than Appears on the Face of News.

No Need of the Loud and Rigorous Protes From People In Santiago.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The president and the cabinet are greatly annoyed by the news from Santiago. It is rather a strange happening that the first real difficulty since the signing of the terms of peace should be fostered and encouraged by one of the high representatives of the United States government on the island of Cuba.

Word from Santiago was received by the state department yesterday announcing that General Wood had left the Cuban city in a transport and was coming to Washington.

He is not likely to receive a very warm welcome here.

Officials, especially army officials, believe that he has been very indiscreet, to say the least, if not insubordinate.

One of the members of the cabinet said last night: "This is a more serious matter than appears on the face of the news. The Cubans have been given an incentive to remonstrate by agitation or by other methods of opposition, almost, in this very instance, approaching a riot, to rebel against any order that may not be pleasing to them. The present state of the public mind in Cuba is so wrought up that only a pretext is necessary to cause a rebellion. Cubans must have rather a peculiar idea of a government that has as a representative in so high a place as governor of a city and province, a man who meets the orders of his superiors with loud protests of opposition. General Wood was well acquainted with these conditions.

"He must have known that any proposition which he might suggest or any agitation which he might lead would be pretty sure to attract the support of the people. They had been educated to see the orders from Spain obeyed. He must have known also that the Cubans, especially those who were in the army, were dissatisfied, not alone on account of their being debarred from the sharing of the spoils of governing such a city as Santiago, but also because of jealousy at the occupancy of their homeland by Americans. There has all along been a great deal of talk that as to rulers they would just as leave have the Spaniards as the Americans. With General Wood as an example and as a leader they were very willing to flock to his support. Anything to annov the Americans. I doubt if General Wood will ever go back as governor."

Officials say there was no need of the loud and riotous protest. If an order from Washington did not conform to the conditions apparent to those in Santiago, there were many other ways to secure its being rescinded, instead of exciting a population that is not now, and has not been, over friendly to the United States, except when the troops were necessary to whip the Spaniards. If an insurrection had really broken out, General Wood, more than anybody else, would have been responsible for its creation, and being the occasion of the trouble, he would have found it difficult to suppress it without being charged with inconsistency.

THE FLOORS AND WALLS

About All the Spaniards Left of Havana Custom Houses.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The war department, division of customs and insular affairs, received yesterday from the collector of customs at Havana, Colonel Tasker H. Bliss, under date of Dec. 29, 1898, the first report transmitted by him since his arrival at that port.

Colonel Bliss says that the first serious embarrassment he met with on taking charge of the custom house at Havana was caused by the fact that on making an inspection of his surroundings he discovered that the Spaniards had removed nearly everything except the bare walls and floors. His first official step was to obtain a full list of all the employes in the custom house, their salaries and nationality, and next information as to their general character and reputation for integrity. Whatever changes in personnel are made in the future will be filled as far as possible by appointments of natives of the island.

Colonel Bliss says that the several places in the custom house when he assumed charge were chiefly held by Spaniards, the total number employed at the date of writing being 239. The problem that confronts him, he says, is how to repair a house from foundation to roof without a material disturbance of its occupants, and without interfering with their daily business. Under this condition, he remarks, he cannot, of course, begin by tearing the house down. Up to the date of the filing of the report, the new organization comprises only six Americans, three deputy collectors, two inspectors and one stenographer and typewriter.

Good Afternoon.

We believe what Mr. John Curtis, a former assessor, said in the Daily Ledger on Thursday, that buildings are excessively taxed. This is too true, particularly of old buildings, built sixty or eighty years ago, which do not have any of the modern improvements. Many are taxed today for a third more, or perhaps double, what they cost when new. If they are kept painted and look tolerably well on the outside, the valuation is put up to the same price that a new house is. It matters not whether the home has modern improvements, such as gas or electric lights, furnace or bath room. The assessor, probably for the first time, never asks the question, but if the house was valued by the assessors at $2,000 last year, it is the same this year, or if it has been recently painted, perhaps $100 or $200 more.

The assessors cannot spend time to go in and examine the house. The sills may be all rotten, the floors uneven, the doors warped and out of place; it makes no difference. It is too true that buildings in Quincy as a whole are taxed too high; there are exceptions it is true, but they are generally with the modern built houses.

If a gentleman has an old house and would like to improve the appearance of the city and put up a new one he cannot afford to do so. Why? Because if the old is taken down or sold at auction it will not bring one-third; probably not one-tenth the assessors' valuation. The loss on the building has got to fall on the land, which will raise the cost value of the land so high, that it would be much cheaper if any one wishes to build, to buy a piece of land of the same assessed value, without any building on it.

Old buildings should be valued low, because they are a constant expense to the owner in keeping them in repair. Besides it would be more of an inducement to the owner to take them down and put up more costly ones, which would greatly improve our city. There are too many old buildings in the centre of Quincy, and they will probably remain, if they are not swept away by fire, unless the valuation is greatly reduced.

The prominent part Massachusetts took in the Spanish war should never be forgotten. It was thoughtful therefore of Governor Wolcott to make the careful review of the record of the State which he did in his inaugural address. He put it first and devoted just one-half of his message to it; extolling the volunteers for their prompt response, and others for their eagerness to serve their country; complimenting the Legislature for its quick enthusiastic loyalty in appropriating $500,000; and praising the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association for a public service of incalculable benefit and importance. His Excellency truly says, "Massachusetts citizens have abundant cause to regard the record thus made by the Commonwealth with just pride. Once again, as in earlier crises of our national history, Massachusetts has shown herself among the foremost of the States of the Union to respond with ready loyalty to the requirements of the National Government. With the utmost promptness, and in obedience to the calls of the President, she has furnished from her military force efficient and well-equipped regiments, which, under circumstances of peculiar hardship and peril, have added to the military fame of the Commonwealth. She has shown her willingness liberally to provide for her sons who have entered the service of the National Government, and tenderly and reverently to care for the sick and the dead. In a word, she has shown that neither the quietude of long continued peace nor the engrossment of her citizens in commercial pursuits has dulled the ear of her young men when the bugle note of duty is sounded, and that the patriotism and valor of an earlier day have lost nothing of their vitality in transmission from sire to son."

Gov. Wolcott sounds a note of warning in his inaugural address relative to the State debt. An examination of the figures shows that in four years the net debt of the Commonwealth has increased more than three-fold, from $4,377,663.19 to $13,598,964.24, which His Excellency says, emphasizes the duty and necessity of rigid scrutiny on the part of the Legislature of all propositions to incur further indebtedness on the part of the State. This comes home to the taxpayers of Quincy and the Metropolitan district in particular, because as the Governor says, the rapid increase of the State debt above shown has been coincident with a great increase of municipal indebtedness, and by the further fact, that the burden of the gradual payment by the so called metropolitan district of the very large expenditure, disbursed by the Commonwealth on its behalf, has hardly yet begun to be borne by those who are to reap the benefit of it.

One of the most probable appointments of Mayor Keith will be that of ex-Mayor Hodges as Principal Assessor, and it is also probable that John Federhen, 3d, will be a member of the board. Long years of experience of Mr. Hodges as a member of the board of Assessors under the town government, and as Mayor of the city eminently fits him for this position, particularly as he is a large property holder and interested in real estate. He is in sympathy with the views of Mayor Keith in his address, and if he will accept the position, he will undoubtedly put them into practice.

Followed by Supper and Dance and Good Time.

A public installation, and a complimentary supper and dance to the Women's Relief Corps, the Ladies' Aid society and to those who assisted at the recent Grand Army fair, was the programme Thursday night of Paul Revere post at Hancock hall.

There was a large attendance and the installation of officers was watched with a great deal of interest. Assistant Adjutant General Warren B. Stetson was the installing officer, and he was ably assisted by Comrade James M. Wood of Post 156 of Cambridgeport.

The officers installed were:

Commander,—Willam H. Warner.
Senior Vice Commander,—John D. Williams.
Junior Vice Commander,—Edward J. Lennon
Quartermaster,—Andrew W. Gardner.
Surgeon, — Henry C. Hollowell, M. D.
Chaplain,—James F. Merrill.
Officer of the Day,—Warren Dunbar.
Officer of the Guard,—William M. Bird.
Adjutant,—Isaac M. Holt.
Sergeant Major,—George L. Phillips.
Quartermaster Sergeant, — Edward Richardson.

After the installation brief remarks were made by the installing officers and by Mrs. Emma L. Leavitt, president of the Women's Relief Corps; Mrs. Alberta Hewson, president of the Ladies' Aid society, and Captain Herbert R. Holmes of Francis L. Souther camp, S. of V. This part of the programme closed with the singing of "America."

Commander Warner then ordered everybody below, where a collation of coffee, cake and ice cream was served. This pleasant duty over dancing was in order until midnight.

Everybody present said they had a good time and their appearance indicated that they told the truth. Richardson's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion.

LIFE WORTH LIVING.

In the absence of the president, the vice president, Miss Frances Elcock, presided at the meeting of the Q. H. S. Debating Society on Wednesday. The report of the secretary, Miss Wiley, '99, was read, and approved.

The debate on the topic, "Resolved, That Life is worth living" was concluded. Misses Furningham, Greer, and Andrews, of 1900, spoke for the affirmative and Misses Higgins, Hultma, and Jacobson, 1900, for the negative. A lively open debate followed with the following speakers: Mr. Northcott, '99; Miss Lowe, '99; Miss Sibley, '99; Miss Comins, '99; Mr. Swift, '99; Miss Whitemore, 99; Miss Mitchell, '99; Mr. Lewis, 1900; Mr. Pitts, '99; Mr. Foss, '99; Miss Hodgkinson, '99.

Miss Mitchell, '99, served as critic, and presented an unusually interesting report.

The board of decision decided that the arguments in favor of living were stronger than those against it.

The entertainment included these numbers:

1—Declamation, Kipling's "Recessional," Mr. Wade, '99.
2—Piano solo, Miss Sibley, '99.
3—Declamation, Mr. Foss, '99.
4—Essay, Miss Whittemore, '99.

Monday Evening Club.

The first meeting of the Atlantic Monday Evening club for the season of 1899 was held at the Memorial church, Jan. 2. Superintendent Benjamin P. Eldridge of the Boston Police lectured in a very interesting manner on "The Police System in America." He gave valuable informaion in regard to the make-up of the force in Boston and Quincy, and said that with the rarest exceptions they were men of honesty and self-respect and deserved the esteem and sustaining power and influence of the the people in the communities, where they were guardians of homes and property.

He mentioned funny instances of the odd things expected by some people of the police and the duties he was asked to perform in the way of finding out the price of butter, cotton cloth, eggs, etc., and report to the inquirer who resided somewhere in northern New Hampshire.

He further begged the citizens to take the greatest care in the selection of the members of our legislative bodies, that the best laws might be made for whose enforcement the police are responsible.

Miss Howells of the Emerson School of Oratory followed with an address on "Physical Culture." She approved a systematic course for any and all ages of persons, and felt it absolutely necessary for the perfect physical and mental development of the race.

After the intermission Miss Lillian Waterhouse read a fine paper on "Current Events."

Miss Emma Curtin played two piano solos with her acustomed brilliancy, and Miss Miriam Heidenreich the soprano, of the choir of the Church of the Emanuel, Roxbury, sang two groups of songs in fine voice and to the expressed satisfaction of the large audience.

At the next meeting Mr. Willis, A M., of the "Youth's Companion" will address the club on "Natural Taxation in America," and Miss Alice G. Coe will furnish the paper on "Current Events."

Republicans Organize.

The Republican State Committee for 1899 organized Thursday with the re-election of Col. A. H. Goetting of Springfield as chairman for the third year. There is a new chairman of the Executive Committee, Hon. A. S. Pinkerton of Worcester, recently president of the Massachusetts Senate.

The other officers are the same as last year, except the asisstant secretary, to which position L. W. Standish the Stoughton editor was elected. The new member from the First Norfolk district is Frank F. Prescott of Quincy who succeeds B. Herbert Woodsum of Braintree. The committee expects a lively campaign next fall as it will be necessary to nominate new candidates for most of the State offices.

CO. K INSPECTED.

Col. Whitney and Staff Pleased With Command.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 2.

It was surprising to note that the temperature which has been so high all the week, went down during the night to zero. Today it has not registered more than 25 degrees above.

The boys feel this cold snap extremely. We are told by the natives of Greenville that there is always a cold snap about this time of the year. We don't like such a snap as this, it is enough of a snap to belong to the volunteers without any more snaps being heaped upon our humble shoulders.

Today the monthly inspection took place, at 2 P.M. The line was formed for the reviewing officer who was our genial commander, Col. Whitney, accompanied by Major Morrison, Surgeon Major Pearl and Adjutant Coleman who were mounted and rode through the front and rear ranks inspecting the general appearance of the boys. The line was broken into company front, ready to march past in review. The march past was executed in a very creditable manner, giving both satisfaction to officers and men. After this ended, came inspection of quarters. The general appearance of the several squads could not be much better. The inspection passed off remarkably well, and showed that the men were capable of taking the most explicit care of themselves and their quarters. Everything was shining like a silver dollar. On account of the afternoon's ceremonies, the usual evening parade was postponed.

Private Lyons, Martelle, and Restelli arrived in camp late last evening, much to the surprise of our boys. They claim that everything was coming their way. But were glad to get far away from Massachusetts coldness.

Private Lyons is especially welcomed on his safe return, by the many pretty leading brunettes of Greenville of whom he made acquaintance while on provost duty. These young ladies missed Dan very much, for he was always very accommodating.

Private Timothy Bowler received today a handsome pair of hand sewed cork shoes, a present from an uncle of his in Quincy. Tim wore them for the first time at this afternoon's parade.

Sergeant Phillips is on the sick list, having caught a cold in one of his eyes. It is nothing serious so we expect the sergeant to be all right in a few days.

No new pipe dreams have been let loose today. Our general impression is that we will see home about the end of February. If no new orders reach us before long.

Private Randall Faxon was today detailed for the cook house squad, relieving Randall of all necessary guard duty and wild cats.

The guard detail for today consists of Privates McLaughlin, Lord, Osgood and O'Connors. Volunteer.

Memorial Church.

Sunday morning's text for the New Year's sermon was "Looking unto Jesus." Rev. Mr. Whitaker pressed home to the hearts of his congregation the need of looking out and up and of making the New Year's resolution with firm intention of inserting the spirit of the words of the text in every act of the present year.

The Sunday School opened its New Year with the following officers:

Superintendent—Mr. W. F. Blake.
Assistant Superintendent—Mr. W. F. Cummings.
Secretary and Treasurer, — Mr. W. N. Ware.
Librarian,—Mr. Frank C. Coe.

The week of prayer was observed by two special meetings, one on Wednesday evening, when Rev. Mr. Flint of Hope Chapel, Boston, gave an exceedingly earnest and helpful address on the theme, "Fruits of Sonship with God," and on Friday evening the "roll call" with the subject of service, "The Gospel of Work."

The new arrangement of electric lighting is a great source of pleasnre to the audience at the evening services.

Did the no-school signal cause the storm to abate?

Dr. Charles S. Adams winter address will be Pinehurst, N. C.

Timothy Callahan of Charles street, has removed to Old Colony street.

Mrs. Charles N. Ditson is confined to the house, by a severe attack of the grip.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Hospital corporation will be held Jan. 16.

Never were so many people of Atlantic sick with the grip at one time, as at the present.

Now if Mr. Harlow will but name the boy Keith Harlow, he may be the next City Clerk.

The sociable of the Wollaston Unitarian church will be held Thursday evening, the 12th.

The Gleaners will meet at the home Mrs. W. Record, Newport avenue, Monday, Jan. 9, at 2.30 P. M.

The City Council will not hold another meeting until Jan. 16. Will the Mayors appointments come then?

Mr. Arthur B. Holden has been elected chairman of the committee on election of the Pi Eta society of Harvard.

An interesting feature of the New Year service at the Memorial church Sabbath morning was the reception into the church of five new members.

The new year has started in very quietly at the District court, as far as criminal business is concerned, but very few cases having been tried thus far.

Among the invited guests from Quincy at the inauguration of Governor Wolcott on Thursday were: Mayor Keith, Hon. W. B. Rice and Frank F. Prescott.

Edward S. Ago of Atlantic, who was a volunteer of the 9th Massachusetts regiment, has not recovered health since his return from Cuba, and was admitted to one of the Boston hospitals on Thursday.

Don't Spit.

The Board of Health has taken a step in the right direction in passing a rule prohibiting spitting upon the floor of any street car, as will be seen by an advertisement in another column. The board should go one step further and fix a penalty for any violation thereof. In all the street cars in Boston there is a card with a similar rule printed thereon stating that the penalty is $100. What is good for Boston is certainly good for Quincy.

In Bankruptcy.

A Boston paper reports that Isaac W. Pinkham, Wollaston, has filed a bankruptcy petition. Liabilities $15,109, of which $15,000 is incurred by petitioner on accommodation paper held by the Shawmut National bank in connection with the I. W. Pinkham company, a corporation of which he was treasurer. Mr. Pinkham resides on Winthrop avenue, and is a dealer in builders material.

Hagen and Chance.

The trial of Arthur Hagen and John H. Chance, indicted jointly on the charge of murdering Clerk Russell in the drug store beneath the United States Hotel many months ago has been set for Feb. 6 and on that day the two defendants will be brought in the Superior Court to be tried for murder. Able counsel have been assigned to both men. Like all murder cases much time was necessary to collect evidence, but the Government authorities have finally perfected their case.

Grip, Grip, Grip.

Grip is at the present time quite prevalent in this city, and it is said that the Brazilian Balm is a sure cure. For sale only at A. G. Durgin's. Trial bottles with directions only twenty-five cents. Those who have tired it speak very highly of its virtue.

☞ The Brockton Board of Trade is hustling toward the close of its second year of existence to give the city prominence in such a manner as may eventually redound to its commercial benefit. The committee of the board on advertising and printing is now preparing for the press a manual of the business and the business facilities of the city, which will be ready for distribution about Feb. 1.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

NOW ITS A FIRE.

John Shaw of Quincy Burglar Fame Suffers Loss.

The Journal reports that a bad fire broke out Thursday in one of the large laboratories of John Shaw's chemical establishment on First street, between K and L streets, South Boston. In a short time the building containing a large quantity of highly explosive and inflamable material, was completely enveloped in the flames, which made short work of the structure. By most persistent efforts the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the building, which stood near by to two other combustible structures.

The fire started in some unaccountable way, near the large chemical furnace in the laboratory, where 10 men were working. It is thought that the excessive heat caused spontaneous combustion in the chemicals. All the men escaped without receiving the slightest injury, although they had but a short time to get out of the laboratory, as the flames soon filled the interior.

Before the alarm, which was sent out by John Shaw, the proprietor of the establishment, had been given, the structure was doomed. A number of small explosions gave great impetus to the fire, which advanced in an incredibly short time through the entire building.

When the firemen arrived they realized that the laboratory was gone. The surrounding buildings, upon which the reflection of the flames flickered ominously, were given first attention, as the nature of their contents justified the fear of a veritable conflagration. The great quantity of thick, black smoke interfered considerably with the work of the firemen, and caused some alarm among the people living in the vicinity.

The destroyed building was a 2 1-2 story wooden structure, measuring 80 by 50 feet. It is estimated that the loss will amount to $8,000, as there was an extra large amount of goods in the building.

During one of the explosions, Ladderman James Hogan of Ladder 5 was badly burned about the head and face. He was attended by Dr. Young and taken home. A number of other firemen received slight burns.

Capitol Gleanings.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was reported to the house. It carries $28,229,237, about the amount of the last bill, and a reduction of $1,135,768 on the estimates.

Senator Hansbrough has given notice of an amendment he will propose to Senator Hanna's bill for a subsidy to American vessels engaged in foreign trade. Senator Hansbrough's amendment provides for an export bounty of $2 per ton on all American agricultural products shipped out of the country. He says that the exportation of farm articles ranges from $6,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 annually.

Secretary Hay yesterday presented to the president Senor J. B. Calve, as minister from Costa Rica. Senor Calve for several years has been in charge of the Costa Rican legation here, and has earned this promotion. The usual felicitious speeches were exchanged.

The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was reported to the house yesterday. It carries about $1,700,000, a slight reduction on last year. Ten consulate generals, consuls, etc., in Cuba, the Philippines and Porto Rico are omitted for the first time.

Ewing Winslow of Massachusetts, secretary of the National Anti-Imperialist league, yesterday saw senators opposed to this country acquiring the Philippines, and informing them of the work done by the league, and the report made by the league, urged them to oppose ratification of the peace treaty at this session.

The continued serious illness of Representative Hull of Iowa, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, will necessitate a change of program as to taking up the bill for the increase and reorganization of the regular army.

Bad Men Rounded Up.

Albany, Jan. 6.—Ex-Convict George Willis, alias Jones, aged 28 years, who has served seven years in the state prison at Boston for burglary, was picked up here by the police yesterday. Silverware and garments were found in his possession that connect him with the three house burglaries perpetrated in this city on New Year's day, and also jewelry, the proceeds of the robbery of one of the American Express company's wagons, which was driven away from in front of the capitol last week and looted. Ed B. Lewis, another discharged convict from the Boston prison, whom Willis wrote for to come on and assist him in the jobs, was also arrested.

Died In a Cell.

Rockland, Me., Jan. 5.—J. A. Olson, a Swede, who became insane a week ago last night, and was lodged in the police station, died in his cell. About 5 o'clock Olson made his escape from the cell while the officer was giving him his supper. He ran a short distance, when he was recaptured and taken to the station in an exhausted condition. The officers made him comfortable on a cot in the cell, but he died shortly after.

Alleged Letter Thief.

Boston, Jan. 5.—Charles F. Barrows, a letter carrier of Newton, was brought to this city last night, under arrest, on a charge of robbing the mails. Inspectors have been at work for some time trying to locate many missing valuable letters.

THE RACE PROBLEM.

Interesting Lecture by Mr. Booker T. Washington.

A very large audience, estimated at 700 to 800, embraced the opportunity on Thursday evening to hear Mr. Booker T. Washington of the Tuskegee Institute lecture at the High School hall on "Democracy in Education." This young colored gentleman, who has done so much for his race in the South, is a very interesting speaker, and his audience continued interested from first to last although he spoke over an hour, as his address was spiced with stories.

His mission is the solution of the race problem. Many of the suggestions advanced he deemed inexpedient, such as colonization in the West, sending back to Africa and intermarriage. He claimed that it was necessary first to give the colored man an industrial education, so that they can work out their own salvation. Having been in slavery over 200 years they had come to be dependent on others. They needed to be led and guided; to be taught habits of thrift and economy, and how to get a bank account. They want experience and intelligence that they may become helpful citizens. An industrial education was more essential at first than religion. There was no feeling against the Negro in business, and some in the South had become successful merchants. This was an entering wedge.

The Tuskegee Institute now had buildings valued at $300,000, and the running expenses were $80,000 annually. While at first there had been a prejudice against it in the vicinity where it was instituted, it was now appreciated, and its product of labor was in demand. Much of the work, including the erection of buildings and the making of bricks, was by students. It was doing an excellent work.

The length of the term of the public schools in the South was being increased, and "Hog clubs," and work of young ladies were doing much to revolutionize the industrial life of the colored man, so that they were living in better houses, and becoming more independent.

Mr. James M. Nowland presided at the meeting. Miss Florence Emery contributed vocal selections, and Miss Hultman instrumental music. A collection was taken to aid the lecturer.

A HEALTHY CITY.

Population Larger, But Less Deaths in 1898 than 1890.

The City Clerk reports that the total number of marriages recorded in 1898 was 245, which was an increase of 47 over the previous year. The number of deaths recorded was 356, a decrease of 12 over the previous year. The return of births is not completed as yet.

The above facts lead to a further investigation, and the Ledger finds that there never was a year when there were so many marriages in Quincy, a good indication of returning prosperity. At the same time it must be acknowledged that Quincy is becoming very healthy, or its physicians more skilful. Not since 1892 has there been a year in which the city has had as few deaths, and in 1890 there were 23 more than in 1898. Yet we now have a population of upwards of 25,000 while in 1890 the total was 16,723. The city's death rate in 1898 was but 14 per 1,000 population, much below the average of the State.

A summary of the number of marriages and deaths for the eleven years of the city will be of interest:

	Marriages.	Deaths.
In 1888,	144	303
In 1889,	176	324
In 1890,	159	379
In 1891,	199	320
In 1892,	182	318
In 1893,	219	375
In 1894,	189	380
In 1895,	191	363
In 1896,	215	366
In 1897,	198	368
In 1898,	245	356

The Congressman From Utah.

The election of Brigham H. Roberts, a polygamist, as Congressman from Utah, has re-opened the discussion of the Mormon question. Some persons have tried to find in it an argument against equal rights for women. Mr. Roberts, however, is not only a polygamist, but also a conspicuous opponent of woman suffrage. A leading Gentile woman of Utah writes that his nomination was "railroaded through the convention despite the protests of the women." A prominent Mormon woman in the convention opposed his nomination on the ground that all his time would be needed for his domestic duties—a delicate allusion to his many wives and families.

Contrary to the expectation that the Mormon church would have the solid support of the women's vote, some of the most conspicuous opponents of the church in its effort to take despotic control of the State have been women. A notable instance is Hon. Martha Hughes Cannon of the Utah senate the only woman ever elected to a State Senate thus far. When the Utah Legislature elected a United States Senator, Mrs. Cannon both spoke and voted for the independent candidate, Moses Thatcher, and against the church candidate. The Salt Lake Tribune, the leading Gentile paper of Utah, and formerly much opposed to woman suffrage, said editorially:

"Those who have had apprehensions over what women would do in public stations, and have questioned the wisdom of giving them suffrage, should have heard the brave speech of Senator Martha Hughes Cannon yesterday, when, despite influences which have cowed more than one male legislator, she explained why she held it a duty to do a certain thing. It required a moral courage which a good many members of the Legislature do not possess. Then, too, she did it grandly as gracefully. Her face showed that it grieved her to perform an act that would pain her near friends; but she did not hesitate, but, as though her oath and sense of duty were more to her than all else, she faced that duty superbly, and by her words gave a new direction to men's minds, and opened a broad path for doubters if they could but muster up the courage to follow where she led. It was the most manly exhibition that has been presented in the Legislature since it convened.

Senator Cannon prefaced her vote with an address so eloquent that, despite the rigid rules against demonstrations, she was cheered and cheered again at its conclusion. Not the gallery alone, but members themselves joined in the applause. There have been eloquent speeches before in the joint session, but none so thrilled the audience. Even those bitterest in their opposition to Thatcher could not but admire the pluck that animated Mrs. Cannon."

The Mormon church seems to have got the better of the reform element, for the time being; but it is interesting to know that the women were ably represented among the reformers.

A special parish meeting of the East Milton Congregational church was held Dec. 30, at which it was voted to extend a call to Rev. Andrew H. Mulnix of Hyannis to become its pastor. Rev. Mr. Mulnix has occupied the pulpit upon several occasions, and is very much liked. He will probably accept.

Local politics are warming up, and candidates for town offices are being talked.

Frank Shedd, the painter, has been sick with the grip.

In the Norfolk County Superior Civil Court, before Judge Stevens, Thursday afternoon, in the case of Eugene W. Graves of Milton et al, v. the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the jury retured a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $4,881.80. The plaintiff brought a petition for an assessment of land damages for land taken by the Commonwealth in 1896 for the purpose of building a boulevard in connection with fixing up the Blue Hill Reservation in the town of Milton. The case has been on trial for several days.

Old Men In Fatal Quarrel.

Bath, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Jerome Mattice and Richard Duboise, veterans of the Civil war, both over 60 years of age, and formerly inmates of the soldiers' home at this place, quarreled in a dirty shanty, in which they had kept bachelors' hall for a year past. They fought for more than an hour with the fury of demons. Dubolse finally seized a pitcher, and with it battered Mattice's brains out. Both men were pensioners, and had always been good friends. As the sheriff was locking Duboise in his cell the assassin said: "It was a little science against brute force."

Don Carlos' Stand.

Madrid, Jan. 5.—El Correo Español, the Carlist organ, says: We are authorized to declare that Don Carlos would never further his cause by arranging for the cession of an inch of Spanish territory. Other papers are evidently beginning to abandon the idea that there is any understanding between the British government and the Carlists.

In the Balance.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The physicians attending Representative Dingley announce that he is resting comfortably, but they are not yet able to say whether there is sufficient vitality left in the patient to successfully resist the inroads of disease. After his sinking spell yesterday morning he rallied somewhat, and appears stronger.

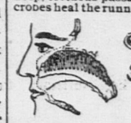
An Important Secret

The secret is how Brazilian Balm gets to the seat of Catarrh, between the deep, tortuous passages of the nose, crosses heal the running sore.

5 CENTS.



cures from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and on health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the odor to the brain. When a cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swollen and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can fasten itself. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrain. If you have a cold in the head the use of Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from getting a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes running sores or ulcers in the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They rapidly multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passages clear up in behind the eyes All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of pus into the throat, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressing Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the Balm as the Catarrh dissapears. Also the effects of Grippe however serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permanently cured by this wonderful balsam. Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

FIGURES RANGE HIGH.

Result of Investigation Into Colebrook National Bank Irregularities.

Washington, Jan. 6.—A report upon the general conditions prevailing at the Colebrook National bank of Colebrook, N. H., was received yesterday by Comptroller Dawes from E. H. Carroll, the bank commissioner, who is acting as temporary receiver. Mr. Carroll has summoned Examiner Ewer of the Massachusetts district to his aid, and they are preparing for a thorough examination of the books. His report gives the general result of the examination of the bank and declares that the cashier admitted that the irregularities and overdrafts were probably $50,000 or $60,000.

"There must be a shortage of quite an amount," he declares, "but cannot give any definite information regarding the same until we go through the books thoroughly."

He believes that the overdrafts and loans are largely to men of means, who are taking hold of the matter in earnest, and will not permit the bank to suffer loss on their account. He says that he will be able to secure many of the questionable loans and overdrafts during the present week.

A further report, giving figures in detail, is looked for by Comptroller Dawes within a short time.

Congressional Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The judiciary committee had the right of way in the house for three hours yesterday, and quite a number of bills of minor importance were reported from the committee, and passed. The remainder of the day was occupied in continuing the consideration of the bill to codify the laws of Alaska. Some 21 pages were disposed of, making 83 in all of the 232 pages. The following were among the bills passed: To provide additional circuit judges for the Third and Sixth judicial districts; to amend the revised statutes so as to allow the United States five peremptory challenges in original cases; to permit ship owners to file indemnity bonds; to allow legally appointed guardians of insane persons to prosecute patent claims.

Little business, except of a routine character, was transacted by the senate. A resolution offered by Mr. Hoar, directing the committee on foreign relations to report to the senate whether the treaty of Paris makes any provision for the claims of citizens of the United States against Spain, which were in existence before the present war, and the status of such claims after the ratification of the treaty, was adopted. Mr. Caffery of Louisiana continued, and practically concluded, his speech begun before the holiday recess in opposition to the pending Nicaraguan canal bill.

Santiago's Trade Growing.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The trade of Santiago is already showing a surprising growth under American administration. General Wood states that the policy of non-discriminative intercourse extended to the vessels of all nations in Santiago province has greatly facilitated the re-establishment of commercial relations. It also, he says, has been one of the chief features in the restoration of comparative prosperity in commerce, industry and agriculture. Outward cargoes of sugar and other products are being gradually found for shipping, but exportations from the mines of the province have constituted the bulk of the exports.

To Sell Cable Line.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 6.—A Washington special to The Herald says that the government contemplates offering for sale the cable between Woods Hole, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. This line has been maintained by the government for 12 years. Since the erection of the line several commercial companies have been in the field as rivals, and are now established on a permanent basis.

Clipped Thirteen Hours.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—The fast mail from New York to San Francisco arrived last night at 5:30. From New York to Ogden the train made the trip in 13 hours less than scheduled time, but on the last 850 miles, from Ogden to San Francisco, no attempt was made to exceed the former time of 27 miles an hour.

PLAINT OF FILIPINOS.

Rupture Imminent Unless Our "Overbearing Policy" Is Modified.

Otis Issues a Proclamation to the Islanders.

Text of President's Message Relative to Administration of Affairs.

Manila, Jan. 6.—A leading representative of the Filipino junta, in the course of an interview yesterday, declared that the serious crisis in the Philippines is due to what they designate as "overt, unfair treatment of the Filipinos by the United States." They said that, despite the known fact that the whole of the Visayas group was in possession of the Filipino forces, General Otis was ordered to take possession of the entire archipelago and dispatched troops and warships to the southern Visayas. The Filipinos, according to the junta representative, are determined to prevent the landing of the Americans at Iloilo and may, as a last resort, destroy the city for strategical purposes.

The junta insist that a rupture of the friendly relations now existing between the "Filipino national government" and the American executive is imminent, and that hostilities are probable unless what they characterize as the "unreasonable, unfair and overbearing policy of the Americans" is modified. They say the Filipinos "would deeply regret such a rupture, but would accept it as inevitable."

In concluding the interview the spokesman of the junta representatives said: "The Filipinos appeal to the American people to uphold the rights of mankind and to avoid bloodshed, assuring the Americans of our desire to complete a friendly settlement through an impartial commission of inquiry.

"The Filipinos loyally supported the Americans against the common enemy, and they now look to the American nation to fulfill the promises made to Aguinaldo at Singapore before he proceeded to assist Admiral Dewey. All the Filipinos ask is the truest and best rights of mankind."

Major General Otis, military commander of the United States forces in the Philippine islands, has issued a proclamation to the Filipinos, based upon instructions received by cable from President McKinley. The proclamation, which consists of 700 words only, appeared yesterday in all the papers simultaneously.

General Otis, after reciting briefly President McKinley's instructions, expresses the opinion that it is the intention of the American government while directing affairs generally to appoint representative men, forming the controlling element, to civil positions. He also expresses himself as convinced that the United States government intends to seek the establishment in the islands of a most liberal government, in which the people will be as fully represented as the maintenance of law and order will permit, susceptible of development, on lines of increased representation and the bestowal of increased powers, into a government as free and independent as is enjoyed by the most favored provinces in the world. To this end he invites the full confidence and co-operation of the Filipinos.

Nothing is said in the proclamation regarding the disarmament of the rebels, but General Otis asserts his belief that the United States government intends, so far as is consistent, to draw upon the Filipinos military force in making the civil appointments.

Following is the text of the president's instructions:

The destruction of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Manila by the United States naval squadron commanded by Rear Admiral Dewey, followed by the reduction of the city and the surrender of the Spanish forces, practically effected the conquest of the Philippine islands and the suspension of Spanish sovereignty therein.

With the signature of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain by their respective plenipotentiaries at Paris, on the 10th inst., and as the result of victories of American arms, the future control, disposition and government of the Philippine Islands are ceded to the United States. In fulfillment of the rights of sovereignty thus acquired and the responsibe obligations of government thus assumed, the actual occupation and administration of the entire group of the Philippine Islands becomes immediately necessary, and the military government heretofore maintained by the United States in the city, harbor and bay of Manila is to be extended with all possible dispatch to the whole of the ceded territory.

In performing this duty, the military commander of the United States is enjoined to make known to the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands that in succeeding to the sovereignty of Spain, in severing the former political relations of the inhabitants and in establishing a new political power, the authority of the United States is to be exerted for the security of the persons and property of the people of the islands and for the confirmation of all their private rights and relations. It will be the duty of the commander of the forces of occupation to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we come, not as invaders or conquerors, but as friends, to protect the natives in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights.

All persons who, either by active aid or by honest submission, co-operate with the government of the United States to give effect to these beneficent purposes, will receive the reward of its support and protection. All others will be brought within the lawful rule we have assumed, with firmness if need but without severity, so far as may be possible.

Within the domain of military authority, which necessarily is and must remain supreme in the ceded territory until the legislation of the United States shall otherwise provide, the municipal laws of the territory, in respect to private rights and property and the repression of crime are to be considered as continuing in force, and to be administered by the ordinary tribunals so far as practicable. The operations of civil and municipal government are to be performed by such officers as may accept the supremacy of the United States by taking the oath of allegiance, or by officers chosen as far as may be practicable from the inhabitants of the islands.

While the control of all the public property and the revenues of the state passes with the cession, and while the use and management of all public means of transportation are necessarily reserved to the authority of the United States, private property, whether belonging to individuals or corporations, is to be respected, except for cause duly established. The taxes and duties heretofore payable by the inhabitants to the late government become payable to the authorities of the United States unless it be seen fit to substitute for them other reasonable rates or modes of contribution to the expenses of government, whether general or local. If private property be taken for military use, it shall be paid for, when possible, in cash, at a fair valuation, and when payment in cash is not practicable, receipts are to be given.

All ports and places in the Philippine Islands in the actual possession of the land and naval forces of the United States will be opened to the commerce of all friendly nations. All goods and wares, not prohibited for military reasons by due announcement of the military authority, will be admitted upon payment of such duties and other charges as shall be in force at the time of their importation.

Finally, it should be the earnest and paramount aim of the military administration to win the confidence, respect and affection of the inhabitants of the Philippines by assuring to them in every possible way that full measure of individual rights and liberties, which is the heritage of free peoples, and by proving to them that the mission of the United States is one of benevolent assimilation, substituting the mild sway of justice and right for arbitrary rule. In the fulfillment of this high mission, supporting the temperate administration of affairs for the greatest good of the governed, there must be sedulously maintained the strong arm of authority, to repress disturbances and to overcome all obstacles to the bestowal of blessings of good and stable government upon the people of the Philippine Islands under the free flag of the United States

Rios Is Meddling.

Madrid, Jan. 6.—The following official dispatch has been received from Manila: The insurgents refuse to liberate the prisoners on the demand of the Americans, claiming that this might be construed as an act of submission to the United States. With regard to liberating the monks the insurgents intend to negotiate with the Vatican directly. General Rios has now opened direct negotiations with the insurgents concerning the prisoners.

LIABILITIES NEARLY $400,000

Boston Man and His Wife Show Practically No Assets.

Boston, Jan. 6.—Charles H. Rosenfeld and Sarah A. Rosenfeld yesterday filed separate petitions in bankruptcy at the office of the clerk of the United States district court. The combined liabilities of husband and wife are $397,809.43. Mrs. Rosenfeld's liabilities are $158,000, and Mr. Rosenfeld's debts amount to $239,809.43. Rosenfeld has assets to the extent of $300. His wife has none.

C. H. Rosenfeld is a salesman for New York cloak and fur concerns. Last night he said in relation to his petition: "The liabilities named are endorsements on notes of the Denver Land and Water Storage company. The company was formed for the purpose of irrigating extensive tracts of land in Colorado, and was capitalized for $2,500,000. I held one-third of the stock. Our trouble came when Baring Bros., the big London bankers, failed. Our company went down. I was an endorser on the company's paper for about a quarter of a million, and my wife was also an endorser jointly with me. Her liability was about $158,000. The petitions are filed now simply to settle up the affairs of the company so far as we are concerned."

Run Down at Last.

Boston, Jan. 6.—Two well-dressed women, said to belong to Back Bay families, but who have given the names of Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Kelley, were arrested last night on suspicion of being implicated in fraudulently obtaining goods from a number of prominent stores in the shopping center. Of late jewellers and diamond merchants have complained to the police that two shrewd women were purchasing goods and ordering the delivery of their purchases at the hotels where they professed to be stopping. They had planned to secure possession of the parcels, and then to disappear suddenly and mysteriously without paying for the articles. It is said that articles to the value of $1000 have thus been obtained by these women.

Reduction In Insurance Rates.

Boston, Jan. 6.—The New England insurance exchange, which makes the fire insurance rates in New England and has jurisdiction over that territory for the stock fire companies, has just promulgated an order abandoning the use of the co-insurance clause, which has been so unpopular in many cities, and has adopted another form known as a percentage guaranty clause, which will make a substantial reduction in the rates on many classes of property. The insurance rates at present in force in Maine will be used as flat rates and all reductions for the percentage guaranty clause will be made from them.

Pleases Englishmen.

London, Jan. 6.—The Daily News this morning, in an editorial welcoming the expected appointment of Joseph H. Choate of New York as United States ambassador to the court of St. James, says: Englishmen will thank President McKinley for his choice. Mr. Choate will have an easy and pleasant task. He comes neither to take part in a quarrel nor to heal one, but to foster a cordial friendship into still more friendly cordiality.

Mr. Dingley's Condition.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Representative Dingley's physician says he is doing as well as can be expected. The crisis is not yet passed, but certain serious symptoms incident to the disease are relaxing in their severity which gives his family renewed hope of recovery.

Says Play Was Stolen.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—S. E. Gross, a real estate dealer, has filed a bill in the United States circuit court asking for an injunction against A. M. Palmer, manager, and Richard Mansfield, actor, restraining them from producing the play, "Cyrano de Bergerac." Mr. Gross claims that the play is stolen from a play written by him 20 years ago under the title, "Merchant Prince of Cornville." In the last act of the play written by Gross there are certain similarities to the same act in the play written by Rostand, both in language and situations. Gross' play was filed for copyright in London in 1896.

Kept Aboard Ship.

Lima, Jan. 6.—Owing to the excited condition of the populace, who have been celebrating President Pierola's birthday, shore leave for the crews of the United States squadron, now at Callao, was suspended yesterday, as a provision against possible collisions. The latest advices from La Paz, capital of Boliva, regarding the insurrection are contradictory and unreliable.

Banishment of Tolstoi.

London, Jan. 6.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News mentions a rumor from St. Petersburg that Count Leo Tolstoi will be banished for championing the cause of the dissenters, who are being persecuted into wholesale emigration from the Caucasian districts, mostly for Canada.

Doctor's Services Required.

London, Jan. 6.—The Daily Telegraph this morning publishes a dispatch from Cayenne, saying that ex-Captain Dreyfus, now on Devil's island, has had a serious attack of dysentery, and a physician has been summoned from Cayenne to attend him.

CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION

NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

☞ Trusts are forming in every direction in defiance of all the laws that have been made against them. This is largely because such laws as have been made are impotent. They are the modern repetition of the attempt of King Canute to keep the tide from rising by his word of command. It is very nearly time for lawmakers to see that the power of the trust for evil can be counteracted only by the use of its enormous power for good.—New Bedford Standard.

NEARLY 100 EX-COUNCILMEN.

The Councilmen by Years and the Term of Service of Each Member.

A summary of the gentlemen who have served as Councilmen in the eleven years of the city, affords an interesting study. The list includes 125, but had none been reelected the total would have been 253. There have been 43 yearlings, not including new members this year. Forty have served or are serving the second year. Twenty-three have served or are serving their third year. Only nine have served four years. The five-year members are Councilmen Pinkham and Sidelinger of the present Council, while ex-Councilman E. W. H. Bass has the distinction of serving the longest number of years. Councilman Bryant is now entering his sixth year. While the service of Mr. Bass was continuous, there have been two breaks of one and two years in the service of Mr. Bryant.

The Council of 1889 being the first Council was, of course, composed of 23 men without experience, but 2 served four years.

The Council of 1890 had 12 new members, and 1 served six years.

In 1891 there were 13 new members, and 1 served six years.

In 1892 there were but 6 new members, and three years was the longest term.

In 1893 there was the largest number of new members 17, but four years was the longest term of any.

In 1894 there were 9 new members, and three years was the longest term.

In 1895, once more, a bare majority, 13, were new members, and 2 of these Messrs. Sidelinger and Pinkham, are still serving in their fifth year.

In 1896, there were but 6 new members, and three years was the longest term.

In 1897, there were 9 new members, and 6 are entering their third year.

Last year there were 11 new members, and eight are entering their second year.

The Council of 1899 has as few new members as any Council, but six, the same as 1892 and 1896, and for this reason should make an excellent record, particularly as one is entering his sixth year, two their fifth and several their third.

The summary shows the Councilmen each year; the figure in the column indicating the year of service. It also shows the length of service of each gentleman elected to the City Council.

THE PEG LEG CLUB.

Members of a Queer Organization In Reading, Pa., Sent to Jail.

Mayor Weidel of Reading, Pa., the other night ordered a raid on the "Peg Leg club," and the next day sent a dozen of the members to jail for 30 and 60 days for disorderly conduct. The "peg legs" are mostly one legged beggars, their artificial limbs being the old time wooden stump and strap, familiar at railroad crossings in many towns. In this case, however, the "peg legs" were made up of street fakirs who sold lead pencils, blacking, thread and other small wares, but who in reality adopted this means to beg. Their membership numbered 27, and their clubroom was in the Bennethum building, a block from the West House, in the center of the city.

Jimmy Horn was the president. He lost his leg under a Lackawanna engine in Hoboken. For three years he has been dealing in lead pencils, two for 5. He has an invention of a "noiseless peg leg" of rubber, but never had money enough to push it. Arthur Sackley is secretary. He lost his leg in Harlem under a New York Central freight train, and for five years has been developing the shoestring and razor strop trade. Every member lost a leg in various accidents, principally on railroads. All had "peg legs." It was one of the requirements of the club to have that sort of artificial leg. Recently the members were very disorderly at their round table sittings. The owner of the building, Mr. Bennethum, was unable to make them keep still. They rented the room for a club of quiet people. It proved to be just the opposite. The police were informed, and they raided the place.

Jimmy Murphy of New York tried to get away, and Policeman Wickel, in the midst of the crowded and fashionable thoroughfare of South Fifth street, fired at Murphy and put a bullet hole clean through his right thigh. Murphy was sent to St. Joseph's hospital. One of the members said:

"We organized about six months ago. Many peddlers have no place to spend their evenings where there's no trade, so we started this club. We wanted no fly people. So we decided to have one legged men, and we christened her the 'peg leg.' One night several guests, not members, created a row. They rushed the growler too much, and we were pulled. We have as much right to have a club as any other set of men. I was in the shoestring line, but trade is dull. A dozen of us had a mess to ourselves, and enjoyed club life very well until outsiders spoiled it all. If we ever reorganize, we shall bar guests. I'm sorry for the young fellow who got shot. He was an orderly fellow and had just dropped in after the raid when he was taken into custody."—New York Sun.

DOCTOR'S CHRISTMAS TREE.

Physician In a California College Found Ghastly Relics In His Office.

Several choice spirits among the students of the California Medical college at San Francisco gave their anatomical lecturer, Dr. W. O. Wilcox, a startling, though characteristic Christmas surprise the other night by erecting a Christmas tree in his office and decorating it with skulls and bones. No one seems to know who is responsible for the introduction of the tree which met Dr. Wilcox's gaze on entering his office just before midnight.

Standing on the operating table was a tree four feet in height whose spreading branches were adorned with skulls, in which were lighted candles, portions of human bodies from dissecting rooms, bright, gleaming dissecting knives, the grinning skeleton of a child and a variety of his own instruments Fastened to the top of the tree was a partly dissected human head. Beneath this was a skull from which darted two rays of light with strange effect. There was a small hand near by—evidently that of a woman—which merely showed a network of nerves and empty blood vessels.

To each article on the tree was attached a card bearing an inscription of ghastly humor. Dr. Wilcox removed the ornaments from the tree and packed them in a box and burned the tree. The box and its contents were removed to the hospital the next morning.—Chicago Tribune.

ENGINE BUILT IN A DAY.

Actual Time Consumed Was but 21 Hours 30 Minutes.

All records for fast engine building were broken in the machine shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad company in Altoona, Pa., the other day by workmen under Foreman Amos Davis. At 1:30 o'clock the other afternoon work was commenced, and at noon the next day the engine was complete and ready to be taken into the roundhouse.

The actual time spent on the engine was 21 hours and 30 minutes. The frame was set up in 28 minutes. Photographs showing the progress of the work were taken every five hours. The engine is a large mogul, No. 276.—Special Philadelphia Press.

Struck Down by a Pursued Deer.

A very singular and probably fatal accident occurred recently on Dales hills, at Selin's Grove, Pa. Reuben Cromley, an aged lime burner, was busily engaged quarrying limestone in a deep gully, when suddenly and unexpectedly a deer leaped over an overhanging rock 100 feet above him, falling upon the old man and striking him senseless. The deer was chased by some hunters, and in its excitement it leaped over the precipice. The animal was killed outright by its fall.—Philadelphia Press.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

VELVET AND SATIN REDINGOTE COSTUME FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

The redingote, the original model of which was made in black velvet, represents a design of extreme elegance. The back is plainly fitted and all the fullness, which spreads into a graceful demi-train, is formd into a succession of inward-turning pleats under the centre back seam. The front of the garment fits perfectly until it reaches a point within one inch of the centre front seam. Here it is free from the lining, and is allowed to slightly pouch. The revers, which form two large scallops, are faced with white satin (as is also the collar) and open over that smooth vest of chiffon horizontally rippled over satin. The sleeves are of a scant coat variety, exquisitely fitted. A band of chinchilla outlines the entire garment, the border being further embellished by narrow appliqued point lace. The skirt of the redingote is lined with white satin to a depth of twelve inches. This design is one which will lend itself effectively to Kersey, broadcloth, or silken fabrics having a fine lustre. The proper cut of the gown is obtained only with the use of Harper's Bazar cut paper patterns.

To make the redingote for a person of medium size, one will require 12 yards of velvet, 22 inches wide, and 5 yards of white satin of the same width. The fur and lace may be estimated and purchased more economically if the edge of the garment be measured carefully after fitttitng. The pattern of the skirt does not accompany the redingote, but the prevailing circular design, smoothly fitted over the hips, is here employed.

IN COUNTY KERRY.

The Jolly Irishman Makes Merry on New Year's Day.

The celebration of New Year's is a most important festival everywhere in Ireland, but perhaps nowhere more so than in Kerry. There it is the day of fairs and steeplechases—lazy, knowing looking donkeys being the principal participants in the latter—and it is the day on which the itinerant fakir bases all his hopes of selling lead for silver and washed copper for "pure 18 carat gold."

At 6 o'clock on New Year's eve the saucepans and "piggins" in the little thatched cottages are reflecting their gala day polish and the holly and laurel and ivy on the window sills are doing their best to outshine the sprigs of mistletoe that brighten the old kitchen ceiling. Wax candles of all sizes and colors (having soft sods of turf for candlesticks) adorn the upper windows of the house and light the way of the traveler along the "boreen" or through the mountain intricacies. Flitches of bacon are set aside; luckless chickens ("poor crathurs") have their heads taken off; broad griddle cakes and round oven cakes are baked over the warm turf fire with surprising rapidity, and children are set at stoning raisins for the New Year's cake.

They have a pretty custom in Kerry in connection with this. If a member of the family has died or has emigrated to America or the colonies, a cake is made and stamped with the name of the absent one.

Midnight mass is celebrated in the country chapels, and a more picturesque sight can hardly be conceived than when hundreds of country men and women, clad in their brightest and gayest, make their way along the roads, some on foot, some in donkey carts and some in the jaunting cars which are the pride of every Kerry heart.

After mass the worshipers become revelers, and along the road to their homes they sing New Year's carols and beat improvised drums. As they go members of the party knock at the doors on the way, screaming: "Get up, lazy bones! You've slept since last year!" The man of the house gets up and gives the visitors a "dhrap o' the crathur" or a bowl of goat's milk and "holiday cake," and they sing his praises until they get to the next house, but woe to the inhospitable one who refuses them entrance, for the peculiarities of himself and his wife are enlarged upon, and every mean tale that tradition has gathered about the family is rehashed and given utterance to.

NEW YEAR'S IN ROME.

How the King and Queen of Italy Receive Their Guests.

At Rome the 1st of January assumes additional importance from the fact that it is the day on which King Humbert and Queen Margherita present annual gifts to their relatives and to the members of their household, and inasmuch as they are both of them very generous and seem to know by intuition just what will give most pleasure to the recipients the festival at the court of the Quirinal is characterized by an appearance of infinitely greater enjoyment and happiness than obtain either at Vienna or at Berlin. The king and queen stand on the dais under the canopy in front of their chair of state in the throneroom to receive with due formality the various parliamentary, military, judicial and administrative delegations commissioned to lay at the feet of their majesties the good wishes of the various bodies which they represent.

But as soon as this is over the king begins to stroll about the various apartments, and a good deal of freedom and abandon prevail until the supper hour is announced. The royal party then march in procession to a small supper room and with the embassadors and their wives take their places at tables adorned with that magnificent golden plate for which the house of Savoy is so famous, while the remainder of the guests rush pellmell and in a very undignified fashion to the buffets, which are literally taken by storm and quickly devastated, as far as everything in the nature of food or drink is concerned.—Philadelphia Press.

The Coming Year.

The new year can be likened unto a blankbook of 365 pages, which has been placed in our hands. What will the book contain at the end of the year? Some pages will be stained with tears. Some will be crumpled as if clutched in despair. Some will contain words of hate and anger, which will burn the page whereon they are written. Other pages will be filled with the record of "something accomplished, something done," which has "earned a night's repose." There will be the record of battles fought, and at the end of the year we can turn back and see when we have conquered, when we have lost. There will be written upon these pages in letters of gold an account of the self sacrifices, loves and faithful devotions.—Selected.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 8—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A precious invitation.—Math. xi, 25-30.—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—Math. xi, 25.

This is the most precious of all Christ's invitations, but much of the richness of it is lost because it is taken apart from its surroundings. To properly understand it we must have a picture of the entire chapter before us. Up to this point, by the record of Matthew, Christ's life has been fairly successful, but now the tide turns. The doubt of John, the unreasonableness of humanity, the unbelief of favored cities now thrust themselves upon Him, but still His heart is touched by their great need, their vain and unsatisfactory efforts to save themselves, and in spite of doubt, unreasonableness and unbelief, He invites them to come to Him for rest. Notice:

1. The Inviter. The one who gives this great invitation, containing such a precious promise, is Jesus Christ, the Son of God. "Come to Me," He says, "and I will give you rest." We want two characteristics in one who makes us a precious promise, (1) the ability to fulfill it and (2) the willingness to fulfill it. Either without the other makes the promise of no value. Christ possesses both. As the Son of God He has the power, and, being divine, He must have the willingness. Divinity could not be faithless to a promise. We can accept this invitation therefore with confident assurance, because of the character of the one who gives it, that the promise it contains will be fulfilled.

2. The Invited. They are those who "labor and are heavy laden." There are three such classes in the world. 1. Those who are physically weary and heavy laden, worn out by the toils and burdens of life. 2. Those who are mentally heavy laden; borne down mentally by the failures, disappointments and afflictions of life. 3. Those who are spiritually weary and heavy laden, who are not at peace with God; whose consciences are ill at ease, who are seeking spiritual rest, but do not find it. Christ addresses the third class here. He speaks to those who are burdened with sin and wearied with false conceptions of religion. Their religious life is unsatisfactory. It does not bring peace to their souls.

3. The Invitation. The promise contained in the invitation is "rest," not physical or mental, but spiritual rest. "Ye shall find rest unto your souls." It is soul rest that is promised, but soul rest insures to a large extent physical and mental rest. Sin is the cause of the unrest of the world. Make the soul at peace with God and physical and mental burdens largely lose their burdensomeness.

To have this promise fulfilled in us we must take Christ as our religious Leader and Guide. We must follow Him and obey Him. We must take His yoke upon us, but it is easy (wholesome), and His burden is light because it is a labor of love. If weary and heavy laden, let us accept this great and precious invitation.

Willful Blindness.

As we look through a telescope and obtain a glimpse of the wonders it reveals or as we study the results which have been attained by experts in its use the mind is naturally impressed with the grandeur and power of the Creator of the heavenly bodies. When we learn something of their movements through space, movements so absolutely accurate that their phases and positions can be foretold with perfect certainty long centuries in advance, defying competition by the most perfect instruments of human devising, it is impossible with any show of reason to deny the controlling presence of an infinite mind.—Episcopal Recorder.

After Long Years.

After long years work is visible. In agriculture you cannot see the growth. Pass that country two months after and there is a difference. We acquire firmness and experience incessantly. Every action, every word, every meal, is part of our trial and our discipline. We are assuredly ripening or else blighting. We are not conscious of those changes which go on quietly and gradually in the soul. We only count the shocks in our journey. Ambitions die, grace grows, as life goes on.—Frederick W. Robertson.

Up to the Light.

Hold your dull life up to the light and see how it will be transfigured. Life is not meant to be a path of ease, but steep and rugged, and it is only through self denial, discouragement, discipline and trial that you may attain the higher life. Believe me, you can no more develop the spiritual powers without use and exercise than you can the physical.—"Light on the Hidden Way."

No Other Refuge.

You will never find rest except in God. There is no refuge but in Him. Oh, what rest and composure there are in Him! It is more than sleep, more than calm, more than quiet; deeper than the dead stillness of the noiseless sea in its utmost depths, where it is undisturbed by the slightest ripple.—Episcopal Recorder.

My Portion.

To count no cost in time or will,
To simply try my place to fill,
To do because the act is right,
To live as living in His sight,
To try each day His will to know,
To tread the way His will may show,
To regulate each plan I make,
Each hope I build or hope I break,
To please the heart which pleases me
Through daily tireless ministry,
To live for Him who gave me life,
To strive for Him who suffered strife
And sacrifice through death for me—
Let this my joy, my portion be.
—George Klingle.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is not transmitted by contagion and not hereditary. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) accepts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power and a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encouraging to "consumption families." It is not heridity, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ-laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumptive patient should never expectorate when it can be dry up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air pasages. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis, thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tissues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. ENGLAND IN SYMPATHY

With the Proposal of the Czar For a Disarmament Conference.

Successful Result Will Earn the World's Praise.

Would Prevent Perfection of Instruments Productive of Carnage and Destruction.

London, Jan. 7.—The reply of Lord Salisbury to the proposal of Emperor Nicholas for a disarmament conference of the powers, which is just published, promises the cordial co-operation of the British government and asks for an indication of the heads of discussion at the conference.

In the course of the document, which was transmitted through Mr. Scott, British ambassador at St. Petersburg, Lord Salisbury assures the czar of the government's cordial sympathy. He goes on to say:

"This sympathy is not confined to the government, but is equally shared by popular opinion, which has been strikingly manifested by the numerous resolutions adopted by public meetings and societies. There are, indeed, few nations, if any, which both on ground of feeling and interest are more concerned in the maintenance of general peace than Great Britain. The statements which constitute the grounds of the emperor's proposal are but too well justified. It is unfortunately true that, while a desire for the maintenance of peace is generally professed, and while in fact, serious and successful efforts on more than one recent occasion have been made with that object by the great powers, there has been a constant tendency on the part of almost every nation to increase its armed force, and add to the already vast expenditure on the appliances of war.

"The perfection of the instruments thus brought into use, their extreme costliness, and the horrible carnage and destruction which would ensue from their employment on a large scale, have acted no doubt, as a serious deterrent from war, but the burdens imposed on the populations affected must, if prolonged, produce a feeling of unrest and discontent, menacing to both internal and external tranquility. Her majesty's government will gladly co-operate with the proposed efforts to provide a remedy for the evil, and, if in any degree it succeeds, they feel that the sovereign to whose suggestion it is due will have richly earned the gratitude of the world at large."

Lord Salisbury then promises that a delegation and representative will take part in the proposed conference whenever the invitation is received, and expresses the hope that the invitation may be accompanied by some indication of the special points to which the attention of the conference is to be directed as a guide in the selection of the British representative and his assistants.

Getting "Rattled."

London, Jan. 7.—All the morning papers comment upon the Madagascar blue book, issued yesterday, asking how it is possible to live in amity with a country which tramples upon treaty rights and treats a friendly country in such a manner. The Times says: It is a good thing for the world's peace that we are able to possess our souls in patience under the pin pricks of the French government, which, under the cover of grandiloquent phrases, habitually acts with cupidity and the shortsighted cunning of the peasant.

Feels His Greatness.

London, Jan. 7.—The Brussels correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, who has secured an interview with Prince Victor Napoleon, says the prince firmly declined to discuss politics or the Dreyfus affair, remarking: "When the time comes for me to speak I shall do so in the only way befitting a prince, and the chief of a great party. I shall say what is necessary and sign by words with the glorious name I am proud to bear—Napoleon."

A Living Death.

Madrid, Jan. 7.—Julison San Martin, who was in command of the Spanish garrison at Ponce, Porto Rico, when the United States troops, under General Miles, landed in the island, and who abandoned the place without resistance, has been sentenced to imprisonment for life. He will be incarcerated at Ceuta, the Spanish penal colony in Morocco, opposite Gibraltar.

Didn't Get Much.

London, Jan. 7.—A blue book has just been issued containing the correspondence between Great Britain and France on the subject of trade restrictions in Madagascar. The only concession, apparently, which has resulted from Lord Salisbury's numerous protests, is the revocation of the decree confining the coast trade to French vessels.

Leedy Seeks Investigation.

Topeka, Jan. 7.—Governor Leedy sent a message to the house yesterday in reference to the accusations made by Representative Brown in the house that Leedy was influenced by the use of money. It reads as follows: "I am reliably informed that a member of the house stated on the floor that he had letters in his possession from the executive department to parties demanding money as the consideration for official action. I think the house owes it to the state to have the evidence produced." Owing to the absence of Mr. Brown when the message came up it was allowed to go over without action.

Calmly Prepared For Death.

Richmond, Jan. 7.—Rev. Dr. Moses D. Hoge, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, died yesterday, aged 81. A few weeks ago he dictated a notice for use in the papers concerning his condition, which forecasted his death. He not only set his house in order for the grim visitor, but consulted the officers of his church as to his successor. The funeral will be participated in by the city at large, and will take place tomorrow from the Second Presbyterian church, of which he was pastor for more than half a century.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Every Indication That Spring Trade Will Be Remarkably Good.

New York, Jan. 7.—Bradstreet's says: The situation is one of quiet, sustained strength in wholesale distributive trade. Retail trade reflects the quieting of the eager demand ruling before the holidays, but the majority of the reports received since Jan. 1, in this and in the wholesale branches, refer to collections as almost uniformly good. Export trade, particularly in cereals, continues well up to maximum figures, while reports from the great industries of the country are favorable. The cruder forms of iron and steel have been in rather less demand this week at leading centers. Some heavy orders for railroad account are reported booked, and the export trade continues of liberal proportions, partly aided, no doubt, by the shading in ocean freight rates occurring during the past month.

Good trade reports and small receipts, coupled with more outside speculative interest, have made for steadiness in raw cotton prices, while in manufactured goods all the old strength is maintained in print cloths, and some other makes of cotton goods have been slightly advanced. Returns as to 1898 trade in most lines have been favorable, and the opening of spring trade is awaited with more than usual confidence, this feeling being particularly marked in the lines above enumerated and in lumber and agricultural implements.

Bank clearances for the week aggregate $1,765,900,000, nearly $40,000,000 larger than ever before reported.

The steadiness of wheat this week, participated in by other cereals, finds explanation in continued foreign buying, the strength of the statistical position, the normal time for decreases in American stocks having arrived, with supplies still smaller than at any corresponding date for 10 years past, aided by less favorable advices from Argentina, whence minimum estimates are again arriving.

The December total of bank clearings proved a fitting conclusion to a year of unprecedented expansion in many lines, in an aggregate for 77 cities of $7,335,511,222, a gain of 13.7 percent over November's hitherto unapproached total of 23.5 percent over December, 1897, of 56.5 percent over December, 1896, of 71.2 percent over the same month of 1894, and of 22.7 percent over the same period of 1892. This latter gain, too, was shown in spite of the fact that the stock clearing house at New York city is estimated to have reduced the volume of yearly clearings at that city of by $8,000,000,000.

Pryan at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Jan. 7.—The Duckworth club of Cincinnati gave its annual banquet last night, the guest of honor, W. J. Bryan, being introduced amid a storm of applause. After discussing the Chicago platform and emphasizing the 16 to 1 plank, Mr. Bryan took up the new questions that have grown out of the war. He called attention to the president's recommendation for a larger army, and insisted that the army should be divided into two branches, the army for domestic use in the United States, which he said did not need to be increased, and the army of occupation, which is temporarily necessary for use outside of the United States. He said that the army of occupation should be recruited at once in order to relieve the volunteers, but that the term of service should be short, because the nation's policy is not yet settled. Turning to the question of annexation, he insisted that the nation had not yet decided what to do with the Philippine islands. His argument was along the same lines as his previous utterances on the subject, declaring that the forcible annexation of the Philippines would violate a fixed principle of American law. Mr. Bryan's closing remarks dealt with "the trusts of the beneficiaries of expansion." The favored class, he said, would get all that came back. Congressman Lentz made a terrific arraignment of President McKinley.

Control In Six States.

Cleveland, Jan. 7.—James K. McKinstry, general manager of the Cleveland Telephone company, which has just absorbed all of the Bell telephone in Michigan, states that eventually, he believes, all of the Bell Telephone companies throughout the country will be consolidated into one great organization. The Cleveland Telephone company now controls all the Bell interests in Minnesota, Texas, Arkansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Michigan and the city of Cleveland.

Morrill's Possible Successor.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 7.—It is learned that Governor Smith has tendered the vacant United States senatorship from this state to B. F. Fifield of Montpelier. Mr. Fifield would not make answer without taking time for consideration of the matter. It is understood that Governor Smith acted without consulting the party leaders. Mr. Fifield refuses to talk about the matter. Mr. Fifield was born at Orange in 1832. He was admitted to the bar in 1858.

Portsmouth Will Be Disappointed.

Boston, Jan. 7.—The Herald says: "Old Ironsides" is to remain at Boston. This was the authorized statement made by the navy department yesterday afternoon respecting the Constitution. The historic old ship will not be sent back to her former mooring at the Portsmouth navy yard.

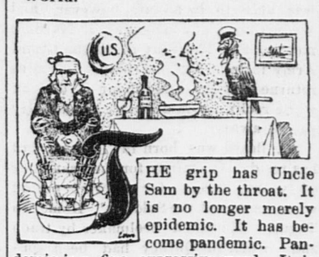
KER-KER-KERCHO-O!

Grim Old Grip Has Got Us by the Throat Again.

PANDEMIC AFTER A 9 YEARS' REST.

It Is a Disease With a History Which Goes Clear Back to the Days of Hippocrates—It Once Swept Around the World.



HE grip has Uncle Sam by the throat. It is no longer merely epidemic. It has become pandemic. Pandemic is a fine, expressive word. It is not overworked, as is epidemic, and consequently has a vigor and freshness about it. It is stronger. It sees epidemic, and goes it several better.

That is the kind of a word needed to fit the present grip conditions. The grip might be epidemic in Podunk and all the rest of the country be free from it, but when we say it is pandemic we mean that Americans from Sagadahoc to Kalamazoo are suffering from the same affliction.

Like the star of empire, grip takes its way westward. Boston got the first dose. All New England had been sneezing for a week before New York felt the effects of the contagion. Now the New Yorkers have been a-chooing for more than a fortnight. Philadelphia and Washington and Baltimore are right in the midst of it. Chicago and St. Louis are beginning to sneeze. Denver folks are laying in supplies of quinine. Will the Rocky mountains stop it? San Francisco people hope so.

We are told that this grip siege is not so severe as the original one of nine years ago. This is comforting. But who knows? The doctors have so many theories about the grip, and they are all so unlike that we have somewhat lost our confidence in the physicians. Medical Commissioner Cosby of New York says that you can have the grip but once in five or six years. After one attack he declares you are immune for a long period. There are many grip victims who would like to tell Dr. Cosby what they think of him.

There is really nothing funny about the grip. You might think there was from the pictures accompanying this article, but the artist who drew them knows better. He merely expresses the American optimism with which we accept such afflictions. We take the grip good naturedly, as we do many other ills and evils.

I saw an evidence of this the other morning. Two men met on the sidewalk. One was muffled up to the ears. He bent over as if he carried a heavy load on his shoulders. He dragged his feet and had the general air of a man who doesn't care whether school keeps or not.

THE GRIP GERM.
[As described to the artist by a recent victim.]

"Hello! Got the grip?" asked the other in hearty, cheerful tones, as if the spectacle was an inspiring one.

The muffled one sneezed three or four times, wiped his eyes and replied, "No; the grip's got me."

It was an old joke, but they both laughed as if something very humorous had been said.

But the grip is not susceptible to ridicule. In spite of bad jokes and forced cheerfulness on the part of its victims it keeps steadily at work. The results are something remarkable. Already grip clogs the wheels of industry and commerce. There are several times more workers now temporarily absent from offices, shops and factories than the number which were withdrawn to fight Spain. It is a grim fact, too, that this grip invasion means more fatalities than occurred to our soldiers during the entire war. We may grin at the grip, but a glimpse at his grewsome aid de camp, pneumonia, takes all the humor out of the situation.

Grip has already closed schools, churches and theaters. There are unused benches in the factories, vacant desks in the offices and unfilled places everywhere. You have read about the grip ravages at Vassar and other colleges. The ranks of the New York police force have been so reduced by the absence of grip patients that the question of policing the metropolis has become a serious one.

Grip is a disease with a history. According to the best authorities, the disease has been known by various names—catarrhal fever, contagious catarrhal fever, dandy fever, coquette, la grippe and others. To the English, as the disease suggested nothing, it was called an epidemic cold among them. The Germans, who always find some fancied resemblance among different diseases, and there being a disease epizootic in character affecting sheep, have conferred the names of schaffhusten and shaffkrankheit upon it.

In addition to these names, the cough which accompanies the attack, due to the disturbance of the respiratory organs, resembles the crowing of a cock, in consequence of which it is named huhnerweh (chicken disease, whooping cough) and ziep and is the same disease among chickens which is known in this country as pip. La grippe is said to be derived from the Polish word "chrypka." It is more likely, however, that its origin is from the word "agripper," to seize.

Influenza is a term which originated with the Italians, according to their belief that the disease was due to the influence of the stars or from a signification of the word indicating something transient or ephemeral. The name was considered fashionable among them. Hippocrates is said to have referred to it, but gives no exact description of the disease in his writings. Diodorus Siculus recorded an outbreak in the Athenian army in Sicily during the year 415 B. C. which is supposed from its description to be influenza.

There are records of a similar disease, supposed to be the same old grip, which show that it has appeared at intervals in various parts of the world for centuries. In 1830 there occurred a remarkable series of epidemics which fairly swept around the world.

It began in China. In September it reached the Indian archipelago. From there it swept into Russia and invaded Moscow in November. It raged in St. Petersburg in January, 1831. By March it had reached Warsaw. Eastern Prussia and Silesia succumbed in April. The inhabitants of Denmark suffered during May, together with Finland and a great part of Germany. The same month announced its arrival in Paris, and by June it had invaded England and Sweden, and in July held possession of middle Europe.

With the approach of the early winter months it swept southward into Italy and westward across the Atlantic to North America, until in the month of February, 1832, it was raging in certain parts of the United States. In the east it continued, spreading to Java, farther India and the Indian archipelago, and was found existing in Hindustan after it had ceased in Europe. In 1833 it revisited Russia, and from thence overran all Europe, which it succeeded in doing by November of the same year.

But it was in 1889 that the United States suffered most from grip. That year it came from Russia. It spread through Germany, France and western Europe and appeared in London in December. About Christmas it invaded the United States, and rapidly became pandemic. It reached its maximum in January, 1890. Its reappearance as an epidemic was in April and May, 1891, though it was not so extensive. During the winter of 1892-3 only a few sporadic cases occurred. In 1895 the grip again assumed epidemic form and appeared at the beginning of last year.

Medical experts have been studying the grip for nine years and pretend to know a lot about it. Most of them agree that it is contagious as well as infectious. That means that each grip sufferer is a distributing medium for the disease germs. The experts also show us pictures of these germs or bacilli or microbes. They even raise them. But with all their wisdom they have not yet given us an infallible cure or a preventive, which is more to be desired than whole tomes of technical knowledge.

CYRUS SYLVESTER.

The bud is more easily blighted than the full-blown rose. A young girl is more susceptible to weakness and disease that will wreck her in a womanly way than she is after she has attained to healthy womanhood. Thousands of women have their lives wrecked by troubles of this delicate description because of their own ignorance and the prudery of their mothers.

Whenever the wandering demon of ill-health finds a ship adrift upon the sea of ignorance, he steps on board, takes the helm, and steers straight for the maelstrom of death. The young woman who has not been taught the necessity of taking care of her health in a womanly way is a ship adrift upon the sea of ignorance. Diseases that will wreck her future happiness will soon assume command. Young women who suffer from weakness and disease peculiar to their sex live under a terrible nervous tension, and if they escape death are always threatened with insanity. The whole nervous system is affected by the constant drag and drain upon the delicate and feminine organs. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the one perfect and unfailing specific for every derangement and disorder of this description. It fits a woman for wifehood and motherhood It is the best of all known nerve tonics. It is the discovery of one of the most eminent and skillful specialists in disease of women.

"I was troubled three years with female weakness," writes Miss Ellen Otey, of Bedford City, Bedford Co., Va. "I had two physicians, but neither did me any good. I was troubled with pains in my left side all the time. When it was time for my monthly periods I thought I would die with pains in my back and stomach. I also had chills. I could not get up without fainting. Finally I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and two of his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I do not have any pains at all and am in better health now than I ever was in my life."

How to preserve health and beauty are told in Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover mailing only; cloth binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A summary of the vote of Massachusetts cities on the License question is published by the Boston Journal. It finds that there were in the State 17,693 who went to the polls who did not vote on the question and 92,974 out of 311,178 who either did not go to the polls or did not vote. The percentage of the "don't cares" was 24 plus. It gives the following figures for Quincy: 4,196 registered voters, 3,528 voted for Mayor, 668 stay at homes, 1,191 Yes voters, 2,124 No voters, 933 No majority, 3,315 voted no license, 213 "dodgers," 882 "don't cares," 21 per cent, of "don't cares."

It seems that Brockton had a smaller per cent. of don't cares than any Massachusetts city, and that these cities had less than Quincy, Waltham, Salem, Pittsfield, Newburyport, Malden, Lowell, Lawrence, Holyoke, Fitchburg, Chicopee, and Chelsea. In Boston, Somerville and Springfield the percentage of "don't cares" was over 40.

The summary shows that Quincy has more registered voters than the cities of Medford, Woburn, Beverly, Chicopee, Everett, Marlboro, Newburyport, North Adams, and Northampton.

Second, that it cast a larger vote for mayor than the above cities, and also more than did Newton.

Third, that only six of the cities gave a larger No license majority, viz: Brockton, Cambridge, Malden, Newton and Somerville, which are larger cities, and Everett, a smaller city.

Mayor Keith is living up to his inaugural address as far as street crossings are concerned. One of the first things done in City Square each morning is to clear the crossings and they are kept fairly clear during the day.

The number of arrests in Lynn last year was 4,222. Over two-thirds were for drunkenness, and 20 were for delirium trements. It is almost unnecessary to say that Lynn was a license city.

The calendars recently issued with railroad time, fire alarm, etc., would be of little value if they were reliable. The author probably has an idea how many trains Quincy should have to and from Boston but until we get that number it is useless to publish them. Timetables which change every few weeks are out of place upon a yearly calendar, and for this reason advertisements accompanying them are of little value. This is one way to squander money in advertising.

Public Spirited.

There is no ordinance in Quincy at present that compels people to clear the snow from sidewalks in front of their premises, but when it is done it is always noticeable. This has been especially so on Hancock street this winter where the new concrete sidewalk has been built. On the west side none of the abutters have as yet cleared the sidewalk, other than what the snow plow has done. On the east side the concrete walk extends from the Street Railway building to Butler road, it has been noticed and commented upon, that soon after a storm the entire walk in front of the residences of John O. Hall, Wilson Tisdale, Dr. N. S. Hunting, Charles Crane and Osborne Rogers have been cleared soon after the storm has abated, while the others receive simply the path made by the snowplow. If anything the walks in front of the Woodward Institute and High school are in a worse condition than in front of residences.

GEO. A. BEARD DEAD.

A Well Known Mason and Grand Army Man.

Mr. George A. Beard a widely known citizen of Quincy died yesterday afternoon of neuralgia of the heart, after a brief illness, aged 74 years. Mr. Beard first complained of pains upon returning from work last Tuesday. They passed away, however, although he had some pains the following day. He was able to be about, however, and Wednesday night attended a Masonic meeting and Thursday night the Grand Army installation. Friday the pains returned again and about 4 o'clock while reclining on a lounge he suddenly passed away.

Mr. Beard was born in Danvers but has resided in Quincy for the past 35 or 40 years, except for a brief period when he was at the Soldiers' Home in Togus. He was a heelmaker by trade and when in Quincy had been employed at Whicher's.

During the rebellion he served in the 2d Sharpshooters of the 2d Massachusetts Volunteers.

He was a 32d degree Mason and was also a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. Mr. Beard was never married.

Comrades of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., are requested to assemble at headquarters at 2 P. M. Sunday to attend the funeral.

Tax Summons.

As the matter of summons on property taxes seems to be generally misunderstood, I take the liberty through the press to offer to our citizens a copy of Section 2 of our City Ordinance relating to the collection of taxes, which the tax collector is bound by oath and a bond of thirty thousand dollars to carry out.

SEC. 2. If any taxes are not paid before the first day of January, the collector shall forthwith issue a summons demanding the payment thereof, which summons shall be forthwith served upon each delinquent by the Collector or any constable or police officer, either personally or by leaving the same at his last and usual place of abode, and twenty cents shall be added to said tax after said summons has been issued for the same.

SEC. 3. The Collector shall give a bond with sufficient sureties to be approved by the Mayor, in the sum of thirty thousand dollars for the faithful performance of the duties of his office and accountability for all money which may come into his hands as Collector of Taxes by virtue of his office.

[Sec. 1, Chap. 331, Public Statute.]

"When a tax is due from any person the collector of taxes may, before making a demand for payment thereof as required by law, mail postpaid a summons to such person, stating therein the amount due and that unless the same be paid within ten days, with twenty cents for the summon, the collector will proceed to collect the same according to law."

If any of our taxpayers who are disposed to complain at receiving a summons can inform the tax collector how he can comply with the requirements of his oath and bond and not issue summons on all unpaid property taxes Jan. 1, they will confer a favor by so doing.

Your tax collector has no apology to make for doing his duty.

A. Lincoln Baker, Collector.
Quincy, Jan. 7, 1899.

Co. K Anxious.

A dispatch of Friday to the Globe is of importance to Co. K and its friends. It says: Schools of instruction have been going on in every messhouse today, the terrible rainstorm making outside drills impossible. Many of the tents have soaked through, wetting the interiors in bad shape.

An order has been received from Gen. Young stating that no leaves of absence or furloughs would be granted to men of the 5th Massachusetts except in extreme cases of emergency.

An early order to move is expected, and the paymaster began to pay some of the troops here today.

Col. Whitney has issued an order that hereafter all enlisted men must take part in the evening dress parade. All fatigue parties will cease work at 4, so they may take part in parade.

On account of the storm Massachusetts day has been postponed until next Wednesday.

Capts. Hanson and Clark have been appointed members of post exchange council, vice Capts. Sykes and Facey, relieved.

Privates Stewart, Co. H, and Sevens, Co. K, have been appointed carpenters in the quartermaster's department. McAllister, Co. L, has been appointed the prison guard. The 4th Missouri will be mustered out here. Lieut. Col. Burnham has gone to Washington to make an effort to have the mustering out order rescinded, but it is believed that he will not succeed. Several of the Missouri men would like to be transferred to the 5th Masachusetts.

☞ The friends of Col. Henry A. Thomas, postmaster of Boston, and the patrons of his office are pleased to learn that he has no intention of resigning to engage in a private business enterprise. Col. Thomas is well pleased with his present position. He is conscious of his good work and the high esteem in which he is held by the business men of Boston, and they are unanimous that he should continue to administer the affairs of the postoffice. —Hyde Park Gazette.

THE FAXON LAW.

Supreme Court Sustain Its Constitutionality.

The Brockton Enterprise says: "Commonwealth vs. Certain Intoxicating Liquors" was the odd title of a case decided Thursday by the full bench of the Supreme court in Boston. T. H. McCarthy of Brockton was the claimant. It was a proceeding under chapter 271 acts of 1897, and acts in amendment thereof, for the seizure and forfeiture of certain bottles and intoxicating liquors which it was alleged were not properly marked as required by the statute. At the hearing before the justice of the Police court in Brockton, held May 28, 1898, the liquor was adjudged forfeited. To this judgment the claimant appealed and his case was carried to the Superior court.

Evidence introduced at the hearing showed that a barrel, containing ten dozen bottles of ale, was delivered to the New York and Boston Dispatch Express Company to be taken to Brockton. The barrel was marked, "T. H. McCarthy, Brockton, Mass." The street address did not appear nor did the name and address of the seller, neither was the kind and amount of liquor contained therein specified. Licenses had not been granted in Brockton at the time of the seizure of the barrel of liquor. McCarthy testified that he did not intend to sell the ale, but had purchased it for private use. The jury in charge of the case found that the barrel was marked contrary to the provisions of the statute, and accordingly declared the liquor forfeited, as did the justice in the Police court.

The claimant took exceptions and the full court in its opinion handed down yesterday overruled them.

This was a test case carried through for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the much discussed Faxon law which makes it compulsory that every package of liquor shall have upon the outside the name and full address with street and number of the receiver and also of the sender.

It arose over a barrel containing 10 dozen bottles of ale sent to Dr. Thomas H. McCarthy last spring. It was at the time when the Faxon law was being strongly enforced. The barrel was addressed to "Thomas H. McCarthy, Brockton, Mass." As the street and number and the address of the sender did not appear on the outside it was seized by the police.

Judge Reed in the local Police court declared the liquor forfeited, as the provisions of the Faxon law had not been complied with. Dr. T. H. McCarthy, represented by R. W. Nutter Esq., appeared as claimant for the liquors.

Upon this finding the matter was appealed to the October term of the Superior court, where Mr. Nutter asked for certain rulings from the court. He asked in behalf of the claimant that the law be declared unconstitutional and the jury instructed to bring in a verdict for the claimant. This the court refused to do and the decision in the lower court was upheld.

The matter was then carried to the Supreme court upon exceptions. The full bench of this court has now upheld the other decisions and the constitutionality of the law, and the matter is settled. The whole question upon which the claim was carried up was the constitutionality of the law. It was carried through the regular channels and the only ones by which it could be tested. By this decision of the full bench of the Supreme court the constitutionality of the law is established and it will stand. There is no further appeal.

☞ Fortunes not infrequently are subject to shrinkage when they reach the hands of the administrator. Here is the estate of ex-Senator Brice, who was rated to be worth $10,000,000, shrink to the dimensions of little more than half a million. It is nothing unusual, and it is only brought to notice because of the prominence of the man, and the great enterprises with which he was connected during the active period of his career. To millions of people Mr. Brice would seem rich with $600,000 to his credit, but in the class where he was supposed to stand he will be considered as having died poor. —Lynn Item.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of John Brown, for drunkenness at Quincy, was called and he paid a fine of $7.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

Readville Trotting Park.

The Readville Trotting Park the coming season will have special attractions for the New England Horse Breeders' Association and racing men generally throughout the country. The reputation of the Park will be enhanced by the very liberal purses offered, and already owners of fast horses are getting on to the ground for the stakes.

The list of the closing events is as follows: A $10,000 purse for 2.13 trotters, one of $500 for 2.30 trotters, another of $5000 for 2.10 pacers, one of $3000 for 2.10 trotters, a second $3000 for 2.14 pacers and a third one of $3000 for 2.25 pacers. Never in the history of harness racing has such a speed card been issued. Is it any wonder then that owners and drivers have voted unanimously the Readville management all right? As $3000 is about the limit for the pacers, Readville will catch about every sidewheeler in the country that is even fair in the 2.10 class.

Outside of these six early closing events there will be eight or more class races with purses probably worth $2000 each. The 3-year old division of the New England Futurity will also be decided at the grand circuit meeting. The stake is worth $10,000, making it rank with the richest on the turf. There is a possibility also that the Horse Review's $20,000 Futurity may be on the card. If this event could be secured Readville could announce a card that for big money never has been equaled for one week's meeting at any harness track in America. It would establish a record that would stand for years. Besides the grand circuit the directors decided to hold two other meetings, one early in the summer and the other in September.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Castle Square Theatre.

For the coming week's attractions at the Castle Square theatre William Gillette's laughable comedy "Too Much Johnson" is announced and a laughing week can be safely predicted at this play house. This comedy has proved immensely successful throughout the country, but has only been previously in this city at the Boston Museum. It is an adaptation of "The Plantation Tomassin," which made a great hit in Paris where David Belasco saw it and brought it to America, Gillette acquiring it subsequently for adaptation. It presents a constant succession of the most laughable complications for its chief character, a Mr. Billings, who, by avoiding a slavish imitation of George Washington, succeeds in temporarily escaping domestic and other complications, and makes his presence much desired as the curtain falls. The cast arranged being as follows: Mr. Augustus Billings, J. H. Gilmour; Mrs. Augustus Billings, Miss Lillian Lawrence; Mrs. S. Upton Batterson, Miss Lizzie Morgan; Mr. Francis Faddish, Giles Shine; Leonora Faddish, Miss Mary Sanders; Henry McIntosh, Tony Cummings; Joseph Johnson, William Humphrey; Mons. Leon Dathis, Charles Mackay. On Monday Jan. 16th, the Castle Square company will appear in the melodrama "Darkest Russia."

Keith's Theatre.

Alice Atherton, the most popular of all singing comediennes, whose laughing song has made her famous on two continents, will be one of the star attractions at Keith's Boston playhouse for the week of Jan. 9. It is worth going miles to hear this clever woman and worth much more than the price of admission to Keith's. No bicycle experts who have ever given exhibitions in Boston hitherto have created half the talk as Paulton and Dooley, the Englishmen, who have been winning the admiration of thousands during the past week, and between them, sending them into spasms of laughter. They do all the familiar tricks more skillfully than any of their predecessors, and accomplish some feats never before seen on the stage. This will be their last week. In the biograph there will be the usual changes of motion pictures, and Prof. Gies is to show some more beautiful colored Japanese views, which have been pronounced the most attractive ever shown in this country. The week of Jan. 16, Servais LeRoy, the celebrated magician, and a dramatization of Dickins' "Holly Tree Inn" are the principal features.

MIDDLE AGE WARFARE

Carried on by Spain Previous to Her Loss of the Philippines.

Natives Wantonly Slaughtered In a Body.

Interesting Items Concerning the State of Affairs Preceding Dewey's Arrival.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The following extracts from the correspondence in connection with the peace treaty throws much light upon the situation in the Philippines prior to the declaration of war. The opening letters are from Mr. Williams, consul at Manila:

Feb. 22 last Mr. Williams wrote: "The governor general, who is amiable and popular, having resigned, wished credit for pacification, and certain rebel leaders were given cash bribes to consent to public deportation to China. This bribe and deportation only multiplied claimants and fanned the fires of discontent."

On March 19 Consul Williams complained that letters and telegrams were tampered with, and he then found it necessary to keep open house constantly for the benefit of American citizens there. He also related many atrocities on the part of the Spaniards. One of these occurred on March 25, when a meeting of natives was broken in upon by force, many being wantonly shot to death and 62 taken prisoners. The next day the 62 prisoners were marched to the cemetery and shot down in a body. Many of these, Mr. Williams added, were not participants in the meeting. He also added that such horrors, though on a smaller scale, were of almost daily occurrence. He also reported that several hundred native prisoners were disposed of by being placed in low dungeons in the city walls, where they were drowned by the rise of the tide, adding: "Cruelties too horrid for an official reort are detailed to me every day, and it seems that the cry of outraged humanity would soon compel Spain to abolish middle age warfare."

He spoke of the influence of the church as the greatest bar to progress in the islands. Mr. Williams also stated that every leisure hour was devoted to the inspection of the forts, arsenals and battleships in and about Manila, even at that early day, and that he was sending information thus derived to Commodore Dewey, who, with his fleet, was then at Hong Kong. Spies were so thick that he did not dare copy his dispatches in office books.

Mr. Williams left Manila on April 23. He was a witness of Dewey's victory, and on May 12 resumed his reports from Cavite. His first dispatch of that date began with assurance of "the friendliness of the Philippine natives to our country and to me as its representative. Scores of times," he continues, "I have heard hopes expressed that either the United States or Great Britain would acquire these islands."

"Aguinaldo told me today," he wrote on June 16, "that his friends all hoped that the Philippines would be held as a colony of the United States." This was only four days after the first formation of a provisional government by the natives. Mr. Williams said he was invited to be present when this government was organized by the Filipinos, but that he declined. For this he afterwards received a note of approval from the state department.

Aug. 4 he wrote: "It has been my study to keep on pleasant terms with Aguinaldo for ultimate objects. Admiral Dewey says I have planted the seeds of cordial co-operation."

On Sept. 5 Mr. Williams cabled: "Today delegations from 4000 Visayan soldiers, also representing southern business interests, came to me pledging loyalty to annexation. Several insurgent leaders likewise. Spain cannot control. If we evacuate anarchy rules."

On July 18 Mr. Wildman, consul at Hong Kong, wrote to the secretary of state expressing his views on the then reported policy of the United States government to allow the Philippine islands to return to Spain. Among other things, he said: "I consider the 40 or 50 Philippine leaders with whose fortunes I have been very closely connected, both the superiors of the Malays and the Cubans. Aguinaldo, Agoncillo and Sandico, are all men who would be leaders in their separate departments in any country, while among the wealthy Manila men who live in Hong Kong, and who are spending their money liberally for the overthrow of the Spaniards and annexation to the United States, men like the Cortez family and the Paza family, would hold their own among bankers and lawyers anywhere. In spite of statements to the contrary I know they are fighting for annexation to the United States first, and for independence secondly."

Mr. Wildman also wrote that on the breaking out of the war he received a delegation from the insurgent junta, and they bound themselves to obey all laws of civilized warfare and to place themselves absolutely under the orders of Admiral Dewey if they were permitted to return to Manila.

He stated that on April 27, after another conference, he agreed, on behalf of Dewey, to allow two of the insurgent delegation to accompany the fleet to Manila, he going with them. It was only later that he prevailed on Admiral Dewey to allow Aguinaldo to go. Referring to Aguinaldo's organization of a government he said it was an absolutely necessary step to maintain control over the natives.

In conclusion, Mr. Wildman said: "I wish to put myself on record as stating that the insurgent government of the Philippine islands cannot be dealt with as though they were North American Indians, willing to be removed from one reservation to another at the whim of their masters. If the United States decides not to retain the Philippine islands, its 10,000,000 people will demand independence, and the attempt of any foreign nation to obtain territory or coaling stations will be resisted with the same spirit with which they fought the Spaniards."

The correspondence shows that Mr. Wildman was warned not to make pledges or discuss policy with Aguinaldo, and he replied that he made him no pledges and exacted from him but two, viz.: To obey unquestionably the commander of the United States forces in the Philippine islands and to conduct his warfare on civilized lines.

"Aguinaldo," wrote Mr. Wildman, "has written me by every opportunity, and I believe he has been frank with me both regarding his actions and his motives. I am perfectly certain that the great majority of his followers and all the wealthy and educated Filipinos have but one desire—to become citizens of the United States. As for the mass of the natives, they would be content under any rule save that of the friars."

Consul General Pratt, stationed at Singapore, in a letter to the department, detailed his last interview with Aguinaldo, saying that he enjoined upon the Philippine leader the necessity under Commodore Dewey's directions of assuming absolute control over his forces in the Philippines, since no excesses on their part would be tolerated by the United States, the president having declared that hostilities with Spain were to be carried on in strict conformity with the principles of civilized warfare. Mr. Pratt stated that to this injunction Aguinaldo gave his full assent. Mr. Pratt also stated that Aguinaldo expressed the hope that "the United States would assume protection over the Philippines for at least long enough to allow the inhabitants to establish a government of their own, in the organization of which he would desire American advice and assistance."

Writing on June 16 to Mr. Pratt, Secretary Day said: "This government has known the Philippine insurgents only as discontented subjects of Spain and is not acquainted with their purposes. The United States, in entering upon the occupation of the islands, as a result of its military operations in that quarter, will do so in the exercise of the rights which from the inhabitants, without regard to their former attitude toward the Spanish government, that obedience which will be lawfully due from them."

In reply Mr. Pratt repeated his assurance that he has used due precaution in dealing with the Philippine leaders.

Included in General Merritt's testimony was a statement from Admiral Dewey, in which he spoke of the natives of Luzon as gentle and docile, and said of them that "under just laws and with the benefits of popular education they would make good citizens."

An Upper Ten Function.

New York, Jan. 7.—For the first time in nearly three years, the Cornelius Vanderbilt mansion was brilliantly illuminated last night, and a throng of more than 500 of the richest and best known persons in society streamed through the great vestibule and into the rooms beyond. The occasion was the ball given by Mrs. Vanderbilt in honor of her son, Alfred Tynne Vanderbilt. The house was magnificiently decorated. At midnight supper was served in the dining hall and breakfast room. A cotillion was danced after midnight. Favors for this were extremely handsome, and most of them were brought from Paris for the occasion. The costumes were among the richest that have ever been seen at a social function in New York, while the display of jewels was unprecedented.

Corruption Charged.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 7.—In the senate yesterday Senator Major introduced a resolution, which was adopted by acclamation, providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate every department of the municipal and state government officers in St. Louis. The resolution recites that numerous reports have been in circulation charging corruption and dishonesty in the administration of these offices.

A Ripe Old Age.

Everett, Mass., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Lydia Gali yesterday observed her 101st birthday at her daughter's home, West Everett. Mrs. Gali, with the exception of her sight, is in full possession of her faculties. She was born in Charlestown. For years she made all the carpets used in the state house. At present representatives of five generations are living under the same roof with her.

Newfoundlanders Hopeful.

St. John's, Jan. 7.—General satisfaction is expressed by the colonial press at French utterances indicating a willingness to settle the French shore question for monetary compensation. The colonial newspapers anticipate that an adjustment of the difficulty will be accomplished within a year.

Want Work In Boston.

Boston, Jan. 7.—The officials of the Central Labor union of this city have been called upon to furnish situations for many of the Marlboro strikers. The applicants are nearly all girls from the stitching rooms, who will not return to the striking shops under the "free shop" plan.

In a Green Goods Scrape.

New York, Jan. 7.—The Hudson county grand jury handed up a batch of indictments in Jersey City yesterday. Among them was one against John B. Bertholf, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company's office in Jersey City, for "aiding and abetting in a green goods swindle."

Californians Say "Yes."

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 7.—The senate yesterday adopted a resolution, instructing the California delegation in congress to support in every manner the ratification of the Paris treaty.

BARNET AND CORNISH

Believed to Have Received Their Poison From One Source.

Alleged Discoveries by a New York Newspaper.

Former Female Friend of Barnet Now Figures In the Mysterious Case.

New York, Jan. 7.—The World today says: These new points were developed yesterday in the Adams poisoning mystery: Professor Witthaus found that Kutnow's powder was mixed with the cyanide of mercury in the false bromo seltzer bottle sent to Harry Cornish—the mixture which killed Mrs. Adams.

This is considered most important as making absolutely certain that the sender of the poison to Cornish was one and the same with the sender of cyanide of mercury to Henry Barnet in a Kutnow's powder box.

The startling statement was made to The World on the authority of the trained nurse who attended Barnet that still another attempt had been made on his life, showing that the poisoner was determined in his murderous purpose, and persisted until, on the second attempt, he was successful.

Another development was the almost complete collapse of Mrs. Molineux, wife of Roland B. Molineux, who, as Miss Blanche Chesbrough, was a warm friend of Henry Barnet before she married Molineux. Mrs. Molineux's condition was described as pitiable by her sisters.

Mrs. Molineux received knowledge during the day that the police had found a letter signed "with love, Blanche," written by Mrs. Molineux to Mr. Barnet, and that this letter had been submitted to a handwriting expert for comparison with the writing on the package containing the holder and false bromo seltzer bottle sent to Cornish. She became aware, also, that searching investigations were being made into her past, her acquaintance with Barnet and her marriage to Molineux. But these facts her sisters implied were not sufficient to account for her very serious condition. Captain McClusky asserted positively that the letter in Mrs. Molineux's handwriting was an ordinary one and contained nothing suspicious.

Young Molineux was taken yesterday to Fischer, the wig maker in Newark, who sold a red wig to a stranger shortly before Christmas. Fischer declared flatly that Molineux was not his customer.

The World brought to New York last evening the other Newark wig maker, Zimmerman, who had told of a mysterious visitor who examined false beards, but decided not to buy. Molineux confronted Zimmerman, and the man also failed to identify him.

Long Journey Ended.

Boston, Jan. 7.—Ship R. B. Thomas arrived at this port yesterday after a long time in passage. The Thomas loaded a cargo of 8940 bales of hemp at Manila and left that port on April 22. She sailed from there hurriedly, and it was expected that Admiral Dewey's fleet was near at hand and that a battle was imminent. For this reason the ship sailed without waiting to procure provisions for the voyage, and was obliged to put into Hong Kong to take on stores. Oct. 14 she was in the South Atlantic with her supply of provisions rapidly diminishing, and it was decided to bear up at Montevideo. About this time Captain E. D. Blanchard was stricken with paralysis, and he died on Oct. 29. With the death of the captain the duties of master devolved on First Mate Graham.

Union Men Met Them.

Pana, Ills., Jan. 7.—Eighteen Italians have arrived here from Chicago. It is stated 10 of the leading coal operators have procured the services of a labor agency to hire Italians to work in the Pana mines. The operators are apparently becoming dissatisfied with the negroes brought here from Alabama. The Italians were met by a committee of union miners, and escorted to the union headquarters. The Italians seemed to be greatly surprised on learning of the strike, and refused to work with the negroes. The Miners' union and citizens are making up a purse, and will return the Italians to Chicago.

Strikers In Court.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 7.—Oliver Woods, William S. Woods and Alexander Willard were arraigned in court yesterday, charged with making an assault with a dangerous weapon upon John Doucette. The doctor who attended Doucette gave a detailed account of his injuries. There were severe wounds upon the back of the head, which, witness said, were caused by some blunt instrument. Doucette is quite comfartable, but such injuries as his are liable to be followed by serious results. The case was continued until Monday, the defendants being held in $300 bonds each for their appearance at that time.

Owes Over $2,000,000.

New York, Jan. 7.—Albert B. Hilton, who formerly carried on the large dry goods business at Ninth and Tenth streets and Broadway, and is now a real estate broker, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday. Liabilities, $2,539,907, all unsecured. He has no assets. Mr. Hilton assigned in August, 1896. The assignee has paid off a portion of the liabilities, but the estate was not sufficient to pay all the liabilities.

Gobbled by the Trust.

Cleveland, Jan. 7. — The Cleveland rolling mills' great plant in this city has passed into the control of the big wire trust, the American Steel and Wire company. It is stated the Cleveland rolling mill people refused to enter the trust, and their plant was bought outright. The plant is valued at $5,000,000, and employs from 4000 to 5000 men.

Killed Herself and Child.

New York, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Annie Weidener and her 4-year-old child were found dead last night in bed in their flat on East Eighty-eighth street. The room was filled with gas, flowing from an open jet. A letter written by the woman says she was tired of life, and had decided to kill herself and baby.

IN CONGRESS.

Peace Treaty In Senate—Civil Service Gets a Setback I House.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Immediately after the senate convened yesterday the resolution offered Thursday by Mr. Hoar, calling on the president for information as to the instructions of the commissioners who negotiated the treaty of Paris, together with all correspondence and reports relating to their work, was laid before the senate. Chairman Davis, one of the commissioners, desired that it be referred to the foreign relations committee, but Mr. Hoar insisted that the senate had as much right to such information as the members of the foreign relations committee, and that the president should determine whether the senate should have it. The resolution was adopted in secret session.

In support of the resolution offered some time ago by Mr. Vest, in opposition to expansion, Mr. Caffery delivered an extended speech. At the conclusion of Mr. Caffery's argument, Mr. Morgan announced, on behalf of the Nicaraguan canal committee, the acceptance in a modified form of the amendments offered by Mr. Berry before the holidays to the pending canal bill. The amendments were not passed upon by the senate.

The anti-civil service reformers scored a victory in the house yesterday. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up for consideration, and when the appropriation for the civil service commission was reached, Mr. Evans (Rep. Ky.) made a motion to strike it out. This motion has been made annually for a dozen years or more, but has invariably failed. But this time the opponents of the law laid great stress on the fact that they could not get a direct vote upon the proposition, and were therefore compelled to seek its nullification in this manner. Even these appeals failed to bring out the full strength of the opposition, though the motion to strike out was carried by a narrow majority, 67-61. This was in committee of the whole, where no record is made of the vote. Mr. Moody (Rep. Mass.) gave notice that he would demand a record vote in the house, where the friends of the civil service law expect to reverse the decision. During the general debate on the bill, Mr. Swanson (Dem. Va.) delivered a speech on anti-imperialism.

Beef Argument.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Colonel Sharp testified before the war investigating commission yesterday that he had made the contracts with Nelson Morris & Co. for beef at Camp Thomas, and had superintended the issue and inspection of refrigerator beef in Porto Rico. He said that the quality of fresh beef issued at Camp Thomas was equal to any he had ever seen in the army.

Governor Beaver read the witness parts of Surgeon W. H. Daley's report to General Miles on the "embalmed beef" issued at Camp Thomas and asked if he had noticed the "mawkish taste" and "disgusting odor" of the beef referred to. Colonel Sharp said the report in question referred to a time after witness left Camp Thomas, and said positively that the description did not apply to any of the beef he had seen. He said he had inspected one vessel of refrigerated beef at Arroyo, Porto Rico, and that the beef was the "wonder and admiration" of all the natives and foreign residents, none of whom had ever seen such good beef. The native cattle in Porto Rico, he said, were infinitely inferior to the American refrigerator beef. The Porto Ricans slaughtered bulls, stags and heifers indiscriminately, classes excluded from our army beef by contract. They also slaughtered superannuated draught cattle, whose flanks and quarters were invariably full of small sacs and cysts. He knew of no chemically preserved meat issued to the army, and he warmly commended all the American beef given our troops in Porto Rico. Colonel Sharp thought the loss of the spoiled beef which has been in question fell to the contractor and not to the government.

Colonel Sharp said that his order of preference for beef would be refrigerated beef first, canned second and beef on the hoof third.

Crisis Reached.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The condition of Representative Nelson Dingley, who has been ill with pneumonia for almost a week, has undergone a marked change for the worse, and his physicians hold out little, if any, hope for recovery. Although the lung has improved considerably, and the cough has lessened, the effect of the pneumonia has so weakened the system as to decrease the vitality to an alarming extent. The poison from the disease has permeated the whole system, which renders it less potent to stand the terrible strain. The patient was delirious yesterday and appeared to be uttering extracts from speeches he has made on the tariff question in the house of representatives. He was conscious only when aroused. The physicians say there must be a radical change one way or another very soon.

Capitol Gleanings.

Vice President and Mrs. Hobart gave a dinner, followed by a reception, last evening, at which the guests of honor were the president and Mrs. McKinley.

Telegraphic instructions have been sent to Chicago from Secretary Alger, giving final orders for the movement of the Fourth United States infantry to Manila. The 1300 men and officers will leave Fort Sheridan on Jan. 13.

General Sumner, commanding at Omaha, has informed the war department that he has received notice that the transport Scandia will be ready to sail from San Francisco for Manila on the 15th inst., and that he has accordingly ordered the Twentiety infantry, at Omaha, to leave on the 11th inst. for San Francisco.

The investigation instituted by General Miles through the inspector general's office as to the quality of meat furnished the troops in the field is progressing. Letters have been addressed to all inspectors in the field, but the replies so far received have contained chiefly negative information.

There has been no change made in the original order issued by the war department of the regulation of the customs in Cuba. Any modification made by the Havana authorities, therefore, in favor of Santiago, was nothing more than a recurrence to a proper construction of that order.

NEW CUP CHALLENGER.

Sir Thomas Lipton Talks of His Yacht, the Shamrock.

WILL BE LARGER THAN VALKYRIE

The Yacht Will Grow Up In an Irish Shipyard After Metals and Materials Have Been Furnished by the Thorneycrofts—Will Be of Lighter Construction Than Dunraven's Boat of 1895—Very Large Sail Plan.

The Boston Herald of a recent date has the following cable from its Glasgow correspondent:

The other day I ran across Sir Thomas Lipton in Glasgow and had quite a pleasant chat with him, and it was only after being quite hard pressed that he cared to say anything about his new venture—the cup challenger—except that the Shamrock would ultimately grow up in the great shipbuilding yard of Harland & Wolff, Belfast, Ireland.

Sir Thomas Lipton came to this city on business and also for a pleasure trip and to enjoy the holidays and take a run to Fairlie for a crack with young Fife.

I asked Sir Thomas Lipton if the Shamrock would be built by the Thorneycrofts, and he gave me this reply:

"Well, hardly to the extent your question would seem to imply."

"Can you tell me, then, where the Shamrock will be built and launched?"

"You can say that the metals, fittings and other things needed in the metal line will be wrought into shape by Thorneycroft. Then all the metal will be boxed up and shipped to Harland & Wolff's yard, Belfast, Ireland, where the Irish firm will build her. So, you see, she will be built on Irish soil and launched in Irish waters."

"Are you at liberty to speak of the Shamrock in a general way?"

"I am not, and being sharp in the hunt for the America's cup it is prudent that nothing be said about her, at least at this time."

"When do you expect the Shamrock will be launched?"

"All of us are in hopes that she will be afloat by mid-March, in time for an early trial."

"Have you decided on your skipper?"

"Yes, that important question has been thrashed out well. All possible contingencies have been considered, and Mr. Fife has made the tender to Captain Archie Hogarth, and he has accepted."

"What about having two skippers?"

"Oh, yes, that matter was also considered, and Fife says that it is absolutely necessary to have two good men to take charge of the ship, one to be the helmsman and chief and the other to look after the trim of sails and all other matters which need attention in working the Shamrock into her best form for the races. You see, this America's cup racing is a great affair nowadays, and he who goes into it must be prepared in all ways. Lord Dunraven found it necessary to have two skippers. Of course you must know that the Americans have had two skippers in the last three matches for the cup."

"Have you any objection to telling the American people the name of the second man?"

"None at all. Captain Ben Parker, who is now in charge of the German emperor's yacht the Meteor, is the man. Negotiations are in progress looking to the loan of Captain Parker for the cup race. The captain has raced in American waters and once sailed the Herreshoff boat, the 20 rater Isolde, very near to a sister boat of the Niagara. Both Hogarth and Parker are comparatively young men."

"Will the Shamrock do any racing on this side before leaving for New York?"

"Yes, it is my expectation and great desire that the Shamrock will be finished and ready to take part in the Thames matches which are to take place in early April. From the Thames we intend to do the round of British regattas to the Clyde, where the Shamrock will take part in the Clyde fortnight racing. After doing the Clyde we will cross over to Ireland and race it out there for a couple of regattas off Bangor, where the club's headquarters, the Royal Ulster, under which I challenge, are located. I intend to give prizes for the races in Irish waters."

"With the Ailsa, the Meteor and the Satanita under yawl rig the coming season, you will hardly have any suitable trial horse for comparison."

"The Valkyrie III will do the matches with us, as Mr. McCalmont will fit her out. This will be a great help, and we greatly appreciate the favor."

"Have you decided when the Shamrock will leave for America?"

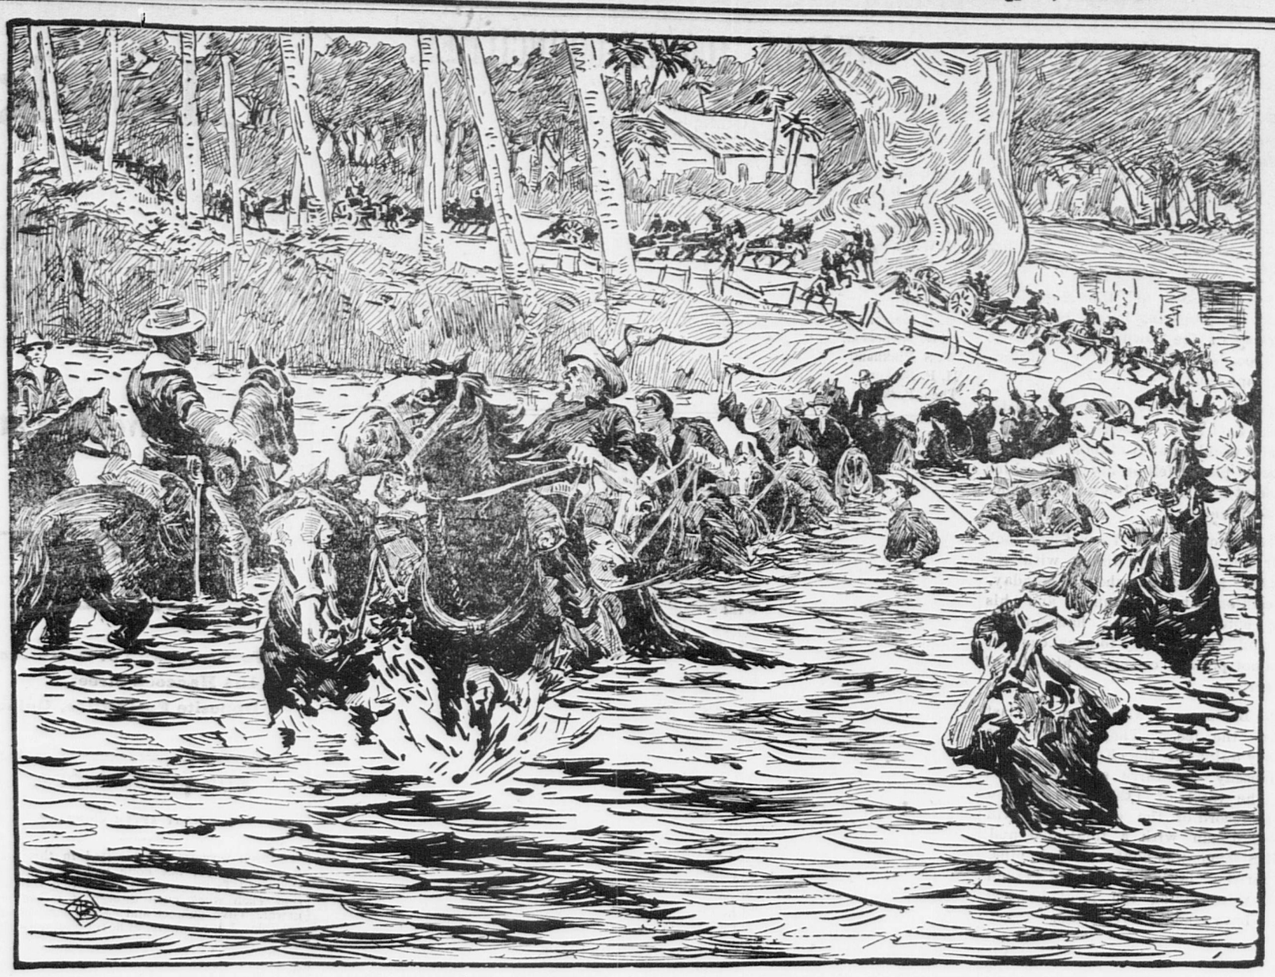
"The exact day, no, but somewhere in the latter end of July, quite soon after the Bangor regatta is over. The Shamrock will sail from Belfast and will go out by the north of Ireland under yawl rig."

The reason given for setting up the Shamrock first by the Thorneycrofts is that they are superior metal workers and have had more experience in building light, strong vessels than anybody else, though Harland & Wolff always do first class work, but have not given the same attention to light metal work that the London firm has. Watson is aiding Mr. Fife in his effort to win back the cup and is giving him the benefit of his experience. Mr. Fife expects to save several thousand pounds of weight in the spars of the Shamrock as compared either with Valkyrie III or the Defender.

Captain Hogarth will be the head skipper, and he will insist on picking the crew, which will be as Scotch as the Thistle itself. He is a Port Bannatyne man and formerly raced the yachts Yvonne, the 20 rater Isolde after Ben Parker left her, and the 85 footer Caluna. Last season Hogarth raced the big Isolde, a Fife boat of 72 feet water line.

From authentic sources I learn that the Shamrock will have wholesome beam and will be larger than Valkyrie III and of lighter construction, of less displacement and more ballast. She will have a very large sail plan, the material for which is being made under special contract. Fife never took such an interest in any of his boats—in fact, he never had the free hand to do as he liked, regardless of expense.

Fife has not said much about the Shamrock, but those who know him best say that he goes into the America's cup matches with great confidence in himself and feels that he has designed the Shamrock strong in all around sailing. Young Fife, who has raced with Charlie Barr and Archie Hogarth, thinks that Archie is the better man of the two, and that he is Barr's master at a start. Young Fife is an expert helmsman and knows when a yacht is well sailed and cared for.



MAJOR RODNEY'S FAMOUS MARCH IN PUERTO RICO. From HARPER'S WEEKLY

After a Drawing by T. Dart Walker. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission

Copyright, 1899, by Harper & Brothers

No doubt the roads were bad in Flanders, and that was a chief reason why the armies there swore so terribly. One cannot look at our reprodection of Mr. Walker's spirited drawing in this week's Harper's Weekly of an incident in the Puerto Rico campaign without longing to know what Major Rodney's men are saying. Perhaps, though, it is as well that we cannot hear. There is a more or less general impression that the Puerto Rico campaign was all picnic; that all the marching was done over a fine military road built by the Spanish; that every one had coffee and boiled eggs for breakfast, and other meals a la carte, and that everything went off well. Everything did go off well, but not without timely pushing. Mr. Walker has made it clear that this march of Major Rodney's had very little of the picnic element about it. Whether twenty-four miles a day is a big march for artillery or not depends, of course, on the roads. In this case it was undoubtedy big.

REMARKABLE LIFE SAVERS.

Department at Washington Receiving Many Queer Inventions.

The destruction of the City of Portland and other recent marine disasters have started the wheels going in the brains of more than one inventive crank. The department officials in Washington have been during the past few weeks flooded with all sorts of propositions for saving life at sea. These have been turned over to General Dumont, chief steamboat inspector. He has a separate file devoted to papers from persons who want the government to pay fancy prices for the privilege of owning useless and silly patents.

The other day a man wrote to the department at great length, telling of a new nonsinkable, self baling lifeboat, equipped with comforts and conveniences enough to keep a party alive at sea for an indefinite period. So confident was he in the virtues of his boat that he made the generous offer of letting a congressional committee test it. He proposed to drop them overboard some place on the ocean and let them drift around until picked up by a passing steamer. He protested that they would live as elegantly and as happily in his boat as in the best appointed hotel, even if they were not found for a month or more. It is needless to say that no congressmen volunteered to make a practical test of this craft.

Another man proposed that all steamships hereafter be compelled to include in their equipment a battery of guns, with a magazine room full of shells containing oil. When overwhelmed by a storm and a rough sea, his plan was to fire the shells overboard so that they would explode about 500 yards distant, scatter oil about the water and thus calm the sea. Still another uncrowned Edison has drawn plans for a wonderful looking structure which he calls a life preserving tank with parachute attachment. His invention is portrayed in sky blue ink and shows his model undisturbed in a sea running mountains high and standing large steamships on end. A special network of wire is provided to protect the legs and feet of the passengers. The most wonderful part of his device was a parachute which trails along in the water behind the tank. The theory was that the wind would inflate the parachute and drag the tank along to shore.—Special St. Louis Republic.

Another Revelation

The Puritans didn't believe we would ever talk by telephone or read by electric light. Perhaps you doubt that it's possible to make a soap that is equally good for any soap requirement. That's because you are not keeping pace with science. Fairy Soap is a revelation, even to other soap-makers. It's a step beyond anything that has ever been expected. It represents the perfect unity of efficiency and daintiness.

Jonathan and John.

Should Jonathan and John fall out
The world would stagger from that bout.
With John and Jonathan as one
The world's great peace will have begun.

With Jonathan and John at war
The hour that havoc hungers for
Will strike in ruin of blood and tears—
The world set back a thousand years.

With John and Jonathan sworn to stand
Shoulder to shoulder, hand by hand,
Justice and peace shall build their throne
From tropic sea to frozen zone.

When Jonathan and John forget
The scar of an ancient wound to fret
And smile to think of an ancient feud
Which the God of the nations turned to good,

When the bond of common creed and speech
And kindred binds them each to each
And each in other's victories
The pride of his own achievement sees—

How paltry a thing they both will know
That grudge of a hundred years ago—
How shall that blemish of wrath and blame
In the blazonry of their common fame?

Then come to our offices and investigate hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment fails. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. I suffered after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located the trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although I was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and being faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure this I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN [illegible], 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." To-day he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

Aguinaldo Protests Against "Intrusion of American Government."

Says He Never Agreed to Recognize Its Sovereignty.

Iloilo Insurgents Threaten to Blow Up the City If Bombardment Is Begun.

Manila, Jan. 9.—Within a few hours of the proclamation issued by General Otis in behalf of President McKinley the agents of Aguinaldo publicly billed Manila with a manifesto which attracted considerable attention. The revolutionary president protested against General Otis signing himself military governor of the Philippine islands.

Aguinaldo in his manifesto declared he had never agreed, at Singapore, Hong Kong or elsewhere, to recognize the sovereignty of the Americans here, and insists that he returned to the Philippines on an American warship solely to conquer the Spaniards and win independence. He asserts that both his proclamations of May 24 and June 12 stated this fact officially, and he claims that Major General Merritt confirmed this by a proclamation days before the Spaniards capitulated, stating clearly and definitely that the American forces came to overthrow the Spanish government and liberate the Filipinos.

In conclusion, Aguinaldo declares that he had natives and foreigners as witnesses that the American forces recognized not only by acts that the Filipinos were belligerents, but by publicly saluting the Filipinos' flag "as it triumphantly sailed these seas before the eyes of all nations."

Aguinaldo then solemnly protested in the name of the deity, who empowered him to direct his brethren in the difficult task of regeneration against the intrusion of the American government, and reiterated that he could produce proofs that he was brought here on the understanding that the Americans promised him their co-operation to attain independence.

The revolutionary leader then called upon all his followers to work the ground with force, and assures them he is convinced that they will obtain absolute independence and urging them never to return "from the glorious road on which they have "already so far advanced."

On Friday night public demonstrations were held in Pampangas province, in ratification of Aguinaldo's proclamation, and the excitement was intense. All natives who enter the city in the night time are searched, and every precaution is taken.

Major General Otis attaches no importance to the manifesto. He says he feels confident that the opinion of the better class of the Filipinos is not expressed in it; but as to whether the Filipino masses can be controlled and the Filipino army kept in check he does not know, although he hopes for a pacific outcome of the trouble.

Colonel Potter, the special emissary of General Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived yesterday afternoon with dispatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded, and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business section by fire at the first shot of bombardment. The banks were shipping their treasure to the United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice consul had gone on board the Newport.

Colonel Potter reports that President McKinley's proclamation had to be typewritten aboard ship, as the printers on shore declined to do the work, and when the text of the proclamation was read to them, ridiculed the notion that conciliation was possible.

Both sides, Colonel Potter says, have been impressing the local shipping for military purposes, and the Francisco Reyos had landed 550 natives. The foreigners were taking refuge on the British cruiser Bonaventure.

Privates Harry Silvey and Frank Kirkpatrick of the Sixth United States artillery, while guarding a waterboat astern of the Newport, were attacked by the natives of the crew. Private Silvey's skull was fractured fatally and Private Kirkpatrick fell overboard, but escaped with a flesh wound.

The United States gunboat Petrel arrived at Iloilo on Friday, and Colonel Potter reports that the United States troops will probably land on Guimaras island, about midway between the island of Panay and the island of Negros, where a camp will be established.

Heard From Otis.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The war department received another dispatch from Major General Otis yesterday. The officials observe unusual reticence with respect to its contents, but it is understood that the information contained is not of an unfavorable character, or such as to give undue concern to the administration. So far as the officials are willing to admit the dispatch shows no material change in the conditions existing at the time of previous advices. A cabinet officer said that the dispatch contained nothing alarming, serious or exciting. There had been no collision with the insurgents, he added, and not a shot had been fired. The dispatch, however, is believed to have been of sufficient importance to bring to the immediate attention of the president, and the latter, Secretary Alger and Secretary Long and Adjutant General Corbin were in conference for some time at the White House during the afternoon, presumably on that matter. The president's proclamation to the Filipinos had been published in Manila, but General Otis did not say to what extent it had been known to the inhabitants of the other islands.

Attributed to Priests.

Hong Kong, Jan. 9.—According to the statements of people who have just arrived here from the Island of Balabao, south of the island of Palatawan, there is no truth in the report that the Spanish there have been masacred by the Filipinos. They say that the story is the invention of the priests to predjudice the Filipinos' cause, declaring also that there are not more than a half dozen Spaniards in the island, and that all who have been killed fell in warfare.

Think We Shou'd Help Him.

London, Jan. 9.—The Daily Chronicle says this morning that the United States government ought to demand of Spain the pardon of Colonel Julison San Martin, who has been sentenced to imprisonment for life at Ceuta, the Spanish penal colony in Morocco, for abandoning Ponce, where he was in command of the Spanish troops when the United States forces under General Miles landed in Porto Rico.

Excitement Unallayed.

Santiago, Jan. 9.—Senor Bacardi, mayor of Sanitago, is cabling to Havana each day regarding the situation here, explaining that the local excitement growing out of the original proposal of the United States authorities to concentrate the customs receipts at Havana is not allayed, and that the people want provincial and municipal autonomy.

Made Use of Handkerchief.

Trenton, Jan. 9.—Francis Brunner, who was arrested Saturday night on a charge of embezzlement, committed suicide in a cell at the police station last night. Brunner hanged himself with a handkerchief tied to his cell door. He was not discovered until life was extinct. Brunner was treasurer of the Soldiers' Germania society, and at a meeting of the society on Saturday night he made a statement that there was no money in the treasury. He was told that the books of the society showed that he should have $400 on hand, and he was asked to make the amount good. Brunner did not make the amount good, and as a result he was arrested.

Death of Princess Tetua.

San Francisco, Jan. 9.—The French mail boat Tropic Bird brings the news from Tahiti of the death at Papeete of Princess Tetua Marama, heriditary princess of the island. She was the daughter of the Princess Ariiochan, whose authority extended over the island of Morea and a number of districts in Tahiti. Princess Tetua was adopted by Queen Pomare, and when she grew up became a great power in the southern seas. At an early age she married John Brandon, a Scotchman, by whom she had nine children. Brandon was at the head of the greatest commercial house in the islands. After his death she married George Darsie, also a Scotchman.

Killed by Robbers.

Newcastle, Pa., Jan. 9.—John Blevins, city treasurer of Newcastle, was found Saturday night in his office, unconscious and dying. His head had been beaten to a jelly, the safe broken open and perhaps $200 in money stolen. Saturday evening Blevins went to a tailor's for a new suit of clothes. The garments were not ready and he went to his office, which is over the jail, to wait until the tailor had finished. When at midnight he had not returned, his son went to his office. He found his father lying on the floor, unconscious, in a pool of blood. He died soon afterwards. The robbers and murderers have left no clue to their identity.

Fatal Train Wreck.

Chattanooga, Jan. 9.—A headon collision occurred yesterday between a local passenger train and a double-header train on the Knoxville and Ohio branch of the Southern railroad near Newcomb. The engineer of the passenger train was killed, as was his fireman. The engineer of the freight train was also killed and his fireman fatally burned. The passenger train had the right of way, and the freight was running in disobedience of orders. Two passengers were killed and a number seriously burned. An oil car was next to the engine on the freight train and its tank exploded, almost destroying both trains.

To Receive Due Honors.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Sixty-ninth New York regiment of volunteers will be mustered out of the service of the United States in New York, in accordance with a decision reached by Secretary Alger yesterday. This action is taken in response to the request of the citizens of New York and Governor Roosevelt, who were anxious that the men should return in a body and be accorded the honors due them. The regiment is now at Huntsville, Ala., and will leave for home as soon as the rolls can be completed.

Gimm Came In First.

New York, Jan. 9.—Louis Gimm of Pittsburg won the 24-hour bicycle race at Madison Square Garden Saturday night by three yards. Burns W. Pierce of Boston was second by two yards, Charles Turville of Philadelphia third, Fredericks of Switzerland fourth. Fredericks slipped just as he came to the finish line and fell from his wheel, but went over the line the fourth man. John Lawson of Chicago was fifth, Oscar Julius of New York sixth, Teddy Hale of Ireland seventh, Charles W. Miller of Chicago eighth.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

Part of Mountain Drops Into Fraser River and Changes Its Course.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—A Tribune special from Vancouver, B. C., says: News was received here of a tremendous landslide near Spencer bridge, on the Canadian Pacific railway. The recent thaw had the effect of loosening the sides of a small mountain, which overhangs the Fraser river at that point. This mountain has long been an object of curiosity to travellers on account of its peculiar position, its flat summit extending a considerable distance over the river, which is narrow at that point. Shortly after midnight Saturday night, with a roar that could be heard over a mile, fully 100 acres of the hill, anywhere from 20 to 50 feet in depth, crashed into the Fraser, damming it completely and sending the water in torrents over the fertile Nicola valley. The course of the river was changed completely. Now the Fraser, which, owing to the flat nature of the country, has broken into a broad, majestic but shallow stream, is fully half a mile out of its former course. The district is sparsely settled and no lives have been, so far as known, lost. Barns and houses, however, have been carried away and thousands of acres of valuable land will never be reclaimed from the waters of the Fraser in its new course. At the point where the masses of earth dammed up the river, flat ice has gathered and raised high in the air, forming an imposing and picturesque sight.

Soldier's Murderous Deed.

Havana, Jan. 9.—Private John D. Hughes, company E, Second Louisiana volunteers, was shot and killed Saturday by Private Joseph Buckley of the same company. The trouble began in a trivial quarrel at mess time at Camp Buenavista, when Buckley threatened to kill Hughes. Hughes paid no attention to the threat, but Buckley proceeded to another camp, secured a rifle and cartridges, returned to Buenavista, waited for his opportunity and shot Hughes through the heart, killing him instantly. Buckley then surrendered, and was conveyed to Camp Quemados, where he was placed under guard. When questioned about the murder, he said he was not drunk, but had killed Hughes deliberately.

We Are England's Friend.

London, Jan. 9.—The Times says editorially this morning: The announcement by the United States minister to China (Edwin H. Conger) of a satisfactory issue of the Shanghai question is doubly welcome, for it assures us that we have secured a point of considerable importance to our commercial and other interests in Shanghai, and that we have secured it by the co-operation of a power whose friendship we especially prize. Other nations in Europe and Asia will not be slow to appreciate the meaning of our success, and we may hope that the other powers interested will exert pressure at Pekin to get an immediate extension of the general settlement at Shanghai.

The Social Democracy.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The Social Democratic party of Massachusetts held a mass convention in this city yesterday, at which Mayor Chase of Haverhill presided, and speeches in support of the party principles were made by several of the representatives. It was voted that all possible honorable assistance be given to the trades union movement. It was voted to hold a state convention in Boston in May for the nomination of candidates for state offices. A state committee was also chosen. Resolutions relating to trades union labels and party nominations were passed.

Claims Governorship.

Carson, Nev. Jan. 9.—William McMillan, late candidate for governor, through his attorneys, has filed a notice of a contest for the seat of Rheinhold Sadler, present governor of Nevada. The complaint charges that there were illegal votes cast in four counties. All kinds of irregularities are charged, and it is claimed that people voted in precincts in which they were not entitled to vote. The respondent is given 20 days in which to answer.

Fifield Undecided.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 9.—B. F. Fifield, in an interview yesterday, said that he had not accepted the appointment as senator, and will not give his answer to Governor Smith's offer until he has fully considered it. He also declines to express an opinion on any national topic. Mr. Fifield says he is being urged by his friends to accept the office.

Death of a Veteran.

Mr. Alonzo Jones, a veteran of the Civil war, died at the City Hospital Saturday afternoon after a brief illness of a complication of diseases, aged 62 years. Mr. Jones had been watching night and day with his mother who passed away Jan. 5 and became worn out. Immediately after her death he was taken ill and removed to the City Hospital. He was a wood engraver by trade, but had followed no occupation for several years. He was a member of Post 200 of Boston.

South Station News Stand.

The temporary location of the news and other stands in the South station has been decided upon. There will be four of them in the midway, the several sites being the covered openings to the subway. The booths are under construction at Worcester, and are expected to be delivered some time next week. That for the sale of newspapers and periodicals will be the first encountered in approaching from the main entrance, the next will be supplied with tobacco and smokers' articles, the third with fruits, and the fourth will be used as a resting place for the station hands. Other arrangements will be made when the subway is opened for traffic. In addition to the midway news stand another will be maintained in the main waiting room. This will be of elaborate and artistic design, and a duplicate of that for the sale of confectionery.—Herald.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED.

Police Think the Circumstances Suspicious and Arrest Husband.

Mr. Milan Has Previously Been in Court for Threatening Assault.

Lawyer McAnarney Appears for Prisoner and Has the Case Continued.

The Quincy police have another mystery to solve, of a far more ghastly nature than that connected with the finding of the dead burglar at the residence of John Shaw. This time it is the burning to death of Mrs. Cecilia Milan on Saturday afternoon. The problem confronting the police is, whether it was a case of accidental burning or the wilful act of her husband, Michael Milan, who was immediately arrested upon the charge of murder.

The shocking affair occurred at the home of the Milans on Gilmore street, a private way leading from Hancock street just south of Merrymount Park.

The first known of the case was about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when Milan rushed out of the house shouting that his wife was on fire. Edward Colligan and Francis McCormick, who were near by, heard the cries and rushed to the house and seizing a bucket of water dashed it over the burning body of Mrs. Milan. Carmin P. Gardner, who was passing in a team, drove to the police station, and notified Chief Litchfied that Mrs. Milan had been burned by fire, although he did not know to what extent. Officer Lyons was sent down and was soon followed by Chief Litchfield, Inspector Ferguson and Officer Newcomb.

When Officer Lyons arrived he went to the rear of the house into the back kitchen, where he found Milan more or less intoxicated, who while raving cautioned the officer not to go into the front of the house, and it was not until he had been forced into a chair that the officer was able to enter the front of the house where the body lay, roasted almost to a crisp, the clothing all burned except the stockings. As soon as Chief Litchfield arrived Milan was placed under arrest and taken to the police station.

PLAN OF HOUSE.

A hasty examination made of the premises showed that there were three rooms on the first floor, a back kitchen, from which was a small sleeping room, and a front room which had evidently also been used for a kitchen, the latter being connected with the rear room by a narrow hall from which stairs led to the rooms above.

In the kitchen was a sofa, table, stove and chair. The chair was situated half way between the stove and the table or about four feet from the stove, and in such a position that the left side of a person seated in the chair was toward the stove. The back of this chair was badly burned some of the rounds being burned off while particles of clothing were seen clinging to the back. On the floor near the chair were also small pieces... near the burned clothing and other pieces were found between the... chair and where the body lay.

Between the stove and a wood box was an oil can half full of oil. The stove was barely warm, and in the fire box was a log of wood, evidently a part of a railroad sleeper. One end of this was slightly burned. Other than this there was no fire. In the cellar was an axe upon the handle of which were some stains, but what they were has not as yet been determined.

Everything indicated that her clothing must have been nearly all burned before she started for the front room for water. She must also have been nearly exhausted for appearances indicate that she went about twenty feet when she fell, and not having strength enough to rise, expired.

The body lay on its right side, diagonally across the hall, the head just over the threshold in the kitchen. The hair on the head was nearly all burned off and the face was blistered. The arms were extended as though to protect the face which they evidently had done as long as life remained. There were two raw spots on the face where the skin had come off, the pieces of skin still clinging to the hands. The clothing on the body had all been burned except now and then a small piece which clung to the flesh. The flesh of the body was burned to a light brown. It was a most horrible sight and even those who had seen death in nearly all its forms could not help but shudder at the sight and the thoughts of what agony the poor woman must have suffered.

HUSBAND IN STUPOR.

Milan was hardly in condition to give much of an account of how the affair happened but later in the evening after he had sobered somewhat, he said that he came home Friday night between 6 and 7 o'clock intoxicated. He and his wife then had a drink and he went to bed in the room off the back kitchen with his clothes on, leaving his wife in the kitchen. This was all he knew until awakened by smoke in his room. The door leading to the kitchen was closed. He got up and coming out of his room went into the front hall and found the body lying in the doorway where it was later found by the police. He further said that he then rushed to the front door and shouted for help. He claims that his wife frequently drank with him and that she had a habit of starting the fire with oil although he had warned her not to do so, and his theory is that she was starting fire with kerosene when her clothing took fire.

This theory does not have much support from the police, for the oil can was apparenlty in its place. Furthermore, if the fire had started in the manner indicated by Milan she would have probably rushed immediately to the front room for water. This would leave the burning of the chair unaccounted for.

The most plausable theory, and the one advanced by the police, is that the woman was seated in the chair when the fire started and that she must have remained there some time before rushing into the front kitchen for water. Why she should remain in the chair so long, if conscious, is a mystery, unless she was first rendered unconscious by a blow and then her clothing set on fire, or that she was held in the chair by someone.

BODY REMOVED.

When the police had placed Milan under arrest a telephone call was sent for Medical Examiner Gilbert, but he or Assistant Examiner, Dr. Jones, could not be reached. While they were waiting, Hall's ambulance wagon arrived and the body was taken to the morgue, where it was later viewed by Medical Examer Gilbert. He regretted very much that the body had been removed from the house before he viewed it, and said that this would make it more difficult to discover evidence of foul play, if any existed.

Milan is well known [illegible] for he has been frequently arrested for drunkenness and for threatening assault on his wife.

Miss Matilda Kinnemon, a niece of Mrs. Milan, has lived at the house for some time. The last time Milan appeared in court was in September upon a warrant sworn out by Miss Kinnemon against Milan for threatening an assault.

The house stood in Mrs. Millan's name, and this and the presence of the niece served to make continual trouble.

The above case was disposed of and immediately after Mrs. Milan applied to the Probate Court for separate maintenance, which was granted Oct. 12.

Shortly after Miss Kinneman left the house and Mrs. Milan changed her mind and took her husband back. They have been married about twenty-five years but had no children. Milan is about 55 years of age, and his wife was a few years younger.

After the body had been removed Chief Litchfield thought it too dark to make a thorough examination of the premises, and locked up the house, taking possession of the key and deferring an examination of the premises until today.

NO EXAMINATION.

There were no new developments in the case since the finding of the body of Mrs. Milan. The house was to have been examined Sunday but Medical Examiner Gilbert was unable to go out and the matter of examination was postponed until today. Up to 12 o'clock however the examination had not been made, as the police were awaiting the medical examiner. Just when the examination will be made is a matter of doubt but it will probably be some time today.

There are many theories as to how the affair happened but there seems to be no one who believes that Milan wilfully set fire to his wife.

She is known as a woman that has drank and one of the theories is that Friday night they were both under the influence of liquor. That they slept until late Saturday when Mrs. Milan being the first to awake attempted to light the fire; that she saturated the log of wood with kerosene and then applied a match to it and that the blaze set her clothing on fire that she was still in a kind of helpless stupor and unable at first to help herself; she sat in the chair and was badly burned before she fully realized her condition and made no effort to extinguish the flames.

Milan is naturally somewhat excited over the affair but declares that he is innocent of any crime and that all he knows is what he has stated.

MILAN IN COURT.

When he appeared in court this morning he wore a cap, red sweater and rubber boots. His hair was uncombed and this made his appearance more rough than it would otherwise have been. The rest of his clothing is locked up in the house where it will remain until after the examination. The court continued the case until Saturday.

AN AUTOPSY.

Medical Examiner Gilbert held an autopsy on the body this afternoon, which was not completed when the Ledger went to press. Immediately after the autopsy the house will be examined.

Grand Army Funeral.

The funeral of Mr. George A. Beard took p'ace on Sunday afternoon from his late residence at the corner of Elm and Mechanic streets. It was in charge of Paul Revere Post, 88, G A. R., but was also largely attended by Rural lodge of Masons. The casket was draped with a large American flag of the Post, and the floral offerings included an emblematical pillow from Rural lodge, a key stone pillow from St. Stephen's chapter, and bouquets from his room-mates at the Old Colony shoe shop and from Mr. George H. Wilson. Mayor Keith, ex-Mayor Hodges and many friends were present to pay their last tribute. After prayers by Rev. Walter Russell Breed of Christ church, the officers of Paul Revere Post conducted the Grand Army service. The post escorted the body to Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Police Make a Haul.

John Shugrue had a rough experience in Town river early Sunday morning. He went out the night before and lost his way. After some difficulty he came ashore at Germantown but not before he had broken the ice and got wet. After coming ashore he went to the house of Henry C. Weeden and attempted to kick in the door. Mr. Weeden telephoned the police and then opened the door and found Shugrue on the piazza half frozen. He was carried into the house and was thawing out when the police arrived and placed him under arrest for drunkenness.

Later in the day the police went down with a team and took possession of a boat and seine belonging to Shugrue.

At the Universalist church tonight you can go to Cuba and spend an hour amid strange but interesting scenes without any personal discomfort and at very small expense. Mr. Fuller with aid of the stereopticon will be sure to interest all who attend as he will give an up to date lecture in every respect and will speak from personal experience.

Capt. E. R. Nash and wife accompanied by their granddaughter, Miss Maud Simmons of Rockland Me., leaves for home today after visiting their daughter, Mrs. A. B. Smith of 82 Granite street, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia and is now slowly improving. Capt. Nash of the schooner Morrison Cliff was one of the two survivors that rode out the big storm in Provincetown after dragging within two hundred yards of the shore.

On Sunday evening the Rev. David Kerr of Calvary church in a sermon especially to men from David's dying words to his son Solomon—"Show thyself a man" said among other things that the church as a whole was face to face with a very alarming fact as less than ten per cent. of the membership of the church was made up of young men from 16 to 45 years of age. Women he said were numerically great in the world and certainly by far were so in the church to their everlasting credit, but in heaven the proportion will be boundless. If it were not for our Christian woman he said the church would soon die a natural death from lack of support to carry on her work in the world.

In India there are 100,000 boys and 627,000 girls under the age of 14 who are legally married, while 8,600 boys and 24,000 girls who have not attained the age of 4 are under marriage bonds as arranged by their parents.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

DURGIN & MERRILL'S BLOCK, QUINCY

LIEUTENANT SPEAR.

The Third Officer of Co. K Advanced by Col. Whitney.

Some were surprised to read in a Sunday paper that Second Lieutenant Charles F. Spear of Quincy, an officer of Co. K, had been commissioned to be first lieutenant of Co. K, Fifth, Massachusetts. William F. Whitney of Quincy is the first lieutenant of this company and his advancement or resignation has not been reported.

The Globe probably made a mistake in adding "of Co. K" to the appointment to be first lieutenant. Another paper says: These officers, upon the nomination of Col. Whitney and the approval of Gov. Wolcott, will be commissioned during the coming week in the Fifth regiment: Capt. L. E. Hanson of Woburn to be major, 2d Lieut. Charles R. Gow of Melrose to be a first lieutenant, 2d Lieut. Charles F. Spear of Quincy to be a first lieutenant, 1st Sergt. B. N. Wheeler of Marlboro to be a second lieutenant, 1st Sergt. J. H. Williams of Attleboro to be a second lieutenant, 1st Sergt. A. G. Gustafson of Cambridge to be a second lieutenant.

Congratulations are undoubtedly in order for Lieut. Spear, but he will regret to be separated from Co. K, as seems likely. At the same time it looks as if Co. K was to have another outsider for one of its commissioned officers.

The Herald says: The nomination of Capt. Hanson for major comes as a surprise to those who imagined that, all other things being equal, seniority had much to do, or should have considerable to do with appointments in military service. Capt. Stover of Charlestown is six years the senior of Capt. Hanson, and it has always been taken for granted that he was a thoroughly capable, intelligent and active company commander, and would be the first to reap promotion as a fitting reward for his years of service.

To which the Globe adds: The promotion of Capt. Hanson is a deserved one, as since he became the Commander of Co G he has shown himself to be a thorough soldier. Particularly has this been true since this regiment went into the service of the United States. To his many friends in Woburn his promotion will give general satisfaction, and although the members of his company will regret to lose him as their commander they will all heartily congratulate their captain and wish him success in his new position. The captain leaves his company in magnificent shape as he has at all times taken good care of his men, and his successor will have the honor of commanding one of the best companies in the service.

Lieut. Carter, 5th Massachusetts infantry, U. S. V., has been honorably discharged. Lieut. Carter is the son of the present inspector-general. He was appointed to the regiment following its assembly at the camp at Framingham.

☞Marriage without love may be endurable, but marriage without friendship is intolerable. And if a man and woman have no mutual tastes and habits, friendship, and even love itself will languish. Even the best and truest love loses with youth its first fire and fervor, but with mental and moral kinship a better, saner, purer love is built on the ashes of the first. This love is made up of affection, friendship, comradeship, trust, and pervading all this a tender sentiment growing out of the dear memories of long ago. — Woman's Home Companion.

WHEN AND WHERE.

Company K Wondering About Next Movement.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 5.

We are still wondering where and when our next movement will happen, and where the next encampment will be.

This has been a wet disagreeable day, with considerable humidity in the air.

Rumor has it that all furloughs are to be withdrawn, and none issued until further orders.

Privates Tucker and Mead are waiting patiently for their furloughs, but according to new orders, these two privates' petitions will be withdrawn.

Corporal Mahoney and Private T. F. Mahoney were called home unexpectedly yesterday by the sudden death of Private Mahoney's father.

Privates Martell and Lyons returned to camp and reported for duty. They having returned after a two weeks' furlough, looking much the better for their vacation.

Privates Deslauries and Martell are once more united, and keep K Co. in good spirits with their practical jokes and wise sayings.

Private Frank Hodges is now detailed on the cook squad. Frank likes this position much better.

Our regiment expects to be paid on Monday.

Private Morrissey is still on deck. Bill is always heard from every day.

The following are on guard duty today: Privates Restelli, Robinson, D. Smith, Swanson, Spillane and Sullivan.

The health of K Co. continues excellent. Volunteer.

WEYMOUTH.

The East Weymouth polo team won again Saturday evening, defeating the Tauntons 6 to 1 at Weymouth.

Rev. William Kirkby who has been confined to his home with illness is now able to supply the pulpit again.

Mrs. Merchant has resigned her position as organist at the Porter M. E. church and Miss Florence Pratt has taken her place.

A birthday party was given to Mrs. Catherine Pratt, Saturday, Jan. 7, it being her seventy-fifth birthday.

Mrs. Sarah Bailey of East Weymouth died Saturday at the advanced age of 84 years. She leaves four children, Mrs. Asa B. Pratt, with whom she resided on Broad street, Augustus Bailey, C. Will. Bailey and Horace Bailey. The funeral was held this afternoon.

The Braintree & Weymouth street railway company appeared as remonstrants Saturday at the hearing given by the Selectmen on the petition of the Quincy & Boston company for a location from East Weymouth to Hingham.

G. A. R. Installation.

The joint installation of General Sylvanus Thayer Post and General Sylvanus Thayer Relief Corps was held Friday evening, at Braintree. The Hon. James E. Stevens was mustering officer for the Post and Mrs. S. Agnes Parker of Brockton was installing officer for the Relief Corps.

Officers were installed in the Post as follows:

Commander,—Edwin R. Gustin.
Sen. Vice Commander,—Hollis A. Webber.
Junior Vice Commander,—Chas. E. Smith.
Chaplain,—John Barbour.
Officer of the Day,—Joseph M. Foster.
Quarter Master,—Chas. G. Anderson.
Quarter Master Sergeant,—John F. Sumner.
Surgeon,—Morrill Williams.

The Relief Corps officers installed were:

President,—Miss Josie Colbert.
Sen. Vice President,—Mrs. Lillie Howland.
Junior Vice President,—Mrs. Lizzie M. Howe.
Treasurer,—Mrs. Sarah J. Anderson.
Chaplain,—Mrs. Emma Dyer,
Conductor,—Mrs. Mina B. Woodsum.
Secretary,—Mrs. Isaline R. Coy.
Guard,—Mrs. Minnie McGibbons.
Color Bearers,—Mrs. Sarah J. Crosby, Mrs. Sarah A. Vining, Mrs. Ella Thayer, Mrs. Mary Bangs.

The attendance was large, the larger part of those present being representatives of the Relief Corps however.

The ceremony of installation was finely carried out, after which a bountiful supper was served followed by many interesting speeches on the part of those present.

☞The real issue is whether this country shall adopt the cruel, selfish and immoral policy of leaving these islands to welter in centuries of savage warfare, shutting out all civilized tutelage on the "hands-off" principle, or whether this country shall enter on the work of the English speaking race in India and elsewhere in developing home rule and local self-government as a step to better things in future, to the lasting profit at every step of the ruling power and the dependent community.—Philadelphia Press.

AT ACTUAL VALUE.

Ex-Councilman Slade Writes on the Mayor's Inaugural.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I think the most important suggestion in Mayor Keith's message is that respecting valuation. The annual valuation by the assessors is practically the same thing as the annual stock-taking of a mercantile house. No sensible or prudent business man over values his stock. On the contrary, he ascertains the value of his goods on hand with the greatest exactness possible. In no other way can he determine the condition of his affairs. If he overvalues his stock, he deceives himself; he may think he is growing richer when, in fact, he is on the road to bankruptcy. The Quincy practice has been different from that of the wise and conservative business man. The valuation has been increased from year to year not because there has been any rise in the actual value of the property but to furnish to the City Council an excuse and a means for larger expenditures. Every man who has examined the question knows that very much of the real property of the city is over-valued, and that this over-valuation has been the direct result of increased estimates and appropriations.

I have been told by a well known citizen connected with one of our banks that, in discussing the correctness of the valuation of an estate near the centre, he asked an assessor, "Is not this assessed valuation greater than the actual value?" To this question the ludicrously stupid reply was made, "Yes, but there is hardly a piece of property in Quincy which is not overvalued; the Council appropriates money and we have to furnish it, and how can we furnish it otherwise than by increasing the valuation"

The sworn duty of the assessors is to appraise property at its true market value. This exhausts their fuction. It is none of their business how much the Council appropriates or seeks to appropriate. They have no more to do with providing the city with funds than they have to do with the government of the Philippine Islands. They are to say, the taxable value of Quincy is so much; and then stop. The Council is confined to the legal limit established by the legislature; and is compelled if it respects the law, to restrict its appropriations to the amount permitted by statute. The duties of the two boards are entirely separate and distinct. If the assessors fix the valuation with reference to the appropriations of the Council, the law of the Commonwealth is evaded and defeated, and the people are deprived of the protection which the law intends to give them.

If Mayor Keith, through his new board of assessors, succeeds in arriving at the actual value of the property of Quincy, he will give to the municipality, what it has never had in the 30 odd years I have known it,—a correct business basis upon which to build its financial affairs; and he will deserve and receive the gratitude and support of its citizens.

There are some other suggestions in the message which I should be glad to discuss, but I am afraid I have already exhausted my limit.

James H. Slade.

☞Traveling public libraries, an idea which has made considerable progress in Missouri, are now established in twenty-five states. At a recent library convention in one country in Wisconsin, 50 librarians and promoters of the work were present. In two years in the county (Dunn,) the books of the 37 libraries were drawn 1,480 times. Each book is read by an average of two persons, so that the 1,480 books were read 22,000 times in a year. Twenty families in one romote settlement drew books 702 times. The convention decided to organize a central committee to aid the formation of local clubs and arrange for annual meetings at a convenient town.—Lowell News.

Seeks Connubial Bliss.

When a man has been a helpless invalid for 12 years and suddenly announces that he is no longer ill and is now a candidate for matrimony there can be no better evidence of his perfect restoration to health. This is what that scientific wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures. People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in health but fully restored, all made over new again, they claim and experience the vigor, activity, hopes and ambitions of youth once more. This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give here, with. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last season was spent in Florada. Employed many local physicians during this time and used socalled sarsaparillas but found no permanent relief till I tried Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 28 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.

Sincerely yours,

They Tell Their Friends

About the bargains they get at our store. People who buy from us are our best advertisements, but for fear that you'll not hear of the Boots and Slippers we are selling this week, we will tell you about them. They are what is left of many lines we wish to clean out before stock-taking. We quote no prices but invite an inspection of our bargain tables as a proof of a genuine cut in prices.

The mill is one of the largest and most important in the Blackstone valley, and gives employment to 500 hands. The stock for the mill has already arrived, and some of the employes are at work. House Will Have No Spare Time on Its Hands During This Session.

Long Arguments on the Treaty Promised In Senate.

Indications Against Discussion on the Subject In Open Session.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The time of the house will be fully occupied from this time forward until the conclusion of the session. Appropriation bills which are already in an unusually advanced stage are to be kept to the fore, but there is a deal of other important legislation which will press for consideration at every opportunity.

Perhaps the most important single measure is the bill for the reorganization of the army. It was the general understanding before the recess that this bill would be given consideration immediately after the holidays, but the illness of Chairman Hull of the military affairs committee will delay this measure until he is sufficiently recovered to attend the sessions of the house. His illness will also delay the military academy and army appropriation bills.

Meantime the friends of the navy personnel bill are pushing for its consideration, and the rules committee may give a day to it during the present week.

The bill represents a complete agreement between the line and the staff. These two branches of the service have been at war for many years, but now that they have at last got together and agreed upon a measure its passage, once it gets to a vote, is assured. The only opposition to it is likely to arise from the fact that the reorganization it contemplates involves an additional charge on the treasury of several hundred thousand dollars.

The final vote on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill will be taken today. The opponents of the civil service law succeeded in striking from the bill, while the house was in committee of the whole, the appropriation for the maintenance of the commission. But today, when the vote is taken in the house, where members are obliged to go on record, there is little doubt but that the appropriation will be restored.

The diplomatic and consular and the naval appropriation bills are the next budgets to be taken up, and either or both of them may be considered this week. Such time as intervenes will be consumed in the consideration of the bill for the codification of the laws of Alaska. This bill has been made a continuing order; portions of two days have already been consumed by it and less than 70 of the 232 pages of the bill have been disposed of. The lawyers of the house show an inclination to go over it critically, section by section, and it may be before the house for an indefinite period.

The week promises to be a busy one in the senate. It will begin with an elaborate speech by Senator Hoar to be delivered immediately after the transaction of the routine business today, in opposition to the extension of American territory. This speech is of considerable length, and with the interruptions that are liable to occur it will probably consume the greater portion of the day. Tomorrow Senator Mason will discuss briefly his resolution in opposition to this country's asserting sovereignty over Cuba and the Philippines, taking strong ground for the independence of the people of the islands.

Senator Morgan will make an effort early in the week to get the senate to name a date for taking a vote upon his bill for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal, and, whether he succeeds or not, will press the bill as continuously upon the attention of the senate as circumstances will permit. Unanimous consent is necessary to the fixing of of a time for a vote, and it is not probable that this will be secured for some time to come.

It is the expectation that the peace treaty will be reported on Wednesday, and also that some of the appropriation bills now in the hands of the committee on appropriations will be brought in towards the close of the week. Immediate consideration will be asked for the appropriation bills, and it is possible that the beginning of the debate upon the treaty may be postponed until next week. There is an effort among the opponents of the treaty to have it discussed in open session, but the indications are against such a course.

Capitol Gleanings.

The war department has finally decided to continue in force, for a time at least, the system of controlling taxes in Cuba practiced by the Spanish authorities, but with some very important changes made in the plan, all in the direction of liberality towards the tax payers and honesty of administration.

The secretary of war has sent to congress an estimate of $22,000 for the purchase of the Gerdom patent for a gas check for breech loading rifles.

Captain James E. Graybill, a member of the Confederate veteran camp of New York city, called at the White House and presented to the president an address commending the sentiments expressed by him in his recent Atlanta speech favoring government care of the Confederate cemeteries.

The postoffice department has ordered that all mail for Porto Rico, including that for United States military forces, be sent to New York for forwarding instead of Washington.

The Michigan has arrived at Savannah from Havana and will be used to ship part of General Wilson's command to Matanzas. The Obdam will carry another detachment of the same command.

Secretary Bliss has gone to New York to remain until Friday, and until relieved by his successor, Mr. Hitchcock, will not act on new matters of administrative policy, but will leave the new secretary free to initiate his own policy.

A system of high license for Alaska in place of the present system of prohibition has been tentatively agreed to by the house committee on revision of the laws.

HUSTLING IN RUSSIA

Does Not Appear to Be In Line With Czar's Disarmament Proposals.

London, Jan. 9.—The Sebastopol correspondent of The Times, who has been touring in European Russia for two months, to discover, if possible, some evidence on the part of the Russian government to give effect to the disarmament proposals of Emperor Nicholas, says all his observation was quite to the contrary. The correspondent remarks: "At the naval dockyards I found feverish activity. Not a man has been withdrawn from the frontiers. The ministers of war and marine have been inspecting all the important military and naval stations, urging an acceleration of the preparations for defense, but, apparently, never mentioning the czar's manifesto. The number of men enrolled in the army and navy during the month of October last was larger than ever. Reinforcements are being sent to the far east as fast as they can be transported, while all the garrisons along the Russo-Turkish frontier are being largely increased."

Slightly For the Better.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The reports from Representative Dingley's bedside are a trifle more encouraging, and his family believe there is still a chance for him to rally. Extreme weakness and poison in the system, resultant effects of his sickness, are the principle symptoms which the physicians now have to combat, which, in a man of Mr. Dingley's age, make the outcome uncertain. The nervousness and delirium have partially subsided, and the periods of consciousness are much more frequent. The patient is reported to be resting easier. The president called in person yesterday and made inquiries concerning the sick man. Mr. Dingley's two sons from Kalamazoo, Mich., have arrived in the city, but have not yet been permitted to see him.

A Mangled Floater.

Chatham, Mass., Jan. 9.—The headless body of a man, supposed to have been a passenger on the steamer Portland, was picked up on the beach at midnight Saturday by Patrolman Bloomer of the Chatham life saving station. Both hands were also missing, and considerable of the flesh on the arms was gone. The man was thought to have been about six feet tall. The clothes were, however, in good condition, the trousers being of a fine quality of black cloth, a ribbed vest, white undeclothes, white cotton shirt with white studs, black stockings and laced shoes.

Claims Self-Defense.

Machias, Me., Jan. 9.—Frank Brown, aged 13, of Princeton, was brought here and lodged in jail to await trial for the stabbing of an Indian at Princeton. It is alleged that an ill feeling has existed between the Indian and Brown, the Indian having attempted to assault the boy at different times, and finally threatening his life. While attempting to execute this threat, the Indian was stabbed by Brown. The boy claims he committed the deed in self-defense. It is thought the wound will prove fatal.

Fatal Hotel Fire.

Pittsburg, Jan. 9.—A fire which broke out in the Hotel Richelieu early yesterday morning resulted in a property loss of only about $15,000, but three lives were sacrificed and five people were badly hurt. The fire originated on the second floor from an explosion of gas, and within a few moments the building was a mass of flames and blinding smoke. The noise of the explosion awakened most of the guests, about 20 in number, and a frantic fight for life ensued. The hotel was completely destroyed.

Given Life Sentence,

Mumfordville, Ky., Jan. 9.—Professor J. W. McClure, who was indicted with Rev. G. Doyle for the murder of Miss Lydia Bracher, was given a life sentence. Doyle is a Baptist minister, and was alleged to have betrayed Miss Bracher and induced Professor McClure, who is one of the most prominent educators in this section, to perform an operation, which resulted in the girl's death. Separate trials were demanded, and McClure was tried first.

Mill Dividends.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 9.—A list of dividnds paid by the local mills during the past year has been compiled by Messrs. E. M. Haffards & Co. of this city, and the result shows an average of 9.22 per cent in a capital of $20,493,000. The year of 1898 was a hard one, notwithstanding the reduction in wages in the first part of the year, and the curtailment later. The present outlook is, however, bright.

Took Laudanum.

Taunton, Mass., Jan. 9.—Deputy Sheriff Charles T. Lewis of Dighton was found dead in his room at the City hotel here yesterday. An empty laudanum bottle was found by the bedside, and Medical Examiner Presbrey says that Mr. Lewis, without doubt, committed suicide by poisoning. He had served several terms as deputy sheriff, and had recently received a reappointment. He has been despondent of late.

Ended In a Row.

Paris, Jan. 9.—The Socialists' annual pilgrimage yesterday to the tomb of Blanqui, in the cemetery of Pere Lachaise, led to riots between rival partisans of M. Henry Rochefort, editor of The Intransigeant, and M. Jures, editor of The Socialist Petite Republique. Many were injured, and the police made a number of arrests. The wreath intended for the otmb was trampled upon.

Says Dreyfus Is Guilty.

Paris, Jan. 9.—Le Soir says it learns from an indisputable source that the court of cassation is convinced that Dreyfus was justly condemned.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M. the well-known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church. Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission. Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

A FRIGHTFUL DISASTER.

Thirteen Persons Killed In Head-On Collision on Lehigh Valley Road.

Excursion and Local Crashed Into One Another.

Passengers In One Heavily Laden Coach Either Killed or Injured.

New York, Jan. 10.—Thirteen persons killed outright and 25 or more injured is the record of a headon collision between two passenger trains of the Lehigh Valley railroad at West Dunellen, N. J., at 12:47 p. m. yesterday.

The scenes which accompanied the collision, the sufferings of the injured and the panic that reigned among the 400 passengers were well nigh indescribable. The blood-stained wreck of tangled and twisted iron and wood that is still on the railroad tracks bears witness to the truth of the general verdict of railroad men that this was one of the worst collisions in recent years.

A headon collision on a double track road was only made possible by a freight wreck which occurred at Bound Brook at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when the axle of a freight car broke and nine cars were piled on top of each other. This completely blocked the east-bound track, and all through the morning Lehigh Valley trains bound for New York switched from their own track to the west-bound track, going over these rails from Bound Brook to Newmarket, a distance of six miles, and changing at the latter place back to their right side of the road. To permit this mode of traffic all west-bound trains were held at South Plainfield until their own line was clear of trains going in the opposite direction,

Train No. 20 which left Shamokin, Pa., at 7 a. m. was so heavy with human freight that it had to be broken into three sections. The first two sections arrived at Bound Brook, switched over to the other track, switched back at Newmarket and reached New York in safety. The third section of this train was almost an hour late. Its seven cars were crowded with 400 excursionists, most of them from Mount Carmel and Shamokin, Mahoney City, Hazelton, Ashland and Pottsville, Pa. The party was traveling under the auspices of the business men's excursion, an annual affair which many patronize for a three days' visit to New York. Not a few of the excursionists were coming to witness the McCoy-Sharkey fight. Their train switched over at Bound Brook and proceeded, like the preceding sections, on the west-bound track.

Meanwhile there had been waiting at Newmarket a local train that plies regularly between New York and Bound Brook. It was due in Bound Brook at 11:59 a. m. Owing to the traffic all going on one track, it was almost an hour late. At last the train dispatcher at South Plainfield gave it permission to go. Just before reaching West Dunellen Engineer Rick slowed his train down, because the train stops there for passengers if there are any. Martin Brennan, the signal man, threw up his arms and waved them, as if to say there were no passengers, so the local put on steam and headed round the curve, going at about 25 miles an hour. There were only four passengers on the local.

In the cab of the excursion train engine was James Prendergast, engineer, with his fireman, George Cheshire. They saw the local as it started on the curve. With shrieking whistle and brakes grinding sparks from the wheels the excursion train bore down to what seemed certain destruction. The passengers, alarmed at the continued whistling, opened the windows; mothers clasped their children in their arms, men started from their seats, but before they had time to find out what was the matter they were hurled headlong, knocked senseless and many killed outright.

The two engines, now pilotless, for both crews had jumped, came together with an awful crash. The excursion train was probably going at about 15 miles an hour. The local engine turned a complete somersault and came crashing down beside its now demolished obstruction. But its career was not ended before it had jumped the tender of the excursion train engine almost from one end to the other of the first car from Shamokin. The tender stopped a few seats from the rear door. The car, or what was left of it, rolled over, carrying with it the imbedded tender, the fragments of a dozen bodies and the imprisoned wounded who had been carried with the jagged iron on its relentless course through the coach.

It was in this first car of the excursion train that all of the deaths and most of the casualties occurred. The other cars, though their occupants were badly shaken, stayed on the track. The baggage car in the front of the local train was damaged, but with the exception of the two engines and the first car of the excursion train none of the cars were so badly impaired that they could not be hauled off.

From Dunellen, Bound Brook and other places doctors were quickly summoned. They came over the Central railroad of New Jersey, whose tracks run parallel with the Lehigh at this point, about 400 yards distant. Relief and wrecking trains were quickly on hand. As the dead were pulled out of the demolished car they were put in the rear cars of the excursion train and taken to Bound Brook, where a coroner's inquest was held last night. The injured were put in the cars of the local train. Twenty-one were taken to Plainfield hospital, while the less seriously injured went on to Jersey City and New York.

The loss of life inflicted upon his train would probably have been nothing like what it was had it not been for the fact that at Mauch Chunk the baggage car of the excursion train was found to have a hot box and was taken off, thus leaving the crowded day coach next to the engine. If this coach had retained the position it held when the train left Shamokin probably only a few lives would have been lost.

Harry Butland was the operator at South Plainfield, and it was he who gave the signal for the local to proceed. Butland stated that he received no orders to hold the train, and, as the track ahead was supposed to be clear, he allowed the train to go up on the single track.

Investigation Begun.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—The Lehigh Valley officials in this city gave out a statement which agrees with the press dispatches as to the number and names of the victims of the accident. It further says that all the valuables found on the bodies or among the debris are in the possession of the county physician of Middlesex county. No responsibility is placed for the disaster, but it is stated that an investigation is already under way.

Forfeits $7000 Bail.

Boston, Jan. 10.—The full bench of the supreme court has dismissed the petition of John Reed for a writ of certiorari for the purpose of quashing a judgment whereby $7000, which the petitioner deposited on giving his personal recognizance in a criminal complaint against him, was adjudged forfeited, and was ordered to be paid to the county treasurer. Reed was a bunco man, and after the bail in his case had been declared forfeited, he was arrested a second time on a capias, and brought before the court, which committed him for trial before the superior court. The supreme court says that this fact does not make void the judgment of the police court, declaring the $7000 forfeited.

State Prison Birds.

Boston, Jan. 10.—Several severe sentences were imposed by Judge Bond in the superior court yesterday. James Waters, a youth, was given from five to ten years in state prison as a common and notorious thief, on conviction of larceny of property from establishments in this city, obtained on pretense of being an expressman calling for goods to deliver. William Jameson and William Stewart were each sentenced to state prison for a term of not less than seven years nor more than 10 years for robbery. William Dowd got four years at the house of correction for breaking and entering. For the larceny of $1, Jeremiah Feely was sent to state prison for from four to five years.

Anti-Expansionists.

Portland, Me., Jan. 10.—The first annual banquet of the Democratic club of Maine occurred last night, about 100 persons being present. S. C. Gordon of Portland acted as toastmaster. The speakers were Henry W. Lamb of Boston, George E. McNeil of Boston, ex-Governor Garcelon of Lewiston and M. P. Frank of Portland. The speakers devoted themselves entirely to the question of expansion, arguing against the policy of the administration. Silver was not mentioned during the evening. Letters of regret were read from W. J. Bryan, ex-President Cleveland, ex-Senator David P. Hill and others.

Pick Your Man.

New York, Jan. 10.—Sharkey and McCoy both profess to be ready and eager for the contest tonight, when they will battle for a $20,000 purse. They completed their training yesterday and are as fit as human hands can make them. Each is very confident of victory. Among the betters the bulk of the money is being placed on McCoy. The bettors argue that McCoy's cleverness will carry him safely over every mine that Sharkey may plant for him. The men who stand by Sharkey, and they are legion, say that the sailor will be ahead at all stages, and that all he wants is to land one good punch.

Two Suspects.

New York, Jan. 10.—The Herald says: Two persons are now suspected by the police of having some connection with the Barnet and Cornish poisoning cases. From indications at police headquarters yesterday it seemed probable that some important move was in contemplation, but whether or not arrests will be made today or tomorrow remains to be seen. Captain McClusky of the detective bureau yesterday gave to W. J. Kinsley the handwriting expert, some additional letters and envelopes. Mr. Kinsley said he hoped to be able to make a report today.

The Kaiser on Disarmament.

London, Jan. 10.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News says: Discussing the czar's disarmament proposals at a reception given by the presidents of the reichstag recently, Emperor William said he appreciated the loftiness of the ideas and the nobility of the motives of the Russian emperor, but he did not expect them to yield practical results in this direction. Therefore, the increase in the German army was no less indispensable than before.

Four Killed In Nebraska.

Sydney, Neb., Jan. 10.—Four deaths and injuries to seven people were caused by a wreck on the Union Pacific at Sunol, 15 miles east of here, yesterday.

A RESORT TO POWDER

Only When Gentle Persuasion Fails to Have Effect Upon Filipinos.

Aguinaldo Threatens to Drive Americans From Islands.

Disquieting News From Manila, Showing That Situation Remains Strained.

Washington, Jan. 10.—A great deal of reticence is exhibited at the war department relatve to the state of affairs at Iloilo.

The situation is admitted to be critical, but no hopeless by any means, and it is extremely desirable that the danger of a rupture shall not be increased by inflammatory publications, which powerfully affect the excitable Filipinos.

The government's instructions sent to General Miller at Iloilo were to land and get in communication with the insurgents. Not a shot is to be fired by the forces of this country unless they are attacked or until further orders are given from here.

This program was agreed upon between President McKinley and Secretary Alger several days ago. Secretary Alger was at the White House for some time yesterday afternoon. He stated in the most emphatic terms that no alarming news has come from General Otis, and that he did not believe a shot had been fired so far, or that one would be fired. He is confident that General Miller will be able to handle the situation successfully and obtain control of Iloilo without bloodshed. He is of opinion that the insurgents have been so long imposed upon that they are naturally suspicious and fear the worst if they surrender their stronghold into the hands of the United States.

The policy to be adopted now is a gentle one. Persuasion will be used before powder. That will be the last resort, and Secretary Alger is optimistic in his views that it will never be necessary. The president, it is said, also views the situation in a similarly hopeful manner. He believes that the Filipinos will become less suspicious when they understand more fully the intentions of this country. He believes that careful work on the part of prudent officials will convince the Filipinos of the earnestness of the United States and of the purpose of this government to protect their lives and property.

Today's dispatches from Manila say that the situation is rapidly approaching a climax, and it is just possible that tomorrow will see a peaceful solution.

Meanwhile all sorts of alarmist rumors are in circulation. The United States authorities are taking every precaution, the troops in quarters are under arms and the Californians have disembarked from the transports.

The natives, it is said, have been ordered not to work for the Americans, and the employes in the commissary department have gone on strike. Many natives are leaving the city. Major General Otis, however, has the whole situation thoroughly in hand.

A second proclamation by Aguinaldo, bearing the same date as the one which immediately followed the proclamation of Major General Otis, based upon President McKinley's instructions, first appeared on the streets yesterday, but it is alleged to have been recalled. Its terms are much more vehement than those used in the first proclamation. Aguinaldo threatens to drive the Americans from the islands, calls the Diety to witness that their blood will be on their own hands if it is shed, and details at greater length the promises he claims were made by the Americans as to the part of the insurgents in the campaign. It is believed that this second proclamation is the original draft, which was not adopted by the Filipino congress at Maloloa.

The Filipino committees in Paris, Madrid and London telegraphed on Saturday to President McKinley. The Paris dispatch read: "We protest against the disembarkation of American troops at Iloilo."

The London telegram said: "Treaty of peace still unratified. American claim of sovereignty premature. Pray reconsider resolution regarding Iloilo. Filipinos wish for he friendship of America and abhor militarism and deceit."

The Filipino junta of Paris has received a telegram from the Filipino agent at Hong Kong, dated Saturday, saying: "Fight with Americans unavoidable. We are not the aggressors."

LAMP EXPLODED.

Causing a Lively Fire on Fayette Street.

The alarm from Box 52 at 7.55 Monday night called the department to what at first promised to be a lively fire in a house on Fayette street, Wollaston, owned by Samuel Brown and occupied by his son, Charles Brown. Mr. Brown had gone to the postoffice and Mrs. Brown, who was up stairs, had her atttenion called by the dog barking and by a crackling noise in the kitchen. She supposed at first that it was the water pipe, but upon going down stairs discovered that the bracket lamp in the kitchen had worked up and that a lively fire was in progress.

The alarm was immediately given but upon the arrival of the department the flames had spread to the dining room and the house was full of dense smoke. Quick work soon extinguished the flames, but not before much damage had been done, principally by water. The fire was the hottest in the kitchen and here the walls were badly burned. In the dining room the fire had worked behind the plastering and the ceiling had to be torn down before the flames could be extinguished.

Fortunately the flames did not reach the second story, but everything on the first floor was ruined by smoke, fire and water. No more water than necessary was used, the chemical stream being employed after entrance was gained to the house. Several of the firemen and Fire Marshal Adams had their hands cut by glass.

The damage to the house will be about $700, insured; and to the furniture about $500. Mr. C. R. Brown's policy on the furniture had expired about 10 days ago and unfortunately had not been renewed.

Waiting for Mr. Shaw.

The inquest on the dead burglar found at the residence of John Shaw Dec. 22, has not been completed as yet. The first continuance was until Monday to hear Mr. Shaw's testimony. NOT FOUL PLAY.

Medical Examiner Finds No Evidence Of It.

Further Delay In Investigation at Milan House.

His Niece Believes Him Guilty of Murder.

An autopsy was held Monday afternoon on the body of Mrs. Milan at Hall's undertaking rooms by Medical Examiner Gilbert assisted by Assistant Examiner Jones. Besides these there were present Dr. Hunting, and Dr. Hayford. Medical Examiner Gilbert, when seen after the operation, said there was no evidence whatever of foul play, and that fire was the cause of her death. There was no food in the stomach which went to show that she had not eaten anything Saturday. When asked if there was anything to show whether the woman had been drinking Dr. Gilbert said that there was no odor of liquor or anything to show that she had been drinking.

EARLIER THAN SUPPOSED.

One thing that has been remarked upon in regard to the case is the rigor of the body when taken in charge by the undertaker. This was at 5.30, and as it lacked but a few minutes of 4 o'clock when the alarm was given by Milan it was generally accepted that the death had taken place about that time. The physicians, however, say that no body would become as rigid in two hours as that of Mrs. Milan.

This being true, then the time of the accident or burning has not been fixed, for it may have taken place much earlier in the day, as it probably did. The sparks that Coligan and McCormick state that they saw may have been the woolen hose, which would naturally burn slow.

A closer examination of the body at the autopsy showed that it had not been burned but a little below the hips, and that the upper part of the body had suffered the most. It would also seem that the unfortunate woman, when she found herself on fire, had made a frantic but unsuccessful effort to remove her clothing by loosening it at the waist and letting it drop down, but the belt that was about the waist was still clasped although it had fallen down. It would also appear that she must have suffered untold agonies while trying to extinguish the fire.

EXAMINATION DELAYED.

It was intended to make an examination of the house after the autopsy, but it was dark before that was completed and the examination of the house was put off until this morning.

Today, up to noon, the medical examiner had not appeared and no examination had been made, as the police were waiting for him before they enter the house.

It is not believed that any facts will come to light other than now known, which will not come out until the trial Saturday.

MURDER CLAIMED.

This morning Miss Kinnemon, the neice of Mrs. Milan, appeared at the District court room in a half-crazed manner. She declared that Milan had murdered his wife as he had frequently threatened to do, and she wanted him hung until he was dead and if she could not have him hung she was going to Washington to see the President. The neice is a very rapid talker, and when excited as she was today it was next to impossible to understand all that she said.

Milan's cow has not been allowed to suffer and has been placed temporarily in the charge of Mr. McCormick. The dog is also being looked after and fed.

Council Committees.

Several new chairmen of City Council committees will be necessary this year, and many changes are probable.

Messrs. Freeman and Packard are all that is left of the Finance Committee, and both voted against the new president. It is probable that President Sidelinger will appoint his rival, ex-President Pinkham, as chairman of this important committee, but it may be ex-President Bryant.

Chairman Parker of the Street Committee declined a reelection to this Council, and it is quite possible that ex-President Bryant may head this committee, but this would give the chairmanship of the two most important committees to Ward Five, and therefore it may be Chairman Hultman or Swithin.

It will probably be Chairman Keith on the Public Building Committee as Ward Two expects to get a new school house this year, but Councilman Poland ranks first on members re-elected.

Councilman Badger of Ward Four ranks first on the committee on Sewers, and being a member at large and a very popular candidate at the polls, should have the place if he wants it.

Chairman Little of the Fire Department committee is also out this year and if Councilman Hultman does not get the Street chairmanship he is pretty sure to be at the head of this committee upon which he has given good service.

Councilman Freeman is likely to continue at the head of the Committee on Legislative Matters and Councilman Packard at the head of the Health Committee, and Councilman Clark may be advanced to chairman of the Committee on Ordinances.

It is important that the financial policy of the past year should be continued, so that the next few years, which have already more than their share of the maturing debt, shall be relieved. The appointments on this committee are therefore of the utmost importance.

In old times a fanciful idea was to make the opening of the hall door help to wind the clock; thus each arrival helped to keep it going.

MacQueen's Lecture.

A large audience assembled at Quincy Music hall Monday evening to hear the experience of Rev. Peter MacQueen, the war correspodent at Santiago and Port Rico. The lecturer is a finely educated gentleman, and with the aid of excellent stereopticon views, he gave the audience a much better idea of the country, the people and our soldiers than it was possible to obtain from any other source. It was an account of the seige of Santiago; the sickness, suffering, hunger and fever of the soldiers; the assaults on Spanish outposts, the heroic charge upon El Caney, the brilliant dash of Roosevelts Rough Riders, the heroism of Hobson and his men, the surrender of Santiago. Many of the pictures of soldiers and scenes were applauded, and the whole lecture was much enjoyed.

A Priest's Testimony.

San Francisco, Jan. 10.—Father Diaz, leader of the 10 Spanish priests from Manila, who are in this city on the way to Panama, says: "The Filipinos are not naturally warlike and would not now be opposing the United States were it not for the leaders who are spurring them on. These leaders are in the work solely for personal gain and would prove hard masters for the weaker portion of the natives should they gain the power. At Iloilo, where I was stationed, there would have been little fighting if it had not been for these malcontents, who fairly forced the natives to take up arms. Most of these men who are at the head of the insurgent movement are half-breeds. Aguinaldo is a crafty fellow and has a following among those people who hope to climb by his advancement. I do not consider Aguinaldo personally responsible for all the brutality shown our friars, yet he could have prevented a good portion of it if he had seen fit to do so."

De Castro Is "Too Fresh.

Havana, Jan. 10.—Senor De Castro, the civil governor of Havana, acts as though he had his former powers. He ordered the Hygenic hospital to be closed. General Ludlow, who had not been consulted in the matter, was displeased when he heard of the action taken and directed the hospital to be reopened. De Castro ordered the newspapers last week not to print certain business advertisements which were distasteful to him. General Ludlow will probably remove the civil governor.

Steel Works to Sell Out.

Bellaire, O., Jan. 10.—There is a deal under way here whereby the Bellaire Steel company will close out to the Federal Steel company. The proposition means about $2,300,000 for the local plant on a basis of 266 for the stock. The stockholders generally are giving options on their holdings at that figure.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

Quincy Representatives Get Poor Committees.

Representatives Sheppard and Sprague will serve upon but one committee each of the Legislature, and not very important ones in either case.

The Norfolk senators have fared very well. In the House three Norfolk county Representatives are chairmen of committees, and five will serve on more than one committee, as will be seen below.

Senator Williams of Brookline is chairman both of the Senate standing committtees on Judiciary and Rules, and is second on the joint standing committee on Banks and Banking.

Senator Woodsum of Braintree is a chairman of the joint standing committee on Water Supply, second on Manufactures, and third on Public Service.

Representative Sprague of Quincy is on the joint standing committee on Election Laws.

Representative Sheppard of Quincy on Public Service.

Representative Weston of Hyde Park on Metropolitan Affairs.

Representative Hawes of Weymouth, House chairman on Federal Relations and member of committee on Manufactures.

Representative King of Holbrook on Public Health.

Representative Drake of Canton on Federal Relations and also on Drainage.

Another Slate.

Almost daily new names are mentioned for city officials, but one gets very little reliable information. One of the slates is made up as follows:

City Clerk,—W. H. Sampson, Jr.
Chief Engineer of Fire Department,—Walter H. Ripley.
Chief of Police, — Thomas F. Ferguson.

Cuba Illustrated.

Those who attended the illustrated lecture given by Charles Mason Fuller of Boston at the Universalist church last evening on Cuba not only enjoyed a rich treat, but also carried away a considerable fund of new information respecting that island. Points of interest in all the chief cities and towns were visited; and pictures, illustrating the picturesque scenery—the condition and resources of the country—as well as many incidents in the late insurrection, were given and very cleverly described. The lecturer was perfectly familiar with his subject the descriptions were good, the views fine, and the lecture served the double purpose of instruction and amusement which is the great object of all such entertainments.

Quincy Court Officers.

Deputy High Chief Ranger Michael Dunican and suite installed the following officers of Quincy Court, 16, M. C. O. F., for the ensuing year:

C. R.,—Daniel F. Driscoll.
V. C. R.,—Hugh P. Tracy.

F. S.,—Robert E. Foy.
T.,—P. Ward.
S. C.,—Michael Sweeney.
J. C.,—William H. Taylor.
I. S.,—John F. Gearin.
O. S.—Murty Moynihan.

After installation refreshments were served.

Telephone lines use 12,000,000 pounds of copper yearly.

Chinese women may now be seen bicycling through the streets of Shanghai.

The Late Mrs. Ross.

A correspondent of a Braintree paper pays the following tribute to a native of Quincy:

On the first day of the new year under a pure white coverlet of snow—beautiful emblem of the life and character of the deceased—the body of Maria Louise Ross was tenderly and lovingly laid at rest in God's acre, Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

She will be missed for her seat will be empty in the home, in the sanctuary, in the friendly circle and in the larger social and religious gatherings in the community. Beloved as a wife, honored as a friend, respected as a neighbor, she has passed away, leaving a vacancy in many hearts and homes that never can be filled.

Mrs. Ross was born in Quincy in 1849 and a few years after graduating from the public schools she married W. A. Ross, a prominent citizen and manufacturer of Braintree, with whom she has lived in the sweetest and happiest relationship for over twenty-five years.

After a quarter of a century of wedded life such a union cannot be dissolved by death without great sorrow and intense suffering, and the sympathy of his many friends and fellow townsmen are with the bereaved husband in this the hour of his irreparable loss.

When but a young girl Mrs. Ross had the misfortune to lose her father who gave his life for his country in the great war of the rebellion, and was killed in the famous battle of Antietam, 1862.

Her mother and grandmother are still living and like Rachel of old will not be comforted because their daughter is not. Her affection and devotion for them was at all times most real and unselfish. Her love was tender and strong even unto death.

In fact, her last sickness was undoubtedly due to her constant service and sacrifice in behalf of those whom she loved and for whom she was willing to lay down her life. She has entered into the truth of the divine saying, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto me.

Mrs. Ross was a great lover of home. Her home was her castle. No other place was so dear to her as her own hearthstone.

She was no recluse. She loved society, but the society she loved best was found under her own roof. She was queen in her own realm with none to dispute her sovereignty. What her home was to those who shared its sweetness and light she made it. She was wife and mother even to her own husband, ministering to the necessities of his life with all the love of the one and all the devotion of the other.

By nature Mrs. Ross was singularly bright and hopeful. She was frank to a fault. Generous and kindly disposed toward all she nevertheless had a mind of her own and was quite capable of doing her own thinking.

Those who knew her best loved her most and the wide circle of friends that mourn her loss testify to her sterling worth as a woman.

In all the religious activities of her church she took a deep and a growing interest. Her absence from the sanctuary was rare. She loved the Courts of the Lord's House and was always a reverent worshipper. She was a great lover of singing. During the last few weeks of her life she met with the Choral Society and greatly enjoyed the weekly rehearsals. One can almost hear her now singing with her whole heart "Under the shadowy Palms, the shadowy Palms" and "On to Jerusalem go."

Little did we think a few weeks ago while listening to her voice that the dawn of the New Year would find her "to the new Jerusalem gone" to sit and sing under the shadowy palms.

At the funeral service, Sunday, Jan. 1, her pastor speaking to the mourning friends of the incidents of her sickness and death reminded them of three things which are full of comfort and that show with what joy she entered into rest.

First, what she saw. The kingdom of heaven opened and the angel of God beckoning her away. Second what she heard. A sound as of sweet singing that filled her soul with peace and illumined her countenance with "the light that never was on sea or land," and third what she said amid all the agony and pain incident to disease she sang "Nearer my God to Thee," and as she sweetly passed away she said as if responding to an invitation from the skies "I am coming, I am coming."

"We see but dimly through the mists and vapors
Amid these earthly damps
What seem to us but sad, funeral tapers,
May be heavens distant lamps.
There is no death, what seems so is transition,
This life of mortal breach
Is but a suburb of the life elysian
Whose portal we call Death.

The People's Course.

Editors Daily Ledger:

The subscriber would like to comment in the columns of the Ledegr on the excellence of the entertainments provided by the public spirited managers of the People's Course. Their commendable and disinterested efforts have been followed by the success they deserve. They are actuated solely by the rare and praiseworthy motive of public good: by furnishing to all, at a price within the reach of all, an entertainment at once entertaining and elevating. No one can tell how many young men are kept away from the gilded hells of sin, gambling, and vice in Boston by these atttractions on Saturday evenings at home. Here is one place where all met on the same footing of equality.

There is something peculiarly pleasing in thinking that two young men, who have the means to cater solely to their own selfish aims and desires, did they so wish, should take such an active interest in working for, and giving pleasure to, others. It shows that personal selfishness and social lines are not always all-powerful. It must inevitably result in increasing friendly feelings between those of different race, creed and color, and in overthrowing social distinctions based on false reasoning, which are so apt to be drawn, particularly by those whose early life and surroundings should by rights make them peculiarly willing to take a charitable view of the poverty, humble surroundings or honest toil of others. But it is a well recognized fact that those who socially live in glass houses throw the largest stones at the social houses of others.

With an apology to the managers for this public praise, and in the hope that their example will soften and encourage others to go and do likewise, I am,

Yours truly,
Equality.

Home of Henry Adams.

In a sketch of the homes of statesmen in Washington the Sunday Herald said:

The residence of Mr. Henry Adams, brother of Brooks and Charles Francis Adams, adjoins that of Secretary Hay. Four stories in height, with twin arches and climbing vines, it is a fitting abode for a member of the distinguished Massachusetts family. There are very many anecdotes in the air regarding Mr. Adams life here and his devotion to the creed of Theosophy. Whether or not these tales are authentic is but of little moment, but certain it is that, after the death of his wife, which occurred under the most tragic circumstances, he engaged St. Gaudens to execute a statue of heroic size representing "Nirvana, the Theosophist ideal of heaven and rest. This magnificent memorial is placed over the tomb of Mrs. Adams, in the Rock Creek cemetery, just outside of this city. According to the belief of the Theosophists, Nirvana, or death, designates a condition of complete rest and oblivion.

This is the fate of the multitude. To those, however, who in this life attained the highest degree of holiness and perfection, oblivion is not the end. A thorough emancipation of the soul is coupled with consciousness, and a complete oblivion and indifference to suffering. This is supposed to give absolute repose and was the ideal depicted by St. Gaudens. His figure of Nirvana is seated on a marble throne, half surrounded by towering pines, whose whispering in the wind adds melancholy to the scene. The sad bronze face and a portion of one arm are all that is visible of the body, heavy draperies of dark bronze concealing all else. As a work of art it is unchallenged, but the exceeding sorrow of face and posture suggests eternal melancholy rather than repose.

Since the death of his wife Mr. Adams has lived in marked retirement, passing most of the time among the books of his magnificent library.

Braintree Fortunate.

The taxpayers of Braintree will be glad to learn that the Water Commissioners, through their Counsel, Mr. Mellen, have collected from the bondsmen of the late Collector of the Water Board, $4,000; especially as an attempt has been made to lead them to believe the bond was no good. The bond which was in force from April 1897, to April 1898, was for $3,000 and was paid in full.

The bond running from April, '98 to April, '99, was also for $3,000, but during this time but a small portion of the defalcation occurred so that only $1,000 was collected on this bond. The amount that the taxpayers must lose if the commissioners are not able to collect from the estate of the late collector, will be the amount covered by the personal bond, which it is claimed was in force previous to 1897, but was given up to the bondsmen, and the amount of the defalcation in '97 which exceeded the amount of the bond.

Present making is very comon in Japan. All presents are wrapped up in paper, which is white for funerals and white with written characters for other occasions. Packages are tied with a special red and white string.

An Important Secret.

The secret is how Brazilian Balm can get to the seat of Catarrh, between the folds and in the deep, tortuous passages of the head, kill the microbes heal the running sores or ulcers and make a radical cure of this putrid and stubborn disease. In one the edges of the folds or curtains that hang from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and in health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the oder to the brain. When a cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swollen and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can fasten itself. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrain. If you have a cold in the head the use of Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from getting a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes running sores or ulcers on the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They rapidly multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passages clear up in behind the eyes. All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of pus into the throat, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressing Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the Balm as the Catarrh dissapears. Also the effects of Grippe however serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permanently cured by this wonderful balsam. Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

CANCER CURED
BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Senator Hoar's Opinion of "This Spasm of Folly and Delusion."

Wrong to Bring Philippines Under Our Sovereignty.

Argument Against Acquisition of Foreign Territory to Be Governed as Colonies.

Washington, Jan. 10. — The great speech of Senator Hoar of Massachusetts was the event of the day in Washington. It was a historic occasion in the senate. There was something impressive and almost solemn in the spectacle of the venerable, white-haired senator, pleading in defense of the principles of the country in opposition to the policy of the party with which he has all his life been identified.

It really looked an epoch-making occasion. Not probably since the days of slavery has such an important constitutional question come up, and this, together with Senator Hoar's fame as an orator and prestige as a statesman, was sufficient to crowd the senate chamber.

He was listened to with breathless attention. Even senators, who are often indifferent, no matter who is speaking, hung upon his every word. He seemed to realize that it was one of the greatest events of his career, and the speech was one of the best he ever delivered. It was one of the greatest heard in the senate for many years. The following is an outline of the speech:

Mr. Hoar said that our fathers, who framed the constitution, were the wisest builders of states the world has yet seen. They had studied ancient history and had learned that while there is little else that a democracy cannot accomplish it cannot rule over vassal states or subject peoples without bringing the elements of death into its own constitution. Our fathers, he said, learned two lessons from the history of Greece—the danger of disunion and domestic strife and an indulgence in the greed and lust of empires—and he hoped we might avert the latter danger as we had averted the former. In this connection, he quoted Professor Creasy as saying, in his "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World:" "There has never been a republic yet in history that acquired dominion over another nation that did not rule it selfishly and oppressively. There is no single exception to this rule either in ancient or modern times."

Mr. Hoar believed, he said, this country to be a nation—a sovereign nation. He believed congress possessed all the powers necessary to accomplish the great objects the framers of the constitution intended should be accomplished. But he denied that it possessed the "astonishing" and "extravagant" powers under the constitution which the senator from Connecticut (Mr. Platt) attributed to it.

Mr. Hoar then quoted Mr. Platt as saying: "As to every matter the United States as a nation possesses sovereign power, except only where sovereignty has been reserved to the states and the people."

And again, "as a nation it possesses every sovereign power not reserved in its constitution to the states or to the people. The right to acquire territory was not reserved, and is therefore an inherent sovereign right. In the right to acquire territory is found the right to govern it and as the right to acquire is a sovereign, inherent right, the right to govern is a sovereign right not limited in the constitution."

These propositions of Mr. Platt, Mr. Hoar expressly denied. He affirmed that every constitutional power is limited to the one supreme and controlling purpose declared in the constitution itself, "in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to our posterity."

When the senator from Connecticut undertakes to declare, said Mr. Hoar, that we may do such things not for the perfect union, the common defense, the general welfare of the people of the United States, or the securing of liberty to ourselves and our children, but for any fancied or real obligation to take care of distant peoples beyond our boundaries, not people of the United States, then I deny his proposition and tell him that he can find nothing either in the text of the constitution or the exposition of the fathers, or the judgment of courts from that day to this, to warrant or support his doctrines.

In support of his interpretation of the constitution, Mr. Hoar cited numerous authorities, among them Charles Sumner, Justice Matthews and Justice Brewer. He then appealed to senators who are hesitating as to what their action upon the question of expansion may be —"the greatest question that has ever been or ever will be put to them in their lives, the question, not of a year or of a congress, not of a generation, not of a century, but a question pertaining rather to the great period of a national life"—not to commit themselves in principle to such a policy by supporting the peace treaty and then say they will consider hereafter how they will act under it. "When you raise the flag over the Philippine Islands as an emblem of dominion and acquisition you take it down from Independence hall."

Mr. Hoar dwelt with emphasis upon the large increase in national expenditure which the policy of expansion advocated by Mr. Platt would entail, placing the amount at $150,000,000 annually.

He argued that the adoption of Mr. Platt's doctrine would reduce wages, increase taxation, place an armed soldier on the back of workingmen and by the act of the government every American dignity would be dishonored and his manhood discrowned.

In conclusion Mr. Hoar said he could not agree that the lesson of our first hundred years is that the declaration of independence and the constitution are a failure and that America is to begin the 20th century where Spain began the 16th. The Monroe doctrine is gone. Every European nation, every European alliance has the right to acquire dominion in this hemisphere when we acquire it in the other.

It may be, he thought, that in a tempest of popular delusion a cloud might for the moment cover the great truths of our declaration. He had encountered such storms in his experience, but the clouds had passed and the sunshine had come again.

Mr. President, this spasm of folly and delusion also, in my judgment, will surely pass by. Whether it pass by or no, I thank God I have done my duty, and that I have adhered to the great doctrines of righteousness and freedom, which I learned from my fathers, and in whose service my life has been spent.

Senator Platt of Connecticut followed Senator Hoar in a speech of considerable tartness, indicating that his feelings had been ruffled by the special attention the Massachusetts senator had given him. Mr. Platt first referred to it as an exhibition of "Massachusetts sarcasm." He then declared that the senator had created a straw man, which he had then proceeded to demolish. "He has not answered the argument I had the honor to make," said Senator Platt, but rather has misrepresented what I said. That issue is a false cry," he continued. "The liberal application of the senator's doctrine would have turned back the Mayflower from our coast. It would have prevented our movement toward the Pacific coast. We found here a race of people—the Indians—who did not want to be governed by us. What answer have you to make when the Indian raises his voice? You violated your Declaration of Independence when you attempted to govern him without his consent. It is the spirit of the Declaration of Independence which giveth life, and the letter which killeth. We shall not have done a great wrong to humanity if we extend over the people who reside in the territory we may acquire the principles which are the spirit of the Declaration of Independence.

The house reversed the decision of the committee of the whole last Friday when the appropriation for the support of the civil service commission was stricken out of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. In committee, where members do not go on record, the appropriation was stricken out by a vote of 67 to 61. When the roll was called the appropriation was restored, the motion to strike out being defeated, 95 to 119. The house, by special order, decided to proceed with the consideration of the naval personnel bill as soon as the bill for the codification of the laws of Alaska was out of the way. About 70 additional pages of the latter bill were covered, leaving almost 100 pages still undisposed of.

The Meat Inquiry.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Secretary Wilson has directed Chemist Wiley of the department of agriculture to purchase canned meat in the open market here, the products of the concerns which furnished it to the government during the war, and to make analysis of the cans' contents to determine if they were treated by chemicals. The inquiry is now in progress and prompt publicity will be given the results. Department officials are confident that the beef as furnished under the contracts was wholesome and pure, basing this confidence on the thorough investigation the government inspectors make.

Peace Commissioners Guests.

Washington, Jan. 10.—President and Mrs. McKinley gave an elaborate dinner at the White House last night, at which the members of the Paris peace commission were the guests of honor. Invited to meet them were the members of the cabinet, senators and representatives in congress and a number of officers of the army and navy who took prominent parts in the war, including Messrs. Shafter, Wheeler, Sampson, Schley and Evans.

Capitol Gleanings.

Senator Morgan offered an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill appropriating $1,133,841 for the Cherokee Indians, found due them by accounting officers of the United States.

Secretary Hay, who has been confined to his house for several days with a touch of the grip, is slightly better.

Mr. Hilborn of California introduced in the house a bill providing that in consideration of their services during the war with Spain the chiefs of the bureaus of the navy department, when retired from active service, shall continue to receive full pay.

Justice Brewer will sail from New York tomorrow to attend the meeting of the Venezuelan commission, of which he and Chief Justice Fuller are members.

Offended the Kaiser.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—The Paris Figaro was confiscated by the police throughout Germany yesterday on account of a caricature which it contained, copied from Puck, representing Emperor William of Germany in the guise of a "despised animal." Puck in its issue of Dec. 7 published a double-page cartoon by Pugh, representing all the crowned heads and entitled "The Threatened Revolt in the Jungle." Emperor William was represented as a boar.

Met All Demands.

Concord, Mass., Jan. 10.—There was a $30,000 run on the Middlesex Institution of Savings yesterday by out of town depositors, who became frightened because of a rumor that the bank held a large amount of paper of the Asabet Manufacturing company, which recently failed. The bank, which does not hold any of the company's paper, paid every one in full, and did not attempt to take refuge in the 30-day notice.

Ice In Bad Condition.

Albany, Jan. 10.—The prospects for a good ice crop in the upper Hudson are anything but encouraging. The river is full of dirty, gritty ice, bound together with the refuse from the lower Mohawk and the streams at the head of the Hudson, and it is doubtful if even this can be harvested, as it is held back by the gorge formed at the Abbey, about three miles below the city.

Bavarian Diplomat Dead.

Munich, Jan. 10.—The death is announced of the Bavarian former premier, Braysteinburg, who on Nov. 23, 1870, at Versailles, concluded the treaty by which Bavaria agreed to enter the confederation of northern Germany, immediately followed by the recognition of King William of Prussia as the head of the new empire.

IN BAD PREDICAMENT.

France Has a Hard Row to Hoe In Dealing With the Dreyfus Case.

London, Jan. 10.—The Paris correspondent of The Times says: Of all the scandal produced by the Dreyfus affair that of the resignation of Quesnay de Beaurepaire is certainly the greatest. What is beyond doubt is that the Nationalists, who have not had a single man whose name was imposing or whose ability was dangerous, now appear to have found a chief, although his aim is still far from clear. With de Beaurepaire leading the Nationalists and anti-Semites, Paul Deroulede leading the League of Patriots, and Godfrey Cavaignac at the head of the Patrie Francaise, the republic, if it escapes, will have a hard time.

The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail says: Revelations of various kinds tend to show that the members of the court of cassation are themselves divided into two fiercely opposed camps of Dreyfusards and anti-Dryfusards. Quesnay de Beaurepaire's explanation of the cause for his resignation will probably lead to the fall of the cabinet, since he complains bitterly of the way M. Lebret, the minister of justice, conducted the interview with him when he offered the minister a statement of the relations between M. Bard, of the criminal branch of the court of cassation, and Colonel Picquart.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says: The action of M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire in resigning is astonishing. He throws up one of the easiest and most honorable posts and the salary of £1000 a year, which might have gone on indefinitely, at a time of life when men cease to be fortunate if they plunge into new ventures. It is believed that he intends to stand for the senate, the academy, and, later, for the presidency of the republic.

Caustic Comment.

London, Jan. 10.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Graphic says: It really seems as if the Dreyfus affair can only move by earthquakes. Undoubtedly the action of M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire will precipitate a crisis which may prove the gravest the Dreyfus affair has yet involved.

Dreyfus Hasn't Confessed.

Paris, Jan. 10.—A telegram from Cayenne has been communicated to the court of cassation embodying the reply of Dreyfus to questions put to him by the public prosecutor there. Dreyfus energetically denies that he ever confessed that he was guilty to Captain Lebrun-Renault, in whose charge he was placed at the Ecole Militaire at the time of his condemnation and degradation, and he protests his innocence.

A Bold Robbery.

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 10.—At the house of Colonel Stephen H. Gale last night an unknown man suddenly confronted Miss Annie McGowen, the housekeeper, and after taking $3 from her knocked her down with a bottle. All the members of the family were away at the time, and Miss McGowen, hearing a noise in the front part of the house, went into the front hallway, where she met the robber. She screamed at once, but the man made her give him the $3 which she had, and then when she screamed again struck her a severe blow on the head with a beer bottle. Miss McGowen will probably recover.

Hawley's Friends Indignant.

Hartford, Jan. 10.—Friends of Senator Hawley are indignant at a dispatch sent out from Washington to the effect that they have given up expecting his re-election. They assert that they have no doubt whatever of his renomination. There are three candidates, Senator Hawley, ex-Speaker Fessenden and ex-Governor Bulkeley.

The Miser.

Many a man with his whole soul immersed in business and money-getting is like the miser whose spring door shut to and locked him in forever. Men work and slave and worry and get sick and broken down, forgetting all the time that health is worth more than that a happy, home is rather than great til they hear door of disease spring to and shut them off from all the bright hopes they labored for.

A sick man cannot be happy; he cannot accomplish the work he has to do in this world; he loses the very money he is striving for; his ambition defeats itself. Any man who discovers that his strength and energy are giving way has an unfailing means of regaining his physical health and stamina in the simple yet all-potent restorative power of that wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery" originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the world-famous specialist in diseases of the nutritive organism.

Among the thousands who have consulted him by mail the case of Mr. Newton B. Blake, of Tiplersville, Tippah Co., Miss., as shown in the following letter indicates the remarkable efficacy of his treatment: "In December 1895 my health began to fail. I tried many different kinds of medicines and the more I took the worse the disease grew. Finally in April when I was busy with the farm work my health got so bad that I could not hold out to work one hour. My breath became short and I was weak and nervous, and oftentimes would spit blood. I was unable to work. I tried one of the doctors in the vicinity but failed to obtain relief. I seemed to grow worse. My father received a book from Dr. Pierce in which I read of a case similar to mine, and decided to write to Dr. Pierce. He recommended me to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' After taking six bottles of this remedy I can recommend it as one of the best medicines to build up the system. I am now enjoying good health."

Torpid liver and constipation are surely and speedily cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They never gripe. They regulate, tone up and invigorate the liver, stomach and bowels. No substitute urged by mercenary dealers is as good.

IN THE TENTH ROUND.

Sharkey Proves His Superiority Over McCoy as Heavyweight Fighter.

"Kid" Gave a Marvelous Exhibition of Foot Work.

Sailor Got In Some Scientific Work After He Had "Found" His Man.

New York, Jan. 11.—At the Lenox Athletic club last night "Kid" McCoy, legitimately a middleweight pugilist, was knocked out by Tom Sharkey, a heavyweight, who now stands next to Robert Fitzsimmons, the champion pugilist of the world. Seven thousand spectators saw the fight.

McCoy, having great confidence in himself, went out of his class to meet a man whom he outclassed in science, but was not strong enough to finish.

It was a great fight from first to last.

SHARKEY IN BUSINESS ATTITUDE.

Nine rounds had been fought, with McCoy dancing around his big antagonist like a shadow. Sharkey had been knocked flat twice in the third round. From this point he had slowly grown strong again.

In the eighth round he landed a terrific punch on McCoy's solar plexus, and the latter bent up like a jackknife.

They came up for the 10th round gasping heavily. Their faces were blue with bruises. Their arms were wearied, their eyes blurred by the swift work. Sharkey's right eye was all but closed by the terrific and persistent jabs of McCoy.

"KID" M'COY.

Sharkey was a revelation to those who saw him a couple of years ago. His ring work and generalship were so vastly superior to his exhibitions when he first came to the east as a fighter, that the improvement was almost incredible. He displayed wonderful strength and quickness. A bunch of muscle, unlimited confidence and a cool head are the qualifications which have enabled Sharkey to fight his way to the front rank of heavyweight pugilists. He has met all the big fellows, and, with the exception of his fight with Jeffries, none of them has gained a decision over him.

In all his fights up to last night, McCoy showed that he was possessed of great ability in fistic work, and, despite the fact that he was soundly beaten last night, he is still the peer of any pugilist so far as ring generalship is concerned. His marvelous footwork and his long left jab are two factors that must always appeal to the lovers of the fistic art. He used every artifice known to the advanced school of pugilism in his contest last night. When he sent Sharkey to the floor twice in the third round, no one doubted the "kid's" ability to hit hard, and many thought that he had Sharkey at his mercy.

This idea was soon dispelled when the Irishman began to get to his man, and, taking everything into consideration, Sharkey's work stamps him as the toughest proposition that any aspiring heavyweight pugilist can try to solve.

McCoy kept slipping to the right in the 10th and ran into a clinch, where he held Sharkey without a blow being struck. Sharkey played for the body, but McCoy guarded himself effectively. Again Sharkey turned his attention to the body and landed on the ribs with his left. Then Sharkey turned his attention to the upper works, with McCoy sprinting to the right, with Sharkey having a decided advantage. The sailor let fly both left and right, landing on the body, and forced McCoy to the east end of the ring. McCoy faltered and Tom caught him with a left swing on the neck. McCoy fell to the floor of the ring with his head hanging over the lowest of the three ropes, looking imploringly around. He lay there helpless while the referee counted 10 seconds, after which he struggled to his feet and Sharkey, not knowing that the limit had expired, rushed at him once more, this time swinging his right on the neck just below the jaw. McCoy falling again. Then McCoy seemed to be in a helpless condition, but Referee Hurst did not trouble himself counting seconds, but waved his right hand to Sharkey to retire to his corner, saying at the same time: "I counted McCoy out on the other fall; you've won."

McCoy struggled to his feet and staggered to his corner, where his seconds were already awaiting him, and they placed him on the stool, while Sharkey's adherents almost smothered him with embraces and congratulations. Time of round, 1 minute 13 seconds.

"I never had any doubt of the result," Sharkey said in his dressing room after the contest. "All these boxers look alike to me. I think McCoy is a cleverer man and a harder puncher than Corbett, and if ever they meet, I will pick the "kid" to win. I'm not going to chase Fitzsimmons, I'm going to take a rest, but any time Fitz is ready I'm ready. I'm the champion now."

McCoy's worst enemy would have pitied him could he have seen him in his dressing room after the contest. He was crying like a big boy, and bemoaning his fate. "Is pretty hard," the "kid" said, "to get right to the top of the ladder and then be thrown down so hard. Those punches in the wind in the eighth round beat me. When I got them I knew it was all over. They took all the strength out of me. Sharkey was too strong for me. I'll have to wait a while before I pick up the heavyweights, but I am ready to box Ryan or any other man for the middleweight championship, and I would like to have a go with Corbett. Sharkey won fairly. I did the best I could, and $5000 of my own money, which I bet on myself, is proof that I was confident of victory."

Will Be World's Biggest.

New York, Jan. 11.—The World says that the new ice manufacturing concern incorporated at Trenton has bought 125 acres with 1200 feet of water front at Annandale, Staten Island, and will begin immediately the erection of an ice manufacturing plant, which will be five times larger than any in the world. The capacity will be 1000 tons a day. E. B. Ayers, of the incorporators, is authority for the statement that $1,000,000 already has been paid in, and a proposition has been made to increase the capitalization to $5,000,000. By locating on Staten Island the company expects to save $70,000 a year in water rents and interest on real estate.

Taffy For Spaniards.

Havana, Jan. 11.—General Maximo Gomez, addressing a meeting of Spanish residents on Sunday at Caibarien, said: "Here is 'the old Chinaman, (referring to his nickname), the incendiary, the fellow who cuts off heads. But really all that was much exaggerated. I have made war against Spain, not against the Spaniards, whom I respect and desire to see united with the Cubans, that all together may finish the work that is now approaching an end. Spaniards and Cubans ought to embrace each other, forgetting the bitterness which is already passed, never to return. All should unite to make Cuba free and independent."

Will Abide by Decision.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 11.—Lieutenant Colonel Ames of the Sixth Massachusetts regiment returned from Porto Rico yesterday. In an interview with regard to the colonelcy of the Sixth regiment he said: "I have been with the officers of the Sixth regiment for six months and know them personally to be equal to regulars in the service and fully capable of electing their colonel. Whatever action they may take in regard to this matter will be entirely satisfactory to me."

Coming Up Again

Albany, Jan. 11.—The court of appeals yesterday reversed the judgment of $43,000, secured by William R. Laidlow, Jr., against Russell Sage, and ordered a new trial. Laidlow was in Sage's office at the time of Norcross' attempt on Sage's life and he secured the judgment on the ground that Sage used him as a shield against the effects of an explosive.

Kean to Succeed Smith.

Trenton, Jan. 11.—The Republicans of the legislature held a joint caucus yesterday and unanimously selected ex-Congressman John Kean to be elected United States senator in place of James Smith, Jr., a week from next Tuesday.

TO DEFEAT JUSTICE.

President of Cassation Court Conspiring Against That Tribunal.

Its Fairness Sure to Be Impeached In Advance.

Undignified Method of Appealing to Populace Through Irresponsible Newspapers.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The Dreyfus affair has now entered one of its bitterest chapters. Accusations, vituperations and threats are raging in the cafes and among the scores of boulevard sheets, many of which have found their sole reason for existence for months past in the unhappy strife they foment.

It is regarded by impartial observers as the most dangerous factor to the institutions of the republic the affair has yet developed that the president of one of the chambers of the court of cassation should assume the role of a leader of the agitation against the tribunal, declaring that 16 of his colleagues are conspiring to defeat the ends of justice. The method he employs of appealing to the populace through the newspapers, in the eyes of the most conservatice, aggravates his course by its lack of dignity. It is evident that he, believing that the court of cassation will decide in favor of Dreyfus, intends to divest the decision of all weight by impeaching its fairness in advance; and he seems likely to succeed, so far as the anti-Dreyfusards, many of whom have hitherto respected the court, but are only eager to find excuses for discrediting it, are concerned.

The opinion is gaining ground that the opponents of the republic may find in this man, Quesnay de Beaurepaire, a leader, the lack of whom has hitherto been the chief guarantee of the continuance of the present regime.

M. De Beaurepaire today contributes to the papers another rhetorical denunciation of the court of cassation. He exhorts the government to take the Dreyfus case from the hands of the criminal chamber and to entrust it to the 49 magistrates composing the whole court or to five of the oldest justices. He appeals to the Dreyfusards: "Repudiate M. Loew and the others who serve you too well not to serve you badly. Accept instead magistrates without preconceived opinions, men who are honest and slaves of the law."

The gist of M. De Beaurepaire's charges is that Bard and Loew conferred with Picquart privately in an ante-room and also instructed the clerk of the court to express to him the court's regret at having kept him waiting and being unable to hear him that day, which the clerk refused to do, requesting a messenger to take Picquart a glass of wine.

The Matin asserts that when General Billet (former minister of war) was before the court drink was offered him also. To such trifles has the strife descended. The papers heatedly affirm and deny the statements as to Billet, who has been appealed to to settle the matter, but he refuses to speak.

It is believed that only 15 judges in the whole court have Dreyfus leanings, so that the heading thus far is to the advantage of the anti-Dreyfusards.

Conference of Importance.

London, Jan. 11.—The Manila correspondent of The Morning Post says: There was an important conference last evening between duly authorized American and Filipino commissions at the instance of Aguinaldo. The latter appointed General Flores, Colonel Aquilles and Senor Torres. Major General Otis appointed General Hughes, Colonel Smith and Judge Advocate Crowder. General Otis said the purpose of the conference was a mutual understanding of the policies, aims and desires of the people of the United States and of the Philippines. There was a frank discussion.

Why He Resigned.

London, Jan. 11.—The queen will grant an annuity of £3500 to former Justice Hawkins, who recently resigned from the exchequer division of the high court of judicature and has since been elevated to the peerage. The annuity is regarded as in the nature of an inducement to Hawkins to leave the bench, where he had lingered years after the bar thought he should give way to a younger man. When he retired it was rumored that he was only persuaded by something in the nature of a bribe.

Granite Shoe Store—Dolls' day.

Good Afternoon.

The lodges of fraternal insurance orders in Quincy will be pleased to learn that they are not included under the ban of Governor Wolcott in his inaugural. It is only the assessment insurance companies which he criticised.

Our Representatives in the Legislature must show their metal upon the floor of the House now that they did not receive important positions on committees and thus prove to the speaker that he made a mistake and then they will fare better upon their reelection next year.

About a million dollars in specific appropriations are required of the Legislature this year to meet maturing loan and sinking funds. What a saving of interest there would be if we could pay as we go, and how much the State could accomplish with the amount thus annually expended.

The Committee on Election Laws of the Legislature, of which Representative Sprague is a member, may not after all be such an unimportant committee. It has already in hand a bill changing the time for the municipal elections in the city of Boston from December to the Tuesday after the first Monday in November. This would bring the State and city elections together, and if it is granted to Boston, will probably be extended to all cities.

John Hancock, whose birthday will be observed tomorrow was not only the first signer of the Declaration of Indepedence but he was the first Governor of Massachusetts under the constitution. He was in the executive chair when the Legislature incorporated the town of Quincy and signed the act year Hancock was the unanimous choice of Quincy for reelection but it February 22, 1792. In the fall of that will surprise many to learn that only 51 votes were cast.

FRUITLESS SEARCH.

No More Light on the Milan Tragedy.

Nothing to Connect Milan With the Burning.

Prisoner to be Given a Hearing on Saturday.

Chief of Police Litchfield and Assistant Medical Examiner Jones made a thorough examination of the Milan house, Tuesday afternoon, but it revealed nothing that would tend to show how the unfortunate woman's clothing took fire or to in any way connect Milan with the burning.

In the back kitchen, where it is supposed the fire started, there was nothing that gave any indication that kerosene oil had been used. There was no oil on the floor and none about the room, except a small quantity in the oil can before mentioned.

In the back room or L was a five-gallon can partly full, and more or less oil had run about the floor. It appeared that the Milans had kept their main supply of oil here.

The stick of wood in the stove was slightly burned at the lower end but the end that protruded out of the stove was not even charred or blackened, as it would have been had oil been used in the stove. If oil had been used in the stove and not been ignited the stick of wood, it is thought it would have left some trace behind it after the oil had burned off.

The towel that has been mentioned was found on the floor, and there was nothing about it to show that it had any connection with the unfortunate woman, for it was not even scorched.

In the pantry was a large pot of baked beans and on the table was a Washington pie which goes to show that some preparations had been made for food. In the pantry there was also two whiskey bottles both empty.

No evidence of any struggle was visible, and after spending an hour in the search the police were as much in the dark as to how the affair happened as on the day they were first called into the case. It looks now as though this case would go on the books with that of the unknown burglar as unsolved mysteries.

In both cases the police have done all possible to unravel the mysteries. They have done all that could be suggested, but in both cases they have been confronted with scarcely a clue upon which to work. If Quincy is to be treated to many more such affairs, the police will soon have to open a book of unsolved mysteries.

Milan will be given a hearing Saturday, and among the witnesses summoned are Mr. McCormick, Mr. Colligan, Miss Kenniman and her brother, and the medical examiner.

Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 8.

Commencing at midnight Jan. 5 and continuing throughout Friday was one of the severest rain storms which the 5th has experienced since our encampment in Greenville. At 5.45 A. M. Friday an electric storm set in which lasted a little over three quarters of an hour. The peals of thunder and streaks of lightning were of the strongest kind. Our camp site, although situated on a high hill, soon became the scene of a flood, making it necessary for some companies to construct rafts to travel from tent to tent. Our tents which are of the best quality of canvas duck, issued by the State of Massachusetts, and one of the best contructed tents now in use by the volunteers, soon became practically useless. The force of the rain beating on the canvas, sent the water pouring through, causing a number of men to vacate their quarters. After the rain abated, there arose a high wind, which nearly carried the men's quarters skyward. It pulled up lots of tent pegs and blew down a number of stove pipes. The storm abated about 2 P. M. Friday so that once more calm reigns.

Saturday was to have been our fete day, called "Massachusetts Day," but on account of the inclemency of the weather on the previous day, it was necessary to postpone until next Wednesday. At noon the regiment accompanied by our regimental band, will give a fine review to the citizens of Greenville. The route of march will be through the principal streets of the town. After the parade there will be sports in the afternoon, concluding at night with a grand display of fireworks. This will probably be our last chance to give the citizens a review, for we are daily expecting orders to remove to some new camp.

Privates Tucker and Mead left yesterday on a 14-days' furlough, having been fortunate in securing the same as new orders have just gone into effect forbidding the issuing of furloughs and discharges.

Private Piravano arrived in camp yesterday having been absent from his company on a furlough.

Private "Jack" Gallagher, better known as "Grab," had the pleasure to receive a letter, written by some unknown hand. It was very interesting, as it contained a piece of poetry which brought in the names of well known K men. Messrs. McGrath, Matthews, Logan and Gallagher were the butts for many jokes.

Private Ross has resigned his position as chief engineer over the mess house stoves, and taken charge of the company's filters instead.

Private Fred Newcomb now holds the proud position resigned by Private Ross.

Today, Sunday, is as pleasant a day as any of us could wish for, the sun shining bright, with a temperature of 72 degrees. The nights and mornings are often extremely cold. Some nights we have heavy frosts while ice is plentiful. All pay rolls have returned so that by tomorrow, Monday, the regiment expects to be favored by a friendly visit of the paymaster.

Corporal Foster, who for a number of months has been in the division hospital sick, is pleased to inform his many friends that he will be released in about two weeks. The corporal is gaining every day. We as members of K company, are anxious for his speedy recovery and return.

But for a few colds, the boys are in good health. Volunteer.

Did Santa Claus Forget Dolly? Why, what a shame! Well, we haven't forgotten her. We are to have a at our store.

Granite Shoe Store,
QUINCY.

We have arranged to give every girl in Quincy who, accompanied by a parent, brings her doll to the store on Saturday, a pair of genuine "Vici Kid" Slippers for the little play-child's feet. No matter how big the doll or how little, we have a pair of slippers ready for its feet.

Do you wonder why we give away doll's slippers of real Vici Kid—the best and costliest Kid that goes into shoes? Of course you do. Something for nothing isn't the usual way. It isn't the way with these Vici Kid slippers, either.

There is but one genuine Vici Kid. Mr. Robert H. Foerderer produced that kid and named it. There are many imitations. We want every girl and every woman to know exactly what the genuine Vici looks like and feels like. Then the men will all know, too.

And so we make these dolls' slippers, knowing well that in her play-talk dolly will tell how soft and easy they are, and the little girl and all the house will see how handsome and tough they are—what a perfect shoe leather they are made of. This will make them all ask for Vici Kid Shoes for themselves, and make them insist upon getting the genuine.

THAT is why these dainty slippers are so gladly given away; they carry the story and the fact of Vici Kid into every house they enter.

Bring the dolly, big or little. If we haven't a fit ready for her, we'll make the slippers to order.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

POLICE HESITATE.

Unwilling to Make Arrests on Suspicion in the Poisoning Case.

New York, Jan. 11.—The police had nothing new to say about the Adams poisoning case yesterday, and did not apparently contemplate making any arrests. District Attorney Gardiner, however, reviewed the case at length, and of its general features spoke freely. Speaking of his conference with Chief Devery, Gardiner said he met the chief and Captain McCluskey by appointment and went over with them carefully the whole case, as prepared by the police. He learned what they had done and what they proposed to do. He said he was not at liberty to say what was the important link that was missing, "as it might put the parties on their guard."

"Do you mean by parties that there are more than one suspected?"

"That I am not at liberty to say. This poisoning act was committed with great premeditation and deliberation, and the guilty parties made every effort to conceal their identity. Consequently the case has taken the shape of an intricate and difficult police problem, requiring the highest form of detective talent and industry. While there are grave suspicions, no one can lawfully be arrested on suspicion. The evidence in the possession of the police does not justify an arrest, and so long as I have any authority I will not permit the stigma of an arrest for murder to rest on any citizen unless I think I can convict the person of the crime."

Deal Fell Through.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The latest deal in connection with the much-talked-of sale of the Chicago and Alton road has fallen through. Under the terms arranged with the Vanderbilt-Rockefeller syndicate the time allowed for the delivery of the majority of the stock has expired, but the would-be sellers failed to secure control of a majority and were, therefore, unable to make delivery. The offer made by the syndicate for a majority of the stock was 175 for common and 200 for preferred stock.

Seized Costumes and Scenery.

New York, Jan. 11.—Justice Nash, in the supreme court, refused to grant the motion made on behalf of Benjamin P. Cheney, Julia Arthur's rich husband, to vacate the attachment for $5000, secured by Theodore Moss, the proprietor of Wallack's theater, against the Julia Arthur company. A. H. Hummel, who is Moss' attorney, on receiving the attachment, promptly seized the scenery and costumes owned by Miss Arthur and her company which were in the theater.

Cold Off Cape Cod.

Chatham, Mass., Jan. 11.—A heavy northwest gale, accompanied by a severe cold wave, made yesterday one of the hardest of the winter off Cape Cod. The cold snap came on so suddenly that a number of vessels were caught outside, and a few ran in under Chatham beach for a lee. Those who were outside and felt the full effects of the gale iced up rapidly, so that the day must have been one of great suffering for the seamen.

One of the James Gang.

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 11.—The man Jennings, under arrest for complicity in the robbery of the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis passenger train at Macomb last Wednesday night, has been positively identified by a Kansas City detective as Ryan, who was a member of the outlaw gang led by Frank and Jesse James in Kentucky years ago. When Jennings was searched yesterday $250 was found sewed up in his clothes.

Must Pay the Penalty.

Albany, Jan. 11.—The court of appeals has denied a new trial to Mrs. Martha Place of Brooklyn, sentenced to death for the murder of her stepdaughter, Ida Place, whom she smothered on Feb. 7 last. This refusal to grant a new trial means the sentence of death shall be carried out and the woman electrocuted. She will be the first woman in this state to suffer the death penalty in the electric chair.

A Rise In Coal.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 11.—A long-expected raise in coal prices has been agreed upon by the local dealers. The price has been fixed at 25 cents per ton higher on all grades except stove and soft. This advance follows as a result of the loss of many carriers during the recent November blizzard. Sailing masters are now demanding and getting tonnage rates much higher than they have been for many years.

Tobacco Growers Meet.

Hartford, Jan. 11.—At the ninth annual convention of the New England Tobacco Growers' association the following officers were elected: Horace S. Frye, president; T. S. Graves of Hatfield, Mass., vice president; Samuel C. Harden of Glastonbury, secretary and treasurer. Resolutions against the annexation of the Philippine islands were adopted.

Opposed to Bounties.

St. John's, Jan. 11.—Premier Winter started last night for Washington to attend the sessions of the joint high commission for the settlement of questions in dispute between Canada and the United States. It is understood that he will decline to agree to any fishery arrangement involving bounties to American fishermen or the American mercantile marine.

Warden From Minnesota.

Hartford, Jan. 11.—It is announced that the directors of the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield have unanimously elected Henry Wolfer, at present warden of the Minnesota state penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn., to succeed Jabez L. Woodbridge as warden. Wolfer was notified by telegram of his appointment, and he at once wired his acceptance.

Robbed Employers.

Boston, Jan. 11.—Frank J. Morris, a messenger boy for Jordan, Marsh & Co., was arrested yesterday for the alleged larceny of $1000 worth of rings and watches from his employers. He gave part and finally the whole of it to a friend, Frank Conkey. Officers recovered $970 worth of the jewelry and arrested both boys.

Steam Pipe Cracked.

New York, Jan. 11.—The American line steamer St. Paul, which sailed from Southampton Jan. 1, at noon on Jan. 3 found a crack in main steam pipe of starboard engine, necessitating the running of both engines at 100 pounds pressure, or half speed, during the remainder of the voyage.

A SOUTH SEA KING.

Scotchman Who Is Absolute Ruler of an Island Kingdom.

The average romance is as dreary as a patent office report in comparison with the life story of George Clunies Ross, king of the Keeling Cocos islands, who recently visited this country while on his way to England. He is a matter of fact looking man of Scotch parents and is absolute ruler of an island kingdom in the Indian ocean. Over 700 persons of various colors and nationalities recognize his word as law.

About midway between Java and Australia is the Keeling Cocos group. There are 18 of the islands, one of which is Christmas island, discovered by Captain Cook, the old time navigator.

In 1823 Captain Clunies Ross, grandfather of the king, commanded the frigate Borneo in the expedition of Sir Stafford Roffles against Java. On the return from that expedition Captain Ross discovered the islands and claimed them as his own. They were handed down from father to son, and they were the heritage of the present king. The latter is a British subject, but he says that in the islands his authority is absolute.

"I went out to Keeling Cocos to make my living," says King Ross. "I took with me 13 families from South Africa. There are now 800 descendants from them. Then I took in the inhabitants from other islands. I have two or three schooners there, which are manned by Europeans, mostly Norwegians. They have also become my subjects. Every married man receives three acres of ground, his house and a garden. This encourages matrimony and also thrift. We have no police, no prisons, no taxes. The health of the people is as nearly perfect as possible. The climate is delightful."

King Ross is now in England consulting with the colonial secretary as to England's desire to fortify Christmas island. He may grant the request, and he may not.

OWES 1,000 KISSES.

Kansas Girl Bet Them on Simpson's Re-election and Lost.

This is Miss Lucy Withers, the Kansas girl who bet 1,000 kisses that Congressman Jerry Simpson would be re-elected and who lost her bet. She is paying up in installments of 20 kisses a week, or at least that is the arrangement.

This is the way the wager came to be made: Miss Withers is a pretty young woman of 20. She lives with her mother, who is a widow, in Golden, a lively little prairie town in the district which was represented for some time in congress by Jerry Simpson. Miss Withers teaches school.

A few evenings before election she met at a social gathering Harold Owens, a young and prosperous ranchman. They talked politics. Owens said that Simpson didn't stand a ghost of a show for re-election. Miss Withers said that

MISS LUCY WITHERS.

Jerry was sure to win. Owens said he had $1,000 worth of steers which he would wager on the result. Miss Withers said she had in stock 1,000 kisses, worth $1 apiece, which she would risk. Owens accepted, and thus the bet was made.

The agreement was duly recorded in the minds of those present, and Mr. Owens now calls upon the witnesses to remember the contract, for Simpson was defeated, and the "schoolmarm" owes 1,000 kisses to the dashing ranchman. He proposes to collect them at the rate of 20 per week for 50 weeks, or nearly a year, but he will not urge that there be any witnesses to the payments.

Miss Withers has announced that she will not go back on her agreement, but will pay up promptly every week.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is transmitted by contagion and not hereditiy. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) adopts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power, a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encouraging to "consumption families." It is not hereditary, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ-laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumption patient should never expectorate when it can dry up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air passges. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis, thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tissues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. Sold by druggists. B. F. Jackson & Co., Mfg. Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

STRENGTH IS WANING.

Feverish Desire For "Land Grabbing" Un-American, Says Senator Mason.

A Few Hints on Modern Methods of "Civilization"

In Which We Are Reminded That All Our Institutions Are Not Above Reproach.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Senator Mason's speech yesterday against expansion was pretty pungent. The features which created an especial sensation were his inquiry whether, now that Dick Croker has come out for civilizing the Filipinos, we had not better send Croker himself on the mission of civilization, and his proposal that we make over Lincoln's Gettysburg address. In spite of the supposed unpopularity of Mr. Mason's course, a ripple of applause went around the galleries at his close, and senators flocked around his chair to congratulate him.

In the course of his speech the senator said: "For over 100 years every lover of liberty has pointed to this sentence of the Declaration of Independence: 'That all just powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed,' as a reason for their fight for liberty. This sentence has been a pillar of fire by night and has stirred the hearts of the oppressed all over the world. In the light of this sentence crowns have fallen into dust, and the foundation of republics have been laid. You ask for expansion. See how we have expanded in the time since this sentence was written. Not only have republics started up in place of monarchies, but monarchies have themselves gradually broadened into constitutional governments, getting nearer and nearer to the voice of the people.

"Our own was the first great republic, and in the better and broader sense our flag floats from the dome of every republic. From Brazil to Nicaragua and Venezuela, the brave little republican flag is floating. It may not be striped nor starred, like our own, but it is born of the spirit of our spirit wherever it floats, and it breathes defiance to the monarchies of the world, because our flag is in our sky and because the Monroe doctrine is writen forever in the hearts of the people

"The other day, when the distinguished senator from Massachusetts asked the senator from Connecticut (Platt) what he was going to do with the sentence that "All just powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed," he answered, "from the consent of some of the governed."

"Mr. President, when any great cause which is agitating the minds of the people needs for its defense such shallow and un-American evasions as this that cause will not live long in the minds of intelligent people.

"The Filipino is begging to treat with us as to his own land. He acknowledges our gallant service. There is no honest commercial treaty that an honest nation could ask that they are not willing to consent to. They won liberty as we did, and when 70,000,000 people have heard their cry for mercy and independence the father in New England will plead for the father in Manila; the mother in Illinois will pray for the poor mother in the islands of the sea; the fathers will vote as the mothers pray; the poisoned view of selfishness will have had its run and God help the party that urges war on the native who defends only his liberties and his home.

"Ah! Mr. President, have we got to fight and plead for these people as we did for Cuba? Are we to hear Aguinaldo and his followers called robbers and cutthroats, as we heard of the brave Garcia and his followers wihin the last 12 months in this chamber? Why not make them our friends forever, instead of our enemies. Why stingily withhold the jewel of independence; why not finish this war as we begun it—for humanity's sake? Why not with a free and open hand give to them what we have promised to give to Cuba? Then we have kept our promise; then have we bound them to us by bands stronger than steel, and then can we answer the slanders of Europe, who called us land grabbers."

Referring to the statement that the Americans intended to give the Philippines liberty, Senator Mason said: "How is this liberty to be established? Is it to be done hypodermically, with a 13-inch gun? Are not our men and ships lying off Iloilo? Did not the natives who were our allies drive the Spaniards out? Are they not in possession of their own land, their own homes? Having worn the Spanish yoke so long, do you wonder at their fear of ours? Shall we shoot them and burn their homes because God Almighty has planted in their hearts and on their lips the sweet song of liberty? Forbid it, Almighty God!

"But we are told that we must civilize them. Which part of our civilization shall we give them first? Shall we show them how to run municipalities with boodle aldermen? I see the chief of that great ethical society, known as Tammany hall, says keep the islands; shall we send him to teach the untaught Filipino cleanliness in municipal politics? Shall we teach them to worship money or the man who has it? Shall we have special instructors to teach them how to kill postmasters and their wives and children because of their complexions? Shall we have illustrations showing in large pictures the works of our mobs within the last 90 days in North Carolina, South Carolina and Illinois? Shall we teach them how to organize trusts so that one or two men can raise the price of the necessaries of life to all the people? Shall we amend and print Lincoln's Gettysburg speech so that it will read, 'A government of all of the people, by a part of the people, for a few of the people?'

"Gentlemen may say I belittle our own institutions. Oh, no, I simply call attention to the beam in our own eye, to prevent, if possible, our breaking our neck trying to find the mote in the eye of the Filipino 10,000 miles away.

"Have we the right to purchase sovereignty? And if we have such a right, have we the right to purchase it from Spain, who had no right and whose title we had already discredited among the nations of the world? If we purchase the Spanish title of sovereignty, would we have the true title?

"Who wants to govern the Philippine islands? Who among us wishes to vote for laws here to govern them, 10,000 miles away? I never saw their homes, I never spoke with one of them, and I don't know their language, I could not live in their climate, I don't know their institutions. Who is there here on this hill in Washington, I say, to write laws to govern these people, whose very language we do not understand?

"Ah, Mr. President, the fever has been upon us. Thank God, I believe the crisis is past. The people have been lashed into fury by the press. The glorious achievements of our army and navy have set the national pulse beating high, but the land grabbing fever is gradually receding and the unnatural, un-American desire to govern another without his consent, thank God, is not so strong today as it was but a few days since.

"Mr. President, I am through. I do not expect to escape bitter criticism. I have seen so much of sacrifice on the part of others in all of the past for the cause of liberty that I would for it sacrifice my seat among you, in which I take great honor, as cheerfully as I would part with a crust of bread.

"I have wished for that magnetic strength that would help me to burn within your hearts the sacred word of liberty, not Spanish liberty for Cuba, not liberty for you prescribed by me, not liberty for me prescribed by you; not English liberty for America, not American liberty for the Philippines, but liberty universal for which our fathers died."

The Nicaraguan canal bill was discussed by Mr. Turley of Tennessee, who opposed the pending measures. An agreement was reached to consider the bill on Tuesday with 15 minutes to discuss each amendment.

The house devoted its undivided attention again to the bill for codification of the criminal laws of Alaska, and when adjournment was had all but 10 pages of the bill had been disposed of.

Saw No Bad Beef.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Lieutnant Colonel Gallagher, who was in charge of the commissary depot at Shafter's headquarters before Santiago, reappeared before the war investigating committee yesterday. During his incumbency, he said, he issued about 380,000 pounds of refrigerator beef. t was carefully inspected, and was all fine meat. He said about 4200 pounds of beef was condemned by a board of survey, after it had reached the camps, which were from two to six miles from the transports. The meat deteriorated between the transports and the camps. He considered the refrigerator beef certainly as good as any native beef that could be had in Cuba. When troops were far in the interior, he should recommend furnishing them with beef on the hoof. Regarding the canned "roast" or boiled beef, he said it was good, though not particularly attractive, and our men soon tired of it. The Spanish prisoners and the Cubans liked it, preferring it to bacon. Captain James C. Reid, commissary of substance in the volunteers, described in detail his experience on the transport Massachusetts, which delivered a large cargo of refrigerator beef at Porto Rico and Santiago. He said the beef was of fine quality, and was perfectly good so long as witness had anything to do with it.

Took Up a Collection.

Albany, Jan. 11.—At the meeting of the state Federation of Labor here yesterday, President Pierce of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor gave a brief account of the Marlboro boot and shoe makers' strike, and which has called him into this state in the interest of the strikers. Organized labor of Massachusetts, he said, had been drained to keep these idle men, women and children alive, for the laboring men were convinced that if the employes could hold out but a few weeks longer their demand would be complied with. President Pierce closed his speech with an appeal to the delegates for financial aid for the starving workingmen of unhappy Marlboro. A collection was taken up, which netted $34.

Bondsmen Must Settle.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 11.—In the supreme court yestreday a decree was entered declaring the bonds of J. C. Moore, as guardian of the estate of Nina Brookhouse, a minor, to be forfeited. Moore is now in the state prison. When Miss Brookhouse became of age her property was not forthcoming. The bondsmen, the late ex-Governor Weston, Alonzo Elliott, Frank Dowst and Mrs. Cora Brookhouse, will have to settle. Most of the property is supposed to have gone the way of the other moneys in Dr. Moore's hands. It is claimed that Miss Brookhouse's property amounted to between $40,000 and $45,000, but these figures will be disputed by the bondsmen.

Lovers' Sad Fate.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 11. — George Josephs, aged 17, and May Schminkey, aged 18, were victims of Monday's railroad wreck at West Dunellen, N. J. They were eloping to New York to be married, their parents having objected to the alliance owing to their extreme youth. Both were of respectable and prominent families.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M. the well-known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

REASONS ARE SECRET.

Government Forced Into Its Present Attitude Toward the Philippines.

President Desires Their Ultimate Independence.

Senator Foraker Speaks on Expansion From Administration's Point of View.

Washington, Jan. 12.—"Neither the president nor anyone in this chamber desires anything but the ultimate independence of the Philippines. The complications, which senators will learn in executive session, justified the president's course. We decided to take possession until the people are ready and capable of self-government. Our occupation was not to be permanent. The people of the Philippines are to be given an opportunity to govern themselves."

The above were the principal sentences in a speech delivered by Senator Foraker yesterday, when a climax was reached in the debate on the question of expansion which is in progress in the senate. Heretofore all the speeches, with the notable exception of that of Mr. Platt of Connecticut, have been in opposition to what is presumed to be the policy of the administration with respect to the acquisition of the Philippines. Yesterday Mr. Foraker of Ohio addressed the senate in opposition to the declaration of the Vest resolution, that the United States had no constitutional power to acquire foreign territory to be maintained as colonies. While much of his speech was devoted to a constitutional argument in support of the right of this country as a nation to acquire and govern outlying territory, he gave particular attention to the utterances that have been made in contravention of that position, especially those of Mr. Vest and Mr. Hoar. Mr. Foraker has a clear, direct and forceful style of oratory which commands attention. He is at his best in a running fire of debate, and the frequency of interruptions afforded him ample opportunity to elucidate his argument to the best advantage. He laid down the broad proposition that to adopt the Vest resolution was to declare that our fathers had brought forth a nation that was inferior to all other nations, regardless of the generally accepted idea that one nation was the equal of another and all equally restricted. He maintained that the right to acquire territory was an inherent right of nationality, and that as we had the right to make war and to enter into treaty agreements it followed logically that we had the power to acquire territory by conquest and to assume the responsibilities that might accrue therefrom. Mr. Foraker's strong assertion that the acquisition of the Philippines was temporary in character created a sensation in the chamber. He maintained, however, that we had a legal right to hold the islands permanently.

Prior to the speech by Mr. Foraker, a sharp debate was precipitated by Mr. Allen of Nebraska by some remarks he made upon a resolution he had introduced. Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts and Mr. Gray of Delaware were drawn into it.

When the senate went into executive session, Senator Davis reported the peace treaty, stating that it had not been amended in any respect in the committee. He moved that the treaty and proceedings of the peace commission be made public. This motion led to debate. The discussion was brief, however, and the motion to remove the injunction of secrecy prevailed.

Senator Berry moved that the debate upon the treaty should be conducted in open senate, but the motion went over until today. There were only casual remarks upon the policy of publicity, and these were generally favorable to the removal of the secrecy injunctions from the treaty, and as generally opposed to the opening of the doors of the senate for the debate upon the treaty.

Senator Davis gave notice that he would ask for the earliest possible consideration.

The house completed and passed the bill for the codification of the criminal laws of Alaska upon which it has been working intermittently for a week. An amendment was adopted providing for a high license system in the territory with a species of local option. Liquor dealers, by its provisions, are to pay a license of $1000 per year and the consent of a majority of the white citizens residing within two miles of a liquor dealer's establishment must be obtained before a license can issue. An attempt to recommit the bill for the purpose of securing the adoption of a provision excluding convicted felons from service on juries was defeated.

How London Views It.

London, Jan. 12.—Most of the morning papers comment today upon the situation in the Philippines, drawing the inference that Senator Foraker's remarks in the senate chamber yesterday were made by him as the spokesman of the president and expressing disappointment and their disapproval of a possible relinquishment of the Philippines by the United States.

The Times says: Senator Foraker appears to leave the subject in an unpleasantly ambiguous state. It is in the Philippines that the new system of government will be brought to a test; and no resolutions passed in the senate can solve the problem. The claims of the insurgents to national recognition can hardly hold water; but there is no power in the world that would be so much embarrassed by the raising of a question of this sort as the United States. To announce that the occupation of the Philippines is only temporary would be scarcely prudent. Although some precedents are furnished in our policy during the last 20 years, the results are satisfactory. All the governments of the continent have acquiesced, willingly or unwillingly, in the fact that the islands, with all their advantages and responsibilities, are American acquisitions; and they are bound to hold aloof except in the inconceivable failure of the American government.

The Standard says: It is a little startling to find the liberators of Cuba engaged in suppressing a youthful republic which claims the sacred right of self-government. Yet to withdraw would create another Cuba off the coast of Asia, for which naval nations would scramble.

The Daily Chronicle says: We believe that, so soon as it can safely be done, the United States will give the Filipinos virtual home rule under responsible government.

The Daily News, in referring to Senator Foraker's speech in the senate, says: After this the whole truth cannot long be delayed, and it will be awaited with great interest on both sides of the Atlantic.

Not For Publication.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The president has decided it to be incompatible with the public interest to comply with the request contained in the Hoar resolution to supply the senate with the instructions given the American peace commissioners. If any reasons are given for the declination the leading one will be the fact that, as the treaty is subject to action in Spain even after ratification by the senate, its consummation might be jeopardized by the publication at this stage of the confidential instructions.

Capitol Gleanings.

The banking and currency committee of the house unanimously directed the withdrawal of the bill revising the banking and currency laws now on the house calendar.

Senator Teller introduced a bill for the amendment of the war revenue act so as to provide for a tax upon the actual value or selling price instead of the nominal value of certain stocks. The bill is intended to relieve the cheaper mining stocks from what is claimed to be an onerous burden upon them.

The rivers and harbors committee was in extra session throughout yesterday on their bill. The discussion before the committee has led to a general understanding that the total of the bill will be about $12,000,000 or $13,000,000.

The navy department has ordered the collier Caesar to be put out of commission at San Juan, where she will serve for the present as a coal hulk.

Paymaster General Stanton of the army, is seriously ill at his home here with pneumonia, resulting from the grip.

Control of Money Markets.

London, Jan. 12.—At the semi-annual meeting of the Union bank of London yesterday, Mr. Schuester, the governor, during the course of his report, said the United States had become a most important factor, which must not be overlooked in forecasting the future. He added that the remarkable activity of trade in the United States after a successful war, and prospective new markets, together with abundant harvests, had created an unprecedented trade balance in favor of that country, which had already made itself felt on this side and for the first time believed it might be said that it was not Europe which had financed the United States, but New York which had financed Europe. During the last few months the United States had lent a considerable amount of cash, and its discounts in London and Berlin and its power to obtain gold henceforward for very large amounts whenever it chose must not be lost sight of.

Old Officers Remain.

Boston, Jan. 12.—The state board of agriculture organized yesterday by electing J. W. Stockwell of Sutton secretary. The other officers were all re-elected. The specialists were all reinstated, and the present committee reappointed with but few changes. A committee of five was appointed to arrange for the national farmers' congress, which is to be held in Boston this summer.

BEAUREPAIRE'S GRIEF

Expressed In an Inflammatory Proclamation Published at Paris.

Further Denunciation of the Court of Cassation.

Skepticism Regarding His Motives and Value of His Revelations.

Paris, Jan. 12.—M. De Blowitz, the newspaper correspondent, predicts that neither the government nor the chamber of deputies will take the Dreyfus case from the criminal branch of the court of cassation, and that the result of the interpelations in the chamber will be a vote of confidence in the government.

Quesnay de Beaurepaire, whose resignation of the presidency of the civil section of the court of cassation is regarded by impartial observers as the most dangerous development of the Dreyfus affair thus far, yesterday furnished the newspapers with the most inflammatory pronouncement he has yet made. It is in the nature of a proclamation, and is entitled "An appeal to the deputies," whom he calls upon vehemently to remove the Dreyfus case from the hands of the criminal chamber of the court. The proclamation concludes as follows:

"Order a real and solemn inquiry, which shall penetrate right into the viscera of this tortous examination. If there are guilty men in the bosom of the criminal chamber, authorize the executive power to remove them, so that our magistracy may regain its ancient prestige.

"Remove the case from the criminal chamber tomorrow. Order an immediate judicial inquiry. You can assuredly take other measures, as you have to accept advice from no one and your decisions will be welcomed with the confidence due those who safeguard the French cause.

"I hope to play the modest role of those sentries who, in olden days, signaled from the battlements the approach of the enemy and, after sounding an alarm, left it for the chiefs of the city to arm themselves in behalf of the common weal. City fathers, forgive the abruptness of my appeal. It is due to the emotion which agitates me. If you do not cut the gordian knot at once I tremble for my country.

"My grief is great to see the magistracy to which I have so long belonged compromised; but I console myself with the thought that it will emerge purified from the crisis. My grief is great at seeing five or six magistrates so forgetful of our traditions as to declare themselves the adversaries of the army. Of course, the Dreyfusites maintain that they are not attacking the army, while they attack its chiefs. These madmen think when they tell the soldiers every day that their chiefs are unworthy to command them that the spirit of discipline and confidence which constitutes the greatest source of military strength is not being undermined.

"You will reply that what they call the 'enemy' is the sword of France—the poor officers whose uniforms is the garb of sacrifice, who work devotedly for the loftiest aim which exists, preparing to die, who tomorrow, if the cannon roar, will shed their blood for those who slander. I salute them with admiration.

"I say to the soldiers that the national army is worthy of respect from the highest to the lowest rank; and, if I have been able to aid in avenging the insult to which it has been subjected, I shall not regret having paid so dearly for my independence.

"Deputies, listen to the voice of a good citizen."

This appeal is a palpable bid for the support of the army. But M. De Beaurepaire, who shot up like a sky-rocket as the most tremendous sensation of the whole Dreyfus controversy, now seems falling like a stick from his preeminence as a leader of the anti-Dreyfusards and the possible hero of a coup. The best observers of public opinion declare that the impression created by his first remarkable denunciation of the court of cassation has been succeeded by skepticism regarding his motives and the value of his revelations.

Many if not most Frenchmen estimate him as a politician who had found the bench too prosaic for a man long accustomed to the excitement of party strife, and who thought he had found an opportunity to make himself the leader of a popular movement. The charges he brings against the court of cassation add nothing of consequence to yesterday's indictment except accusations that M. Loew had conferences outside the court-room with Colonel Picquart's advocate and friend, Maitre Leblois, and that Counsellor Dumas conferred outside the courtroom with friends and relatives of Dreyfus.

M. Mazeau, first president of the court, expresses the opinion that it would be unfair to the criminal chamber to withdraw the case, and recommends that the criminal chamber should act as judge d'instruction, drawing a report upon the case to be submitted to the full tribunal, over which M. Mazzeau would preside.

The criminal chamber is continuing the investigation. M. Paleologue, a witness from the foreign office who has been for several days under examination, says the judges appeared greatly excited on the day of M. De Beaurepaire's resignation.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

HANCOCK DAY.

Birthplace of an Illustrious Son of Quincy to be Marked by a Tablet.

Today is the 163d anniversary of the birth in Quincy of John Hancock, and is being observed in the public schools as "Hancock day," by brief exercises consisting of readings, compositions etc., on the life and character of John Hancock.

The city by vote of the City Council is to place a tablet on the front of the Adams Academy building to mark the spot where the dwelling stood in which Hancock was born. It was to have been placed in position today, but there was an unforseen delay in the finishing of the tablet, and it will be a day or two before it is placed in position. There will be no exercises attending the placing of the tablet on the building.

The tablet is of bronze, its dimensions being two feet six and one-half inches by four feet one-half inches. The inscription which was prepared under the direction of Commissioner of Public Works, C. F. Knowlton, reads as follows:

ON THIS SPOT
STOOD THE DWELLING
WHEREIN WAS BORN
JOHN HANCOCK,
PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.
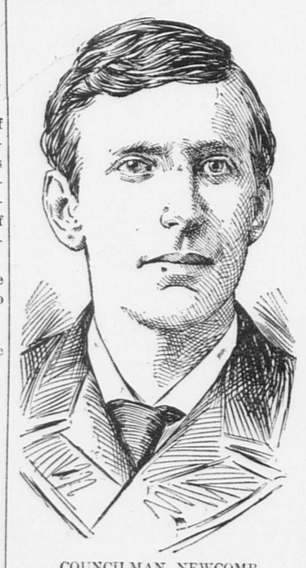
XII JANUARY MDCCXXXVII.

The order for the tablet was introduced in the City Council by Councilman Newcomb, who is interested in patriotic societies. The Adams Academy is located on the corner of Adams and Dimmock street, at their junction with Hancock street, a short distance north of City Square and after a century promises to become more of a site of historical interest than ever.

SITE OF BIRTHPLACE OF JOHN HANCOCK.



COUNCILMAN NEWCOMB.

In the history of Old Braintree and Quincy by the late Dr. Pattee, there is an excellent sketch of John Hancock, and there are frequent references to the illustrious patriot in the work. There has just been issued by Abram English Brown an interesting book entitled "John Hancock — His Book," containing extracts from his private and business correspondence, and glimpses of his every day life an incidents of Revolutionary days. In a preface to his work Mr. Brown says:

Hancock was the third in as many generations of the family to bear the name, John Hancock, in the history of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay. The first, his grandfather, was Rev. John Hancock, pastor at Lexington for many years. He was often called Bishop Hancock because of his wide field of great usefulness. His residence, the old parsonage, is now eagerly visited at Lexington by tourists, who seek for the place of entertainment of the patriot John Hancock on the eventful night of April 18, 1775. The second generation was Rev. John Hancock of Braintree (Quincy); he was pastor here from 1726 till his death in 1744. He, as pastor and parent, placed the outward seal of baptism upon the third John in January, 1737. The same hand performed the same act on the innocent brow of John Adams. By the early death of this pastor a widow and three young children became objects of the solicitude of their friends.

There was living over in Boston a brother of the deceased pastor, Thomas Hancock, who with his wife, Lydia Henchman, was blessed with wealth and all that it could procure, but no little feet pattered about their elegant mansion on Beacon Hill, and they early opened their hearts and home to the boy John. This lad of seven years was kept in touch with his mother, his brother Ebenezer and his sister Mary; but he was the lad who most cheered the hearts of the merchant and his companion, who was the daughter of a like noted merchant of the town of Boston.

Dressed in the best that the town afforded for boys of his age, John Hancock was tenderly guarded by his uncle and aunt. He was early found in the Latin School during the sessions, and was taken in the Hancock chariot to Lexington for the benefits of country air during the vacations. When restless at that parsonage he was driven to the Bedford parsonage, but a few miles away where he was the envied of his little cousins, who made merry the hours of his visit. Among the Bedford minster's flock was Lucy, the namesake of her mother — Lucy, daughter of Rev. John Hancock of Lexington. This daughter of Rev. Nicholas Bowes and Lucy Hancock was more often found taking steps for her grandparents at Lexington, and with young John from Boston romped hand in hand over the hills of Lexington, peered with curious eyes into the old belfry, or made mud pies at its rude base. Yes, my reader, John Hancock was a boy and had wants like other boys of his time. No one can doubt that they were all supplied; perhaps if oftener denied he would have been the gainer. School textbooks were scarce and dear, but John Hancock never "looked over" with his companions. The Henchman house imported and dealt in all kinds of books and stationery, and John's uncle Thomas had a running account with his father-in-law; but it did not run beyond the close of a year. In the account book of the firm we find with charges to Thomas Hancock, "1 book to John 5s 4d; 1 Hammond's algebra to John, 9s 7d."

John Hancock, well fitted, entered Harvard College and was graduated from that institution in 1751. His tall, graceful figure, elegant dress, courteous manner and prospective fortune made him the envied of the best circles of the seaport, but this did not turn his well-poised head, and he entered his uncle's business house in the position of clerk. Manifesting a deep interest in the business, he was intrusted with its affairs, and in 1760 went abroad to represent the house in London. He took the trip under the patronage of Mr. Thomas Pownall, who had been governor of the province and, as a friend of Thomas Hancock, had been a frequent guest at his home, and manifested much interest in the young man of the household. John Hancock's visit chanced to be at the time of the death of George II, and of the coronation of George III, pageants not uncongenial to the taste of the young man. It is recorded that the Boston merchant was later presented to the new king as a representative of one of his majesty's colonies in America, and that King George presented the young man with a gold snuff-box. I shall not vouch for the truth of this statement; but custom made such articles of daily use in the ordinary exchange of courtesy. If the king, in the exuberance of his exalted position, did lavish this token upon his young American subject, he had occasion to regret it in later years; and doubtless John Hancock failed to pass it about with pride among this business or social friends, for "rich gifts wax poor when givers prove unkind."

AT QUINCY HIGH.

John Hancock's birthday was celebrated with appropriate ceremonies at the Quincy High school, The programme included the singing of the "National Hymn," by the school; remarks by Head Master F. A. Tupper; essay, "Life of John Hancock," by Miss Priest, '99; music, "O Spirit of the Nation," by the school; recitation, "The Rising in 1776," by Miss Mitchell, '99; essay, "Quincy memorials dedicated to the memory of John Hancock," by Miss Poland, '99; music, "Song of Peace," by the school. The music was in charge of Miss Madeleine Fish, one of the teachers. Miss Helen Sibley was the accompanist. The exercises occupied about half an hour, and were greatly enjoyed by all.

AT THE WOODWARD.

There was no set programme for the observance of John Hancock day at the Woodward Institute. Each student had been instructed to prepare something from the life and times of Hancock, and during the first hour of school all assembled in the study hall where the exercises were conducted in person by Miss Small. The students were called upon individually, at random, and they responded by telling some incident or anecdote during the life of Hancock. In this way his whole life from his birth in 1737 to his death was covered very interestingly.

PRESIDENT NASH.

The Quincy Councilman Honored by Grocers.

Elected Over the Old Colony Union for 1899.

A Grand Banquet at the United States Hotel.

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers Union of Quincy and neighboring towns held its annual banquet at the United States Hotel, Boston, Wednesday evening. At the business meeting the following officers were elected, a Quincy Councilman being elected to the first office:

President,—J. W. Nash of Quincy.
1st Vice President,—George A. Clift.
2d Vice President,—[illegible] Cox.
Secretary,—M. W. Lynch of Weymouth.
Treasurer, — Josephus Sampson of Braintree.
Executive Committee, President ex-officio, —Horace Chamberlin, John Connell, G. T. Wild, Frank S. [illegible]te.

PRESIDENT NASH.

President Nash is a native of Quincy and is serving his third year in the City Council. He is a well known merchant of the city, having entered the store of John Briesler in the Square as early as 1864. Two years later he formed a partnership with his uncle, and continued the business at the old stand under the name of Whitney & Nash. Upon the death of William Whitney in 1888 he became the sole proprietor, and the business has prospered. It was in 1816 that this grocery was established by J. Briesler & Son, and as it was not until 1845 that the Old Colony Railroad was opened for travel, so it will be seen that Mr. Nash's store was ahead of the Old Colony, and it is very proper now that he should be at the head of the Old Colony Grocers' Union. His Quincy friends congratulate him.

At the banquet Quincy was largely represented by its grocers, marketmen and others, including a representative of the Ledger.

The menu was an excellent one well served, and popular music was rendered by the Thompson—Ferguson—Archie Trio club, on piano, banjos, guitars and mandolins. The menu.

Oysters on Half Shell.
Green Turtle.
Queen Olives.
Boiled Salmon, Matelotte sauce.
Plain Celery. Windsor Potatoes.
Turkey, Cranberry sauce.
Tenderloin of Beef, financiere sauce.
Delmonico Potatoes. Fsench Peas
Chicken Croquettes, asparagus points.
Peach Fritters, brandy sauce.
Kirschwasser Bavarian Cream.
Champagne Jelly.
Vanilla Ice Cream. Chocolate Ice Cream.
Frozen Pudding.
Assorted Cake.
Fruits.
Water Wafers. Edam Cheese.
Coffee.

About 9.30 the post prandial exercises began. Mr. C. L. Keon, the retiring president, welcomed the large gathering, which numbered over 120, and introduced the new president.

Mr. Nash was received with generous applause long continued and spoke briefly. He hoped to see the union grow and grow, and be of social interest and commercial value.

Other speakers were: James Morrison, president and J. H. Wright, secretary of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, Martin E. Hawes, Representative from the Weymouth-Braintree district; John F. Nickerson, president of the Boston Wholesale Grocers' Association; Hon. Alfred L. Hayes, and Judge Cook of Weymouth, the Norfolk County clerk of courts. Among the other guests were A. W. McDonald, president of the Lowell Grocers' Association, an A. E. Dowse, editor of the New England Grocer.

The speech of the evening was by Lawyer Hayes. Although a Democrat, he stood heartily by President McKinley in his stand relative to the Philippines, and in opposition to Senator Hoar. It seemed also to meet the approval of those present, who paid close attention and applauded liberally.

The committee on banquet were: Josephus Sampson, John W. Nash, Gordon Willis, H. A. Chamberlain and Frederick O. Humphrey.

As the officers entered the front door, a young man ran out the back door with a basket containing bottles of liquor on his arm. Before the fellow had gone far he slipped on the ice and fell. This broke part of the bottles, but the officers were successful in getting three pints. When the fellow continued his flight, after falling he left a new derby hat, in which were the initials "T. S.," for which the police would like an owner.

PARISH NEEDS.

Henry H. Faxon and Others Speak to Unitarians.

There are socials and socials, but never did one, more deserve to be so called than the supper and social held Wednesday evening by the First Parish. On Sunday when Rev. Mr. Butler announced that there was to be a church supper he said there would be a new feature, instead of rising from the table directly after supper the company would remain seated, as a prominent member of the society would have something to say of interest and pertaining to the welfare of the church.

Considerable curiosity was expressed after church and the night of the supper as to who the speaker was to be, and what was to be the subject of his remarks. Whether it was curiosity or pure sociability, it is hard to say, but the fact remains that it was an overflow meeting and extra tables were laid in an adjoining room. The supper was a fine one, consisting of salads, scalloped oysters, ice cream and coffee. It was in charge of the ladies and gentlemen whose names commence with S, T, U, V, W, Y, thus completing the alphabet at this supper. By this arrangement, every one in the parish does their share of entertaining.

Supper being over, Mr. Butler arose and at once had the attention of every one. He said when a family came together, all having one common interest, it was generally customary to talk things over, to plan for the future, etc., and as the church was one large family gathered together under one roof, it was advisable once in a while to talk over whatever would be for the interest and growth of this society. He suggested that a chairman be elected and remarks called for, from those present. Mr. Butler was elected, but referred another choice, should be made. Mr. James H. Stetson was nominated, but being on the supper committee declined to serve, and Mr. Charles A. Foster was nominated and his acceptance was greeted with applause. The first speaker was Mr. Henry H. Faxon, the gentleman who had prepared matter of interest to the church and now that the mystery of the speaker had been solved, all eagerly listened for what he would say, which was as follows:

Our physical wants having been supplied by the elaborate supper which the kind ladies prepared for our enjoyment, permit me to now offer you some food for reflection. The latter may not be quite as palatable as that of which we have already partaken, but I believe it will do us good to consider some of the needs of this parish.

First.—There should be four regular and punctual ushers to conduct strangers to seats in the church, and to take up collections.

Second,—Cards should be placed upon each pew indicating the name of the party who occupies the same.

Third,—There is a lack of enthusiasm and true interest in the parish on the part of those who do not require their children to attend Sunday School.

There has been an alarming decrease in the attendance of scholars during the past eight years. In 1890, there were 232 children in our Sunday School, while at present the average is only 100.

The whole number of Protestant Sunday Schools in this city in 1890 were 17, with a total of 2,392 scholars. In 1898 there were 21 schools with only 2,237 scholars.

The Sunday School is the recruiting ground for the future membership of the church, and unless more attention is given to this branch of our society, there will be no successors to the parish workers of today.

In connection with this matter of creating more interest among the children, I hope there will be an expression of opinion here concerning the age at which they should be required to attend church services.

Fourth,—A movement should be inaugurated against those clubs which are detrimental to the public welfare and which attract a class of men who have become neglectful of both Church and home duties.

There are many men—heads of families—who belong to this parish, that are rarely seen at church. Were it not for the zeal of the women our condition would be serious.

The points which I have named impress me as the most important need of this society. On the other hand, we have two especial blessings,—excellent preaching and good music.

This historic church should be foremost in all good works and thus add to its renown.

I hope that all present will frankly express their views upon the matters which I have presented for consideration.

Mr. Faxon's concise statements as to the needs of the parish were home truths and met with approval from all.

Mr. L. S. Anderson followed Mr. Faxon and explained why there were not more ushers and also that the marking of the pews had been considered by the parish committee. He also stood up for the clubs; thought they did not keep the men from church. Mr. George Harvey Field also spoke for the club and as a member of the Granite City club said, he knew none who attended the club in preference to church, he personally never missed attending church. Mr. Charles H. Johnson spoke of the attendance of the Sunday school, of the lack of teachers, etc. Remarks were made by Mr. James H. Slade, but did bear especially on the subject at hand. Mr. Charles A. Howland for eighteen years superintendent of the Sunday School, stated a few facts. He said there had always been a lack of teachers in the Sunday School. Of the church service he said there was nothing to be desired, the singing had never been better and as for the preaching the church could not find a bettter, more able and popular a man than the one now filling the pulpit.

All the speakers congratulated the church on having Mr. Butler for its pastor, and paid him a great many well deserved compliments. No church in the city has a pastor and wife more beloved than are Rev. and Mrs. Butler, and their influence for good is felt throughout the community.

Soon after eight the company left the dining room for the chapel where social intercourse was enjoyed until nine o'clock. All pronounced it the most entertaining and social supper ever held by the church. Mr. Faxon succeeded in stirring things up and it resulted in a most happy and profitable meeting for all.

CRISP LOCAL NOTES.

Up-to-Date, Lively, Sparkling and Bright.

Mr. Frank Tucker of Co. K is at home on a furlough this week.

A large force of men are now at work at the ice plant of Rogers Bros. and the ice is from 11 to 13 inches thick and clear as glass.

Too much news today, and therefore it is necessary to lay over the land values, a very interesting letter from Co. K and other news items.

The young people of Atlantic who are fond of skating may now enjoy themselves. At request of Mayor Keith Mr. Chase Parker has allowed about one acre of land on Atlantic street, near Prospect, to be flooded, which promises a safe and convenient place for enjoying this delightful sport. An effort will be made to light the pond evenings with tourches. The young people declare Mayor Keith to be a "peach."

Conscience as a Guide.

Mr. Murphy, '99, called the meeting of the Q. H. S. Debating Society to order on Wednesday, and Miss Wiley, '99, read the secretary's report which was duly approved. The entertainment consisted of the following numbers:

1. Essay, "Some Phases of Human Nature," Mr. Foss, '99.
2. Recitation, Miss Hall, 1900.
3. Essay, "A Conversation between Longfellow and Virgil," Miss Brown, '99.
4. Recitation, "The Knight's Toast," Miss Hayden, 1900.

The debate was on this subject: "Resolved, That Conscience is a true Moral Guide."

Affirmative, — Miss Lull, Miss Mitchell, Miss Murphy, Miss Nash, Newcomb, Miss Patterson, all of 1900.

Negative,—Miss Pinkham, Miss Ross, Miss Swain, Miss Sweeney, Miss Wilde, all of 1900.

The debate as a whole was one of the best of year. It will be concluded next week.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about 1-4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

CANCER CURED
BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, ESTES FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

It Saves the Clothes

A red-hot iron would burn the clothes, and so will common soap. Cheap common soaps ruin the clothes more slowly, but just as surely. Fairy Soap is a safe soap. It cleanses without harming even rich cambrics, gauzy laces and other fabrics of fine texture and delicate color. It will not burn, rot and weaken the threads as common soap does, and is more economical than cheaper soaps as it lasts longer.

FAIRBANK'S

is made of pure vegetable oil, contains no coloring matter, no impurities, so that it is perfectly harmless to the tenderest skin. It is an ideal soap for toilet, bath and fine laundry purposes.

AFTER A HOT CONTEST,

Joseph Hawley Again Chosen to Represent Connecticut In the Senate.

Jonathan Ross Receives Appointment In Vermont.

Chief Justice of Supreme Court to Fill Vacancy Caused by Morrill's Death.

Hartford, Jan. 12.—General Joseph R. Hawley was yesterday nominated by the Republican caucus of the Connecticut general assembly as a candidate to succeed himself as the junior United States senator from Connecticut, and at a later date he will be elected by the joint convention of the state legislature to serve his fourth term in the highest law-making body of the land.

CHAIRMAN HAWLEY OF THE SENATE MILITARY COMMITTEE.

The victory which came to the distinguished soldier and statesman furnished the climax to one of the most bitterly waged political contests ever fought in this state. For weeks and months there has been no letup in a strife for the honor which was rendered complicated by the presence in the field as General Hawley's competitors of two of the most prominent Republicans in the state, Samuel Fessenden of Stamford, a member of the Republican national committee, and Morgan G. Bulkeley, one of Connecticut's former governors.

The final battle took place yesterday afternoon, when the Republicans of the house of representatives and the state senate met in a joint caucus. The victory of General Hawley was not secured until three full hours had been consumed, and nearly all of that time was occupied in balloting. Technically or officially, there were seven ballots, but practically nine ballots were taken. On the third ballot it was discovered that a total of 199 ballots had been cast. At that time, however, there were but 197 members in the caucus, and the ballot was thrown out. A new ballot was ordered with the same result, and the third ballot was thus taken three times before the difficulty was removed.

Senator Hawley was at all times in the lead, but until the final ballot was cast and counted his margin was too narrow to permit of great confidence. The first ballot found the senator just two votes short. In other words, it required but the change in one vote to give him the nomination. The second ballot, however, showed a loss for Hawley of four and a corresponding gain for his nearest competitor, Mr. Fessenden. On the third ballot Fessenden gained one and repeated it in the next two, Senator Hawley, meanwhile, losing seven. On the sixth ballot Mr. Fessenden dropped two, while General Hawley was given seven of the votes which he had lost, and on the next ballot he was carried through with 117 votes, and a few minutes later the leader of the most formidable opposition moved to make it unanimous, and General Hawley was declared the nominee of the caucus amid cheers, which became deafening as they were reinforced by the throngs in the capitol lobbies, which had patiently waited during the long balloting process.

MORRILL'S SUCCESSOR.

Jonathan Ross, a Typical Vermonter, Chosen by Governor Smith.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 12.—Hon. B. F. Fifield of Montpelier yesterday notified Governor Smith that, on account of family reasons, he was compelled to decline the appointment as United States senator to succeed the late Senator Morrill. The appointment was at once offered to Hon. Jonathan Ross of St. Johnsbury, chief justice of the supreme court of Vermont, and he accepted, resigning his judgship.

Mr. Fifield's letter of declination is as follows:

"You did me the distinguished honor, last Saturday, of offering me the position of United States senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Morrill, and I then expressed to you verbally my probable inability to accept the appointment on account of the protracted and painful illness of my wife. Since that time I have given the matter further consideration and now feel obliged to second my former declination. I have not words to express to you sufficiently the gratitude I feel for the conspicuous consideration which the offer implies, and I regret beyond measure that my situation compels me to say I cannot accept the position."

Jonathan Ross was born in Waterford, Vt., April 30, 1826. He was the son of Royal and Eliza Mason Ross. His grandfather moved from Massachusetts in 1795, clearing a farm and cutting forests in one of the pioneer towns of northern Vermont. Judge Ross was educated in the public schools of Waterford, fitted for college at St. Johnsbury and graduated from Dartmouth college in 1851. He worked on the farm through all his boyhood days, and taught winters in the country schools while attending college. After graduating from Dartmouth, he taught in Craftsbury, and was admitted to the Orange county bar in 1856. He came to St. Johnsbury, where he practiced law until 1870, when he was elected to the supreme court bench. In 1890 he was elected chief judge, which position he held until he sent in his resignation yesterday. Judge Ross was the oldest in service on the bench. He is a typical and honored representative of the judiciary of Vermont. During his residence of over 40 years in St. Johnsbury, he has been highly honored by public positions, and has also held many places of trust and responsibility.

In 1865, '66 and '67 he represented St. Johnsbury in the legislature, was for many years a member of the state board of education, and in 1869 a member of the last board of council censors held in the state. In 1870 he was elected to the state senate, and the same year he was elevated to the bench.

Judge Ross was twice married. He has a wife, five daughters and two sons living. At the present time he is one of the trustees of St. Johnsbury academy, an officer of the South Congregational church, and, until a few years ago, was a director in the First National bank and Fairbanks Scale company. Judge Ross is a typical Vermont statesman, firm in his convictions, honest in manner and thoroughly posted in current national events. The appointment came to him unsought, and will be well received throughout the state.

Kid Is Dissatisfied.

New York, Jan. 12.—"Kid" McCoy has issued a signed statement in which he intimates his defeat by Sharkey was the result of several foul blows the sailor landed on him. He thinks he can beat Sharkey, and wants to arrange another match. If the sailor won't fight him again, McCoy says he will make a match with Corbett. The receipts of Tuesday night's fight amounted to a trifle less than $40,000. Sharkey's share of the purse is $15,000. The loser's share is $5000.

Crisis Passed.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Greater encouragement for the recovery of Representative Dingley is felt by his physicians than for some days. This is based on the wonderful manner in which he has kept up in his desperate illness and the remarkable vitality shown. Save for new complications, which are not now looked for, the family feel very hopeful that the worst is past. The patient was fairly comfortable yesterday, has taken nourishment freely and rested well last night.

Launching on Saturday.

London, Jan. 12.—The United States cruiser Albany, sister ship of the New Orleans, purchased here previous to the war with Spain, will be launched at Newcastle on Saturday. The United States charge d'affaires, Henry White; the United States naval attache, Lieutenant Colwell, and a number of distinguished Americans will attend the ceremony. The Albany will be christened by Mrs. Colwell, and will sail for the United States in April.

A Claim For $100,000.

Providence, Jan. 12.—The appellate court has decided that the plaintiff in the suit of Joseph Banigan vs Woonsocket Rubber company may go on and prove the $100,000 claim on a note, notwithstanding the rubber company's claim that it has a suit pending for a much larger sum against the Banigan estate. It is the first judicial termination of the four or five big cases here in which the United States Rubber company is interested.

Fishermen Rescued.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 12.—William Murphy and William Simpson, of the schooner Edith Emery, were out in their dory trawling for haddock about eight miles south of Block island, Sunday, when a southerly gale sprang up. While they were endeavoring to regain their vessel an oar was broken, and, as night came on, they lost sight of her. Yesterday, after drifting helplessly about for 24 hours, they were rescued by schooner Cox & Green.

A Soldier's Hard Luck.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 12.—Joseph Delorme of company C, Sixth Massachusetts volunteers, returned to Lowell yesterday wearing his light canvas suit and almost frozen. For months his whereabouts had been unknown, and he states that he was confined in a hospital in Porto Rico by sickness. On his arrival in Lowell he was wrapped in the overcoat of a comrade and taken to warm quarters to be thawed out.

Bandits Identified.

Mansfield, Mo., Jan. 12.—Byrum, the self-confessed train robber, has positively identified John Kennedy, arrested in Kansas City, as the organizer and leader of the gang which last Tuesday night held up and robbed a passenger train at Macomb. Jennings has been identified as Bill Ryan, the notorious bandit, who was connected with the Jesse James gang for many years.

Productive of Peace.

Berlin, Jan. 12.—The National Zeitung, referring to the French comments on Emperor William's visit to the French ambassador here, says: By the Anglo-German agreement in regard to South Africa all cause for an Anglo-German conflict in that part of the world is removed. Therefore, there can be no question of Germany in any way siding with France against Great Britain.

Shipper Must Pay.

Philadelphia, Jan. 12.—Judge Arnold, in the common pleas court yesterday, in a suit brought to determine whether a shipper or the Adams Express company should pay for the war revenue stamp to be attached to bills of lading for express packages, decided in favor of the express company, and that the shipper must pay for the stamp.

Decision In February.

Paris, Jan. 12.—The Liberal quotes "a personage closely connected with the court of cassation" as saying that the inquiry into the Dreyfus case is about finished, that a decision may be expected early in February, and that it will be almost unanimously favorable to a revision of the trial.

Blue Label Endorsed.

Hartford, Jan. 12.—At yesterday's meeting of the Bricklayers and Masons' International union the cigarmakers' blue label was unanimously endorsed, and the union voted to give its support to the label throughout the country. The delegates were tendered a banquet and ball at the Auditorium last night.

Censorship Imposed.

New York, Jan. 12.—The Western Union Telegraph company's central office has been advised by the Eastern Extension company that all press messages for Manila are subject to censorship.

SPANISH CRUELTY.

Hundreds of Persons Said to Have Perished In Pit and Well.

Havana, Jan. 12.—La Discusion describes the finding of 50 human skeletons in a well on a plantation near Manguito. The writer of the story asserts that these people were undoubtedly thrown in while alive. He says that in some cases the finger bones are severed, and the supposition is that this was due to the efforts of the victims to raise themselves out of the pit. The body of Senor Pedro Alayon, a prominent Cuban, who disappeared mysteriously during the insurrection, has been identified.

La Discusion accuses the guerilla chief, Antonio Reyes, Sergeant Juan Peres and Vincente Zalgo, a schoolmaster, of being the authors of a terrible crime. All are said to be in Havana.

La Discusion prints also a story from Matanzas of the finding there of from 200 to 300 persons in a well near the headquarters of the civil guard.

Town Hall Dedicated.

Revere, Mass., Jan. 12.—The exercises which dedicated the beautiful building to be used as a town hall and public library occurred last evening. The large auditorium was brilliantly illuminated and handsomely decorated. Some 3000 persons were present, and the opening order of the evening was the "Colonial March," followed by invocation by Rev. F. L. Elberfeld. The Arlington quartet furnished vocal music. The town hall keys were delivered by Arthur D. Curtis, chairman of the building committee, who gave a brief review of the town's history. The keys were accepted by William P. Janvrin, chairman of the board of selectmen. Mayor Quincy of Boston was among the speakers, he congratulating the town on its admirably arranged townhouse.

Committee Satisfied.

Boston, Jan. 12.—The committee on the part of the stockholders of the Electrolytic Marine Salts company held a meeting here yesterday, and, although the committee could not make a statement indicating an immediate prospect of a final settlement, the members of it declared that the outlook was entirely satisfactory. Of the 954,000 shares of stock issued by the company, over 900,000 shares have been turned over to the members of the committee as trustees, with full authority to make the best settlement possible. The committee expects to be made trustee of practically all the stock before long, as it is constantly being sent in.

State Officers Elected.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 12.—In joint convention yesterday the New Hampshire legislature re-elected Ezra S. Stearns of Rindge secretary of state. Solon A. Carter of Concord was re-elected state treasurer. The election of state printer was postponed until after the committee appointed to investigate state printing shall make its report. Senator Ellis of Keene has been appointed chairman of that committee. Rev. Joseph E. Robins, elder of the Dover district of the M. E. church, was elected chaplain of the house.

Most Acceptable.

London, Jan. 12.—In a chorus of welcome the morning papers greet Joseph Hodges Choate as Colonel Hay's successor in London. The purport of the comment upon the appointment is that the new ambassador will not have to remove difficulties, but only to foster friendship, as The Daily Telegram puts it; and The Times says the selection is "not only one to which no exception can be taken, but even a high compliment."

The artist who is in search of attitudes descriptive of torture, and poses depicting suffering, need not go to the Christian martyrs of old. If he could only see through the walls into tens of thousands of homes all over this land, he would see women undergoing tortures in silence without complaining, before which the brief ordeals of the martyrs pale into nothingness.

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangement of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. One of the worst effects of troubles of this kind is upon the nervous system. The tortures so bravely endured completely and effectually shatter the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all weakness and disease of the feminine organism. It makes it strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It checks exhausting drains and tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Good medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"Since my last child was born, thirteen years ago, I have suffered from uterine trouble," writes Mrs. Paul Devraine, of Jellico, Campbell Co., Tenn. "I consulted several doctors and took much medicine, but found no relief. I had very bad health for twelve years. Every month I was in bed a week before the monthly period and a week after. I was obliged to keep in bed for four months last summer. I was just like a corpse. I lost twenty-six pounds in four months. I was coughing so much I was considered in consumption. I suffered severely from pains in my back, bearing down pains in the womb, chills and cold sweats. After taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my coughing stopped, and after six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription my periods became regular and were passed without pain. Now I am fleshy, more so than ever before. My neighbors are surprised to see me in such good health after having seen me so low."

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is speedily cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

"MILES LIED"

Pointed Statements by Commissary General.

Sensational Chapter In "Embalmed Beef" Row.

"Journalistic Knaves" Should Be Put Behind Bars.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Most vigorous and sensational testimony was given before the war investigating commission yesterday by Commissary General Eagan, who, appearing unexpectedly to meet the allegations against the beef issues in the war, vigorously arraigned Major General Miles.

The subject in controversy was General Miles' already famous "embalmed beef" testimony and the letters and documents supporting it. General Miles had charged that the canned and refrigerated meats sent to the army in Cuba and Porto Rico were unfit for use; that they were preserved by the use of chemicals, and that they had been "bought and sent to the army under pretense of an experiment."

This reflection upon both the ability and honesty of the commissary department had angered General Eagan and caused him to request to be recalled to reply to Miles. That the statements concerning the commanding general were not the result of a sudden outburst of passion was clearly shown by the fact that General Eagan read his remarks from a carefully prepared typewritten copy.

Not the least remarkable phase of General Eagan's statement was the language in which it was couched. There was scarcely a phrase that would not have been characterized as sensational in an ordinary official utterance.

General Eagan in the course of his testimony said: "General Miles was asked by your committee how tinned fresh beef became a part of the army ration. His answer is, 'You had better ask the secretary of war or the commissary general. I think they can tell you. I know it was sent to the army as food, and the pretense is that it was sent as an experiment.'

"General Miles in saying that this food was sent to the army as 'a pretense for experiments,' says that which implies corruption, which 99 out of every 100 people will understand to mean corruption, because it was a pretense of experiment, he says, not even giving credit to me for furnishing it as an experiment, but that I furnished it under the pretense of an experiment.

"This is a serious charge; should not be made by any man lightly nor without ample evidence to support. Indeed, some of the press, because of it, called for my dismissal from the army and my court-martial. I answer that it was not furnished under the pretense of experiment, nor even as an experiment, and if and when General Miles charges that it was furnished as a pretense of experiment, he lies in his throat, he lies in his heart, he lies in every hair of his head and every pore of his body; he lies wilfully, deliberately, intentionally and maliciously. If his statement is true that this was furnished under 'pretense of experiment,' then I should be drummed out of the army and incarcerated in prison. If his statement is false, as I assert it to be, then he should be drummed out of the service and incarcerated in prison, with other libellers. His statement is a scandalous libel, reflecting upon the honor of every officer in the department who has contracted for, or purchased, this meat, and especially and particularly on the commissary general—myself.

"In denouncing General Miles as a liar when he makes this statement, I wish to make it as emphatic and as coarse as the statement itself; I wish to force the lie back into his throat. I wish to brand it as a falsehood of whole cloth, without a particle of truth to sustain it and unless he can prove his statement he should be denounced by every honest man, barred from the clubs, barred from the society of decent people and so ostracized that the street boot black would not condescend to speak to him, for he has fouled his own nest, he has aspersed the honor of a brother officer without a particle of evidence or fact to sustain in any degree his scandalous, libellous, malicious falsehood, viz.: That this beef or anything whatever was furnished the army under pretense of experiment."

General Egan, referring to newspaper attacks, asserted that the secretary of war had nothing to do with the furnishing of refrigerated meats or tinned meats. Nor had he attempted to control the contracts, awards or purchases. In heated language the general attacked three New York newspapers and their editors and proprietors, whom he said should be indicted and tried for treason, as having given aid, comfort and information to the public enemy for the sole purpose of gain. "Were I a man of means," he said, "I would take this subject up myself. I would put journalistic knaves, purloiners of the secrets of the government, behind the bars, where they belong."

General Egan vigorously attacked the inspector general's department in connection with this investigation. He said the principal officers of that department took other positions and let the inspections of the army, which were never needed so much as during the war, go, so far as they were concerned, for personal aggrandizement. They took volunteer ranks with increased pay, and now at this late day that department was suddenly endeavoring to get exparte views of people in a manner not authorized by the secretary of war—the proper authority—about things that were passed.

"The senior major general of the army and the inspector general of the army," he continued, "do not seem to be content that, with perfect propriety and within the law, samples of everything furnished the army, now in existence, can be obtained, examined, analyzed and every statement for or against the food furnished verified. I have not felt at liberty to object to this method of procedure for the reason that my objection, however well founded, I feared would be given to the world as an evidence that I and my department feared an inspection, and this, too, when and while I and the whole department courted it. But we did not court exparte reports made at the instigation of people well known to be hostile parties, whose actions already and whose statements here before your committee show but too plainly what animus is behind it all."

General Eagan, after the hearing was over, refused to say whether he had any further move in prospect in forcing an issue between himself and General Miles. "I have said all I intend to say for the present," he replied, "and if anyone wants to bring the matter to a court-martial I am ready for that, too, as I have already stated before the commission."

As soon as the nature of General Eagan's statements became known attention was directed to army headquarters to ascertain what move would be made by General Miles. The latter, beyond saying that he had stood for the soldiers, declined to make any statement, saying that now was not the time for talk, and that before taking any action it would be only proper and necessary to wait until he had had an opportunity to consider the testimony given by General Eagan. He would not talk about a court-martial. Altogether the intimation conveyed was that General Miles would act with deliberation if he decided to take any action at all; and there was a faint suggestion that he might decide to ignore the situation altogether.

Freight Trains Wrecked.

Greenfield, Mass., Jan. 13.—Owing to failure of the brakes to hold, two freight trains were piled up last night in a narrow gorge near Conway Junction, about 10 miles west of this town, and while none of the train crews was killed, only Romain Sweet being injured, the road was completely blocked in both directions. The trains were both east bound, and the second one having the right of way over the first, the latter attempted to back onto the west-bound track so that the second freight might get by. The second freight train was coming along at a good rate of speed just as the first was going over the switch, and while the rear of the first was properly protected, the brakes on the second failed to hold and the collision followed in consequence. All the cars were loaded with wheat and the grain was scattered through the cut in large quantities. The property loss on the wreck will be very heavy.

Germany's Army.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—In the reichstag yesterday, Lieutenant General von Gassler, minister of war, introduced a new army bill. The object of the measure, he said, was to overtake at one stride the start which other states had gained over Germany in military organization. The bill was designed to maintain the quinquennial system, and to fix the strength of the peace effective. The manifesto of the Russian emperor had put a war of aggression on the part of Russia out of the question. Germany's military power, moreover, had become so strong that she might look to the future without nervousness. The debate is unfinished.

Considered Demented.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 13.—Justice Aiken, in the superior court yesterday, heard the reports of Dr. Nims, for 12 years superintendent of the Northampton lunatic hospital, and Dr. Burton, jail physician, as experts on the mental condition of Nathaniel Moseley of Hartsville, charged with the murder of George H. Spencer in October, 1897. Moseley had previously been twice under Dr. Nims' care in the Northampton institution. Both experts considered him mentally unsound, and Justice Aiken took the case under advisement.

HAS NO MOUTHPIECE

President Has Authorized No One to Speak For Administration.

Whole Subject Will Go Over to Congress.

The Disposal of Acquired Territory Is Wholly a Legislative Function.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Senator Foraker's assumption to "speak by the card" in his speech has led many persons to suppose that he was acting as the mouthpiece of the president, especially in the matter of disposing of the future of the Philippines. This supposition is without foundation, in fact. It may be said on the highest authority that the president has no mouthpiece in the senate, and that Mr. Foraker spoke for himself or for some following among his fellow senators, but not for the administration. It may be set down as a general proposition that any statement as to what shall be done with the Philippines after the senate has acted upon the treaty of peace does not emanate from the White House in any authoritative sense. The president has his own opinions on what ought to be done, and doubtless hazards a guess as to what will be done, but these impressions are entertained by him personally and not officially. The ratification of the treaty is the only executive function to be performed for the present. To that function the senate's consent is required, though the president is technically the officer who does the ratifying. When that duty is off his hands he proposes to turn the whole subject over to congress, for the disposal of acquired territory is legislative and not executive business, and the president has no present notion of mixing in it.

In Congress.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Little business was transacted by the senate in open session yesterday. Sixteen bills on the private pension calendar were passed and a joint resolution extending the thanks of congress to Miss Clara Barton and other officials of the Red Cross society for their beneficial work in Armenia and Cuba was adopted.

The house passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill without amendment. During the general debate two set speeches were made against imperialism by Messrs. Carmack and Gaines of Tennessee. The diplomatic and consular is the sixth of the regular appropriation bills to pass the house. Seven budgets yet remain to be acted upon. The bill as passed carries $1,765,533.

Concerning Immigration.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Before the industrial commission yesterday Former Commissioner of Immigration Stump spoke about the effect of the immigration of skilled and unskilled labor upon the labor market here. The main difficulty, he said, was that the unskilled labor remained in masses at the port centers and congested the labor markets. Mr. Stump suggested that the establishment of a bureau for the proper distribution of labor would ease this difficulty in a large measure. Many nationalities are scattered through the country, but the Scandinavians were given to congregating in communities and retaining their own language. He stated the Scandinavians were the best immigrants to come to the United States.

More Than Are Needed.

Washington, Jan. 13.—As part of the plan for the reduction of the military establishment to a permanent basis the war department has selected a number of general volunteer officers who will be honorably discharged from the service of the United States within a few days. Nineteen major generals head the army list, but as not more than two or three are unemployed and without actual commands, the reduction in this grade will not be as extensive as was at first contemplated.

Capitol Gleanings.

The secretary of state and Mrs. Hay gave the first cabinet dinner of the season last night at their home here. The floral decorations were effective.

When seen at the Capitol, Senator Hawley of Connecticut declined to talk upon the subject of his re-election to the senate by the Connecticut legislature. He felt that there was nothing for him to say.

Easy For Elkes.

New York, Jan. 13.—Harry Elkes of Glens Falls, N. Y., who holds the world's hour record of 34 miles, 1220 yards, beat Eddie McDuffee of Boston, the recognized middle distance champion, in a 25-mile paced bicycle contest at Madison Square garden very easily last night by a mile and one-fifth. The race was ridden over the board track on which the recent six-day and 24-hour races were contested.

Relatives Cut Off.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 13.—The supreme court has filed a decree at the Middlesex probate court affirming the action of the Middlesex court in allowing the will of Susan M. Ransom of Cambridge. Miss Ransom, who resided in North Cambridge, left about $250,000 in public bequests and not a cent to a host of relatives. The case was contested in the supreme court.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

The only adverse criticism on the John Hancock tablet, to be erected, is the inscription. It does not seem to fill the bill. John Hancock is not remembered by the people of Quincy and New England because he was "President of Congress of the United States." That fact seems of but little importance beside others which should have been mentioned. John Hancock with a clear, bold and steady hand, without a quiver, was the FIRST to sign the Declaration of Independence declaring that the "United Colonies should, and of right ought to be, free and independent States." We know that it has been said that Hancock was a demagogue and supported the American cause merely when it became a popular measure, but a private letter of Hancock, as early as 1765, seems to dispose of this accusation. He closed a letter thus "I am in great haste, with respect, your sincere friend but an enemy to the stamps;" to which he added this postscript: "This letter I propose to remain in my letter book as a standing monument to posterity and my children in particular, that I by no means consented to a submission to this cruel act, and that my best representations were not wanting in the matter."

John Hancock was not only a president of congress, but he was a delegate to the first Provincial Congress and elected its president; he was also a member of the Continental Congress held in Philadelphia, and selected for its second President.

Hancock was the FIRST Governor of Massachusetts under the Constitution serving from 1780 to 1785, and again from 1787 until Oct. 8, 1793, being Governor at the time of his death.

The fact that John Hancock, when Governor, signed the act which incorporated the town of Quincy, should also have been inscribed on the tablet.

Dr. Pattee in his history of Quincy, said of Hancock: "Thus lived and died one of the noblest men of the American Revolution of 1776, who sacrificed his health, life and property to secure the independence of the United States."

Rev. W. W. Dornan, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, will deal with an interesting subject for Christians at the men's meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, "Do Protestants believe the Bible?" A male quartette will sing. All men are invited to attend this service.

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL.

Odd Fellows' Ball a Brilliant Success.

Nearly One Hundred Couples in Grand March.

Excellent Music by Towne's Orchestra—Supper by Hicks.

The fifteenth annual ball! Verily, Mt. Wollaston lodge is taking rank among the older secret orders of the city. It has given us in the past many very sucessful parties and the concert and ball of Thursday evening was among the most enjoyable, and a society event. It was not as largely attended as many of its predecessors, probably because it was not well advertised, but all in attendance had a good time.

The guests were received by the following reception committee: Franklin Jacobs (Chairman), John W. Nash, Tobias H. Burke, James W. Arbuckle, Hiram W. Campbell, Frank W. Flowers, Charles B. Tilton, John W. Hall, Charles B. Huston, N. B. Furnald, F. W. Folsom, John O. Hall. Alexander Shirley, Aubrey R. Keith, John McKnight, John G. Thomas, Maurice I. Gatcomb.

There was an excellent promenade concert from eight until nine o'clock by Towne's orchestra, who were stationed on the platform behind potted plants. The programme included the following popular selections:

1. March,—"Ideal," Reeves
2. Selection,—"Armorita," Czibulka

Promptly at nine o'clock the grand march was started, and as usual it was a feature of the evening. It was led by Mr. William R. Thomas the floor director, and Miss Lena Ballou, who were ably supported by Mr. Henry L. Kincaide and Mr. Charles M. Jenness, the assistant floor directors, who escorted Miss Grace Pettengill and Mrs. George Monk. The following aids with ladies came next and nearly one hundred couples: Edward L. Goodridge, Charles L. Hammond, Fred E. Goss, Benjamin Johnson, Jr., Henry P. Kittredge, E. Frank Mitchell, James Smith, Jr., Frank F. Prescott, Charles F. Pettengill, Joseph P. Prout, Arthur W. Stetson, Willaim A. Richard, Archie F. Macleod, John Graham, William Bassett, Maynard C. King, Nathan Ames, H. P. Furnald, George Prout, Jr. and George Ames.

When they swung into eight couples front, the lines were straight and it was an imposing sight to the hundreds in the gallery.

The order of dances included twenty numbers, but the round dances were encored and there were a few extras, so that all were pleased. The order was:

Wollaston Unitarian Sociable.

The Wollaston sociable on Thursday evening was quite a brilliant social event. At 6.30 o'clock an old-fashioned baked bean supper was served. This was partaken of with a relish by a large crowd of people. After that came the entertainment, and it was a musical treat. The young people, who entertained the large audience, did brilliant work on their violins and the piano.

Avery Bennett opened the entertainment with a well executed piano solo; Miss Myra Brown also played with equally as pleasing effect, as did Harold Baker on his violin.

Then there was music by the orchestra a larger part of whom were pupils of Miss Thomas on the violin. The orchestra was composed of Mr. I. F. Moorehouse, Mr. I. W. Faunce, Harold Baker, Emerson Bates, Wallace Bennett, Ray Weston, Carl Gram, and Ernest Merrill; Avery Bennett accompanist.

The committee of arrangements consisted of Mrs. George W. Bennett, Mrs. Samuel S. Delano, Mrs. E. Walter Arnold, Mrs. James A. Claflin, Mrs. Walter J. Wellington, Mrs. Rufus W. Poole, Mrs. Foss, Mrs. Brennan, Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Adelaide P. Armstrong, Mrs. George Weston and Mrs. I. W. Pinkham.

Beggars Arrested.

Two tramps who, when arrested, gave their names as Peter Lawson and Peter Anderson, and claimed to be brothers, terrorized the people on Cranch hill Thursday afternoon. The two men who had been drinking, went from house to house demanding clothing and money, and when they were not forthcoming the fellows used abusive, profane and threatening language. How far they would have carried their threats can not be said, for one of the fellows fell into the hands of Officer McKay and the other into the hands of Calvin Dyer who turned him over to Officer Holloran. Both were locked up on the charge of drunkenness. Thursday night a young man, who resides at 22 Granite street, recognized Lawson as the fellow who had called at their house on Wednesday and demanded money, and who, when he departed, helped himself to a new overcoat belonging to one of the inmates, which was hanging in the hall.

The bargains advertised in the Boston papers have been found deceptive and unreliable, but the people of Quincy and vicinity have a notable January sale right at their door. From Greenville he intends to go to New Orleans. The people of the Quincy parish are sorry to lose the services of Fr. Cunningham, but hope that he may thoroughly enjoy his southern trip.

The programme of the People's course for Saturday evening presents two features which are novelties in Quincy. The first in the pantomine sketch by the Ravel Duo. In this act one of the Ravels impersonates a clown and makes his partner's life miserable by playing all sorts of practical jokes on him. They bring with them a "trick house" which contains innumerable doors and windows which open in unexpected places. The other novelty is Wait, the trick violinist, who plays upon his violin with everything from a comb to a piece of charcoal, and ends his act by making the violin talk.

A lot of trouble and a lot cost for us, say you? Yes, both trouble and cost, but we shall get it back again from the Shoe sales we shall make during the next year—Genuine Vici Kid, bought from Mr. Robert H. Foerderer. He makes Vici Kid. He is the only man in all the world who can make genuine Vici Kid. He discovered how to make it, he named it, he keeps the secret. He tans more than NINE MILLIONS young kid skins every year into Vici.

It is to get a sample of the real Vici Kid into every home that we send out these pretty slippers. Don't fail to bring your dolly. If we cannot fit its feet with the slippers in stock, we will make a pair to measure.

EVENTFUL DAY.

A Brigade Drill, Sham Battle, Etc., at Camp.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 9.

Today has been a very eventful day. The morning breaking out in beautiful sunshine, and the usual morning drills, came at 11 o'clock. Our friend, the paymaster, who is always welcomed in camp, arrived at this hour. The paying off did not commence until after dinner but by 2.30 every man in the regiment had his hard-earned monthly payment, making many cheerful and bright hearts.

At three, a brigade drill was ordered, under the command of General Lawton. Our regiment left the camp, and marched over to the large tract of land on the opposite side, near the 201st New York, where we took our position on the left of the line, the 4th Missouri having the right of line. Shortly after our arrival on the above grounds, every man was issued 10 rounds of blank ammunition. At the command of the General, his orderly bugler sounded the call for attack, and a line of skirmishers from the 5th Massachusetts and 4th Missouri, went forward. Each battalion of these two regiments made charges at separate intervals, with the 201st New York coming on as the support. The volley firing could be heard for miles around and in a short duration of time attracted a large crowd of people to witness our sham battle.

The charges were made over ditches, cotton fields, down into cavities of the earth, over the high banks of the Southern railroad, across the tracks, up the banking on the other side of railroad, and then a grand charge across the cotton fields. The two regiments then took a position lying down, and commenced "firing at will." The next command was to "retreat," the 5th Massachusetts and 4th Missouri making the retreat back across the railroad tracks, while the 201st New York, continued firing, so as to keep the enemy at bay, while these two regiments took their position again under shelter.

The whole movements were cleverly conducted, not any accidents happening. It was quite laughable to see the boys trying to climb the wet clay on the railroad banks, many falling, and rolling over and over, but for all this, the boys paid no attention but succeeded in reaching the top.

Shortly after 4 o'clock, the brigade was dismissed, and each command, marched back to its own camp ground.

At 5 o'clock, came our grand evening review, which our boys executed in capital style. Tonight we are enjoying the beautiful strains of our Regimental band, it having a preparatory practice for Wednesday which will be our "Massachusetts Day."

It is pleasing to note, that at the beginning of this week, we have the least number of sick on our books since leaving Camp Dalton, Framingham. It is quite a pleasing fact to note, and we hope that we may continue in this way.

Private Berry arrived in camp at 2 P. M. today, after a long absence from his company.

We are now waiting orders from division headquarters, and before Sunday we expect to be on the move for parts yet unknown.

Sergeant Crane is still kept busy from reveille until retreat, looking after commissory stores.

Sergeant Colbert has received a new schedule timetable from the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad, which he diligently studies each day. Volunteer.

Concert at Atlantic.

On Wednesday evening occurred one of the finest concerts of the season at the Memorial church. Mr. Ulmer H. Manning tenor of Boston, was the manager and was assisted by the following artists: Mrs. P. B. Farrar, soprano; Mrs. L. J. Child, contralto; Mrs. C. W. Philips, mezzo soprano; Miss E. A. Goodwin, violinist; Mr. Look, pianist; also the church choir: Miss Susie M. Hall, soprano; Miss Annie P. Hall, contralto; Mr. W. G. Gassett, tenor; Mr. B. F. Thomas, bass; Miss Emilie Gassett, accompanist.

The whole programme was delightfully rendered. Mr. Manning in the duets and trios giving to the audience the same musical enjoyment they always appreciate when they can have the pleasure of listening to him. Mrs. Child's performance in every number was charming. Mrs. Farrar, though suffering from a severe cold, sang with much strength and expression. Mrs. Philips was pleasing in "The Angels' Serenade" while Miss Goodwin in her solos, as also in her violin obligatos was most highly applauded. Mr. Look accompanied with skill. Every member of the church choir did his and her best and showed fine results for the careful and systematic training by Mr. Manning, and Miss Gassett's accompaniments were fine.

Altogether the Atlantic people feel as though they had had a fine musical treat.

Pickwick Banquet.

The Quincy Pickwick club celebrated its twenty-sixth anniversary by a dinner at the United States hotel, Boston, Thursday evening. Twenty-two members were present. An excellent menu was served. After the dinner an unusualy good literary and musical programme was given by the members. The club was welcomed by Mrs. Alden in a poem full of interest and wit. The informal toasts were responded to by Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Gurney and Mrs. Marsh; Mrs. Gurney read some of the inimitable observations of Mr. Dooley and Mrs. Beattie also read a bright tale of Thankgiving time. The feeling occasioned by the grip were portrayed by Mr. Simmon with an exactness that would do credit to Rudyard Kipling. Music was furnished by Mrs. Badger, Mrs. Hall, Miss Isaac, and Mr. Gurney. The meeting was a most enjoyable one.

Illustrated Song Recital.

The Young Men's Social club connected with the Unitarian church at Wollaston, gave a fine entertainment in the church on Tuedsay evening. It was something new to Wollaston being an illustrated song recital.

Miss Juliet Wells, vocalist of Boston, was assisted by Miss Rachel Noah, reader; Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, organist; and Mr. Carl Sobeski, tenor soloist. Miss Noah was very popular with her audience, her selections being new and cleverly done. Mrs. Smith's organ selections were good, as all of her musical work always is. Mr. Sobeski sang two groups of songs, beside duets with Miss Wells and was in good voice and all his selections were enjoyed. The feature of the whole programme were the illustrated songs, Miss Wells singing several contralto solos, which were illustrated by the stereopticon. During some of the selections a dozen or more views were shown.

Adrift From Nut Island.

The old side-wheel steamer Lewiston, which was sold at United States marshal's sale some months ago and taken to Nut island, where she was beached, was forced into deep water by the ice Wednesday morning, and drifted ashore on Grape island. Shipkeeper John Yarwood and his wife, who were on board the vessel, climbed out on a raft which was towing astern, fearing that the Lewiston would fill and sink. They remained in their exposed position for two hours before they were finally taken off by a tug. The Lewiston has recently been sold by Thomas Butler & Co., the firm which purchased her when she was disposed of at auction. The new owner is Ralph Dean, who intends to break the vessel up.—Herald.

TREATY DISCUSSION.

Shall It Be Conducted Openly Or Behind Closed Doors?

Some Senators Think World Should Not Listen.

Others Insist That the Public Should Be Taken Into Confidence.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The fight on the treaty seems to be on in earnest. Yesterday there was a sort of "lining-up" in the senate and as a result the opposition to the treaty seems to be stronger. Senators Hoar and Hale were outspoken in their intentions to fight the treaty at every step and this has given heart to the opponents of the measure.

The declaration of their position by so many senators arose out of an informal discussion as to whether the treaty should be discussed in private or public sessions. This led to some surprises. Some senators voted for public sessions who were expected to favor secrecy, and some favored private sessions who might be expected to prefer a public discussion.

The discussion continued from a few minutes past 1 o'clock until about 5, when the senate adjourned for the day without reaching a vote upon the Berry motion. It was a running debate, in which Senators Berry, White, Hale, Hoar, Vest and others in opposition to the treaty met Senators Davis, Frye, Teller, Gray and others in advocacy of it. Probably 20 senators spoke, but some of them did little more than ask questions. Still speeches of some length were made by Messrs. Teller and Frye on the one hand and by Messrs. Hale and Hoar on the other. There were many animated colloquies between senators, and for a time an exceptional degree of feeling was shown.

The proceedings opened with a speech by Senator Berry supporting his motion for open sessions, and he was replied to briefly by Senators Davis and Frye, Senator Vest later supporting and Senator Teller opposing the motion. The discussion over the point hinged entirely on the contention on the one hand that the public was entitled to know what was taking place in the disposition of so important a question as the ratification of the peace treaty, and on the other that the debate was sure to develop facts and call forth utterances which should not be given to other nations. It was argued by those favoring the motion that no harm would be done by taking the public into the senate's confidence, while those opposed stated that vast international questions were involved which could be considered in a far more judicial and calm manner behind closed doors than with the whole world invited to listen.

"Suppose it was important that the matter be kept private," said Senator Vest, "no one supposed that this result could be secured. The senate's executive secrets, so-called, were invariably known to the world."

Senator White thought it safe to say that the important points at least would all go to the public.

The senators who had acted as members of the Paris commission, Messrs. Davis, Frye and Gray, all antagonized the motion for open doors. They stated that from their experience in the negotiation of the treaty, many questions involving grave international controversies were liable to be raised, and all urged the preservation of the custom of closed doors. Senator Teller sustained them in this position, stating that he considered the present complication too grave and the present, of all times, the most inopportune for a change of the custom.

Senator Hoar, for the first time in his life, advocated open sessions, declaring that no fact could be developed in connection with the treaty too important for the American people to know. It was the people's affair, said Senator White, and the people should be invited at least to listen to the discussion of the question. He said that if the commissioners who were present in the senate had any great secrets they should give them to the senate forthwith.

These circumstances led to a renewal of the discussion of the wisdom and good policy of appointing senators as members of the peace commission.

Naturally, too, the senate drifted into a discussion of the treaty itself and the intention of this government towards the Filipinos, much being said on the lines of Senator Foraker's open session speech. Senators Gray, Frye and Teller talked upon those matters, the speeches being on the same general lines as those made in support of expansion in open session. Senator Gray announced himself as a supporter of the treaty, admitting, however, that at the beginning he had some misgivings as to the policy involved. Still there could be no two opinions on the general question of surrendering the islands back to Spain, and with this question disposed of in the negative, it only remained for the United States to take at least temporary control of the islands. He had no doubt that the United States would deal fairly with the natives of the islands.

Senator Teller's speech was a more pronounced declaration for American sovereignty in the islands, and was a zealous plea for the recognition of our right as a nation to make conquest and to hold the country taken. He, too, would award the natives fair treatment, but he would leave no doubt in their minds that they were subjects of the United States.

An interesting point bearing upon the treaty was brought out in connection with the confirmation of General Wherry. Senator Hawley asked for action upon the nomination, saying that it was urgent because it was designed that General Wherry should go to the Philippines, and that he should proceed there as soon as practicable. The opposition senators criticised the policy of sending troops to those islands at present, Senator Hale leading in this onslaught. They had supposed, they said, that this practice would cease with the signing of the protocol. Some of the senators intimated that this policy, in connection with speeches made in the senate, was calculated, if not intended, to excite the Filipinos to acts of hostility.

Senators Hale and Hoar announced openly that they were determined to vote against the treaty, and while the discussion was in progress a number of Democratic senators held a conference for the purpose of deciding upon a course of antagonism calculated to secure its defeat. While confessing that they are not yet able to count enough senators to insure this result, they profess to be very hopeful as a result of the work so far done.

The senate devoted a few minutes of its executive session to the consideration of the promotions of Rear Admirals Sampson, Schley and other naval officers out of their regular order. Senator Hale made an effort to have the nominations confirmed, but at Senator Chandler's instance action was postponed. Mr. Chandler suggested that while the honors conferred were the result of a laudable desire to reward gallantry, the senate should proceed cautiously so as to make sure of not doing injustice to other meritorious officers who did not have the same opportunities for distinguishing themselves as these officers whose nominations had been sent to the senate.

MAKE A GOOD CASE,

Opinion on the Declarations Concerning the Court of Cassation.

Paris, Jan. 13.—The evident tendency abroad to minimize and even ridicule the declarations of de Beaurepaire, the former president of the civil section of the court of cassation, is regarded here as a further example of the disposition outside of France to belittle every incident and all evidence unfavorable to the Dreyfusist cause. It is impossible to converse with representative men in Paris without seeing that the action of M. de Beaurepaire has created a deep impression.

M. DE BEAUREPAIRE.

The facts he alleges are not trivial. Some of them are held to be of real importance, and all of them, taken together, are thought to make out a good case against the criminal branch of the court of cassation. Moreover, it is noteworthy that M. de Beaurepaire's declarations have made a deeper impression in the legal world than anywhere else. Dreyfusist views had been making great headway at the palais de justice during the last four months, but now they have few defenders in the criminal branch.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 13.—The new Massachusetts Telephone and Telegraph company was before Commissioner of Corporations Endicott yesterday asking approval of an issue of $10,000 stock. There was no opposition. The commissioner approved the issue. A bill was presented in the house amending the liquor license law by granting licensing boards discretion when abutters protest against license within 25 feet of their property. There was filed with the clerk of the house a resolution calling for the ratification of the treaty with Spain by the United States senate, but demanding that immediately thereafter self-government shall be secured to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. In the senate an order was adopted for 1 o'clock sessions on Friday of each week. Governor Wolcott sent to the executive council the following appointments: Fisher Ames, Boston, to prepare changes in public statutes; Henry W. Flagg, Brockton, to be clerk of the police court of Brockton; Alexander O'D. Taylor, Newport, R. I., commissioner of deeds for Massachusetts and notary public; Miss Elva H. Young, Springfield, a special commissioner. Miss Young has lately been admitted to the bar.

Two resolutions covering national questions were as follows:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the legislature of this commonwealth that the treaty of peace negotiated at Paris should be ratified, and that, when the relinquishment of the sovereignty of Spain over Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands is finally secured, the United States should fulfil to Porto Rico and the Philippine islands the pledge of self-government made to Cuba at the inauguration of the late war."

"Resolved, That the thanks of the legislature are hereby extended to the Hon. George F. Hoar, senior senator from this commonwealth, for the able and eloquent speech delivered by him on Jan. 9 in the United States senate, and for his firm adherence to the principles of the declaration of independence and of the constitution of the United States."

Prosperous Essex.

Salem, Mass., Jan. 13.—The report of County Treasurer Jenkins of Essex county for 1898 is a most remarkable document, showing, as it does, a net balance of cash on hand and accounts due the county of almost $40,000 over and above liabilities. Essex county has been absolutely free from debt for over two years. Essex county has no bonded debt. The cash in the treasury and amounts due the county aggregate $57,261.78. The total liabilities are $17,480.30, leaving a balance in favor of the county of $39,781.48.

In Trustees' Hands.

Providence, Jan. 13.—The Hartwell & Richards Co., jobbers of dry and fancy goods, and founded in 1841, has gone into the hands of trustees. President Chapman and Director Richards, the latter the former head of the old firm, were appointed trustees, the property being conveyed to them in a deed of trust. The business will probably be wound up. The inventory Jan. 1 showed a stock of about $150,000, and book accounts value the total assets at about $300,000. The liabilities are about $130,000, all in amounts less than $10,000.

This is what that scientifi-wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe. Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in

This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give herewith. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last season was spent in Florada. Employed many local physicians during this time and used socalled sarsaparillas but found no permanent relief till I tried Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 28 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M. the well-known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." THERE IS CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR THE DOLLIES, TOO.

TODAY IS DOLL'S DAY

for Vici Kid—the day we have arranged to give every Quincy girl who, accompanied by a parent, brings her doll to the store, a pair of genuine Vici Kid Slippers for its feet, or else make the slippers to measure. If a shoe gets wet from long exposure, it does not dry hard and stiff as calf would or crackly as French Kid used to, but it remains pliable, and with a touch of becomes as lustrous and exquisitely fine to the touch as when fresh from the factory. Why? Ah! that is Mr. Robert H. Foerderer's secret. The tanning world would give millions to know. But you can buy Vici shoes for as little money as those made from make-believe stock.

VICI KID

Today, just as we have been doing every day, we dress shoes with these Vici Preparations free of charge. A ladies' maid in attendance. We want all to feel perfectly free to come in. They will not be annoyed by urgings to buy.

THE TRUE TONIC TRUE'S ELIXIR

is not a stimulant but a blood purifying, cleansing and harmless mixture of vegetable ingredients which cures disorders of the digestive tract and expels worms. It does not whip the tired organs into temporary activity as most remedies do, followed by an equal reaction, but True's Elixir removes the cause of the trouble and its tonic effects are due to good, sound digestion and pure blood, which follow its use. A favorite family medicine for 47 years. Its popularity is due entirely to its cures. Ask your druggist for it. 85 cents a bottle. DR. J. F. TRUE & CO., AUBURN, ME.

THE UNITY CLUB.

Rev. E. C. Butler the Leading Speaker of the Evening.

The Unity Club's very attractive programme filled to over-flowing the vestry of Wollaston Unitarian church last evening. The literary part of the programme was in charge of Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper, and the musical was in charge of Mr. L. Dowley Williams. Mr. Williams was assisted by Miss Florence Emery, who sang with great spirit two of Scarlatti's Canzonettas, Mr. Williams himself playing a pastorale and a sonata by the same composer and also a minuet by Boccherini. Mrs. Wilson Marsh gave an interesting account of the lives of the composers of the evening.

The Rev. Ellery Channing Butler of the First church spoke on the Woldenses, a Christian denomination in Italy which was founded in the lattter part of the 12th century for the purpose of bringing back the church to primitive and apostolical purity. It is impossible to give an idea in type of the brillancy of Mr. Butler's address on this denomination, paralleling it with Catholicism; scintilating with wit and wisdom, and bristling with apt stories. From a religious as well as a secular point of view it was one of the most liberal discourses ever delivered by a Protestant clergyman on Protestantism and Catholicism. It was worthy of the man who delivered it, and the religion which he represents. It was listened to with the closest attention by the large audience and was vigorously applauded at the finish.

Marchiavelli, the modern Aristotle in politics, was treated upon in a paper by Miss Isabella S. Foote of the Woodward Institute.

Mrs. F. A. Tupper read an ably prepared paper on Michael Angelo.

Carrie E. Kendrick.

We regret to learn of the sudden death of Carrie E. Kendrick of Cambridge who died suddenly of the grip on Wednesday last at her brother-in-laws Mr. E. L. Bidwell, in Manchester, Conn. By her death Boston loses one of her best and well known lady telegraph operators.

Mrs. Kendrick was an expert in her line, and has been employed for the past six or seven years by the well known banking house of Fuller, Tilton & Co., of 65 Devonshire street, where she was held in the highest esteem.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick have been married a little over a year, and resides at 56 A Harvard street, Cambridge.

Mr. Kendrick is a brother of Mrs. Frank N. Benson of 1 Quincy street, this city. Mr. Kendrick resided for many years at 66 Franklin street, South Quincy. Mr. Kendrick has the sympathy of all that knew her.

Brother William White of the Mansfield News is very obliging to the ladies. Hear what he says: "Hobson has left the country. But any ambitious young ladies wishing to transmit to him osculatory favors can leave them at this office. If the favors fail to reach him through our agency they will be cheerfully returned upon application."

—The Boston Journal says: "With bank clearing the heaviest on record, and business failures only about two-thirds as numerous as a year ago, the first week of January was a prosperous beginning of what promises to be a booming year."

Child Study.

A most instructive and enjoyable lecture enforcing the present importance of the scientific study of childhood and the application of Froebels principles of education to the right training of children from early infancy through their school life, was given by Mrs. Walton of New York before the Milton Woman's club, at Town hall, Jan. 7.

The speaker especially emphasized the necessity of all mothers understanding the development of their own children of their using "Froebles Mother plays" for the training of senses and muscles and of their moulding the child's will to unselfishness.

The value of the Kindergarten to true education, explaining the meaning and use of gifts and occupation, the aesthetic benefit from the study of nature and from the use of songs and stories, and moreover the self control, the cooperation, constructive power and self-activity which come as results from the beautiful and progressive life of The Kindergarten.

The need of carrying the Kindergarten spirit and methods on through the later education of the child and so preventing the sudden break which occurs in the lives of most children once rightly started.

—In Boston during January a very large number of dividends are to be paid on the many stocks of railroads and corporations and the total sum will amount to $17,333,628. It is the largest sum ever paid out for the purpose in Boston in any one month and will put a large amount of money in circulation for the benefit of the retail trade.

END COMES.

Mr. Dingley Passes to the Great Beyond.

Unable to Keep Up the Battle For Life.

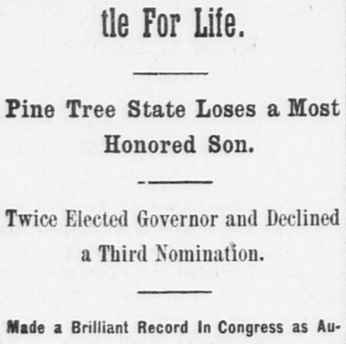
Pine Tree State Loses a Most Honored Son.

Twice Elected Governor and Declined a Third Nomination.

Made a Brilliant Record In Congress as Authority on National Affairs.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Nelson Dingley died last night at 10:30 in his rooms at the Hamilton hotel. By his bedside were his two sons, E. N. and A. H. Dingley, the two nurses who have attended him from the beginning of his illness, and Dr. Henry B. Deale. Mrs. Dingley and Miss Dingley, worn out with watching, were with Mrs. Russell in Congressman Russell's rooms below. They had left the sick chamber hardly 15 minutes before. The end came as sleep comes to a child.

While the past few days have given great hope of recovery, the progress of the disease had made the patient dangerously weak, and had seriously affected his heart. Late Thursday night, and again yesterday morning, Mr. Dingley had a bad sinking spell, from which he slightly rallied. There were further evidences of heart failure as the day progressed, and the strongest stimulants were administered, but without effect.



NELSON DINGLEY, JR.

He failed perceptibly during the afternoon, and as night came on hope was abandoned. Mrs. Dingley is very much prostrated by her husband's death, and is now under the care of a physician.

There were many genuine and heartfelt expressions of sympathy when it became known that the Maine congressman was dead. All during his illness, which he struggled against so vigorously, there has been constant inquiries at the hotel at which he resided, as to his condition. The Hamilton House, where Mr. Dingley resided, has been the resort for a number of years for most of the congressional contingent from Maine, and it was here that Mr. Dingley spent all the past 16 years of his life when his congressional duties called him to Washington. He had with him his wife and daughter, his sons being here but little.

Representative Dingley's illness dates back to Dec. 29, when he complained that he was not well. The physician diagnosed his case as one of grip, and cautioned the patient to keep to his room. The following Saturday pneumonia developed in the left lung, complicated with great irregularity of the heart. Skillful treatment brought good results, and on Thursday there were signs that the lung was beginning to clear. The next day, however, the disease took an alarming turn, and the two sons in Michigan were telegraphed for. On that day Mr. Dingley had promised to deliver a lecture before the Brooklyn museum of art and sciences on the topic "Sources of Revenue For the government."

Nelson Dingley, Jr., governor of Maine, 1874-5, and members of congress from the Second congressional district of Maine since 1881, was born in Durham, Me., in his grandfather's farmhouse, Feb. 15, 1832, son of Nelson and Jane (Lambert) Dingley. The year following his birth his parents moved to Parkman, where they lived on a farm for a short time, and then took charge of the village tavern, with which a store was connected. In 1838 the family removed to Unity, and then in 1854 to Auburn. At 17 he taught a winter school in the town of China, and he continued to teach winters while fitting for college. In 1850, at the age of 18, he entered Waterville academy, and there completed his preparation for college. Entering Waterville college (now Colby university) in 1851, he remained there a year and a half and then became a student at Dartmouth college, from which institution he graduated in 1855, with high rank as a scholar, debater and writer.

After leaving college Mr. Dingley studied law in 1855-6 at Auburn, to which city his parents had removed while he was in college, and in the latter year he was admitted to the bar. Instead of entering upon the practice of law, he decided to become a journalist, for which profession he always manifested a decided taste. In September, 1856, he purchased the Lewiston Journal, published in the adjoining city of Lewiston, of which he had been practically the editor while studying law, and to which, in 1861, he added a daily edition. The paper rapidly increased in circulation and influence under his management.

His first vote was cast in 1854 for Anson P. Morrill, the anti-slavery and temperance candidate for governor, a political combination from which arose the Republican party of Maine during the following winter. He threw himself into the Fremont campaign in 1856 with all the ardor of youth and ability of age.

In 1861, at the age of 29, he was elected representative from Auburn to the state legislature, in which body he at once took high rank, was re-elected in 1862, and chosen speaker of the house at the session of 1863. In 1863 he removed to Lewiston, where a few months after he was elected to the legislature, and at the opening of the legislative session of 1864 was unanimously re-elected speaker. At the state election of 1864 he was elected to the house a fourth time, and at the session of 1865 was again tendered the position of speaker, which he declined, preferring to take his place on the floor. He was also a representative to the legislature from Lewiston in 1868 and 1873.

In forming his cabinet prior to entering on the duties of chief executive, March 4, 1897, President McKinley tendered the position of secretary of the treasury to Mr. Dingley, but he declined the offer, preferring to remain in his position as chairman of the ways and means committee and floor leader of the Republican majority of the house.

When Mr. Dingley was first elected to congress he received a majority of 5000 votes. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth congress by a majority of 14,000 votes. When he entered congress he was made a member of the committee on banking and currency, serving there eight years. At the beginning of his congressional career, the country was disturbed on the question of the extension of charters of the National Bank association. He immediately identified himself with a bill for the extension of the charters of the banks, and, in the face of much opposition, helped fight the bill through. The opposition to the resumption of specie payments had not been dissipated, and Mr. Dingley had no small part in befriending the government in its policy.

But it is difficult to name any important legislation in congress in the last 15 years with which he was not identified. While he had been active in financial matters, he was thoroughly informed on shipping. It was through his influence that a committee on ship owners and ship interests was created in the house. He was at the head of the minority of that committee, whose successor has been the present useful committee on merchant marine and fisheries. In the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth and Fiftieth congresses there was a great deal of agitation in favor of subsidizing American ships to carry the mails. Mr. Dingley was a hearty champion of this, and framed a bill which finally became a law, paying to American ships of certain register and speed a compensation for transporting American mails. In the Fifty-first congress he was given membership by Speaker Reed, whose right arm he has been in recent years, on the ways and means committee. When in the Fifty-second congress the Democrats succeeded to power, Speaker Crisp transferred Mr. Dingley to the minority of the committee on appropriations. He made himself a valuable man there, serving for four years, and displaying a knowledge of appropriations hardly surpassed by any of the older members. President McKinley always had a strong friendship for Mr. Dingley since they served together in the house.

Mr. Dingley's father was a trader, not particularly well to do, and the boy bent himself to work at an early age. His steadiness of purpose came from his old Puritan stock, but his intellectual ability came from his mother, a woman educated far beyond her station or the average of cultivation in those days. She was a school teacher, and brought all the discipline and knowledge of her mind to bear upon the training of her son, and he found her influence one of the greatest factors in his success.

Mr. Dingley made a great success of his newspaper, the Lewiston Journal. "My paper," he would say with pride, "has a larger circulation than any other paper in Maine. I would rather write for it than do any other kind of work."

For the ordinary manipulations of politics, Mr. Dingley had no use whatever. He paid no attention to primaries or delegates. Every two years his people renominated him by acclamation. He devoted his time to acquiring experience and knowledge, which made him more and more valuable.

He was not an orator. He lacked the physical presence and the voice. Nevertheless, all the members listened when he arose to speak. He had a wonderfully lucid way of asserting facts, going at once to the heart of every contested point. He also had a remarkable faculty of presenting an argument. His mind was logical to the highest degree. Mr. Dingley loved society, but he did not allow it to become his master. He was generally in bed every night at 10 o'clock, and at work by 7 in the morning. He never let his work get behindhand. Everything he did was done in order.

Mr. Dingley was a homebody. He would rather read or see his friends than to stir out of the house. Although his reading was largely of a serious character, he had a sense of humor, and was fond of Mark Twain's books.

Mr. Dingley was always a Prohibitionist. For many years he was president of the Congregational Temperance society. He was also a church goer, belonging to the Congregationalists. His family consists of his widow, who was Miss Salome McKinney of Auburn, Me.; a daughter, Miss Edith, who has a fine soprano voice, and four sons. One of these, Harry, is in Mexico; two others, Edward and Arthur, are here, and a fourth, Albert, is in Colorado.

The funeral will be conducted at the house of representatives on Monday next. The body will be taken to the house at 10 o'clock, and there lie in state until noon, when services will be conducted in the presence of the house and senate. At 4:20 in the afternoon the funeral party will leave for Lewiston, Me., arriving there at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Further services will be held at the family residence in Lewiston on Wednesday. The interment will be in that city.

IS STILL IN EVIDENCE.

Gomez Appears to Have Acquired Love For Late Spanish Foes.

Will Not Be Considered For Any High Civil Office.

General Otis Has Situation Well In Hand In the Philippines.

Havana, Jan. 14.—General Maximo Gomez, who is still in the interior, continues to keep his program before the people. It is this in substance: First, the island is not yet free and independent; second, Cubans and Spaniards should unite to make it so; third, all the inhabitants of the island should give the United States full credit and co-operate cheerfully for the present.

General Gomez has written to the principal Cuban commanders instructing them to keep the Cubans, soldiers and civilians, from committing any outrage upon Spaniards, and to aid in the arrest and punishment of any Cuban guilty of such an offense.

General Gomez is regarded by the United States military administration as scarcely suited to any high civil office. He is considered a soldier of fortune; his manners are of the camp, and he is deficient in education. But he will be received with all possible courtesy if he comes to Havana, though it does not yet appear how he could become a part of the civil administration, as the form of oath prepared for civil officials pledges allegiance to the military government of the United States in Cuba, obedience to all the orders of the military governor and conformity to the existing laws of Cuba and to such changes as may hereafter be made in them.

Rebels on the Defensive.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Yesterday's reports from Manila say that the situation there is critical, but Major General Otis has it well in hand, and there is no such certainty of trouble as many believe. The rebels are concentrated on the outskirts of the town; but their leaders have issued strict orders that the Filipino forces are to act only on the defensive.

An accident might precipitate trouble, but the idea of a rebel attack upon Manila is ridiculous and suicidal, as the Americans absolutely control the position.

Aguinaldo has republished the second manifesto, in reply to the proclamation of General Otis, which was recalled on its first appearance, but it has proved ineffectual.

On Wednesday a false alarm, due to trivial incidents occurring simultaneously in opposite parts of the city, led to a general call to the United States forces. In 15 minutes the entire city was entirely covered. The promptitude of the Americans, while it created a scare for the moment, effectually restored confidence throughout Manila, and dispelled the excitement due to a passing fear on the part of the citizens that an outbreak was imminent.

It is possible that the Filipinos, after the diplomatic conferences that have been had between the representatives of General Otis and Aguinaldo, have finally come to understand that the cautious and conservative policy of the Americans is not due to fear, and that they will accept the inevitable with good grace. It is evident that at present they are unable to appreciate the full meaning of the independence demanded, and that, when they do understand its extent, the American propositions will be acceptable.

Germany Not Meddling.

Berlin, Jan. 14.—After a thorough investigation it has been ascertained that the report that Germany is aiding the Filipinos and furnishing them with war materials is absolutely baseless. Baron Von Buelow, imperial secretary of state for foreign affairs, personally authorizes the statement that such reports are justified by nothing Germany has done, is doing or is preparing to do. Legation Councillor Hamann of the foreign office, being empowered to speak for the government, supplemented the above, stating that he was amazed that "such baseless lies, though disproved again and again, should still find credence." The officials at the United States embassy feel sure that there is nothing whatever in the rumors.

Cuban Laborers on Strike.

Santiago, Jan. 14.—The laborers on some of the sugar estates in the Guantanamo district have gone on strike, and the trouble is likely to spread. The cause assigned by the strikers is that the storekeepers charge a discount on Spanish gold. The men say they receive the same amount now as under the old regime, but are compelled to pay 9 percent in their purchases.

To Place the Blame.

Easton, Pa., Jan. 14.—Superintendent Spriggs of the Lehigh Valley railroad and Trainmaster Harleman yesterday began the examination of witnesses to fix the responsibility for the wreck at West Dunellen, N. J., on Monday last, when 16 lives were lost. The hearing was behind closed doors, and a number of witnesses were heard. No announcement will be made of the proceedings until all the testimony is in.

Tomorrow's Almanac and Forecast.

Sun rises—7:11; sets, 4:37.
Moon sets—9:38 p. m.
High water—1:30 a. m.; 2 p. m.

The storm which developed yesterday in Texas has moved to the middle Mississippi valley, increasing in intensity, and has caused snow in northern New England and rain from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast. The temperature has risen in the Atlantic states and has remained nearly stationary elsewhere. The temperature will rise in New England, with probably fair weather.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Continued Activity Noted In Nearly All Lines of Trade.

New York, Jan. 14.—Bradstreet's says: Perhaps the most notable feature of the trade situation at present is the strength of price of nearly all staples, but particularly of cereals, cotton, iron and steel. Wheat and corn are both in exceptionally good demand abroad, and good foreign demand is likewise the secret of strength in cotton. A feature of dealing in this staple is the ready demand for good grades, and the indifference manifested toward low grades, which are larger than usual supply. While large sales of iron and steel are not so numerous as in recent weeks further advances in prices, notably steel billets, plates and rods, bear testimony to the eagerness of buyers to secure supplies. Pig iron production is the heaviest ever known, but stocks show further depletion. The tin plates show the effect of the consolidation in this line in an advance from the low figure reached some months ago.

The strength of cotton goods is still a feature of the drygoods market, but the hope for advance in raw wool has not yet materialized, and the trade in manufactured goods is still slow.

The feeling of confidence in the lumber trade is unabated, and an active demand is looked for in the spring, the strength of hardwoods being a particular feature.

Prices for boots and shoes are held steadily, and the outlook is regarded as favorable. Leather, too, is firm, and hides are in sympathy.

In other industries activity is a feature, a notable instance being the heavy vessel tonnage now being built both at the lakes and on the seacoast, aggregating for mercantile and national purposes a total claimed to be far in excess of any previous period in the country's history.

Business failures for the week number 304, against 237 last week, but comparing with 323 in this week a year ago, 478 in 1897, 412 in 1896 and 378 in 1895.

A Bigamous Jurist.

Charlestown, W. Va., Jan. 14.—Judge Thomas Jefferson Mackey of South Carolina, who was indicted last November on the charge of bigamy, left here yesterday with a deputy sheriff and his counsel for Martinsburg, where he was admitted to bail before Judge Faulkner. Mackey married Miss Katharine Porterfield in July last, and a few weeks afterwards a woman claiming to be his lawful wife appeared in New York. She sued him for a divorce, which has been granted, and now he will be remarried to Miss Porterfield.

Testimony Much Wanted

Waterville, Me., Jan. 14.—The much sought for Bert Priest, who is alleged to be connected with the Henry Bushby assault case of North Vassalboro on Dec. 10, has been captured and brought to this city. Bushby was alleged to have received fearfully hard usage at John Morrill's barber shop, from the effects of which he died Dec. 30. Bert Priest was the one witness uncaptured. It is expected that this man can give valuable information, if he is not directly implicated in the deed.

Woman In the Case.

Waverly, N. Y., Jan. 14.—William Rutledge, 60 years of age, was shot in the head yesterday at his home in Sayre, Pa., by John Henry, who had formerly boarded with Rutledge and his young wife. Rutledge died last night. Considerable jealousy had been aroused during Henry's stay at Rutledge's house. Yesterday the men quarreled over the matter, and the shooting followed. Henry was arrested. He claims that he shot in self-defense. Mrs. Rutledge refuses to talk.

A Million "Taken."

New York, Jan. 14.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Tradesmen's National bank, whose former president was James McNaughton, arrested Thursday, was held yesterday. It was decided to place the bank in voluntary liquidation at once. The doors of the bank were closed in October last. J. J. Adams, counsel for the Tradesmen's National bank, said that $1,000,000 had been "taken from the bank," and that he was anxious to know what became of it.

No Longer a Suspect.

Saco, Me., Jan. 14.—Ex-County Attorney Emmons has received a letter from Deputy Sheriff Fogg of Sanford containing the information that, after making an investigation, he learned that Peter Welch, for whom the officer has been looking on suspicion that he knew something of the Ivory F. Boothby murder, had stopped in Sanford on Sept. 14, the night of the murder. This practically ends the search for Welch, as it clears him of suspicion.

Short on Meat.

Berlin, Jan. 14.—The Deutsche Fleischer Zeitung, the official organ of the butchers, prints a detailed answer to the statements in the reichstag of the minister of agriculture, when he declared it his firm conviction that Germany could be made self-supporting in the matter of food stuffs. The paper will show conclusively by official statistics that Germany does not produce enough meat for home consumption.

Had a Grand Record.

Mount Holly, N. J., Jan. 14.—Captain Douglas Ottinger, the oldest officer of the United States revenue marine service, died here yesterday, aged 94. He was the inventor of the life car used for many years in the life saving service, for which he received the thanks of congress and a substantial award of money. During his long career he saved hundreds of lives, and personally saved 21 vessels from shipwreck.

Grand Trunk Accepts.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 14.—The Grand Trunk Railway company yesterday filed its acceptance of the Central Vermont Railway company's bill, which passed the last legislature. The act incorporating the new company provides $185,000 for unprotected creditors of the Central Vermont road and allows 60 days in which the incorporators are to file acceptances.

Collier Went Down.

London, Jan. 14.—Steamer Mozart, from New York, which arrived yesterday and anchored off Woolwich, was afterwards struck by the collier Perseverance, from Shields, while the latter vessel was swinging in the river. The collier sank. The damage to the Mozart is not stated.

$7,500 COUNTRY HOUSE.

Design Is Sensible, Style Excellent and Arrangement Convenient.

[Copyright, 1899, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

The erection of a country home is not fraught with the elements of danger that prevailed some years ago. The art of building has improved to that degree that the risks and errors of the past are practically obliterated, and today he who builds, if he does not do it wisely and well, can invariably thank himself for the ignorance that leads him astray.

It is well to bear in mind that the best architect is the cheapest in the long run, and that it is far better to engage the experienced man, who has solved every practical problem of construction and is fully conversant with values, costs and labor required, than the impractical man, who has everything to learn, and who must experiment at his client's expense, wasting time, money and opportunity. The man who builds usually knows little of the cost. He has a vague idea that he desires a house of so many rooms, with a variety of details as to the necessary improvements. He also knows that he can afford to spend only about so much money. He first tells the architect how much, then rattles on as to what he expects, and in nine cases out of ten it is a house twice as large as the money will pay for. It is only the practical architect who can smooth out these opposing points and produce a plan that is possible at the cost. Every one who has had any experience in this line knows that the inexperienced architect will generally about double the cost proposed and wind up by erecting a mean house simply because he has lost heart and interest in it, and in order to get down to a practical figure he must cut out all the fanciful ideas and gimcrack features that his shallow brain deemed worthy of his great art. I have seen this exemplified time and again in my practice. Strange to say, the fees paid the architect are the same for the one as for the other. Therefore always select the best at the start, and the end will justify the choice.

The plans shown are for a very sensible house, first floor of four rooms, with front and back stairs, excellent toilet and kitchen conveniences. The second floor has five bedrooms, sewing or dressing room, bathroom and closets. The third floor has five rooms, reached from the back stairs. There is a stone cellar 7 feet deep for a base, first floor 10 feet, second 9 feet, third 8 feet high in clear, with a well built frame, carefully sheathed, papered and with double floors. The cost can be varied according to the finish. With a satisfactory natural wood finish this house can be erected in any good market for about $7,500.

COUNTRY HOMES.

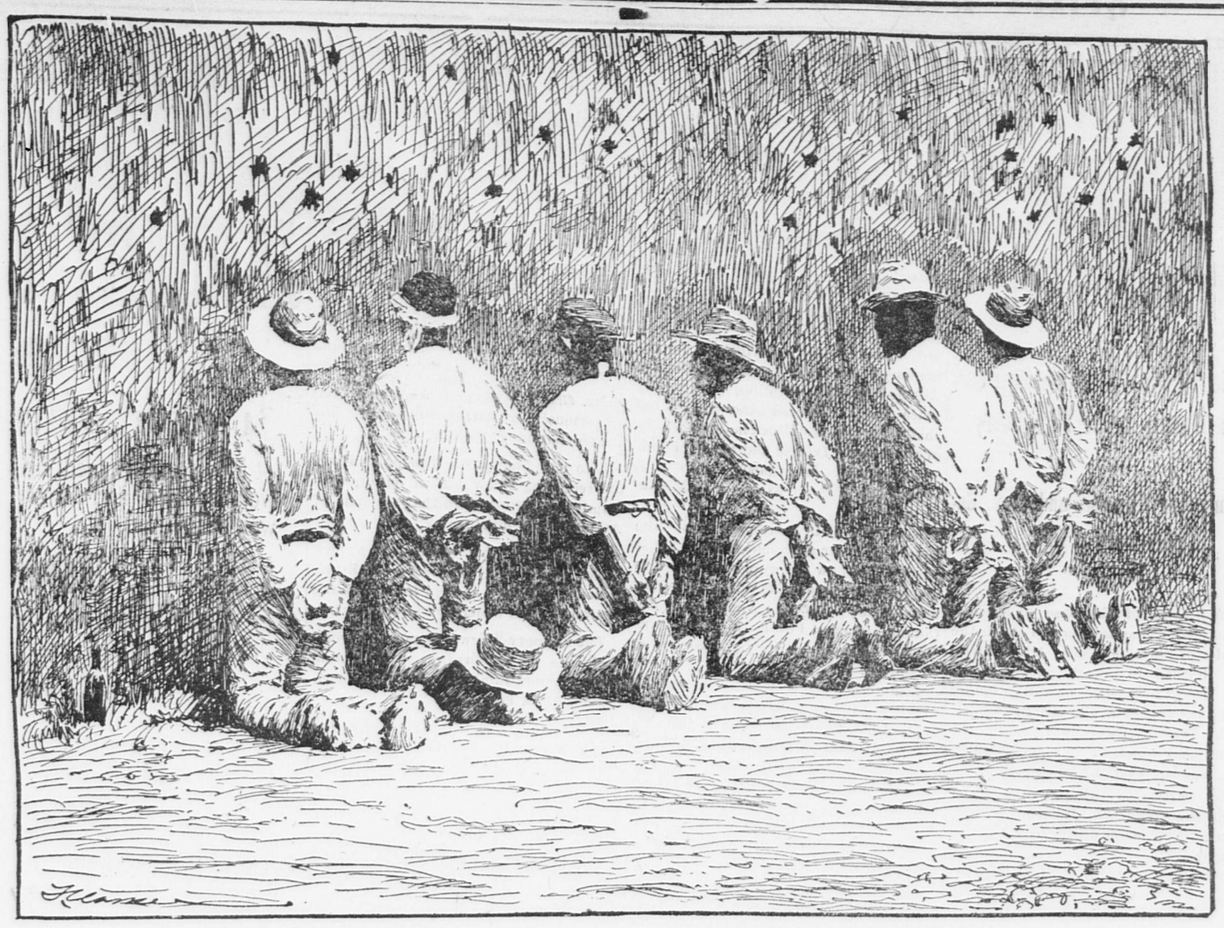
Tendency of the Wealthy to Build Homes In Farming Regions.

There is a growing tendency in this country among well to do people to own homes, permanent or season, in the farming or other regions where they may be away from the cities, and where they are able to have plenty of land either for parks or for cultivation. The very rich, who have the means to do so, have large country estates, where they are able to have great gardens or farms, raise blooded stock or have forest or hunting preserves, or private pleasure grounds of various kinds. In selecting these estates the owners are guided by the nearness to cities, the natural beauty and richness of soil and the climate. With many nearness to city or town is no object.

Another thing which shows that country life in the United States is becoming more attractive or better appreciated, and also the fact that at least in certain regions agriculture is prosperous, is that the more intelligent farmers are building finer and better houses on their farms and surrounding themselves with more of the comforts of life. The fine country house will be more common in the south than in other sections of the Union, because life on the southern farm is more pleasant all the year around than it is on the northern or northwestern farm.—Southern Field.

To Clean Old Floors.

An old and greasy floor may be greatly improved by a thorough scrubbing with soap and sand followed by a bath of ammonia water. If there are cracks between the boards and around the baseboard they should be filled up with putty. Some recommend a pulp of paper for this purpose. After the crevices are filled shellac or prepared house paint may be applied. When paint is used the floor should be varnished after the second coat is thoroughly dry. Oak color is more satisfactory in paint than a lighter or darker shade as it does not show dust and wears well.—Exchange.



SANTIAGO'S DEAD-LINE, SHOWING BULLET-MARKED PLACE OF EXECUTION. From HARPER'S WEEKLY

Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1899, by Harper & Brothers.

It tells its own story, this grim, honeycombed wall of the old arsenal at Santiago. The bullet-holes in the bricks afford some idea of the enormous number of executions which have taken place here during and probably before the long struggle of the Cubans for freedom. Cuba's best blood was spilled time and again at the base of this gray wall from the beginning of the battle for independence. The Spaniards have always given military offenders and all others the shortest kind of shrift, and have found it much more convenient to execute their prisoners in the way shown in our illustration, taken from this week's issue of Harper's Weekly. It seems from the height of the majority of the bullet-marks that in former executions the prisoners stood erect instead of kneeling. But perhaps it is only another example of Spanish marksmanship.

Many Steamers Overdue.

Boston, Jan. 14.—No tidings came yesterday from the fleet of overdue steamers, and as time passes other vessels are constantly added to the list. There are now 13 transatlantic liners due or overdue. The delay in the arrival of these liners has made it necessary to change their outward schedule. There are 12 steamers slated for sailing next week, and they will probably take out the largest amount of merchandise ever to leave here in one week. Their shipments will aggregate 1,200,000 bushels of grain, 12,000 bales of cotton, thousands of tons of flour, provisions, beef, steel and general cargo.

Fire In Bangor Church.

Bangor, Me., Jan. 14.—Fire in the Central Congregational church last night caused considerable damage, the amount of which cannot yet be estimated. The fire originated around the furnace and ran up between partitions into the main auditorium. There is talk of tearing down the church and building a new one.

All Over the House

Fairy Soap delights those who use it. In the bath room its whiteness, purity, delicate fragrance and floating qualities make it the favorite. In the kitchen it makes the dishes perfectly clean, and leaves no sticky trace of resin on them. In the laundry it saves the clothes and saves the colors in them.

FAIRBANK'S

cleanses perfectly the most gauzy laces, delicate fabrics, lawns, calicoes, etc., and does not injure them in the least. Its many virtues and lasting qualities make it infinitely better and even cheaper than common brown soap—as much better as refined white sugar is better than common brown sugar. Fairy Soap is the triumph of science applied to soap-making.

Thirtieth Annual Reunion.

The thirtieth annual reunion and banquet of the Massachusetts Press Association was held on Monday at the United States hotel, Boston. It was one of the best ever enjoyed by its members. The attendance was very large and the arrangements so complete that everything slipped along with a smoothness seldom witnessed in large bodies.

The menu cards, presented to the association by the paper house of Carter, Rice & Co., of Boston, were elegant. The bill of fare at the first annual dinner of the association in 1870, at Gloucester, which is on our desk, does not compare very favorably with the one on this occasion. Still it is a pleasant reminder of the many good times the editors have had since they waited for the "Emeline."

The officers of 1898 were reelected and are as follows:

President,—A. C. Dowse, Boston.

Vice President, — E. H. Pierce, Revere; R. S. Barrows, Jamaica Plain; Alex. Starbuck, Waltham; George W. Prescott, Quincy; C. T. Fairfield, North Adams.

Secretary,—H. B. Smith, Rockland.

Treasurer,—J. S. Smith, Rockland.

Auditor,—C. S. Parker, Arlington.

Historian, — George H. Procter, Gloucester.

Among the interesting speakers at the close of an excellent and well served menu were Hon. Henry A. Thomas, Postmaster of Boston; Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Boston; Rev. A. A. Berle, Brighton; Rev. Peter MacQueen, Somerville; B. B. Herbert, Chicago; Gen. George A. Marden, Lowell; and E. H. Pierce, Revere.

The President presided and after a short opening address introduced the speakers in an easy and pleasant manner, and the wit and humor that reigned for two hours never pleased an attentive audience better.

The music was by the Highland orchestra and was much admired.

About seven o'clock, after a surfeit of good things for the body and mind the meeting closed, and most of the ladies and gentlemen accepted the courtesies of Eugene Thompson and went to the Boston theatre, where the evening was pleasantly passed in listening to the attractive play "The Old Homestead."

Thanks were passed to all who had helped make the reunion so pleasant, and especially to the managers of the theatre, the hotel, and the orchestra.

—Of the many exchanges which come to us weekly there is none we like reading better than the Boston Home Journal. In the years we have been familiar with it there have been many changes in its manner of makeup but every one for the better until now it is one of the most progressive and best classified journals of the day. Its editorials are broad, unprejudiced, to the point and always for the right. Under Ways of the World, Harlequin, Rhyme and Reason, Society, The World of Sounds, Books and Authors and miscellaneous headings is found interesting and up to date reading. Last week the Boston Home Journal entered upon its fifty-sixth year in the form of a twenty-four page pamphlet or magazine of convenient size, well printed and modern in every particular.

MILAN ON TRIAL

Is Charged with the Murder of His Wife

Unfortunate Woman Burned to Death Last Saturday.

Twenty-four Witnesses and May Require Several Days.

The hearing of the case of Michael Milan, who stands charged with the murder of his wife, Celia Milan, who was burned to death on Saturday, Jan. 7, was held this morning before Judge Humphrey at the District Court. J. E. Tirrell, Esq., represented the government and J. W. McAnarney, Esq., appeared for the defendant.

The witnesses sworn were Chief Litchfield, Officers Hanson, Nicol, Lyons, Newcomb and Ferguson, Charles Chamberlin, Francis McCormick, Carmine P. Gardner, Matilda Kenniman, Joseph W. Stancomb, Elmer Paine, Michael McGrath, Dr. Gilbert, Dr. Jones, Mrs. Endell, James E. Tirrell, Catherine Maguire, Mertie Quinlan, Lena Fowler, Charles Austin Lester E. Weeks, John Crotty, Mrs. Louis Zoller.

The first witness called was Edward Colligan, who testified that he saw Milan on the day in question on the street, about 4 P. M., shouting that his wife was on fire. Went down and saw the body in the entry. It was on fire and he put it out as soon as possible. Put on water as soon as he could get it.

His neighbor McCormick got the water. Asked Milan for water and he said there was none in the house. Witness did not pay much attention to the condition of the rooms, as he was excited. He could not tell whether there was fire in the stove, Milan seemed to be excited but said nothing about the fire.

He could not say whether Milan was intoxicated or not.

Upon cross examination he said he never knew of Mrs. Milan to be drinking. Could not say whether he had ever drank with Milan or not. He might have but could not remember.

Michael told him he was in the bedroom off the kitchen and the smoke awoke him. Witness did not go into the room. Could not recall what other conversation there was. Witness put his hand on the stove and saw there was no fire. Saw a towel on the floor but did not take it up. Did not remember of telling anyone that the chair was tipped over and that he picked it up.

The cross examination of Colligan was very slow and tedious and consumed over an hour. No additional fact, however, were brought out.

Francis McCormick said that Milan came to his house shouting, his wife was on fire, and I followed him down. I went into the house and asked him where she was, and he took me to her. Milan said there was no water or nothing, and I ran out and got some water. When I came back I handed Colligan the water. Did not notice that her hands were burned. When witness got there the body of the woman was burning about the legs and feet. There was no clothing only from the knees down. Milan said he thought she had caught fire from putting oil in the stove. There was a little fire in the bottom of the stove with a stick of wood on top. Milan seemed to be out of his mind. He said he was in bed and the smoke woke him up. Later I noticed the chair. I did not move it, Milan said let everything remain as it is.

Cross-examined witness said he was down cellar in his stable when he heard a noise and then his daughter came and told him that Mrs. Milan was burning up. Got two pans of water. Colligan threw one of them on the body and he did the other. Milan was moaning and appeared to be out of his bidden her to light fire with kerosene. Witness could not say whether Milan was drunk or not.

Adjourned until 1 o'clock.

—That the sun never sets on Uncle Sam's domains is a surprise and of interest to many who did not know that such a term was applicable to America. "The Britons proudly boast that the sun never sets on the Queen's dominions as if they were special subjects of solar favoritism" writes William George Jordan on "The Greatest Nation on Earth" but it is equally true that there is always sunshine on some part of Uncle Sam's great possessions. When it is 6 P. M. on Attoo's Island, Alaska, it is 9.36 A. M. on the day following at Eastport Me.

HANCOCK TABLET.

The Inscription Written by Dr. William Everett.

Much has been said in relation to the inscription on the John Hancock tablet and the question has been asked who framed the wording.

The order in relation to the tablet as passed by the City Council Dec. 5, and approved Dec. 10, reads as follows:

Ordered: That the City of Quincy place a bronze memorial tablet with an appropriate inscription to the memory of John Hancock on the Adams Academy building. That the place and manner of the inscription shall have the assent of the Supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund. That the tablet be in position the 12th of January 1899, or as near that date as possible.

And it is further ordered, that the sum of $200, or as much thereof as is needed, be now appropriated for this purpose the same to be charged to any unexpended balances, and that the Commissioner of Public Works be requested to carry out the provisions of this order.

Commissioner Knowlton communicated with Dr. Everett, one of the supervisors, as to the proper inscription and the latter gentleman sent practically the wording that will appear, the only change being some transposition on the part of the architect. After a plan had been made it was submitted to the supervisors and receiving their approval was ordered.

A Million Dollar Year.

The cash expenditures of the city for December were $232,565.37, leaving a balance on hand of $12,025.02 for the new year. The city of Quincy is fast becoming a big corporation. The receipts of 1898, including cash on hand Jan. 1, 1898, were over a million dollars, viz. $1,007,846.38.

The cash on hand was $83,627.86; the temporary loans in anticipation of taxes amounted to $300,000; the new municipal debt to $63,070.25; the new sewer debt to $100,000, and the new water debt to $30,000. The appropriations of the year amounted to $615,484.73, and the balance December 31, 1898, was $40,704.58. The balance includes $30,108.84 for sewer construction.

HERE AND THERE.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

It was warmer at midnight than it was yesterday.

The electric cars slipped along all right this morning.

All our streets and sidewalks were turned into skating parks this morning.

One of our corpulent citizens fell this morning and the air has been blue ever since.

Mr. Clarence Lincoln who has been so seriously ill with pneumonia is now considered out of danger.

The new houses on Prospect street are receiving a new coat of paint, thus improving property in that section of Atlantic very much.

It expected that a few more new street signs will be placed on Brook street, Wollaston, shortly to replace the unsightly ones which are now in use.

The slippery sidewalks caused several accidents this morning and Boston dailies report fatal falls, broken legs, broken arms, etc.

The Granite Clothing company has made its annual mark down in men and boys heavy goods and some very fine bargains are offered.

At the annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club the leading article in the call will be on the question of raising the annual dues.

Mrs. K. Ljungberg of Carlmark street, who died yesterday, will be buried Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from St. Paul's Swedish church.

William Patterson the florist, has a handsome lot of fragment violets and we know whereof we speak as he brought us in a bouquet of them the first of the week.

We notice among the business changes in Boston that Mr. Charles L. Coe of Atlantic has been admitted as a partner in the wholesale hat house of N. H. Colman, Son & Co.

Miss Locke would inform her pupils and customers that she is recovering from her sickness and hopes to resume work at her home, 107 Washington street, on Wednesday next.

The cases of Ellen Ryan and Austin Ryan vs. the Braintree Street Railway are on trial at Dedham, for damages by accident in May 1898 at Holbrook. R. A. Sears, Esq., appears for the defe nce

The Eagle Polishing mills, whose plant was recently destroyed by fire, will rebuild at once, work having already been commenced. The new mills will be considerable larger than those destroyed, the dimensions of the new buildings being 65 by 85 feet.

The special meetings which have been held in the M. E. church, Atlantic, during the last two weeks, will be continued four evenings of next week beginning on Tuesday. Good speakers form Boston will be present each evening. The music also will be made a special feature. All are cordially invited to be present.

The Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church will observe its twenty-fifth anniversary Jan. 22 and 23. On Sunday representative Methodist clergyman will preach. The banquet will be held Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock to be followed by post prandial speeches and music. The admission to the banquet, to which the public as well as the members of the church are invited, will be fifty cents.

Some one was very dilatory this morning in getting sand on the sidewalks. Of all times in the year when it was needed it was this morning. Its absence made walking extremely dangerous. At Wollaston, which in sections is extremely hilly, many people came down to the station as though they were going down the chutes. Sliding down a steep hill on one's back is not conducive to a long life.

A long list of talent has been secured for tonight's entertainment in the People's course. The list includes Joe and Eva Allen, musical artists, Lulu Theiss coon songs and whistler, Henry Wait, trick violinist; Bert Hale, Irish singer and dancer; Harrison the Brownie; Fleming gymnast; and the Ravel Duo in Pantomine, the "Trick House"; Willis Mulligan, musical director. The People's course has been unfortunate in having stormy weather, but should be encouraged by a large attendance.

City Hospital of Quincy.

The annual meeting of the members of the corporation of the City Hospital of Quincy will be held at the house of Dr. Gordon on Hancock street, on Monday evening, January 16th, at 7.30 o'clock, for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of any other business that may legally come before them.

Nearly all unpaid taxes back of 1897 are polls or tax on personal property, very much of which has gone out of existencee, and such taxes should be abated instead of being carried forward giving a false value to the city's assets. All 1897 taxes should be collected before Oct. 1st as the property alienates at that time.

About thirty-five thousand dollars of 1898 tax will be paid in during the present month; the balance of 1898 taxes should not be forced to payment this year as the city receives 6 per cent. interest and hires for three. From the past year's experience your tax collector is convinced that with a right system carefully and impartially enforced our city may and should stand in the front rank among her sister cities as a tax paying city.

MILTON.

Two East Milton youths went on a racket last week which resulted in their winding up in court. One of the young men was temporarily employed in Christopher Graham's grocery store, and among other things he was sent to Boston with the team for goods. He was given $57.70 to pay two bills, one of $10 and the other $47.70. Not wishing to go alone he took a friend with him, who happened to be one of Uncle Sam's soldiers who was home for a brief time. The bill for $10 the clerk protem paid all right, but the one for $47.70 he did not pay but tucked the money away in his inside pocket for use later. That evening after the store closed the two again went to Boston, this time by cars. They passed the night in Boston and saw the elephant and all the side shows, with the result that in the morning they had to borrow money to come home. The next day a note was received by Mr. Graham from the party who was to have been paid the $47.70, and the result was that Officer O'Connell was called into the case, and the two young men were locked up and taken into court. Friends made the amount good and the case in court was not pressed, the young men being taken into the side room and the complaint quashed.

An Italian shanty at the corner of Brook road and Central avenue was destroyed by fire at 9.45 o'clock Tuesday night.

Word has been received from Rev. Andrew H. Mulnix of Hyannis, accepting the call to become the pastor of the Congregational church at East Milton.

Harry Brierly, who has been confined to his home by illness, is about again.

The Rugby Associates held a social dance at Ellsworth hall on Wednesday evening.

CO. K PRIZE "POME."

One of the Afflictions the Boys Had to Suffer.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.,
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 11.

"Massachusetts Day" has again been postponed until Friday. Tuesday afternoon and today have been a continual cold rain storm, the rain freezing on our tents, making one sheet of ice. Today is extremely cold and chilly. The guards of last night experienced a terrific cold night, making them walk their posts in double quick time, so as to keep themselves warm.

A musical entertainment in the second tent of K street every evening is very delightful. The sergeant plays the harmonica while his pet dog sings contralto. The strains are charming.

Private Frank E. Clapp has received his discharge for disability.

The boys have all their posts named after notorious characters. The guard that is on No. 7 post is called the "Ghost Post," while No. 8 is the "Wild Cat Post."

Private Al Garbutt was selected as Colonel's orderly for today. He was the best appearing man in the guard. The boys have hard work to keep their fires going. The wood, which is kept outside, is all covered with a thick sheeting of ice. While we have experienced hard storms, the present one takes the cake. Our guy ropes are frozen stiff, so that they cannot be loosened, which makes it hard on our tents. It is always necessary to have the guy ropes slack, for in a rain storm the tents always shrink.

The cooks also come in for discomfort. Having all they can do to have the mess ready on time. Corporal Dean and his corps of assistants must be complimented on the efficient manner in which they prepared today's meal.

We are pleased to note that one of our faithful and efficient officers, 2d Lieutenant Charles F. Spear, was today promoted to 1st lieutenant. The Lieutenant is not detailed to any company as yet. K company as a whole wish the Lieutenant every success in his new office.

Private Egan has been appointed Corporal, to fill the vacancy caused.

The following poetry won the prize in competition among several members of the 5th Massachusetts:

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS.

The following beautiful and pathetic ballad is dedicated to that renowned warrior and vocalist, John L. LaFayette, and sung by him with tremendous success before the members of his company, who after listening to him, decided "by a very close vote," to spare his life on condition that he would not sing it again. So the warrior, after thinking it over for a long while, let them have their way. He remained silent until New Year's day, on which day the men were suddenly afflicted with a hugh square meal, and of course fell into a trance, after they had eaten it. He invaded their tents where they lay on their backs like turtles, with their abdomens puffed up like balloons, and taking advantage of their helpless condition, he sang the song to them out of revenge. He had a great time until he struck the last tent, when three men, who were to all appearances dead, struggled to their feet and chased him to the surrounding woods with cries of rage. By careful dodging he succeeded in eluding his pursuers. He took a position in an open space, and as the men had returned to their tents and resumed their death-like stupor, and the guards had fled in terror at the first sound of his voice, he spitefully sang this song again and again until the nearby trees leaned over and threatened to fall on him, then he cleared out, and this is the song he sang:

"IN GREENVILLE FAR AWAY."

I.

I used to think it cold when up in Boston,
Now I know I never knew what coldness meant
Until I struck this frosty town of Greenville,
And sprung the floor by shivering in my tent.
There's an axe that's always busy at the woodpile,
And the chips they fly around you in a storm,
I've bucked a saw until I've nearly fainted;
Oh! its awful work, this trying to keep warm.

CHORUS.

With a club you break the ice whenever you wash,
In the fields your breath would freeze upon the hay,
On the stove we keep our candle light from freezing,
In our paper tents in Greenville, far away.

II.

When they tell us that the South is warm and sunny,
If I dared to laugh I know my face would crack;
Like a fool around I wandered in my shirt sleeves,
Then I thawed the shirt to get it off my back.
Oh! this place is near as cheerful as a graveyard,
And the weather's getting colder every day!
I'm sure that we'll be frozen as stiff as herrings,
If from Greenville they don't take us far away.

CHORUS.

Oh, the sunlight's rare with us down in Dixie,
A polar bear around here wouldn't stay;
We chase ourselves around to keep from freezing,
In cold storage, Greenville far away.

III.

I've often wished that I was in Siberia,
Or any place that's not so cold as here,
For I watched the cook at work a-pealing onions,
And down his cheek there rolled a frozen tear.
At reveille I missed a little roll call,
They soaked me and I hope I'll miss no more,
I tried to rise, but found my hair was tangled
In an icicle that formed upon the floor,

CHORUS.

For the frost would break stone walls to pieces,
On your face the wind won't let your whiskers stay,
And I'm certain the north pole has got twisted,
And is now down in Greenville, far away.

Volunteer.

Great Drinkers.

Despite the fact that Brockton had a license last year it required a considerable quantity of water to keep the city running, says the Enterprise. The annual report of the water commissioners gives some interesting figures along this line. Here they are:

	Gallons.
Total consumption,	366,187,044
Daily consumption,	1,003,252
Per capita consumption,	28.66
Used in domestic purposes,	141,013,762
Used for manufacturing purposes,	37,325,625

The pumping record is as follows:

Total hours run,	1920.75
Pounds of coal consumed,	399,408
Pounds of coal used daily,	1094
Weight of ashes,	34,939.

The weight of ashes is interesting inasmuch as it shows what proportion of the coal passes away in smoke and gases. In this case 354,469 pounds out of about 400,000 were completely consumed.

Brockton is not extending its mains as rapidly as Quincy. The commissioners report: An extension of the 24-inch main on Montello street and a total of a quarter of a mile of new mains put in. This makes the total length of the city mains 62.49 miles. There were 139 service connections during the year. There are 3,923 metres in use.

The department was particularly fortunate in the matter of breaks, there being but 12 service and six joint leaks reported. These were repaired at a cost of $72.32.

The total cost of the water works from 1877 up to the end of the year 1898 has been $864,495.45. During the past year there was paid out for labor the sum of $2,313.14 out of a total expenditure of $7,528.12. The pumping expenses for the year were $1,949.36. The total receipts of the year from all sources were $61,633.40.

The last report of Quincy a year ago showed 72 miles of pipe, of which over 6 miles were added during the year. 351 new services were laid, making a total of 3,212.

TWO SONGS.

"Sing me a song," quoth she.
So he sang how for years and for years and a day
He had sighed for a maid that was deaf and was blind—
That was blind to his love, that was deaf to the wind
Of his groaning and sighing! "Ah, sir, lackaday!"
Said the lady that listened as sad as could be.
"Ah, me, lackaday!" answered he.

"Sing me a song," quoth he.
So she sang how for years and for years and a day
Her head had been full of a poor lover's sighs,
For nights and for nights with the love in his eyes.
Oh, well might she pause, for that gentleman gay
Kissed her quick on the lips, most joyous to see!
"Ah, love, thou wert blind!" answered she.
—St. Paul's.

THE C. E. CLUB.

There was an air of suppressed excitement among the members of the C. E. club which culminated in an open demonstration as the reading of the constitution was demanded. The president rapped loudly for order.

"It has been requested that the constitution be read," she said, in a clear, high soprano.

The girls settled down in their places and, amid comparative quiet, the secretary, clearing her throat, began:

"This organization shall be called 'The Chaney Elopement club.' Absolute secrecy as to time and particulars of elopement shall be maintained even between members. Membership shall be limited to seven, and shall cease the moment a wedding ring is placed on a true sister's finger. The older the man inveigled into eloping the more credit shall be given the departing sister. Boys under 18 are not to be considered responsible. Trunks and trousseaus are absolutely forbidden. Long wedding trips are also barred. The penalty for being a member longer than for two years is expulsion. Each departing member shall suggest a sister to take her place."

"You have heard the reading of the constitution," said the president, rising from her chair. "Now, what action is to be taken?"

"Madam President"—a tall girl arose with a malicious sparkle in her black eyes—"the reading of the constitution was demanded for the purpose of calling attention to the clause which reads that the penalty for being a member for over two years is expulsion. We have one such member. I think it time that action was taken."

The members gasped as the audacious speaker took her seat and listened breathlessly for the president's answer. That official raised her head defiantly and said haughtily:

"I presume that they mean me, Miss Andrews. I believe that I alone remain of the original seven."

"I do, and I move that the vice president take the chair while we consider the case."

"One moment, please." The president turned to the secretary. "Will you kindly look up the time of my membership?"

Amid dead silence the secretary reported:

"There are two months remaining, Madam President."

"I thought so." The president turned to the club, ignoring her of the black eyes. "You see," she said, "that it is impossible for the club to take any such step as the member moved for the present. I will say, however, that such action will never become necessary in my case," and a resolute look came into the blue eyes.

"Oh, Gracie!" broke from the girls in admiration, for it was an open secret that the fair president had been engaged for some two years to a dignified professor of science, a man some 20 years her senior.

"Perhaps you won't mind telling your 'modus operandi?'" sneered Sadie Andrews incredulously.

"Allow me in turn to call your attention to that clause of our constitution which says that absolute secrecy as to time and particulars shall be maintained even between members," said Gracie sweetly, although her eyes flashed at the covert insinuation. "If there is no more business before the club," she added, "I declare the meeting adjourned."

Grace walked away. "The hateful thing!" she exclaimed, the tears filling her eyes in spite of herself. "I'll show her! He does love me! He does! He will do anything I wish. Only he does not approve of eloping. Oh, I wish that he did! But I'll manage somehow, and he just must do it, whether he approves or not."

A month passed, and still no opportunity presented itself for putting into practice any of her numerous plans. Grace was almost in despair. Sadie Andrews openly laughed her to scorn as the time passed and Gracie was still Gracie Dawn. Many of the girls looked dubious and smiled faintly when Sadie would triumphantly ejaculate "I told you so!" in their presence. Grace preserved a calm bearing outwardly, but inwardly raged at her helplessness.

One day a merry party of excursionists boarded a boat and went for an outing 30 miles down the river. Among them were Grace and Professor Harper. The C E. club was out in full force, and a mighty resolve formed itself in the maiden's mind that this should be the eventful occasion.

A cave in the vicinity visited and lunch partaken of, the party broke up into groups of twos or threes and scattered over the hills into the woods. The captain of the vessel cautioned them against straying too far away, as the boat would put out promptly at 5 o'clock. As was natural, Grace and the professor sauntered off together.

"Now, where shall we go?" inquired the professor. "Have you any special place that you would like to go?"

"I thought," said the artful miss, "that we might find some specimens of the Adiantum pedatum."

"True, my dear. Let me see what the time is. We don't want to go so far that we will not be able to get back to the boat in time."

He drew out his watch, but before he could glance at it Grace had snatched it from him.

"Now guess, Herbert," she cried merrily, putting her hands behind her. "Guess the time."

Professor Harper smiled indulgently.

"It must be 2 o'clock or after," he said.

"Oh, you bad guesser!" And Grace laughingly handed back the watch. "It is only half past 1."

"Why, so it is!" exclaimed the professor, amazed. "I was almost positive that it was after 2; but that will give us time for a long tramp."

So on they went farther and farther into the woods, until at last, with arms filled with fine specimens of maidenhair, they sat down on a mossy stone to analyze them.

"When we are married, Grace, I hope to find a rare pupil in you. We have only a year to wait now until your father considers you old enough," continued he. "I don't mind saying to you, little girl, that I find the waiting tedious at times."

Grace's heart throbbed rapidly.

"Then you would not mind very much if something should happen that would make us marry sooner, would you?" she asked, in a low tone.

"No, dear; I should not; not in the least. But there!" the professor sighed heavily. "Your father is quite right, quite right, and we must wait. Now, shall we analyze a few more specimens?"

They turned again to the ferns and so the time passed. Suddenly the professor seemed to realize that time was flying and whipped out his watch.

"Bless my soul!" he cried. "We will barely have time to get to the boat. It is 4 o'clock. We must hurry, Grace."

They had not gone far before the deep whistle sounded on their ears.

"Why! We can never reach the boat in time in the world! We must run for it, Grace!"

But, despite their efforts, when they reached the shore the boat was hidden from view by a bend in the river.

"This is a predicament," said Professor Harper, as he mopped his brow. "The worst of it is that they will think we did it on purpose!" And he frowned in annoyance. "I cannot think how my watch came to be so far behind time. Do you suppose you could have inadvertently turned the hands, Grace, when you took it from me?"

Grace hung her head, but made no reply.

"Grace," he exclaimed, "I believe that you did it, and on purpose! Did you?"

Grace nodded.

"But why, child? Why should you want to be left way out here in the woods?"

"I'm going to run off with you, Herbert. So that you might as well make up your mind to it."

"Why! What does the girl mean?" gasped the professor in amazement.

"Just what I say. If you will agree to marry me right away, I know a man that lives about a mile from here who will drive us to Chaney. If you don't promise, I will not tell where he lives and you will just have to stay here all night."

Professor Harper stared at her for a moment in astonishment, and then, as her meaning burst upon him, gave vent to a roar of laughter. Grace's lip quivered.

"Oh, I surrender! I surrender!" cried the professor hastily. "I will do anything you ask, my dear. But what a very desperate character you are!"

Shamefaced, but determined, Grace led the chuckling professor to the house of a farmer, with whom arrangements were soon concluded to drive them to Chaney.

"You don't really mind, do you, Herbert?" whispered Grace as they reached the house of the minister.

"Mind? No. I wish we had done it long ago," whispered back the professor, smiling boyishly. "I haven't been on such a lark for years."

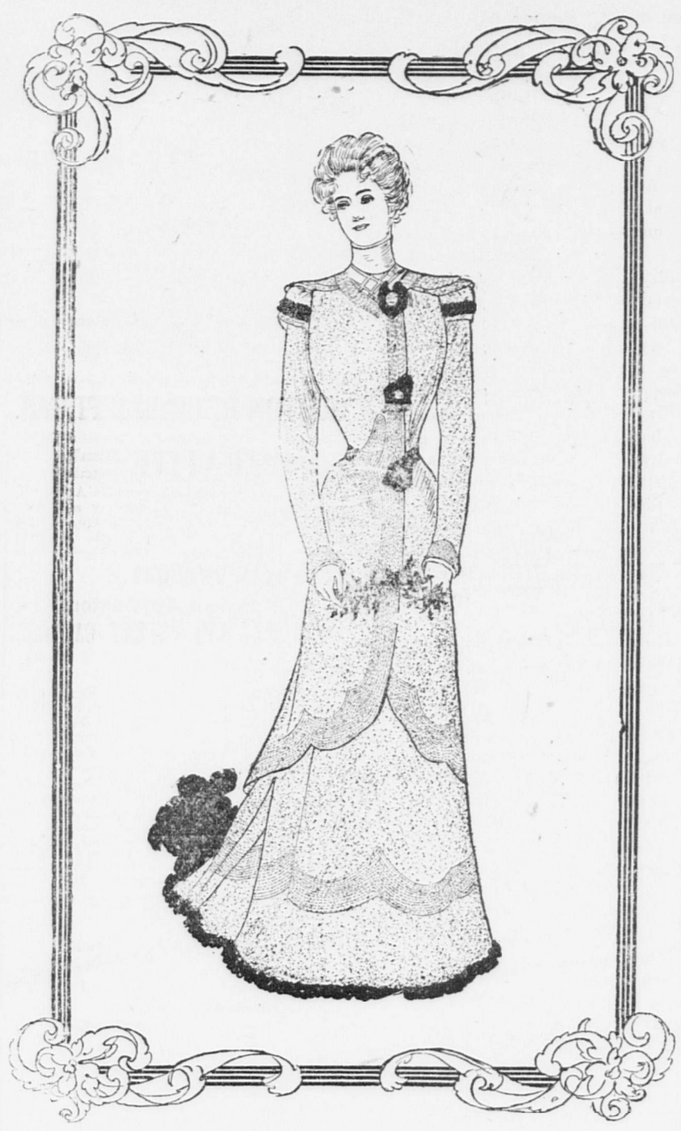
The C E. club held a private jollification when it was known that Professor Harper and Grace Dawn had eloped, and the villagers wondered at the depravity of a man of his age.

"All the same, my dear," said the professor to his wife, "I hope that you won't always use such desperate methods to obtain your own way."

"But there wasn't anything else to do," answered Mrs. Harper.

And, laughing, he kissed her.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.



BROWN CLOTH TUNIC COSTUME FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

The tunic, peplum, and redingote are to be the favorite over-dresses of the coming season, for over-dresses have arrived, although their very gradual approach has excited no attention. The favorite spring gowns will be of fine clinging cloths, and will show great variety and development of the tunic, which at present is the popular novelty with the Parisian designers. The one which accompanies this number is a pattern garment is an early example of the skill and art of these busy folk. The cloth skirt, a plain circular, extends only half the length of the skirt, being covered by the circular tunic. The later and the bodice are joined by a narrow waist band. The cloth bodice is then in two pieces—the back and two fronts parts, which are adjusted over a fitted lining. The long sleeves are close-fitting until they reach the wrist, where they end in a funnel-shaped cuff. They are capped at the shoulders by double shoulder capes and stitched bands. The collar and chemisette are of contrasting silk, and the belt and fastenings of wood-brown velvet.

The fastenings represent a fantastic development of the moment, in the Louis XVI bows. They are always made of satin or velvet, and are formed of two very small ruffles, perhaps an inch deep, cut circular, like the ruffles worn at the wrist. These ruffles are closely gathered, and the two form the complete bow. Sometimes these are divided, one being on the under side and the other on the lapping side. The two meet and are inter-folded like the petal of a poppy. The only other trimming used in this new model consits of flat stitched bands of the cloth, shaped in shallow scollops and stitched on a stiffened foundation before being applied to the gown. The proper cut of this costume can be obtained only by the use of Harper's Bazar cut paper patterns.

Nine yards of cloth, 54 inches wide, will be required for the making of this garment, also 3-4 yard of velvet, and a similar quantity of contrasting silk for collar and chemisette.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 15—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Where am I going?—Ps. cxix, 57-64.

The One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm is the longest and most elaborate of all the psalms. It is an alphabetical psalm, having a stanza composed of eight verses for each of the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Each verse consists of two numbers only, each of which begins with the same letter of the alphabet. The subject of the psalm is the law of God, and it is practically an expansion of the Nineteenth Psalm. The author is unknown.

The topic suggests the idea that life is a journey, a going either toward God or from God. The psalmist in the topical reference declares that he is going toward God, directed by His law and testimonies. If we want to travel in the same direction, the word of God is our only true guide. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." The only way to go God's way is to follow His law. What we might call the steps in this way are pointed out in the topical reference.

1. The first step is consideration and decision to go God's way, as pointed out by His law (verse 57), "I have said that I would keep Thy words." This decision shows that there has been due consideration of the question. The psalmist has doubtless earnestly considered the matter as to which is the better way to go, with the law of God or against it, and has wisely concluded that he will keep God's word. This is the first step toward traveling with God. We must decide to do so, and after due consideration who can fail to come to the same conclusion? Personal interest, duty, destiny, demand obedience to God's law. If men considered the matter more thoroughly and earnestly, more would decide to go God's way. Thoughtlessness is largely the cause of godlessness. If we thought more upon our ways, we would more readily turn our feet unto God's testimonies.

2. The second step is the study of God's law. The law of God must be studied and known to be practiced. If we were blind, no light could guide us. Ignorance is blindness. It requires knowledge of God's law to make it of value to us. We should study it prayerfully, systematically, earnestly and constantly. Then we are in position to follow the direction it points us.

3. The third step is the practice of God's law. "I thought on my ways and turned my feet unto Thy testimonies. I made haste and delayed not to keep Thy commandments." Consideration, decision and study are valueless without action, without practice. The prodigal son thought, decided and acted. He said, "I will arise and go to my father," and he also "arose and went." Practice alone will make our decisions effective.

Two incidental characteristics of one traveling God's way are thanksgiving and association with those of the same manner of life. "At midnight I will arise and give thanks to Thee because of Thy righteous judgments. I am the companion of all them that fear Thee and of them that keep Thy precepts" (verses 62, 63). Child of God, going God's way, go and do thou likewise.

In Time of Trouble.

The presence of loving friends is a great help in time of trouble. While the Christian knows the help of God in the time of trouble he craves also the touch of a human hand. The Master took His three disciples when He went to His Father in prayer in Gethsemane. Human sympathy is wondrous help in trouble. If Paul could sing in the Philippian prison, yet he craved for the presence and sympathy of Titus and Timothy at other times. Christianity is not stoicism, that counts the craving for sympathy a weakness. The heart that knows most of the Saviour's presence, in the hour of trouble, appreciates most the loving sympathy of Christian friends.—Christian Intelligencer.

God's Will.

If we could always remember the absolute beneficence of God's will, we would oftener say, "Thy will be done," not with a sob of renunciation, but with a smile of happy faith. When we once realize that God's will is always and inevitably for our best interests, then our wills must lose themselves. This realization comes only through a deep knowledge of God, such as is gained alone by prayerful study of His word. And the result? Such perfect joy and energy and peace and power as earth has seldom seen. — Maytie Darrow Crane.

An Important Secret.

The secret is how Brazilian Balm can get to the seat of Catarrh, between the folds and in the deep, tortuous passages of the head, kill the microbes heal the running sores or ulcers and make a radical cure of this putrid and stubborn disease. You see the edges of the folds or curtains that hang from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and in health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the oder to the brain. When a cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swoolen and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can fasten itself. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrain. If you have a cold in the head the use of Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from getting a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes running sored or ulcers in the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They rapidly multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passages clear up in behind the eyes All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of pus into the throat, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressing Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the Balm as the Catarrh dissapears. Also the effects of Grippe however serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permaneutly cured by this wonderful balsam, Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

BACK FOR REVISION.

Eagan's Statement Returned to Him by War Investigating Commission.

Miles Waiting For the War Department to Act.

Military Discipline Has Prevented Previous Exhibition of Bad Feeling.

Washington, Jan. 14.—There was no abatement in the interest exhibited here in all the incidents connected with the bitter attack made by Commissary General Eagan upon Major General Miles. As might have been expected, a matter of this official consequence was sure to attract the attention of the president, and in consequence a greater part of the session of the cabinet yesterday was given to its consideration.

The principals of the case, Generals Miles and Eagan, contributed little during the day to the controversy, but the war investigating commission acted promptly to redress the affront put upon the board itself, as the members regarded it, contained in the excessive language used by General Eagan, and sent the statement incorporating his testimony back to him, with the privilege of resubmitting it if he chooses to revise its language. Further than this the commission determined it could not and should not proceed.

The commission regrets that General Eagan proceeded as far as he did, and it is explained that the vituperative nature of the testimony was a complete surprise to the commission, and that but for the rapidity with which General Eagan read his long statement and the absorbing vehemence of its delivery he would have been checked at the time. One member of the commission said that he was about to move that the witness be called to order, but decided not to, believing from the heated way in which General Eagan spoke such peremptory action might precipitate some controversy.

The war department officials are not yet clear as to what will be the effect of a withdrawal or modification of the statement. One element holds that, officially, the record failing to show that any objectionable language had been used, there would be no legal offense. Another takes the view that while the amendment of the statements would mitigate General Eagan's offense, it would not wipe it out. Another aspect of the case is the bringing forward of the plea of exemption which guaranteed in the name of the president all of the witnesses before the board from the consequences of what they might say. But again the officials were divided, and this was also true of the members of the cabinet as to whether the exemption could be claimed in this particular case. Meanwhile General Miles is apparently waiting for the war department to act, taking the position that it is incumbent upon it and the war commission to protect the army from such attacks.

It is said by persons who may be regarded as authorities in military law that in its present phase the controversy between General Miles and General Eagan is not one that will admit of the calling of a court of inquiry. This is entirely apart from the question of the right to call a court-martial. In the latter case, under the strict rules of military law, the court would be obliged to take under consideration certain specific charges, such as an attack upon a brother officer, and would not be permitted to geyond that matter, even to the extent of inquiring into the truthfulness of the charges made in the attack. The court of inquiry, however, as its name implies, has a broader field of action and might, without being bound closely, inquire into all of the facts, not even confining its inquiry to the officer alleged to be the offender, but, perhaps, as has been known in the past, to return a finding that involved the court-martial of more than one officer. In other words, a court of inquiry in a case like this, might if it found reason therefor, indict for trial before a court-martial both of the parties to the controversy. However, as already stated, the best opinion is that at the present phase a court of inquiry is beyond reach.

It has been known for a month past that a bad feeling existed between the commanding general and the commissary general of the army, yet such has been the effect of military discipline that before Thursday this had not manifested itself openly. It is true that the two men have not come into close contact frequently, and their relations being confined strictly to the exchange of official communications, there was no occasion for the developed personal friction, but in view of General Eagan's known bitter feeling it is now learned that it was with some anxiety that the friends of the two officers saw them meet last week, the occasion being a periodical session of the managers of the soldiers' home. General Miles is ex-officio president of this board and Commissary General Eagan is a member. The two officers met, sat at the same table and transacted the routine business before the board without the slightest exhibition of ill-feeling and without showing a trace of animosity for what had gone before.

In the excitement created by this incident the pending issue before the commission, the quality of the army beef, was well nigh lost sight of. There were, however, two piquant additions yesterday to that part of the proceedings, one consisting of the testimony of General Wood to the effect that no one who amounted to anything had made any complaint as to the rations, and the other of a letter from Theodore Roosevelt making a very severe complaint regarding the beef.

In Congress.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The house yesterday entered upon the consideration of the naval personnel bill. It developed much less opposition than was anticipated, and the indications are that it will have a large majority when it is placed upon its passage. The last vestige of opposition to the measure from the line officers of the navy was removed when an amendment was adopted designed to prohibit staff officers upon whom the bill confers positive rank from exercising command except in their own corps. The committee also asserted its purpose to offer an amendment to repeal the law giving prize money to the navy, and this announcement met with warm approval. The speeches on the bill yesterday were filled with glowing allusions to the glories of our naval victories in the late war, and Mr. Berry of Kentucky created a great deal of enthusiasm by his eulogy of Schley as the hero of Santiago.

In the senate Mr. McLaurin (Dem., S. C.) took strong ground in a carefully prepared speech against a policy of expansion by this country. He cited as one of the principal reasons why the United States should not assume dominion over peoples who are widely dissimilar to the people of this country the experience of the south with the negro race. He advocated the adoption of the Vest resolution, declaring that this country could not maintain permanently as colonies such territory as the Philippines, and held that it would be in opposition to this spirit of American institutions to do so.

Mr. Sullivan (Dem., Miss.) and Mr. Pasco (Dem., Fla.) discussed the pending Nicaragua canal bill, the former supporting it and the latter opposing it.

The Indian appropriation bill was taken up, but its consideration was not concluded before the hour of adjournment.

Cable Plans.

Washington, Jan. 14.—General Greely, the chief signal officer, has gone to New York to look after the execution of contracts for the supply of ocean cable for the Philippines. General Greely expects that within one month his specially chartered cable ship will have started from San Francisco for the Philippines, carrying the cable which is to connect the principal islands of the northern group with the American headquarters at Manila.

A wreck at sea is not the only place where a life line is of importance.

There is a life line for the sick, as well as for the drowning man. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is not a cure-all, but it is a scientific medicine that goes to the fountain head of a number of serious and fatal diseases. When a man gets seriously sick, he can generally be cured by the right course of treatment. The treatment that cures many obstinate chronic diseases consists of pure air, good food, rational exercise, and the use of a remedy that will strengthen the weak stomach, correct the impaired digestion, invigorate the liver and promote the assimilation of the live-giving elements of the food. The "Golden Medical Discovery" accomplishes all these things.

"A young man lay pale and motionless upon (what neighbors called) his dying bed. Disease of the lungs, liver complaint, kidney trouble, and pleurisy were fast hastening him to the grave. The doctors had given him up to die. The neighbors said, 'he cannot live.' 'Oh, I would not care to die,' he said, 'were it not for leaving my dear wife and little child, but I know that I must die.' A brother had presented him with three bottles of medicine, but he had no faith in 'patent medicines'; but, after the doctors had gvien him up to die and he had banished every hope of recovery, he said to his wife, 'dear wife, I am going to die, there can be no harm now in taking that medicine. I will begin its use at once.' He did begin to use it aud at first he grew worse, but soon there came a change. Slowly but surely he got better. To-day that man is strong and healthy and he owes his life to that medicine. What was the medicine? It was Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I, Luther Martin, am the cured man. Dr. Pierce, I thank you from the very depth of my heart, for rescuing me from the grave." The foregoing is from Luther Martin, Esq., a prominent citizen of Lubec, Wood Co., W. Va.

Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Keith's Theatre.

The principal offering at Keith's for the week of Jan. 16 will be a dramatization of Dickens' charming story, "The Holly Tree Inn," by Augustus Thomas, which is to be produced under the playwright's personal supervision. It will be cast as follows: Harry, Katie McArdle; Nora, Beatrice Morrison; Tripp, Miller Sackett; Cobbs, William P. Sprague; Walmers, Clifford Leigh. This is promised to be in every sense the most artistic dramatic treat ever offered in vaudeville for ladies and children. The older players are all well known, and little Misses McArdle and Morrison are said to be children of positive genius. The stage setting is to be particularly attractive. There is to be a great array of other high class attractions, including Sadi Alfarabi, the famed Russian gymnast; in a marvellous exhibition of daring and grace; and T. Nelson Downs, the great coin manipulator. The week of Jan. 23, Bert Coote and Julia Kingsley, with their own company, will present a revival of Buckstone's most successful farce, "The Dead Shot."

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

AGONCILLO'S CLAIMS.

Spain Can Give No Title to United States For Philippines.

Letter and Memorandum Considered Official Documents.

Government Willing to Have Filipino Make Them Public If He Chooses.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Felipe Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo in Washington, has filed with the state department a memorandum setting forth at great length the reasons for his claim that the Philippine government should be recognized by the United States. Accompanying the memorandum is a letter in which Senor Agoncillo states he has received no reply to his communication of Jan. 6, in which he asks that a suitable time be arranged when he could be presented to the president and heard upon his claims. In view of the position in which the representatives of the American government and the representatives of the Philippine government find themselves upon the islands at this time he urges that the matter be given immediate attention.

FELIPE AGONCILLO.

The letter and the memorandum have been listed as official documents in the state department, and although the officials have themselves refused to make them public, they have nevertheless expressed a willingness for Senor Agoncillo to do so if he desires. The papers are now in the hands of Secretary Hay. The memorandum is along the same lines as statements heretofore made public by the Filipino representative.

Senor Agoncillo asserts the Filipinos established and for seven months have maintained a form of government resembling the American, in that it is based upon the right of the people to rule; that Spain, having at the time of the signing of the treaty of peace possession of only one port, and the remainder of the Philippines except Manila being in the possession of the Philippine republic, Spain could give no title to the United States for the islands, and that having no title to give her claim cannot be rendered better by the ratification of the treaty of peace.

Capitol Gleanings.

Formal orders have been issued by the war department relieving Brigadier General Oates of Alabama from further duty with the Second army corps, and honorably discharging him from the military service.

The prevailing sentiment of sadness over the death of Mr. Dingley has made members of the house disinclined to discuss the question of succession to the chairmanship of the ways and means committee and to the leadership on the floor. Speaker Reed has made no intimation on the subject.

Commander Belknap has been detached from command of the Nero and ordered to the Mare island navy yard for duty with the Ranger.

Commander A. S. Snow has been directed to assume entire command of the harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico.

The secretary of war sent to congress the survey and report of a board of army engineers on the southwest pass, Mississippi river. The board proposes a system of jetties, and the estimate for the entire work is $13,000,000. A further estimate of 2 percent for maintenance and 1 percent to extend the jetties is made.

Captain H. Glass has been ordered to command the Pensacola and the naval training station at Yerba, Buena island, Cal., relieving Captain Kempff of the command of the Pensacola.

A number of important changes in the postal service are embraced in the postomce appropriation bill, agreed upon by the house committee on postoffices and post roads. The amount carried by the bill is about $105,000,000, or an increase of about $6,000,000 over the bill of last year.

The senate committee on rules has practically decided to favorably report the Chandler resolution for the distribution of the appropriation bills among the various committees of the senate.

Senator Allison has practically decided to remain at the head of the committee on appropriations and not to take the chairmanship of the committee on finance, to which he is entitled by right of seniority. The decision on Senator Allison's part will make Senator Aldrich the chairman, and will promote Senator Spooner to the chairmanship of the committee on rules.

It is expected that the Cuban evacuation commission will meet here early next week to close up its business and submit its report to the president. The report needs only the signature of the members to make it complete.

A TALK WITH MERCIER

In Which He Sheds a Little Light on the Dreyfus Case.

Paris, Jan. 16.—General Mercier, who was minister of war at the time of the conviction of Dreyfus, has been interviewed by a representative of The Soir, to whom he declared that in 1894 he knew nothing of Count Ferdinand Esterhazy or of the latter's relations with Colonel Sandherr.

"Dreyfus," he added, "lied when he pretended that I knew he had supplied documents to a foreign power in order to obtain more important documents in return, with a view of obtaining some mitigation of his sentence. However, I caused him to be asked the number and value of the documents he had so supplied. He refused, and his refusal, therefore, pointed to his guilt."

General Mercier asserted to The Soir representative that the Dreyfus dossier contained documents "compromising the mutual relations of France, Germany and Italy."

Arrangements have been made to give Major Count Ferdinand Esterhazy a virtual safe conduct to testify before the court of cassation in the Dreyfus revision inquiry, the count having forwarded to M. Mazeau, first president of the court, a synopsis of the evidence he is prepared to give.

London, Jan. 16.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail says: The Mercier interview in The Soir is the anti-Dreyfusards' last petard. It has been fired, and turns out to be no more than touchwood. He has come forward to prejudice a case which is subjudice, and his act is a clear case of contempt of the court of cassation.

According to the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Cayenne, the court of cassation has ordered a second interrogation of Dreyfus regarding his alleged confession of guilt to Captain Lebrun-Renault, in whose charge he was placed at the time of his degradation.

Germany Won't Meddle.

London, Jan. 16.—The Times says editorially this morning, in the course of a reference to the denial given last Friday by the German minister of foreign affairs, to the reports that Germany had been intriguing in the Philippines against the Americans says: It is to be regretted that the irresponsible enthusiasm of some Washington politicians should have led to the use of language unnecessarily offensive to Germany. It may well be believed that Aguinaldo and the insurgents would have inclined to establish relations with Germany or with any other power; but, whatever views Germany may formerly have held, it is certain that she has not the least idea of interfering with the plans of the United States as to the Philippines.

Countess' Eyes Opened.

London, Jan. 16.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail says: Countess Bosemont de Rouge Aix, daughter of Mr. Steward, a Boston millionaire, has been living in this city incognito as a governess in a gentleman's house. It appears that, within a few minutes after her wedding, she learned by chance that the count had only married her because her father had promised to pay his debts, amounting to £300,000 ($1,500,000). Overcome by this disclosure, she ran away as a protest against being sold in this way, and she intends to earn her living here until she can divorce her mercenary husband.

A Change of Tune.

London, Jan. 16.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times quotes from the Cologne Gazette to the effect that "rumors as to the annexation of Vavau (one of the Friendly islands) by Germany are an invention of those who desire to stir up ill feeling between Germany and the United States." He says, however, that, as the Cologne Gazette was among the most active originally in spreading the reports of Germany's intention to annex the Philippines, its excessive indignation in the present instance is somewhat overdone.

Islands on the Market.

Madrid, Jan. 16.—The government, on the reassembling of the cortes, will immediately ask, says La Reforma, authority to sell the Marianne (Ladrones), Caroline and the Polow islands, since Spain is powerless to maintain a sufficient force to defend them. The government arrived at this decision in consequence of advices from General Rios that an army of 4000 men, a man-of-war and two gunboats would be necessary for the purpose.

Communication Cut Off.

Cape Town, Jan. 16.—No news has been received from Johannesburg since Saturday afternoon, when word was received that a public meeting of British residents, convened with the object of protesting against the grievances of the Outlanders, had broken up in a free fight, involving Boers, Afrikanders and Britons. Telegraphic communication is closed down, and there is much uneasiness here.

ALL HANDS PERISHED.

Eighteen Men on the Andelina Went Down With the Ship.

Many Other Vessels Were Anchored Near Her.

Gale Came Up During the Night and She Disappeared Beneath the Waves.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 16.—The ship Andelina, which was of English build and worth probably $150,000, entered this port several days ago. She was to have loaded wheat under charter to Eppinger & Co., of San Francisco, for Europe.

Friday the Andelina was taken to the Eureka dock and all ballast removed and the hold cleared preparatory to receiving cargo. She was then towed to anchorage several hundred yards northeast of the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber company's dock, at which point disaster overtook her.

She had, according to the best information obtainable, the starboard anchor out, weighing at least two tons, while to either side of the vessel were attached the ballast logs used to keep a ship upright during the absence of cargo or ballast.

The ship was riding easily when the skippers of other vessels anchored close by retired for the night. When daylight dawned no signs of the Andelina were visible. Over the spot where the ship rode at anchor the night before only a danger signal buoy lamp was visible.

When the absence of the ship was discovered, Captain Doty and Captain Burley made an investigation, and it was soon determined beyond possibility of doubt that the ship had gone to the bottom.

One of the ballast logs was found. To this dangled part of the chain by which it was originally fastened to the ill-fated ship. In addition, one of the lifeboats, a mattress with the name of the ship on it and several oars were found.

As all on board perished, only surmises as to the cause of the disaster were obtainable. Judging from indications, shipping men say, the ballast log found was from the port side of the vessel. The heavy winds caused the ship to strain on the chains, making the log on the weather side taut, and giving a tendency to lift the log from the water, but the strain was too great for one of the chains and it snapped.

This released the towering craft from the greater restraint on the weather side, and she lifted with the wind, and there being little restraint from the other end of the log, raised it enough to allow the mooring chain to slip off.

The ship, free from ballast and floating like a chip, careened under the pressure of the heavy gale, shipping great quantities of water, filling completely the hold and forecastle, causing her to capsize and sink.

The situation was further aggravated by the fact that the tides were just setting in at the time the ship is supposed to have gone down. This, in all probability, forced the stern of the vessel around and exposed the broadside to the gale's fury.

Late yesterday afternoon the vessel was located. She lies on her broadside under 28 fathoms of water, close to the spot where she had been anchored. The vessel will probably be raised, and the bodies of the dead sailors recovered.

When the Andelina entered this port she was manned by a crew of nearly 30 men. Some deserted and others were discharged, until only 18 were left. It is said the ship was insured by an English agency for $160,000.

Her captain was G. W. Stalling of Annapolis, N. S., and E. H. Crowe of Londonderry, N. S., was first mate.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

Not Tonight.

Owing to an attack of the grip, which incapacitated Mayor Keith from attending much to business during the past week, the list of his appointments to city office cannot be sent to the Council tonight. They will not probably be made known until the last of the week.

Church Supper.

Caterer Remick will serve the supper at the annual meeting of Bethany Congregational church on Wednesday evening at 6.30 o'clock. The attendance at these gatherings in the past has exceeded 400, and it was difficult for the ladies to provide the supper. This year they will not have the trouble and they can better enjoy the occasion. The charge of twenty-five cents is only a nominal one. Every one worshiping at this church is invited to the supper, and it will aid the committee if tickets are purchased in advance.

Want High Valuation.

Letters which the board of assessors have in their possession from men who own real estate in this city which they like to move often and use for trading purposes, show that the stand taken by the board that a high valuation is what the real estate dealers want rather than a low valuation and a high rate is correct. The board inclines to the latter, and it is safe to say that valuations will not be increased much this year unless there are good reasons for it. They will not be shoved up just to make a lower rate, for the board thinks that is not in the interest of owners or the city at large.—Brockton Enterprise.

Employes Entertained.

The directors and the employes of the Walker, Stetson, Sawyer company of Boston made a very large and contented looking family party, says the Globe, when gathered at the banquet table Saturday evening at the United States hotel. The employes were the guests for the evening of the directors, whose joint hospitality was more particularly represented by the president of the board, James H. Stetson, of Quincy, who sat in the place at the table which tradition assigns to McGregor. There was no desire or attempt to make the affair a formal one, and the only speaking consisted of a few words of welcome by Mr. Sawyer, after which a couple of hours were spent in laughing at a comic parlor entertainment provided for the occasion.

City Hospital of Quincy.

The annual meeting of the members of the corporation of the City Hospital of Quincy will be held at the house of Dr. Gordon on Hancock street, on Monday evening, January 16th, at 7.30 o'clock, for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of any other business that may legally come before them.

NOT COMPLETED.

One or Two Days More for Milan Case.

Very Little So Far to Incriminate Defendant.

He May, However, be Held for the Grand Jury.

Saturday's Ledger published the first of the testimony in the case against Milan for the murder of his wife, who was found burned to death at her home. The remainder of the Saturday testimony is given below, and the case has been been continued.

Carmine P. Gardner said that he was driving down Hancock street when he heard shouting. Looked and saw Milan standing in the doorway shouting, "My wife is burning," "Will nobody come near me," "Clear out of here." McCormick said Milan's wife is burned and asked me to go for a doctor. Then McCormick went into the house.

Officer William Lyons first heard of trouble when Gardner came to the police station. Went to the Milan house. Got there about 4.25. Found Milan raving like a mad man. When I went in he was seated in a chair in the bedroom. Milan said, who is it? and I replied, the police. I started to go into the front part of the house, when Milan shouted, don't go in there. I sat him down in the chair and went in, and saw the body, and then came back. There was no fire in the stove.

Saw the chair; part of the back was burned. Saw towel on the floor back of the chair. Saw the wood box with dalias in it. Nearby was an oil can. Saw water on the floor where the body was. Said nothing to Milan. Should judge he had been drinking. He did not want anything touched until John Hall arrived. There was a glass, piece of tobacco and a Washington pie cut in four pieces on the table. Mr. McCormick moved the chair and I put it back, and told them not to touch anything. Saw pieces of what appeared to be burned clothing on the floor.

Cross examined—Milan told him he and his wife had been drinking. This was when coming from Dedham jail. He said when he got filled up he went to bed. That she liked it as well as he did. Had never made any search of the house. Saw two bottles in one closet and two bottles in another closet. They were empty. There was a half burned match on the stove.

John C. Chamberlin went to Milan's with the officer. Did not go into the house. Milan stood in the doorway, and after asking who it was, told him to keep out of the house.

Officer Newcomb testified that when he went down, Milan stood in the door. He said "Poor sis, what happened to you," "That's two of you that have gone that way."

Joseph Stancomb said he was notified by telephone. Found body of Mrs. Milan in front hall. Was mostly burned about the body from the knees up. Everything above the knee was burned except some fragments of cloth. The hands were scorched.

Cross examined—The tops of the stockings might have been scorched. Saw remains of skirt about lower limbs. There was a light in the front room. She had on light rubber boots, could not say whether the boots were scorched or not.

Medical Examiner Gilbert first saw the body at 7 o'clock Saturday night at Hall's undertaking rooms. Made an autopsy later. Found no marks of violence except those made by fire.

All the clothing above the thighs was burned off. One or two corset steels stuck to the breast. The waist had dropped to the thighs. The body was literally roasted; so much so that the skin of the abdomen had curled like a burnt boot. The skin on every other part had broken apart so as to leave places bare. The tongue was protruded from the mouth. The hair was nearly all burned off. The autopsy showed no odor or suspicion of liquor. The stomach was empty. Could not tell how long odor of liquor would remain, but if she had been drinking that day, he should have expected to have found it. He should judge that she had been dead a number of hours. Boots could not have been removed except by cutting. Was no indication that she had inhaled any flame except a slight reducing of the lung, which might have been caused by a cold.

Cross examined—The right side was not burned where it touched the floor while the left side was burned; this was evidence that she had run while burning and had burned for some time after falling.

Dr. F. E. Jones testified practically the same as Dr. Gilbert about the autopsy. At the house he found nothing to show how the fire started. Found ashes on the table next to the chair. The bottom of chair was not burned except near the top. Burned a little more on the right side than the left. The upper rim was charred. On the burned portions were particles of partly burned cloth. Traced ashes from chair to sink, and from chair to closet and entry. The witness told minutely what he had found upon examining the house. In the front room was a stove with a hood in it. He stated the distance from the burned chair to where the body was found.

Charles Austin, conductor on Quincy & Boston street railway testified that Friday morning, the day previous to the burning, that Milan rode upon his car from Neponset, and that he was under the influence of liquor.

Lester Weeks, motorman on the same car, corroborated Austin's testimony. The hearing then adjourned until next Saturday.

Granite Cutters' Grievance.

At Hartford, Conn., on Saturday, at the session of the Bricklayers and Masons international union, the grievance of the National Granite Cutters union was considered.

There has been a dispute between the granite cutters union and the bricklayers union for some time over the nature of certain work. The granite cutters claimed that the bricklayers were doing certain work that rightfully belonged to them. The matter came up today, and after a discussion it was referred to the incoming executive board for action.—Globe.

EARTH'S NEW MOTION.

French Scientist Explains Observed Variations In Latitudes.

From observations extending over a period of seven years M. Albrecht has demonstrated that the earth has a new movement in addition to the recognized 11. The twelfth movement is that of the terrestrial pole to the extent of 15 to 17 minutes per annum, giving rise to a slight variation of latitudes, which has been observed in all countries.

M. Albrecht attributes this displacement more especially to the variation of the equilibrium produced by the movement of the ocean's atmosphere. The newly discovered movement is supposed to have been a potent agent in affecting the relative distribution of land and water in the equatorial zone, which theory is corroborated by the actual state thereof. M. Albrecht says:

"One of the results of the change in the position of the polar axis and the variations of the intensities of centrifugal force on the equatorial zone would be that for points diametrically opposed the decrease in centrifugal force at one point would necessarily imply an increase at the opposite point, so that if a subsidence took place in one elevation it should be the result in the other, so that wherever the equator traverses land representing elevation it should be found traversing the ocean or low land at the opposite end of the diameter corresponding to this elevated land surface."—Paris Cablegram Chicago Inter Ocean.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is transmitted by contagion and not heredity. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) adopts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power, a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encouraging to "consumption families." It is not heriditary, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ-laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumption patient should never expectorate when it can dry up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air passages. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis; thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tissues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. NEEDS MORE TIME.

An Ex-Assessor Writes on Equalization of Taxes.

To the Daily Ledger:

There was not one suggestion or recommendation in Mayor Keith's inaugural address so vital to the tax payers, as equalization of taxes. I have delayed giving my views upon the subject, hoping some others more able and intelligent would write upon it.

The equalization of land, buildings, personal property and business investments has not been done in the past in so thorough a manner as it should, and never can be until more time is spent in "the field." When I was upon the board of Assessors, I spent six weeks on the road, from 8 A. M., till 7 and 8 P. M. I was aware at the time I was not giving it the careful consideration required to examine every piece of property critically, but we were told we must hurry up, or the other half of the board would be through before us.

But judge of my surprise, to learn that other boards since with increase of real estate and business investments, have got through in three weeks, and ex-Assessor Curtis says in two weeks.

I found in Ward Two houses renting for only ten dollars a side per month, and slow at that, valued for more than the same kind of houses in Ward One, renting for twelve and thirteen dollars a side per month readily. And there were other cases of unequal valuation. In such cases I made what I considered an equalization.

Personal property and business investments require the most careful consideration and comparison, and should not be jumped at in a hurry. There are always additions and improvements on estates since last assessed that need a watchful eye to discern. I don't mean new shingles or repainting, as such improvements should be encouraged and not taxed, for those were in the original estimate.

A reform I advocated while upon the board, and I hope will be inaugurated before the time comes around, and that is, that every taxpayer have an itemized tax bill. Then if his land has increased(?) in number of feet, or his house or stable have become more valuable, or his business investments have enlarged, in the opinion of a new board of assessors, he will be made aware of it, and if not, correct, can take steps at once to have it adjusted.

I bought a piece of land for $300. The several boards of assessors advanced it at different times with surrounding property till it reached the sum of $1,400, that was proper. I bought another piece of land for $1,000, it was advanced by the same boards in value, with surrounding property, till it reached $1,800. I could find no fault, so long as property in the vicinity increased in the same proportion. Next year, an entirely new board of Assessors come on, they increased my $1,400 lot to $1,700, and my $1,800 lot to $2,800, and not one foot of surrounding property of either lot was advanced in value one dollar. Was that equalization of land values? I applied for an abatement but did not get any.

Now I think another reform should come, and that is the appointment of a board of arbitration, or board of appeals. Then if cases of excessive or unjust taxation is imposed, one could have the right of appeal from the Assessors valuation. We now have the county commissioners to appeal to, but every one knows what the result of that would be; your trouble for your pains.

Since the Ledger published the land values, note the number of illegal taxes brought before the Council for adjustment, and the large and small sums that have had to be returned to the taxpayer.

Now, if this method of assessment must continue, give the taxpayer what he would be entitled to from any business concern, an itemized bill, for the amount he is to pay. It will be answered, he has recourse to the assessors' books. I don't consider that a part of his duty; it is the duty of the party having the bill against him to furnish the items. That system was well enough fifty years ago, but in these days of rapid transit, we don't want to go in a stage coach of fifty years ago.

Although taxpayers have recourse to the Assessors' book, anyone who has been on the board of Assessors knows that but a few in comparison, outside of reporters and real estate agents come to look at the books. If they do, not one in ten can take them and get the required information. The method is simple, but to the average man it looks complicated. I have seen men of good business ability, take a ward book and look it over, and then say his name did not appear. Two to one he was looking on the non resident's list.

There is nothing in all the other departments of the city that is so vital and reaches so near each one, as the Assessors, and the Tax Collector, whose workings are so little understood. The taxpayer receives his tax bill, be it less or be it more, than the last years one, there is not one line of explanation upon it, and he don't understand it. If it is less than last year, he pays it, and looks smiling; if it is more, he kicks and fumes till the first of November, then goes and pays it without knowing why it was more. He consoles himself that it was sewer or concrete sidewalk tax. Thank the Lord it is paid, and awaits with fear and trembling next to death the coming of next year's tax bill.

ALBERT KEATING.

Church Funeral,

An impressive funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at the St. Paul's M. E. church, Fort street. While the organist played Webster's funeral march, the remains of Mrs. Anna Katarina Ljunggren was placed in front of the altar. Rev. Mr. Frank Edwards of Lowell and the pastor made short addresses, and Rev. H. Larson and Mrs. Larson and choir sang appropriate selections. At the grave, Mr. Edwards sang an impressive song, and Rev. H. Larson performed the remaining ceremony.

The deceased was born in Sweden Sept. 3, 1818, and came to this country in 1873. She settled in Quincy in 1886 and was a very acceptable member of the Swedish M. E. church. Her christian character was an inspiration to all. She was a studious woman and a good mother.

She leaves three children, two daughters and one son. This old, loving pilgrim will be greatly missed by a host of friends.

Echo of Portland Disaster.

Portland, Me., Jan. 16.—Samuel L. Bates, proctor for Nathan Cohen in his suit against the Portland Steamship company, to recover damages for the loss of his son, a passenger on the steamer Portland, has filed in the United States district court an answer to the petition of the steamship company that it might have the benefit of the statute limiting the liability of vessel owners in such cases. On this petition the court granted a temporary injunction against the prosecution of suits against the company in the state courts. The answer denies all the statements of the petition so far as they were intended to show that the steamer was seaworthy, properly equipped and manned, and lost owing to causes beyond the control of the owners. Then the answer claims that the company is not entitled to the benefit of the statute of limitation.

Quarrelsome Miners.

Pana, Ills., Jan. 16.—Ike Inglis yesterday shot and instantly killed Dave Evans, a fellow negro miner at the Springside mines. The trouble arose over dividing their wages. Inglis was captured and placed in jail. Frank Jones and James Palmer, two non-union white miners, employed at the Springside mine, were assaulted yesterday, and seriously injured. Their assailants are unknown. Three companies of militia, which have been doing guard duty several months, have been ordered home.

Grieved Over Father's Death.

Baltimore, Jan. 16.—Miss Anna M. H. Schley, 25 years of age, daughter of the late Colonel W. L. Schley, poet, lawyer and veteran of two wars, and second cousin of Rear Admiral Schley, committed suicide yesterday in her home here. Since the death of her father, to whom she was much attached, just a month ago yesterday, Miss Schley had been inconsolable. A week ago her mental condition became alarming to her friends, and attendants were almost constantly at her bedside. Yesterday afternoon her sister, who had been chatting with her, went below stairs for a few moments, and when she returned found Miss Schley lying on her bed with a bullet hole in her left breast. She had shot herself through the heart with one of her father's revolvers. Two letters which she had written to friends indicate that she labored under the hallucination that she and her family were being pursued by some phantom.

Too Free With Revolver.

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 16.—When Edgar F. Stathan, who Saturday attempted to put an end to his wife's existence, was being brought here by the police after his arrest in Melrose, he declared that he went to his wife's house with the intention of killing her. Yesterday he contradicted his former statement, and told the police that he had no idea of shooting the woman until he met her in her chamber, and then her words so angered him that he shot her. Her father, coming into the room, also enraged him, and he turned the revolver on the old man, but it failed to go off. Mrs. Stathan will be able to appear in court some time during the last of the week, as a speedy recovery from her wound is anticipated by her physician.

ON PROVOST DUTY.

Co. K and Whole 1st Battalion Called Out.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 12.

The storm which abated at 3 o'clock today will go down in the annals of history of the 5th Mass., as one of the severest yet known since the muster into the United States service.

Today we were thinking about paying a visit to the regimental quartermaster, and having him supply us with a pair of skates, the rain which fell during the night, froze hard onto our tents, also making a thick coating of ice on the ground, making the walking very dangerous.

The trees were also thickly coated, making a very beautiful picture, but a cold one. Many a tent leaked last night. As soon as a brisk fire was made in one of the Sibley stoves the canvas was heated so that the ice melted through the tents.

At 10 this morning the 1st battalion, under command of Major Morrison, vacated camp, and marched in heavy marching order, to the central part of Greenville, to perform a ten days' tour of provost duty. The lucky companies if they may be so considered, are Co. A, Charlestown, Captain Stover; Co. C., Newton, 2d Lieutenant Howard; Co. K, Braintree, Captain Neilson; Co. I, Attleboro, Captain Skyes. These companies will cover a distance of 12 miles round the city. Their duties are to preserve life and order. This duty is of the utmost importance, and very risky.

Quartermaster Sergeant Crane has been busily engaged this morning packing away the Sibley stoves and all equipments. The general opinion is that the 1st battalion will not join the regiment until we are in a more southern camp. All indications point toward Savannah; from there we do not know our final destination.

Private Frank Clapp will be ready for home tomorrow. We are pleased to note that he is progressing nicely. Corporal Foster who is a patient of the 2d Division Hospital, is once more able to walk around. The corporal takes his daily walks around the ward.

Private Collins, alias Buckie, has taken his pet dog with him on provost duty. The dog making a useful companion in time of danger.

Tomorrow is to be "Massachusetts Day." If the weather is not agreeable, it means another postponement

VOLUNTEER.

Heads or Tails

The Globe prints a dispatch from Washington, which still keeps the friends of Co. K guessing:

"Adjt. Gen. Corbin said Saturday that he expected within a very short time the 5th Massachusetts regiment, now at Greenville, S. C., would be mustered out of the service. The mustering out of this regiment depends somewhat on conditions existing in the Philippines and the prospects of the passage of the bill increasing the regular army. In the minds of the war department officials there is very little doubt but what the regiment will go out of the service within the next two or three weeks."

And another despatch from Greenville that the camp there has been condemned. Also that the ball of the 5th was a splendid success, the best families of the town being present, Maj. Morrison, Captain Clare and Lieut. Perkins were the committee in charge.

Children Made Happy.

R. H. Foerderer, the maker of vici leather and vici leather dressing and polish, made glad the hearts of over 500 little people in this city, Saturday afternoon. For the past two weeks he has been having an exhibition of the merits of his dressing and polish at the Granite Shoe store, Miss Williams, of Philadelphia, being the demonstrator. In connection with this demonstration Mr. Foerderer advertised doll's day, on which he would give to every little girl bringing a doll, a pair of vici kid shoes to fit the dolly's feet. If the dolls could not be fitted the measurement was to be taken and the shoes would be made and forwarded to Quincy. Saturday was the day appointed and it proved a success, as 500 pairs of doll's shoes were given away and the names were taken for 150 others. The cost of these shoes is about 25 cents and of those made to order about 50 cents.

MR. DINGLEY'S DEATH

Will Cast a Shadow Over Proceedings In House This Week.

Treaty's Serious Consideration to Begin In Senate.

Supporters and Opponents of the Measure Claim Confidence In Success.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The work of the house during this week will be overcast (with the sad rites attending the final tributes to Mr. Dingley. These were held in the house of representatives at noon today, and immediately following them the house adjourned for the day.

Tomorrow the legislative work of the house will be resumed, with the naval personnel bill coming over from last Friday. But the personnel bill may be displaced by the contested election case of Brown vs. Swanson, formal notice having been given that it would be called up on Tuesday. An election case has the highest privilege, and if the notice is carried out the personnel bill will go over.

Wednesday has been set aside for the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, an agreement to that effect having been made before the holidays. The most important bill this committee has on the calendar is that providing for a Pacific cable running to Hawaii and thence to Japan. By Thursday the post-office appropriation bill will be reported and ready to take up in the house and perhaps also the military academy bill.

The main interest attaches to the time when the important bill for the increase of the regular army can be taken up. It is awaiting the recovery of Chairman Hull of the military committee, and should he be about by the end of the week this measure will be brought forward. But there is little prospect that his convalescence will permit this. He was sitting up Saturday, but his strength is hardly equal to leading in this contest. Beyond this there is little of the definite nature forecast for he coming week.

It is the purpose of Senator Davis, in charge of the peace treaty, to again call it up as soon as it can be reached without displacing other measures which take precedence under the existing order of the senate. These questions are the Indian appropriation bill and the Nicaraguan canal bill.

Under the agreement made last week the canal bill will be taken up at 3 o'clock tomorrow for discussion in speeches not to exceed 15 minutes in duration. There is no agreement for a vote on the bill, but the belief is general that the understanding already reached will lead to an early vote. The senators opposed to the pending bill express no intention of trying to prevent a vote, and the friends of the bill are very confident that this culmination will not be postponed beyond Wednesday. Senator Morgan, who has led the contest for the measure, expresses the opinion that the final vote will be reached before adjournment tomorrow. He does not expect a great many 15-minute speeches, and he predicts that the bill will go through without being amended in any essential particular. The acceptance by the committee of the Berry amendments has had the effect of removing much of the opposition to the bill, and there is believed to be little doubt of its passage when the vote is taken.

The senators are attending the funeral of Representative Dingley today, but after this ceremony the senators will return to their desks and resume consideration of the Indian bill. This bill may continue to hold attention until tomorrow, and if such should prove to be the case the further consideration of the treaty would be postponed until after action upon the Nicaragua bill. In the meantime the pension and diplomatic appropriation bills will have been reported from the committee on appropriations, but it is not the purpose at present to give them precedence over the treaty. Senator Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Allison, chairman of the appropriations committee, are working in perfect harmony, so that no clash between the treaty and the supply bills is probable.

Senator Bacon has given notice of a speech on the general question of extension of territory on Wednesday. His address will be based upon the resolutions regarding the status of the Filipinos introduced by himself some time since, and its delivery may lead to considerable debate, practically on the treaty, in open session. It is also probable that there will be more or less discussion of the resolution of Senator Hoar for the recognition of the independence of the Filipinos, introduced on Saturday last.

It is also understood that Mr. Allen will, at the first opportunity, continue the talk upon his resolution for an investigation of the conduct of the war. Altogether the outlook is against any serious consideration of the treaty before Thursday.

The opponents of the treaty profess great confidence in being able to defeat it upon a vote, and to believe that the friends of the agreement will seek to postpone a vote until next session. The Democratic opponents of the agreement have held several meetings during the past week, and those who have attended profess to be very hopeful concerning the outlook. They claim 34 votes in opposition, or three more than necessary to defeat. They say they will be satisfied to have the treaty ratified providing an amendment is engrafted upon it declaring against the maintenance of sovereignty in the Philippines, but the supporters of the treaty decline so far to grant any such concession. Some of them indicate a willingness to adopt a separate resolution to this end, and it is not impossible that this course may be pursued.

The supporters of the treaty do not claim to be in the least disturbed over the outlook. They count upon considerable delay in securing action, but still hold to their contention that the treaty will be ratified just as it came to the senate.

A resolution of more than ordinary significance and importance was introduced in the senate on Saturday by Mr. Hoar. It declares the people of the Philippines of right ought to be free and independent, that they are absolved from political connection with Spain, and that they have full power to establish a government for themselves, with which the United States does not propose to interfere. Mr. Hoar desired immediate action upon the resolution, but under objection by Mr. Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee, it went over. In the midst of a speech by Mr. Allen of Nebraska, in support of his resolution for the appointment of a committee of the senate to investigate the conduct of the late war, the death of Mr. Dingley was reported to the senate. After adopting fitting resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Dingley and listening to a brief eulogy by Mr. Hale, the senate adjourned as a mark of respect.

The Honored Dead.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The body of the late Representative Dingley as been enclosed in a casket of plain black with silver handles. A silver plate bears the following inscription:

"Nelson Dingley, Jr., born Feb. 15, 1832, died Jan. 13, 1899."

The body was taken from the Hamilton House to the Capitol at 10 o'clock this morning, and placed in the hall of the house, where the house funeral services, conducted by Rev. S. M. Newman of the Congregational church, assisted by Chaplain Couden of the house of representatives, took place. Subsequently the remains were taken to the Pennsylvania railroad station. They will be accompanied by members of the family now here, the committees of both houses of congress and other friends. The citizens of Lewiston and Auburn, Me., have expressed to the family here their desire to honor their former fellow townsman, and, on reaching Lewiston, the body will be consigned temporarily to the committees of the citizens of those cities. Arrangements have been made by which it will lie in state in the city hall at Lewiston. Tomorrow evening the remains will be removed to the Dingley residence, and private services held there Wednesday morning, after which they will be deposited in the receiving vault next to the body of Mr. Dingley's father, who died recently.

Evidences of the sympathy for the family in their bereavement continue to be received at the Hamilton House, and a number of public men called and left their cards. Both the American and Canadian members of the joint high commission, now in session here, sent floral pieces, and, in addition, a large number have been received from persons in private and public life.

First In Many Years.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Secretary Long has decided to allow Admiral Sampson to undertake a cruise with the North Atlantic squadron in southern waters for drills and maneuvers. This cruise will extend certainly to Havana, and perhaps even to the north coast of South America, a favorite spot for naval evolutions in winter being off the coast of Venezuela. The squadron will get away as soon as the ships can be made ready. This will be the first time in several years that the ships have had the opportunity to drill in this manner, the last evolutionary cruise being made by Admiral Meade, subsequent events, such as the Venezuelan boundary incident and the state of affairs in Cuba, making it impolitic to continue them.

Leary Ordered to Guam.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Secretary Long has ordered Captain Leary, at present commanding the San Francisco, to proceed to the island of Guam and assume the duties of naval governor of the new acquisition. He will carry with him a proclamation to the natives informing them of the designs of the United States government toward them in precisely the terms employed in the case of the acquisition of Porto Rico.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The president has under consideration the name of President Schurman of Cornell university in connection with a most important mission.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN.

The exact nature of the latter is not yet disclosed but it is supposed that, as the president has it in mind to send a special commission to the Philippines, to recommend a plan for the treatment and disposition of the islands, something on the order of the Hawaiian commission, President Schurman may be designated as a member of such a body. It is also suggested that he may be sent to Spain either as minister or on a special errand.

Providence Will Be Benefited.

Providence, Jan. 16.—The Cramp-Hoadley syndicate has made an offer for the entire works and property of the Corliss Steam Engine company of this city. A distinct and definite proposition has been made, and is under consideration. The result of the completion of the arrangement now under consideration, it is stated, will include the addition of a large amount of capital to the corporation, the enlargement of the works, and the permanent location of the industry here under a big concern. The business to be carried on will be the manufacture of steam engines, and it is stated that the completion of the arrangements will therefore mean a great deal to the community.

Criminal Identified.

Boston, Jan. 16. — Chief Inspector Watts received a letter yesterday afternoon from Marshal Samuel T. Hamilton of Baltimore, enclosing the photographs of two men arrested in that city, charged with assault and battery upon one Mrs. Hartigan of Baltimore, asking that they be identified and their records sent to that city. The men gave the names of William Carter and John E. Collins. Chief Inspector Watts at once identified the photograph of Carter as that of an old safe blower and burglar, who has served time for blowing open a safe in Weston, Mass. He was released in 1897, after serving five years in prison.

Larocque, by setting fire to the boy's body. The police are certain that they can prove L'Heureux to be a bad man, and it is alleged that he caused the death of his first and second wives. The boy alleges that this was the second deliberate attempt to burn him to death.

Being unable to furnish bonds the man was committed to jail.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50

Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

Statesmen and Diplomats Gaze In Homage to Stricken Leader.

State Funeral Accorded Late Nelson Dingley.

His Body Will Lie In State at the City Hall In Lewiston Today.

Washington, Jan. 17.—A state funeral was given Representative Dingley yesterday. Such an honor has not been accorded a member of the house since William D. Kelly of Pennsylvania died, when a member of the Fifty-first congress. President McKinley was then chairman of the ways and means committee.

Yesterday the president was a sincere mourner, it being remarked that he had not entered the hall since the time he represented a district of Ohio in the national congress some years ago.

The president, his cabinet, distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, members of the supreme court, senate and house, and distinguished men in military and civil life were ranged about his bier on the floor of the hall, while the galleries, to which admission could be obtained only by card, were occupied by the families of those who sat upon the floor, and other prominent personages invited to be present.

The remains were taken from the Hotel Hamilton to the Capitol yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and were borne into the hall of representatives by a squad of Capitol police, under the direction of Sergeant-at-Arms Russell. The casket was placed on a bier in the area in front of the marble rostrum of the speaker, and for an hour the public, which had no opportunity to witness the official ceremonies later, was allowed to view the remains as they lay in state. Thousands of people streamed through the main door down past the casket and gazed upon the calm, serene features of the dead during that hour.

The decorations of the hall were simple but strikingly beautiful. Palms relieved the rigid corners, and palm leaves arranged in the form of a tre-foil planted in wreaths of galax leaves tied with long streamers of purple adorned the walls. A cluster of roses and palm leaves were arranged on each section of the brass railing about the rear of the hall. This simple scheme of decoration culminated about the rostrum beneath which the remains lay.

The services were conducted by the Rev. S. M. Newman of the First Congregational church of this city, assisted by Rev. Dr. Couden, chaplain of the house. It was a very simple service. Rev. Mr. Newman read the 14th chapter of St. John's. He then spoke of the deep solemnity of the occasion and the great lesson which might be drawn from the life which had been finished.

Rev. Mr. Couden, the blind chaplain of the house, made a touching prayer, and the exercises were concluded with the singing by the quartet, to the organ accompaniment, of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

AT HIS OLD HOME.
Congressman Dingley's Body Will Lie In State—The Funeral Arrangements.

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 17.—On the arrival of the remains of Nelson Dingley in Boston today, they will probably be brought on here in a special train, arranged by the sergeant-at-arms. There will be about 35 people in the special congressional party from Washington. This train will run express to Portland, where it will be met by the committee of citizens from Lewiston, consisting of Hon. William D. Pennell, James A. Walsh, Hon. George C. Wing, Frank Gutmann, Dr. W. K. Oakes, A. B. Nealey and H. L. Pratt.

On its arrival at Lewiston it will be met at the depot by the local committee and by carriages for all. The procession will be formed with an escort of police, and a military guard of honor from the Grand Army of the two cities. There will be 12 policemen and 12 soldiers of the Grand Army, four from each of the local posts of that organization. The carriages will escort the remains to the city hall, while the bells of the two cities will toll.

At the city hall, the square in front of the building will have been cleared by the police, and the remains will be taken to the large hall, escorted by the congressional committee and the local military guard of honor, and placed under the large catafalque in the center of the hall. The building will be thoroughly policed, and no one will be allowed to approach it until all the arrangements are made for viewing the remains, when the line will pass in the front door, up the right stairs and to the catafalque on the right side of the hall, passing down the left side and down the left-hand stairs to the street.

Here the military guard of honor will do guard during the afternoon, and every body will be given a chance to see the remains while they lie in state.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the remains will be taken to the home of Mr. Dingley at the corner of Pine and Horton streets, where they will pass tonight, with only the members of the family in the house.

A largely attended meeting of the Lewiston board of trade was held last evening to take action regarding the death of Congressman Dingley. Colonel Charles H. Osgood, president of the board, in calling the meeting to order spoke feelingly of the dead statesman. A committee on resolutions was appointed, and it was voted to request all places of business to close on Wednesday between 8 a. m. and noon.

The public schools were closed this afternoon while the body lay in state at city hall in order to give the students a chance to view the remains of the dead statesman.

The mills and Auburn schools will be closed Wednesday from 9 to 12 a. m. The city governments of both Lewiston and Auburn will attend in a body. The funeral will occur Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the Pine Street Congregational church, of which Mr. Dingley was a member, conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. M. Howe.

GENERAL EAGAN'S CASE

Still the Subject of Consideration by the Authorities at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 17.—In answer to a direct question, Secretary Alger, at the close of the official day, said that the war department had taken no action in the case of Commissary General Eagan, and he declined to say one word as to his intentions in the matter. It was apparent during the day that this matter was receiving attention, and in fact the commissary general himself spent some time closeted with the secretary.

Three distinct lines of action were talked of as within the line of probability. The first was a strong letter of reprimand to be addressed by the president himself to General Eagan, stating that but for the immunity he had promised all witnesses before the commission he would have courtmartialled him. The second line was an actual courtmartial, with the third a court of inquiry. The purpose of the latter would be, it was said, to place upon a military tribunal the responsibility for deciding whether or not General Eagan should be tried by a courtmartial.

Of course the court of inquiry might go a long way into the matters which led up to the attack contained in General Eagan's statement.

The commission which the president is about to appoint to proceed to the Philippines will not be subject to the confirmation of the United States senate, but will be named under reserved authority of the president, and its expenses will be paid out of the war appropriations. It is not expected to commit the United States government to the recognition of the natives, nor is it to frame a scheme of government for the islands. Undoubtedly, however, the commissioners will unofficially confer with the natives, and advise with the military authorities, it being felt here that men of their experience and qualifications will be valuable counsellors in the conditions now existing.

It is believed that the natives can be kept from hostilities until the arrival of the commission at Manila, and then it is hoped that the best results will follow the visit, including the reassurance of the natives upon many points as to which they are now doubtful.

It will be perceived also that by the appointment of the commission the president is granting the appeal of some of the best Filipinos, who are confident that both sides will be enlightened by its creation, and declare that the United States government will be shown that the abilities of the Filipinos for government has been under-estimated, while the Filipinos themselves will be induced to have patience before insisting upon instant self-government.

Expansion Arraigned.

New Haven, Jan. 17.—Professor W. G. Sumner of Yale university last night addressed a large audience on the subject of "The Conquest of the United States by Spain." It was an arraignment of the expansion view, and pointed out that, although the United States had signally defeated Spain in a military war, yet the absolute unpreparedness of this country for the problems now enforced upon us for solution was quite otherwise than in keeping with ordinary conquests. Spanish ideas and Spanish policy must of necessity, in a measure, enter into American policy, and we are by force of circumstances compelled to adopt the principles of the old world colonizing nations. He said that the late war was nothing more nor less than political jobbery, but it was early found necessary to find other arguments for the people's inspiration and support. We now know, he said, that the conditions reported in Cuba were not true; that we were not justified in our haste. A policy of haste is not statesmanlike, and now, all that lies beyond our own policies is poorly advised and can lead only to disaster.

Professor Sumner was of the opinion that our most important inheritance from Spain will be the repression of rebellion. Our method is wrong because it smothers liberty. The right method is to enjoy our isolation and the fruits of our splendid government, and to allow others the same privilege.

OUR TROOPS IN CUBA.

General Sternberg Finds They Are Generally Well Situated.

There Is Very Little Serious Sickness at Present.

Sanitary Regeneration of Havana Is a Very Difficult Problem.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Fears for the health of the soldiers now stationed in Cuban towns will be generally allayed by report of General Sternberg, who has just returned from a visit to the island, and who was specially delegated to inquire into the needs of the hospital service.

General Sternberg's special purpose while away was to see that every arrangement was made to protect the health of the garrison troops before the unhealthy season comes on.

In summing up the condition of affairs as he found them he is reported as follows:

"I find the sanitary condition of troops now stationed in and near Havana, Matanzas and Pinar Del Rio to be very good at present. There is very little serious sickness, but medical officers generally apprehend that there will be a very considerable increase in the amount of sickness as the unhealthy season approaches, and strenuous efforts are being made to prepare for a large number of sick in case the military situation makes it necessary to retain a considerable body of troops in Cuba during the summer.

"At Havana orders have been given for the preparation of the Spanish military hospital Alfonso XIII, which has a capacity of 2500 beds; also for an officers' hospital at the Vedado, and for another hospital for infectious diseases. At Matanzas the military hospital and barracks are being thoroughly disinfected and prepared for the use of our troops. In the meantime a suburban villa, admirably adopted to the purpose, is being prepared for use as a hospital. The troops near Matanzas are encamped on high ground overlooking the bay in a location which I consider quite favorable from a sanitary point of view. The camps at Marianao are well located.

"In Havana, General Ludlow is exhibiting great energy in organizing the civil government and in preparing to carry out necessary sanitary measures. The sanitary regeneration of Havana is, however, a difficult problem, and one which will require time, as well as money and energy. I consider it entirely impracticable to place this city in such a condition that it will be safe for non-acclimated persons to remain there during the coming summer without serious risk, especially if they frequent the more unhealthy parts of the city.

"Occasional cases of yellow fever occur in this city throughout the winter, but the epidemic prevalence of this disease does not usually commence before May, and the extent of an epidemic depends entirely upon the number of unacclimated strangers exposed in the infected localities during the unhealthy season. Yellow fever is epidemic at Havana, Matanzas, Cardenas, Cienfuegos, Trinidad and various other seaport cities. It occasionally prevails at Puerto Principe, Holguin, Pinar Del Rio, Remedios and several other interior towns."

Bruce Was Absent.

Boston, Jan. 17.—The Democratic state committee dined the Democratic members of the legislature at the American House last night and outlined a state house policy. It was proposed during the meeting to present measures in the legislature for the taking by the state of the Boston and Albany railroad, the elections of state commissions by the people and the municipalization of general utilities.

Hon. Alexander B. Bruce, the recent gubernatorial candidate, who was expected, could not be present owing to business outside the state. He, however, sent a letter of regret. Among the guests were Secretary W. S. McNary, Representative J. H. Mellen, Senator Moran of Fall River, Harry J. Jaquith, T. E. Wardner, Patrick Kilroy of Holyoke, Joseph J. Flynn of Lawrence, T. J. Morrison of Chelsea, James E. Donoghue of Lawrence.

Chairman C. T. Callahan of Holyoke presided. A number of short speeches were made, none of which might be called formal, in which the political future was looked at in a roseate hue. It is understood that no decision was reached by the meeting as to the party candidate for United States senator to oppose Senator Lodge.

In Buffon's experiments he once found a Frenchman who could exert a force of 534 pounds with his jaws.

Good Afternoon.

There was almost a "clean sweep" at City Hall last evening. Not the one that is interesting the voters the most, yet nevertheless an important one, and bearing an intimate relation with the other. With one exception every standing committee of the City Council has a new chairman, the exception being Public Buildings, here Councilman Poland continues to preside.

Ward Five again gets the best positions, securing three of the eight chairmanships; Wards One and Two received two each, and Ward Six the other one.

While Ward Three did not get any chairmanships it has eight positions on committes. Wards Four and Six have seven positions and the other wards six each.

With the exception of four of the members of the Finance Committee (Messrs. Bryant, Freeman, Badger and Alden), all the Councilmen serve on two committees.

All the wards are on Finance, Street, Sewer committees, Ward Five getting two on the first, and Ward Three two on Streets, and Ward Six on the last.

The other committees have less than six members and Wards Three and Five are not represented on the Public Building committee; Wards One and Four not on the Fire Department committee; Wards One, Four, Five and Six not on Ordinance committee; Wards One, Two and Three not on Legislative Matters; and Wards Two, Three, Five and Six not on Health committee.

It is quite a difficult matter to apportion the Councilmen so that each ward and each party shall receive proper recognition on chairmanships and committees, and President Sidelinger has succeeded admirably. He has got a particularly good Finance Committee, which after all is the all-important committee. Chairman Pinkham of the Sewer Committee has done valuable work on this committee in the past and is just the man to solve the sewer assessment problem. Chairman Swithin is well acquainted with the needs of our streets and believes in progress and improvements. Chairman Poland is a practical builder, Chairman Hultman by two years' experience is well fitted to look after Fire Department matters. Chairman Newcomb always gives thoughtful consideration to all matters. Chairman Jameson is alert for the interests of Quincy and his constituents, and Chairman Nash is considerate for the needs of the unfortunate, and the general health of the community.

Granite City Club.

At the regular meeting of the Granite City club on Saturday evening, four gentlemen were voted in as members. Arrangements are being made for the annual banquet which will probably be held at the United States hotel in Boston. Steps are also being taken for one or more entertainments. The club is in a very flourishing condition under the good management of its present officers.

It would be the economical way we presume to say that about everybody down this way has the grip. In attempting to enumerate we might omit some one but the grip didn't.

President Sidelinger Appoints Standing Committees.

Every member of the City Council of 1899 was present at the first business meeting of the year on Monday evening, including Frank W. Blanchard who was absent upon inauguration day, who took the oath of office.

There was also a very large attendance of citizens, many of whom expected to be informed as to Mayor Keith's appointments, but they were not forthcoming. President Sidelinger, however, made his appointment of standing committees in which there was considerable interest. A grist of new business was introduced.

RULES ADOPTED.

The special Committee on Rules reported in favor of the adoption of the rules of 1898, with the exception of the amendment of that year which provided that all business introduced the latter part of the year should be referred to the next Council. Adopted.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

President Sidelinger announced the following standing committees for 1899:

CHAIRMAN BRYANT.

Finance, Accounts, Claims, Contracts and Salaries—Bryant (chairman), Freeman, Packard, Badger, Keith, Clark and Alden.

SEWER REPORT.

Mayor Keith forwarded the report of the Sewerage Commissioners for 1898, which was referred to the Committee on Sewers without reading.

GRIST OF PETITIONS.

Councilman Freeman presented the petition of the New England Telephone company for 33 posts on Beach street. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Bryant, the petition of George A. Loring and others for an incandescent light on the corner of Beach and Morton streets. To Committee on Lights.

Councilman Clark, the petition of J. W. Rideout for four incandescent lights on Payne street. To Committee on Lights.

Councilman Clark also presented petitions for granite crossings across School street and Phipps streets at their intersection; and for a light on Phipps street near the Adams school. To Committee on streets.

Councilman Dugan presented a petition for the extension of the electric light wires on Grove street to Broad hill and the location of three lights. To Committee on Lights.

Councilman Newcomb presented a petition for a fire alarm box on Quincy avenue, also for the widening of the roadway of Quincy avenue and the construction of a sidewalk from Water street to Newcomb square. To Committees on Fire Department and Streets.

Councilman Owens presented a petition for the widening of Willard street and the defining of the boundary lines. To Committee on Streets.

THE WOLLASTON FENCE.

Councilman Jameson presented the following resolution:

CHAIRMAN SWITHIN.

* Resolved: That in the opinion of this Council, the high wooden fence erected by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. at Wollaston on Newport avenue (east side of the street,) said fence extending from Beale street to a point below Brook street, together with the existing arrangement of approaches to, and exits from trains at the Wollaston railroad station, is of extreme detriment to the business interest of Quincy, more especially to the people of Wollaston, and inconvenient to nearly every person entering or leaving trains at said Wollaston station; also, that the present arrangement is dangerous.

And be it further resolved: That the Mayor of the City of Quincy be, and is here requested to proceed immediately to secure such proper approaches to and exits from trains at the said railroad station, as the citizens are justly entitled to, and the removal of the aforesaid unsightly wooden fence.

Councilman Jameson spoke in support. He said a year ago he had presented a similar resolution. It was then thought that moral suasion was the better course to pursue and he gave the Mayor and City Solicitor of 1898 the credit of doing all they could. Now he was convinced that moral suasion was useless. He had arrived at the opinion that the superintendent of this division was a "past master in the art of jollying." The approaches to the depot were now inadequate, and Wollaston was entitled to something better. We should take no more bluff. The approaches were not according to law. We want the fence taken down, and a more artistic one erected on inside of the sidewalk. We also want a subway under the tracks from Newport avenue to the depot. He hoped resolution would pass.

Councilman Packard moved to refer to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Jameson opposed. Thought nothing was to be gained by that course.

CHAIRMAN NEWCOMB.

Councilman Packard found considerable difference of opinion at Wollaston. If referred a hearing could be given, and when the people were united the goal might be reached. He admitted the fence was unsightly, but the Wollaston people wanted a fence, and were not contented until they got it, and now they will not be satisfied until they get rid of it. Nevertheless it prevented accidents.

Councilman Bryant opposed reference. Wollaston had been put off long enough, and wanted relief.

Councilman Freeman said accidents were frequent because of the fence. Only last Friday a woman slid down five steps on the stairs.

Councilman Pinkham was opposed to a hearing by the Council. Wollaston knows now what it wants.

Councilman Jameson took exceptions to the charge that Wollaston wanted the fence. Its erection was the work of one man.

Councilman Packard said he was not particular about his motion. He had obtained the views of all the Ward Five men, and was satisfied.

Councilman Badger favored resolution. He thought Council should stand by the Wollaston ward. Personally he would be willing to move an appropriation.

Councilman Packard's motion was defeated, and the resolution was adopted unanimously.

$150,000 FOR HIGHWAYS.

Councilman Swithin offered the following order:

That the Mayor be, and hereby is, authorized and directed to petition the Legislature for authority to enable the City of Quincy to incur indebtedness beyond the limit fixed by law to an amount not exceeding one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the purpose of laying out, establishing, constructing, widening, or improving streets or ways within the City of Quincy, or for the purpose of paying any land damages, or any other expenses, incidental thereto.

CITY BOOK.

Councilman Bryant offered an order for the printing of the annual City Book. To Committee on Finance.

REMOVAL OF ASHES.

Councilman Jameson offered an ordinance for the removal of house dirt and ashes. To Committee on Ordinances and Finance.

COUNCIL CHAMBER.

Councilman Swithin offered an order granting the use of the Council chamber for the annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club. Voted.

MORE LIGHT.

Councilman Newcomb offered an order for an incandescent light on Elm place at the corner of Chubbuck court. Referred.

Councilman Bryant offered an order authorizing the issue from time to time of temporary loans amounting to $300,000 in anticipation of taxes. To Committee on Finance.

SEWER EXTENSIONS.

Councilman Bryant offered an order appropriating $75,000 for sewer extensions, three notes of $1,000 each to come due in 1900 and each succeeding year. To Committee on Sewers.

CHAIRMAN JAMESON.

Councilman Freeman offered an order for the refund of $37.15 to Margaret Miner for taxes illegally assessed. To Committee on Finance.

He was commissioned by Gov. Hopkins of Rhode Island, and joined the expedition against Crown Point in the French war of 1756, where he died in 1757. Elkanah Spear was a descendant of George Spear among the early settlers of Braintree, now Quincy.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

The total debt Jan. 1, 1899 is $7,249.70, a decrease during the year of $922.29.

The trustees' report showed that 215 patients had been admitted during the year, of which number 182 had been discharged, 23 had died, and 10 now remain. The percentage of deaths was larger than usual, due to the fact that fourteen were incurable when admitted. Twenty-eight typhoid fever cases had been treated during the year, of which one had died, two now remain and twenty-five were discharged well. Two nurses had been graduated and there were now six in the training class.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bateman, C. W. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Price, and Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Butler were admitted as members of the corporation.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Clerk,—Warren W. Adams.

Trustees,—William B. Rice, Dr. John H. Gilbert, Dr. John A. Gordon, Timothy Reed, Rupert F. Claflin, Charles H. Porter, James F. Burke, Henry M. Faxon, Albert Keating, George F. Pinkham, Herbert M. Federhen and Luther S. Anderson.

Mr. Rice spoke of the work of the past year and praised the good management. Many of the items in the expenditures showed a decrease during the year, and as a whole the corporation could congratulate itself on the work of the year. The receipts from patients had been increased and all signs pointed to an increased income from this source. The hospital was also becoming more recognized by citizens as a good place to be sick in. He also touched upon the methods of raising money and hoped to soon see the hospital self supporting. If the debt was retired he would feel better. If next year was a prosperous year there will be more demands upon the Hospital, and he would like to see the debt decreased before the demands increased. He also referred to the need of a home for nurses and the great benefit that would be derived from such a home. The corps of trainers could then be increased and this would mean a source of income.

There as nothing better for some citizen to do than to give $1,000 for a district nurse, who would follow the doctors about and give help and cheer to sick people.

Miss Thayer, the matron, spoke of the need of more room for private patients.

Dr. Gordon spoke of the cases that had been treated at the Hospital during the year, and what the deaths resulted from. Everything at the Hospital was going smoothly. He also alluded to the effort of Hospital Sunday and believed that next year a larger income would be received from this source. He had no doubt but the system could be extended. He also suggested that it would be a good plan to try and get a general meeting of the incorporators next year. There was a great need of a contagious ward. This year more than ever. He was of the opinion that a ward could be built of eight rooms which would accommodate sixteen patients for $5,000 and it was suggested that here was an opportunity for some citizen to show his generosity.

C. W. Hall spoke of the good work at the Hospital where he was a patient for several weeks last year.

Open Letter to Our Co. K.

Editors the of Daily Ledger:

Your "pome" was good and adds a real poet to your bill of fare; for the meter was almost perfect; fun up to date; and we are sorry to believe, added fact to fancy. If you are in "cold storage," we in Quincy since Jan. 9 have been actually frozen up. We are thawing now and the "frozen tear from that onion" helped us. The poem is worth putting in our family scrap book with "The American triflers" and the "Ballad of Teddy's Terrors" both of which are before us. Go on, dear unknown poet friend; you have the divine gift and can do better under, please God, a no more harmless stimulant than Camp Wetherill.

The camp letters are very welcome and while "wild cats" are terrorizing your youngest, we are fighting social and political lions at home. You from Quincy are getting a tonic that will make the hair fly when you return. We know you will be brave, patient, and mothers' and fathers' prayers will go up for your safety.

We, who in 1861, went through similar experiences to those of your ranks know how to be with you in spirit, so go on rhyming, laughing, and may be cussing a little, when your toes and noses get too cold; but keep a clean, white record still for those at home. Veteran of '61 to '65.

Heliotype Views of West Quincy.

The Bert Poole Company of Boston are delivering their Heliotype views of West Quincy to subscribers the present week.

The work published is a faithful perspective of the quarry section looking from the west side toward the east. All the streets, houses, grades and land features are well shown in the space afforded. The firm are publishing East Milton, Hopedale, East Walpole, Westwood and are said to issue one of Ashmont.

Our citizens of the western part of the city have given generous patronage to the publishers who express themselves as being well satisfied with the results in a business way.

We should like to have them publish one of the central part of Quincy. Such a picture would undoubtedly receive the support of the residents here.

Silver Anniversary.

The Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church will begin its twenty-fifth anniversary services Sunday morning at 10.45 A. M. when the Rev. W. E. Huntington, D. D., the Dean of Boston University C. L. A., will preach. At 7 P. M. the preacher will be the Rev. George K. Morris, D. D. At the anniversary banquet which will be held on Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock, there will be brief after dinner addresses by former and local pastors interspersed with vocal, and orchestral music. A reception will precede the banquet.

House to House Inspection.

Havana, Jan. 17.—The colossal task of putting into proper sanitary condition every dwelling in Havana began yesterday. Surgeon Major Davis hired 100 resident physicians for a house-to-house inspection, to compel obedience to the new regulations. All cesspools under houses are to be closed and sealed. Garbage is to be removed daily. It is expected that the city will be in fairly good sanitary condition within three months, without under-ground sewage. The old residents regard the new health regulations as unnecessary and mediesome. and even some well-to-do and well informed persons, when making their objections, describe themselves as "healthy enough." A thousand persons are engaged in the work of cleaning the streets and public buildings.

Captain Huston of the Second engineers, who was assigned to this service, is reported sick with a low fever. There are two more cases of smallpox in the One Hundred and Sixty-first Indiana regiment, making five in all, and there is one case of suspected yellow fever in the First Texas regiment. The man has been isolated. It is a favorite trick of a soldier when escaping from camp, without leave, to hire Cuban uniforms, so as to pass the sentries. Sometimes the clothing has been exposed to infection and the usual results follow. Nevertheless, there is little sickness among the United States troops, and 20 female nurses, out of the 100 originally employed, have been dismissed.

The casemate in the artillery cuartel chosen for Major General Ludlow's office, near the palace, proved so foul that the air extinguished candles and suffocated cats and dogs which ran in.

Call to a Pastor.

New York, Jan. 17.—A meeting of the Plymouth church congregation was held last night and a call was issued to Dr. Newell Dwight Hollis of Chicago, to serve as pastor of the church. There were 246 votes cast for him, 6 against and 3 blanks.

Rev. Henry S. Perry Dead.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Rev. Henry G. Perry, grand chaplain of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and well known in Masonic circles, died here yesterday. He had been ill with arterial sclerosis, and this was aggravated by a sudden attack of the grip.

Jewelry Store Robbed.

Amesbury, Mass., Jan. 17.—The jewelry store of Harvey D. Locke was entered last night by an unknown man, and all of the repair work was taken. The thief was seen in the store, but for a time it was though he was one of the employes. Mr. Locke was, however, notified, but by the time he reached the store the man had escaped. Mr. Locke is unable to give the amount of his loss.

Ripans' Tabules.

NEW YORK, January 16th.—A statement issued by the Ripans Chemical Co., shows that the sales of Ripans' tabules during the year 1898 exceeded seventy millions and that the sales in January are at a rate exceeding five hundred thousand.

Back From Manila.

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—The Ohio has arrived with 300 men from Manila, most of them soldiers, who are either going home on a long furlough or are convalescent. The First Nebraska regiment is the most largely represented among the sick men, although there are a number from the Thirteenth regiment. The convalescents were taken to the division field hospitals. Those who are too ill to go home immediately will be detained there, the others will go to their respective homes as soon as they can be provided with suitable clothing.

Seeks Connubial Bliss.

When a man has been a helpless invalid for 12 years and suddenly announces that he is no longer ill and is now a candidate for matrimony there can be no better evidence of his perfect restoration to health. This is what that scientific wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in health but fully restored, all made over new again, they claim and experience the vigor, activity, hopes and ambitions of youth once more. This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give herewith. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last season was spent in Florida. Employed many local physicians during this time and used socalled sarsaparillas but found no permanent relief till I tried Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 25 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.

Sincerely yours,
ARTHUR B. CUNNINGHAM,

BATTLE BEGINS TODAY.

Quay and His Enemies Then Meet In Legislative Halls.

Both Factions Appear Confident of the Result.

Addicks Men Meet and Hold an Alleged Caucus In Delaware.

Harrisburg, Jan. 17.—The great battle for United States senator will open in earnest today with the taking of the first ballot in both houses. The two houses will vote separately in the afternoon and in joint session on Wednesday.

MATTHEW S. QUAY.

If the same person receives a majority of all the votes in each house he will be declared elected. If the houses in their separate action do not agree, the joint assembly will proceed to elect a senator. In the event of a deadlock or failure to elect the joint assembly will meet each succeeding day and take at least one vote until a senator is chosen.

The fight is between Senator Quay, backed by the 109 senators and members who took part in the Republican caucus. George A. Jenks of Brooksville, the candidate of the Democratic caucus, and a half dozen "favorite sons," nominated by the anti-Quay Republican legislators. With the Democrats and anti-Quayites voting for their candidates, the indications are that there will be a deadlock. It is an open question with the Republican and Democratic leaders how long this condition of affairs will continue.

Senator Quay's managers are confident that there will be only one result and that his re-election. The Republican senators and members opposed to his candidacy are just as confident that he will be beaten. The Democrats know they cannot elect their candidate and will leave the Republicans to fight it out among themselves.

State Chairman Elkin and Senator Penrose are directing the Quay campaign from headquarters at the Lochiel hotel. They said last night that there was no doubt of te speedy re-election of the senior senator. Neither side will give any figures to show how they propose to elect or defeat Mr. Quay.

The features of yesterday's skirmish were the resignation of David Martin as secretary of the commonwealth and the conference of the anti-Quay Republican senators and members. Mr. Martin was elected in November to the senate and expected to qualify after the change in the state administration. He changed his mind last evening and sent his resignation to Governor Hastings to take effect upon its acceptance. The resignation was promptly accepted and Mr. Martin will qualify today.

The senator-elect is one of the leaders in the anti-Quay movement and a rumor was current that Governor-elect Stone, who is in sympathy with the movement, would not send his cabinet appointments to the senate today, but would withhold them until the senatorial fight is over. This would keep Mr. Martin in office as secretary of the commonwealth and prevented his qualifying as senator until his successor was appointed and confirmed.

To avoid such a complication Mr. Martin resigned. There were present at the anti-Quay conference 47 of the 52 senators and members pledged not to vote for Senator Quay while he is under indictment in the Philadelphia courts. The five absentees were accounted for to the satisfaction of their associates. Senator William Flynn of Alleghany presided and made a short speech, predicting Senator Quay's defeat. He said there were no desertions from the anti-Quay ranks, except possibly one representative.

Mr. Flynn said he was authorized to state for Senator Chisholm of Huntingdon that he would vote against Senator Quay on every ballot. Mr. Chisholm signed the anti-Quay pledge after the meeting and announced that his vote would be cast for Judge John Stewart of Chambersburg. Mr. Stewart is one of the "favorite sons," who has been entered in the anti-Quay faction. He is apparently taking no part in the contest, although his friends claim he is a bona fide candidate.

Congressman John Dalzell of Pittsburg, Congressman Charles W. Stone of Warren and J. F. Downing of Erie, who have also been entered in the fight by the anti-Quay people, are on the ground looking over the situation.

Senator Quay reached Harrisburg at midnight from Washington and is staying at the residence of County Chairman Weiss. The senator expects to remain here throughout the early stages of the fight. He shares the confidence of his managers.

Ex-Senator Durham issued a statement last night, claiming that only 34 Republicans had attended the anti-Quay caucus, and that this number, even if all should vote against him, would be insufficient to prevent Mr. Quay's election. He declared his absolute certainty of Senator Quay's re-election.

Senator Flynn denied Senator Durham's statement with reference to the number present at the anti-Quay conference, and added: "Senator Quay has but 113 votes, three of which will not be cast for him at first, bringing his total down to 110."

Ex-Judge Gordon of Philadelphia said that he was confident that the Democratic legislators were a unit in opposition to Senator Quay's election, and that the same was true of the attitude of the Democrats toward the confirmation of State Chairman Elkins as attorney general and General F. Reeder as secretary of the commonwealth.

"The Democratic senators and members," the judge added, "can do the state a great service and reflect honor on their party at this session, and they will begin the good work by rejecting padded payroll conspirators and defeating Quay for the senate."

Mr. Wanamaker said: "The men who have compacted to stand unalterably against Quay's election are conscious of the privilege they have in meeting the demands of the citizezns of this commonwealth that the Quay machine be broken at this time. As the Quay forces cannot capture any of the signers, the inference is that they see their way to get what they require from the Democratic side.

"I believe this is an injustice to the Democrats. They are a fine class of men and expect to please their constituents whom they are obliged to face, rather than serve the diminishing crowd of Quay politicians. It may be set down as the solid truth that the Democrats are too wise to take the responsibility of sending Quay back to the senate. They are not particularly in love with the man who has been against them publicly and privately."

CALLED IT A CAUCUS.

Followers of J. E. Addicks Name Him as a Senatorial Candidate.

Dover, Del., Jan. 17.—The Republican members of the legislature, who number 31 of the total membership of 52, did not agree last night upon a candidate for United States senator to succeed Senator Gray. A caucus was arranged, but the only Republicans who met, however, were the union, or Addicks Republicans, and 15 of these gathered in the house of representatives. It was rumored that several regular, or anti-Addicks Republicans, who favor the election of Colonel Henry A. Dupont, would go into caucus, but they did not do so.

Factional lines were strictly drawn, and the regulars took no action whatever in the selection of a candidate The union meeting was presided over by State Senator Allee, who is the union Republican state chairman, and the members voted unanimously for J. E. Addicks. They contend that their gathering was the regular caucus of the party and that its outcome makes Addicks the regular nominee.

In this, however, the Dupont element does not concur. The Democratic members held a minority caucus, and, after several of that party had withdrawn, owing to their sentiments on the silver question, the remainder voted unanimously for George Gray.

The house will vote separately today, and the joint ballot of the assembly will begin on Wednesday. Aside from the 15 Addicks voters, it is expected that at least 11 regulars will vote for Dupont. The Gray vote will be about 16. As it has been established that a "majority of the members present" can elect a senator, the deadlock, which will undoubtedly occur may be broken before the end of the 60 days' session of the legislature.

The Funeral Train.

New York, Jan. 17.—The train bearing the remains of Congressman Dingley arrived in Jersey City a few minutes after 10 o'clock last night. The delegation from the merchants and manufacturers' board of trade of this city left the train there and went to their homes. The train was put aboard a ferry boat and taken to Mott Haven, where it proceeded over the New York, New Haven and Hartford road for Boston and Lewiston. One car was occupied by the family of Mr. Dingley and the other two cars by the committees and officers of the house and senate.

Every woman should know that there is a great home medical book that tells all about the reproductive physiology of women, and all about the home-treatment of diseases peculiar to the sex. This book contains 1008 pages and over 700 illustrations. It is called Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It used to cost $1.50. Over seven hundred thousand people purchased it at that price and over 1,200,000 people now own copies of it. For a limited time copies will be given away free.

This great book contains the names, addresses, photographs and experiences of hundreds of women who were once hopeless invalids, but who have been restored to robust womanly health by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This marvelous medicine acts directly on the delicate organs distinctly feminine. It makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It banishes the usual suffering of the expectant months, and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It robs motherhood of its perils. It insures the robust health of the little new-comer and a bountiful supply of nature's nourishment. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into healthy, happy wives and mothers. For a paper-covered copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For elegant French cloth binding, 31 stamps.

Miss Edith Cain, of Clinton, Allegheny Co., Pa., writes: "After two years of suffering, I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and am now entirely cured. I had been troubled with female weakness for some time and also with a troublesome drain on the system, but now I am happy and well."

In cases of constipation and torpid liver, no remedy is equal to Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. They never fail. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. An honest dealer will not urge a substitute upon you.

COLLEGE BOAT RACES.

Harvard and Yale Representatives Will Insist on the New London Course.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 17.—A conference of Harvard and Yale rowing authorities was held at the Hotel Vendome in Boston yesterday afternoon. President Preston and Captain Allen of the Yale navy, and Captain Higginson and Manager Mann of Harvard were the conferees. An entirely amicable understanding on the attitude of the two New England universities toward Cornell was reached, and although the transactions of the meeting have been kept carefully guarded, there is little doubt as to what the actual relations of the three parties are. Harvard and Yale both wish to row Cornell, and there is no truth in the recent reports that they intend to assume any dictatorial attitude as to the terms under which the race is to be rowed.

Both Harvard and Yale are, however, influenced by the fact that their alumni and undergraduates are practically unanimous in favor of the New London course. The recent unofficial utterances of the Yale Alumni Weekly, giving the Yale side of the case, are heartily echoed at Cambridge. Under these circumstances the Harvard and Yale authorities hardly feel justified in agreeing to row at Poughkeepsie, or under any other circumstances that would put the Harvard-Yale contest at what they consider a disadvantage, or make it less accessible to the alumni and undergraduates. At New London the race would be a more strictly college event, which can be conveniently witnessed by thousands of college men. "If Cornell can come in, so much the better," expresses the attitude which prevails at Harvard.

In a word, Harvard and Yale are united in wanting their race kept at New London and are not inclined to sacrifice it for the sake of rowing Cornell, as the latter's participation is necessarily but an incident to the time-honored contest between Harvard and Yale. It is an incident that both desire in perfect good faith—but at New London.

Rowing men are inclined to draw this conclusion from the present state of things: Harvard and Yale will row at New London beyond a doubt, whether Cornell can join them there or not. It is expected that the date and place of the race will be officially announced this week.

Palmer's New Preacher.

New Haven, Jan. 17.—Rev. Fosdick B. Harrison, assistant pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, Orange street, yesterday announced that he had accepted the call of the First Congregational church, Palmer, Mass. Rev. Mr. Harrison was called to that church two weeks ago after twice preaching in the Palmer pulpit as a candidate. His formal resignation will probably be announced next Sunday. Rev. Mr. Harrison is a graduate of Amherst college and of the Yale Theological school of the class of 1893.

Call Fireman Must Go.

Providence, Jan. 17.—The board of fire commissioners have decided to make extensive changes in the fire department, save the city $3500 a year, and place in commission in needy sections powerful apparatus for fire protection. There are at present 14 call firemen in the department. The commissioners are of opinion that the permanent force is adequate to give the city excellent protection, and at midnight on Jan. 31 the call force will cease to be a part of the department.

Telegrams Are Censured.

Cape Town, Jan. 17.—Telegrams from Johannesburg are censored; but so far as ascertainable nobody was seriously injured in the disturbance between the Burghers and Afrikanders, and the British residents there who held a public meeting to ventilate the grievances of the Uitlanders, and which resulted in a free fight. Efforts are being made to trace the instigators of the affray. Two Englishmen were arrested, but they have since been discharged from custody.

BARRELS OF SAMPLES.

Over Two Hundred Thousand Trial Bottles Sent Free by Mail.

By special arragement with the manufacturers of that justly famous Kidney medicine, Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, the readers of the Quincy Ledger are enabled to obtain a trial bottle and pamphlet of valuable medical advice absolutely free, by simply sending their full name and post office address to Dr. David Kennedy, Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., and mentioning this paper.

Of course this involves enormous expense to the manufactures, but they have received so many grateful letters from those who have been benefited and cured of the various diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation, and all weaknesses peculiar to women, that they willingly send trial bottles to all sufferers.

Upon investigation it was found that 91 per cent. of those who had used the trial bottle had received such benefit from it, that they purchased large sized bottles of their druggists.

It matters not how sick you are or how many physicians have failed to help you, send for a trial bottle of this great medicine, it costs you but a postal card, and benefit and cure will most certainly be the result.

Put some urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has a sediment or if it is pale or discolored, milky or cloudy, stringy or ropy, your Kidneys or Badder are in a bad condition. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedily cures such dangerous symptoms as pain in the back, inability to hold urine, a burning scalding pain in passing it, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night, the staining of linen by your urinea and all the unpleasant and dangerous affects on the system produced by the use of whiskey, wine or beer. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold at all drug stores at $1.00 for a large bottle; six bottles for $5.00. Jan. 14

THE PRESIDENT ACTS.

Only Course In Eagan Case Was to Order a Court Martial.

General Merritt Will Probably Be Presiding Officer.

Cabinet Officers Receive Reassuring News From the Philippine Islands.

Washington, Jan. 18.—President McKinley announced to the cabinet at its regular meeting yesterday that he had determined to court-martial General Eagan. Secretary Alger was not present at the cabinet meeting, but with Adjutant General Corbin at the White House was in conference with the president on the subject prior to the cabinet session. The order for the court-martial will probably be made today.

Ever since the sensational event the president has been carefully deliberating over the matter and has had frequent consultations with army officers and others regarding the steps that should be taken, for he was convinced from the outset that the question for consideration was what action should be taken and not whether any disciplinary measures at all should be had. A determination to take some action was vigorously expressed at the last cabinet meeting, but the president reserved final decision. Just before the cabinet session yesterday he held a conference with the secretary of war and Adjutant General Corbin. It was not of long duration, but the action to follow General Eagan's utterances was decided, and when the cabinet met the president announced that he had reached his decision in the matter. He said he had determined that there was only one course to adopt, and that was to order a court-martial to be convened at once to try General Eagan. The decision, which was reached only yesterday morning, notwithstanding reports that a court-martial had been decided on Monday, met the unanimous approval of the members of the cabinet. Three of the president's official advisers, Secretary Alger, Secretary Wilson and Postmaster General Smith, were absent, but their views are known to coincide thoroughly with the president's decision.

There was some discussion following the president's announcement, in which the case was threshed over to some extent, though the president himself took little part in this discussion. The details of the action were left to the secretary of war, who had withdrawn just prior to the session, to return to the war department to put in motion the machinery for the convening of the court. While it was not definitely stated after the cabinet meeting what specifications would be made against General Eagan, it is understood that the specific charge on which he will be tried will be conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. The personnel of the court was not taken up, that phase of the action being held to be not a cabinet matter, but one that rested between the president and the secretary of war.

MAJOR GENERAL MERRITT.

General Merritt, formerly commander-in-chief of the Philippines, has been mentioned as likely to preside over the court, and a cabinet official said he would not be surprised at General Merritt's designation.

In the absence of the announcement of the detail for the courtmartial, there was a good deal of speculation as to its composition. General practice is for a majority of the court to consist of the peers or superiors in rank of the defendant. This would make the task of selecting a court a hard one, but it is not easy to find a sufficient number of general officers, ranking with a brigadier general, to make up a desirable quota. But latitude is permitted by the appointing authority in such selections, as the ninth article of war reads:

"No officer shall, when it can be avoided, be tried by officers inferior in rank."

It will be noticed that the phrase, "if it can be avoided," leaves opportunity for the appointment of junior officers. The mention of General Merritt's name as president of the court was due to the fact that he is the only available major general of the regular army, the others being General Brooke in Cuba and General Miles here, neither regarded as available. The friends of General Merritt are hoping that he will not be selected, fearing that he will be accused of prejudice by one or perhaps both sides. The penalty for the offense for which General Eagan will be tried, conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, is one of the most severe known in the army, being dismissal. Article 61 reads as follows:

"Any officer who is convicted of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman shall be dismissed from the service."

If the court shall find General Eagan guilty even with extenuating circumstances, they must attach this sentence, and then the only hope for the officer would be in the exercise of clemency by the president, based perhaps upon the court's recommendations.

General Eagan has not yet been relieved of his duties in anticipation of his prospective trial, but it is understood that the order for his arrest preparatory to trial will of itself carry with it his relief from official duties. It was said at the war department that the order for arrest may be served on General Eagan by an officer of the army some time during the official day today. This will enable him to make formal application for the privilege of going beyond the limits in which ordinarily he would be confined.

The session of the cabinet occupied about an hour and a half. Advices were received from Manila that the situation on the islands is very quiet. The dispatch was to the war department and proved the most gratifying official news from that quarter received since the state of affairs in the archipelago recently assumed a serious phase. It announced that the people who had moved out of the city of Manila, owing to alarming but unfounded reports, were quietly returning to their homes.

At Iloilo affairs are progressing satisfactorily, and a gratifying fact recited in the cablegram was that the officers aboard our ships and the individual insurgents were fraternizing freely on shore, and that there was no sign of trouble.

President McKinley announced during the session that he had finally passed on the personnel of the commission to visit and report on the Philippine islands, as follows: Messrs. Schurman, Dewey, Otis, Denby and Worcester. Their selection already had become known, and official announcement shortly will follow.

The remainder of the cabinet session was taken up with matters of administrative detail.

In Congress.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The house yesterday passed the naval personnel bill without division of the final passage, thus accomplishing what the officers of the navy have striven for during more than a decade.

By its provisions the line and the engineer corps are welded into an amalgamated line, staff officers are given positive rank, but their command is limited to their own corps, and a system of voluntary and compulsory retirement on three-quarters pay as of the next higher rank of 40 officers a year is established, which is designed to remove the congestion in the lower rank. The bill also practically equalizes their pay with that of army officers. Three important amendments were adopted. One creates a judge advocate's corps, another abolishes prize money, and a third provides for the retirement on three-quarters pay of enlisted men and petty officers in the navy after 30 years' service.

But the most important change in the bill as reported was the adoption, after a hard fight, of a substitute for the organization of the marine corps, by which the corps is to consist of 6000 enlisted men and petty officers, with general officers and staff. This will increase the marine corps by 1300 men, and increase the cost of its maintenance by $1,500,000. Several unimportant bills were passed by unanimous consent before the personnel bill was taken up.

Almost the entire session of the senate was devoted to consideration of the pending Nicaragua canal bill. Speeches were made in support of the measure by Mr. Chilton of Texas and Mr. Turner of Washington, and in opposition to it by Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin.

Closing Up.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The joint American and Canadian commission was in session yesterday, and after the commission proper adjourned the sub-committees on the Alaskan boundary and on bonding privileges went into session. There are still some minor differences to be settled on these as on other subjects, but the members of the commission express the opinion that they will be able to conclude their labors within the next two weeks. They are very close together on all questions at issue, and the opinion is now freely expressed that a treaty covering the numerous questions which have so long been a source of vexation on both sides of the boundary line will be the result of the negotiation.

Probably Lost.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Treasury officials express the opinion that the naphtha launch Paul Jones, now being searched for in Mississippi waters, is at the bottom of the gulf or river, with all on board, though a diligent search is being made by the government authorities for a trace of the party.

Street Were Hushed In Sadness as the Funeral Procession Passed.

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 18.—The special funeral train bearing the remains of Congressman Dingley arrived at 1:10 p. m. When the train whistled on the bridge between Auburn and Lewiston the signal was given over the fire alarm and all the bells of the city began to toll, and continued until the remains were deposited upon the catafalque at city hall. There was a great concourse of people at the station. On the arrival of the train the remains were taken in charge by the local general committee. Carriages were in waiting, and the family was taken at once to Mr. Dingley's home on Pine street, and the members of the congressional committee to the Elm House and Maine hotel in Auburn.

In the hushed and darkened council chamber of his native city's municipal building the mortal remains of Nelson Dingley lay in state for five hours yesterday afternoon. Hundreds passed through the draped chamber to gaze for one moment upon the features of the man they called their friend.

While his death had been anticipated for some days, the blow was a grievous one, and from the time that the funeral train drew up to the station but little was thought of in this city, except the virtues of the departed statesman.

Leaving Washington shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, immediately following the conclusion of the exercises in the house, the funeral train, consisting of four Pullman coaches, was nearly an hour late into Boston, but a representative of the governor of Massachusetts was waiting to convey the sympathy of the commonwealth to Mrs. Dingley and leave a magnificent bank of flowers as the offering of the old Bay state.

The run over the Boston and Maine railroad was rapid and uneventful, with a brief stop at Portsmouth and another longer one at Portland. Here the train was met by a committee from the Lewiston board of trade, who extended sympathy of the city to the family, while the representatives from the Portland city government were also at the station. The funeral car was draped in black, and at noon the train started upon its final run to this city.

It was a touching sight as the four cars sped along over the snow-clad country, to see the silent throngs at the railroad stations, gazing with saddened faces and bared heads at the flying train and knowing its burden of grief, and these little crowds became more and more in evidence as the train neared its destination.

At length the city of mourning was reached, with its densely crowded station platform, its half-masted flags and its tolling bells. The work of transferring the casket to the hearse was soon accomplished, the family passed through the silent crowd to their carriages, the congressmen with their white sashes took their places beside the remains and the procession started for the city hall. On either hand the sidewalks were lined with sorrowful people.

The first carriage bore the widow, with her son, Edward N. Dingley, his wife and their two children. In the second was Miss Edith Dingley, her brother Arthur, Colonel Hooe and Frank L. Dingley, a brother of the governor. The rest of the family occupied the other carriages, followed by the balance of the congressional party.

City hall with its draped front was soon reached, and here the hearse was stopped while the family kept on to the house, a short distance up Pine street. The coffin was carried up into the council chamber and placed on a catafalque, while members of the local G. A. R. post and personal friends of Mr. Dingley mounted as guard around the hall.

The hall was darkened, but a subdued glow from a cluster of electric lights shone on the features of the dead congressman, giving them a wonderful life-like appearance, while men and women streamed through the hall for five hours.

At 7 o'clock the doors were closed, only to be opened shortly after, as the casket was brought forth and carried up the street to the home, where it found a resting place amid the scenes and among those he loved so well.

Last night the city was hushed in sadness. Today it is reverently uniting in a last sad farewell to one of Maine's noblest sons.

The funeral services today were held in the Pine Street Congregational church at 10 o'clock. Rev. G. M. Howe conducted the exercises and pronounced an eulogy on the deceased statesman. Governor Powers was present with his staff and council, as well as a large delegation from the state legislature, and the entire city government was in attendance.

A number of the schools are closed, and business throughout the city is generally suspended. The services occupied an hour, after which the remains were escorted to the receiving tomb at the cemetery at Auburn, the interment to take place at a later date.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

Quincy Variety Store—Parlor Stoves.

Good Afternoon.

It seems to a large number of our citizens as though the time was near at hand when the police force of this city of 25,000 population should be administered by a professional chief of police. By that we mean an official who has made the handling of a police force and criminal investigation a life study.

We wish it understood that in making this suggestion we do not reflect in the least upon the present or past chiefs of police or any of the patrolmen of this municipality. For men who were not brought up from youth in the detection of crime and the administration of police affairs they have done noble work.

It is conceded upon all sides that our police system is not perfect and that it is not progressive. This is largely owing to the fact that there is no continuity in its administration. The continual changing of the head of the department leads to a state of affairs which does not give ample security to our citizens. It is largely owing to the infusion of politics into our municipal affairs, especially into the fire and police departments, that this evil exists.

We have murders in our midst. Who is there in this city competent to intelligently direct an investigation leading to the detection of the perpetrators of the crimes? There is not a professional police official versed in criminal investigation in this city to whom we can look to sift the conflicting clues which are presented and run the right one down to earth.

There are no more intelligent police officers in the state than we have on our force, but their duties are more of a military character—patrolling—than the detection of expert criminals. To do this work we should be able to command the services of a professional criminal investigator and make him the permanent chief of police with a tenure of office which would depend upon his behavior and not upon his politics.

WAS IT LEGAL?

Question Over the Republican Organization.

Wollaston Members Wrongly Notified.

Some Calls Read for 7.45, Others for 8.45

There is a feeling at Wollaston that the ward is getting a slap on this cheek and another on that. On Inauguration day, President Pinkham of the City Council of 1898, whom all admit to have given good satisfaction, was turned down by his own party, and a Ward Two man elected. Again on Friday, Jan. 13, Richard R. Freeman, the efficient president of the Republican City Committee was defeated for a reelection by a Ward One man, and this week the deposed president of the City Council, who in 1898 gave the present President the best chairmanship, is set aside for one whose Republicanism is questioned.

Some Wollastonians take it philosophically and are not surprised. They say it was to have been expected, when so many Ward Five Republicans bolted their ticket at the recent municipal election. At the same time they discount the work of Councilman Bryant, and think he is getting altogether too much credit for the Republican overthrow, and cannot see why he should become the Republican leader.

Some, however, are not taking the overthrow so kindly, and are hinting crooked work. At least one of the calls sent to a Wollaston member of the Ward and City Committee stated the hour of meeting for organization as 8.45, while others sent to other wards said 7.45. It was at the earlier hour that the committee met and organized. Comment has been made that the meeting was not well attended by Ward Five and Ward Six members, and the hour may have accounted for it.

Each ward of the city has a ward committee of seven and the report upon roll call at the organization shows the attendance as follows:

	Present.	Absent.
Ward One,	7	0
Ward Two,	4	3
Ward Three,	7	0
Ward Four,	6	1
Ward Five,	2	5
Ward Six,	3	4
Total,	29	13

Upon ballot two did not vote as will be seen:

Whole number votes	27
Necessary for choice	14
A. G. Dolliver had	15
R. R. Freeman had	10
R. H. Wilde had	1
John P. Bigelow had	1

Further inquiry shows that the call of a Ward Two man read 8.45.

Comment was made at the time of the large number of absentees, about one-third being absent. All the business was transacted in less than an hour, so that adjournment was reached about 8.45. If it is a fact that a considerable number or even a few of the calls read "8.45," and that members were thereby prevented from attendance, it may invalidate the organization of the Republicans for 1899.

AT A BLIND TIGER.

Maj. Morrison and Guards Have an Experience.

The Greenville News of Sunday prints the following of interest to friends of Co. K:

Major Morrison in charge of the 5th Massachusetts provosts, and a detail of his guards had an exciting experience while raiding in rear of a barber shop in North Main street yesterday. When the raiding party entered a rear room, which the barbers say is not connected with their establishment, they found a colored man named "Tom" selling liquor by the drink to a number of soldiers and when the soldiers were searched two quart bottles of mean rye liquor put up in dispensary bottles were found in their pockets. Five soldiers were placed under arrest with Tom as the sixth prisoner. On clearing the front door Tom made a break for liberty. Major Morrison, who was bringing up the rear, rushed through the crowd of prisoners and out of the front door in pursuit. The Negro turned into the restaurant of Asbury Turner, next door north, with the major in hot pursuit. The fugitive got out of the back door with a running jump with the major at his heels, and as the Negro jumped the back fence the pursuer fired a blank from his revolver. Tom exclaimed "Good God," but that was the last seen or heard of him and the remainder of his name is still a mystery. A dozen or more negroes saw Tom's flight, but they all swear they do not know his surname. The liquor was confiscated and the quintet of soldiers placed under arrest. Next the place was reraided by Police Officer Dawson and Chief Dispensary Constable Lafar but after a thorough search in the rear room, up stairs, in the back yard, under the house, through the fodder in a barn in the back yard, among bed clothes, in a trunk, up the chimneys, they failed to find any liquor. There were a number of bottles in the rear room. These were sniffed and some of them did not smell nice. The search was most thorough not even the almost red-hot stove pipe escaping investigation.

THE SEWER REPORT.

Cost to Date $294,891.16, and Sixteen Miles Ready.

The essence of the report of the Sewerage Commissioners, submitted to the City Council, is given below:

The pumping station has been finished and the grounds and approach graded. The plant consists of two horizontal, compound, condensing, duplex, pumping engines, with a capacity of three million and five million gallons for twenty-four hours. Two horizontal tubular boilers of 80 horse power each. In the duty trial both pumps exceeded the contract requirements.

The force main to the out-fall sewer is completed and the connecting chamber ready for use.

The main sewers between the pumping station and Elm street and between the pumping station and Woodbine street have been completed.

Two gangs of Quincy citizen labor of about 30 men each have been kept at work throughout the season on lateral sewers and have built 3.87 miles.

In Ward Five there has been built 2764 feet of 20 inch sewer, and 3.73 miles of lateral sewer. There now remains on this contract, 3,780 feet.

In Wards 1, 2 and 3, 1,080 feet of eighteen inch, and 1,168 feet of fifteen inch, and 4.44 miles of lateral sewer have been laid.

There is now ready for operation: the pumping station, outfall sewer and 11.2 miles of sewer. In Ward 5 there are about 4.58 miles of sewer built but not ready for operation. There are under contract in this ward 3,780 feet of sewer which should be completed early in May. This will give a total of 16.5 miles of sewer ready for operation, covering a considerable portion of the Centre, South Quincy and Wollaston.

The cost of sewer to date:

Preliminary work,	$5,000 00
Force main,	49,613 99
Connecting chamber at Squantum,	1,955 00
Pumping station, machinery, etc.,	37,663 89
Main sewer, brick and 24 inch pipe,	95,606 93
Main sewer, 15 and 20 inch pipe, lateral,	99,446 98
Stock on hand,	2,519 37
Store house and tools on hand,	1,625 00
Legal expenses,	1,460 00
Total to date,	$294,891 16
Total appropriations to date,	$325,000 00
Unexpended balance,	$30,108 84

The unfinished contracts and record plans now being made will require most of this balance. The system should be put into operation early in present year and we recommend an appropriation of $4,000 for maintenance during the current year.

They also recommend that during the coming year the system be extended as far as practicable in those parts of the city not yet sewered, and request an appropriation of $75,000 for this purpose.

They are ready to proceed with the work of making assessments on estates benefited by the system as soon as certain questions which have been referred to the Mayor and the City Council have been passed upon by the proper authority.

A Remedy for the Grip.

A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the grip is Kemp's Balsam, which is especially adapted to diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease, but get a bottle today and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If neglected the grip has a tendency to bring on pneumonia. The Balsam prevents this by keeping the cough loose. All druggists sell the Balsam.

The funeral of Mr. John Augustus Turner took place at Houghs Neck Tuesday, Rev. Edgar W. Preble officiating, and a large number being present. Mr. Turner, we believe, was a native of Hanover, and served in the Civil war, and belonged to the Brockton Post, G. A. R. He was only 50 years old and must have entered the army when barely 16 years of age. He leaves a wife but no children.

The familiar figure of our old townsman and honored citizen, Charles Francis Adams, was seen in Quincy yesterday afternoon. He says "he is no longer young," but if years bring added dignity, his grave expression and slower walk have only added to his mental maturity. To new Quincy he is a stranger; to the few of the older citizens past a half century of life, he is one of the Adams boys who can never be separated from us.

CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

"Anti" Line of Battle.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Democratic opponents of the peace treaty were in conference several hours yesterday, devising ways and means for conducting their contest. They resolved to insist upon an amendment placing the Philippines on the same footing in their relation to the United States as Cuba, and to make a persistent fight if this concession was not granted.

Double Tragedy at Gotham.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Many Examples of Conspicuous Excellence in State.

The 62d report of the State Board of Education was presented to the Legislature today and contains much of general interest. In a future issue the Ledger will review the report, but today gives only the recommendations:

The report of the Board, prepared by its senior member, Elmer H. Capen, D. D., President of Tufts College, contains the following recommendations, two or three of them personal to the writer of the report, but the majority having the sanction of the Board:—

1. That the summer normal school at Hyannis, so successful last year, be continued.

2. That the secretary of the Board should have increased help.

3. That the policy of employing agents for the Board, particularly for special kinds of work, should be strengthened.

4. That the scope of the summer institutes for teachers should be enlarged.

5. That the expediency of making additional provision for the examination and certification of teachers merits earnest consideration.

6. That provision should be made for an adequate representation of Massachusetts' educational system at the Paris Exposition.

7. That the property of the State should make reasonable contribution to the equalization of school privileges.

BY THE SECRETARY.

There are certain recommendations that may be regarded as standing or permanent ones. One or two of them go back to the times of Horace Mann. The secretary considers it his duty to keep them steadily before the public, to spare no pains in making known their relaion to the welfare of the schools, and to do what he is able towards informing and strengthening that public opinion which he is confident will ultimately adopt them. Prominent among these recommendations are the following:—

1. A more even and vigorous enforcement of the school attendance laws through the agency of State attendance officers.

2. Universal and compulsory supervision of schools by superintendents.

3. The requirement of some minimum of professional preparation for all new teachers who may be appointed after a fixed date.

4. Sufficient State cooperation with local authorities to insure as good schooling for children in its more sparsely settled, less able and more heavily burdened communities as for children in its more favored portions.

The secretary's confidence in these recommendations is strengthened by the fact that they command general approval by those who have made problems of school administration a special and disinterested study. The State has already advanced a certain way along the line of each one of these four recommendations. How long it may be wise to let a defeated measure rest before it is pressed to the front again depends, of course on that public opinion on whose frown or favor the fate of the measure rests.

The secretary recommends appropriations for the following purposes, the sum needed in each case being a modest one:—

1. The extension of the summer institutes held at Laurel Park, Northampton, and at Salem, from one week to two weeks.

2. The holding of a State exhibit of drawing in the public schools.

3. The furnishing of census forms and suitable State registers to the towns and cities, in accordance with chapter 496, Acts of 1898.

4. The care of the educational museum.

THE OUTLOOK.

The public schools, in the main, are in good condition. This condition is subject to exceptions that are inevitable in so vast a system, administered, as it is, three hundred and fifty-three distinct sections, by three hundred and fifty-three school boards, that, however competent and progressive, must nevertheless defer to an endless variety of conditions in their respective constituencies. If, however, there are exceptions on the side of mediocrity or worse, they are far outnumbered by exceptions on the side of conspicuous excellence. It is certain that school buildings are gaining in fitness for their purpose and in beauty as well, that teachers are preparing themselves better for their work, that superintendents are making themselves felt for good, that courses of study are becoming more sensible and attractive, that the normal schools were never in a better position to inspire the schools by demanding good teaching from them and sending out good teachers to them, and that the public interest in educational themes was never keener. School problems were never more numerous, indeed, and never more earnestly debated; but the stir of discussion means far more for the good of the schools than the conceit of satisfaction or the stagnation of indifference. Such discussion would hardly be possible, were it not for the universal conviction that the public schools are not only an inestimable blessing to the children of the people, but the State's supreme reliance for the enlargement and strengthening of its civil foundations.

CO. K LETTER.

Report of the Dance of Officers of Fifth Massachusetts.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.,
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 15.

The boys of K company are having a remarkable time, as provost guard. This duty is something new and a novelty to the most of the company.

We are pleased to note that Corporal Foster, an inmate of the 2d division hospital, was yesterday returned to his regiment.

The company being on provost duty, the corporal is quartered with M company. The corporal has grown a heavy beard since his sickness which is quite becoming.

Corporal Johnson, who is not with his company, is also quartered with M company. The corporal is inspector of tents, and therefore his services are needed in the regiment.

Corporal Mahoney, who was on a furlough, has returned, and is stationed about a half mile from camp. His squad of provosts consists of Privates Rogers, Rowell and Morcales. This squad is stationed alone, therefore the members have a more "explicit" time to themselves, more so than the average provost guard.

K company is stationed on the main street leading into city square; their quarters are in a brick building. 1st Sergeant Colbert has all the duties that he possibly can attend to.

But for a few men under the weather company is in a healthful condition.

This being Sunday and a fine warm day with the glass reading 64 above, those with no special duty, enjoy themselves by visiting the surrounding country.

We do not wish for any more weather such as we have lived through this week. Every indication points to our mustering out about April 1. We may abandon this camp on account of sanitary reasons, but we do not expect to ever see Cuba. The boys are not anyways anxious to visit the said country. But would like to return home. Volunteer.

A DELIGHTFUL DANCE.

"It is difficult to point out any prominent features that combined to make the military ball given in Washington street hall, Friday night by the officers of the 5th Massachusetts regiment such a delightful affair," says the Greenville News, "The decorations were not elaborate and the temperature and general condition of the weather were all that could not be desired, but the hall was made beautiful with cedar, pine, bunting and national flags of various sizes arranged with exquisite taste and the scene under the canopy of bunting during the figures was one of rare beauty and brilliancy. The verdict of the participants, was unanimously declared in their comments among themselves, was that no ball that has been given in this hall has been more thoroughly enjoyed than Friday night's. Possibly the proportion of gentlemen to ladies was one feature that made the affair so thoroughly enjoyable. There were a larger number of ladies present than at any previous military ball here, though the total number of guests was comparatively limited. The music furnished by the 5th Massachusetts regiment band was charming and added greatly to the pleasure of the dances; a number of attractive new schottisches were introduced. Captain Clare was master of ceremonies and the old fashioned quadrille he engineered about the middle of the evening was greatly enjoyed. Lemonade was served between the dances and at midnight refreshments were served from a table at the North end of the hall.

"The committee in charge of affairs consisted of Major Morrison, 1st battalion; Captain Clare, Company M; Captain Hanson, Company G; Lieutenant Bray, Company A; and Lieutenant Perkins, Company L. Colonels Whitney, Gillmore and Cole and Mayor Williams were present."

TODAY'S COURT.

Jennie A. Crowley was arraigned for being a neglected child at Weymouth. Case continued until Thursday.

The case of William E. Daley for the larceny of wood from John Fallon, which has been before the court for two years, was called and he was discharged.

—The East Weymouth polo team won at Taunton Tuesday evening 9 to 7.

An Important Secret.

The secret is how Brazilian Balm can get to the seat of Catarrh, between the folds and in the deep, tortuous passages of the head, kill the microbes heal the running sores or ulcers and make a radical cure of this putrid and stubborn disease. You see the edges of the folds or curtains that hang from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and in health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the oder to the brain. When a cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swooleu and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can fasten itself. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrain. If you have a cold in the head the use of Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from getting a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes running sored or ulcers in the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They rapidly multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passages clear up in behind the eyes. All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of pus into the throat, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressing Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the Balm as the Catarrh dissapears. Also the effects of Grippe forever serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permanently cured by this wonderful balsam, Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

TRIUMPH OF CARLISM.

Feeling That It Is the Only Chance For the Regeneration of Spain.

Politicians Openly Talk of Suggesting a Compromise.

Dallying Policy of the Government Makes Things Smooth For the Pretender.

London, Jan. 18.—The Times prints this morning from a correspondent in Spain a column article on the chances of the pretender, Don Carlos. Among other things the correspondent says:

The Conservatives are disunited to a greater degree than the Liberals; and among the latter it has been openly asserted that unless the present difficulties are solved by the end of the month they will themselves take the lead in persuading the people to call Don Carlos to the throne.

It is surprising to what an extent the feeling that the triumph of Carlism is the only chance for the regeneration of Spain has spread throughout the country during the last few months. Go where you will that is the question chiefly discussed. Only the clergy hold aloof, professing attachment to the regency in obedience to the pope's instructions.

DON CARLOS.

The government's attitude toward the movement is curious and perplexing. While many of the leading Carlists have left Spain in order to avoid arrest, others, no less prominent, are permitted to address public meetings in large towns and to pursue their propaganda in the press unmolested. In some places Carlist clubs are closed, while in others, like Barcelona, they are allowed to flourish openly.

Carlist books and pamphlets are widely sold, and in political circles there is open talk of suggesting a compromise—Don Carlos to mount the throne on the understanding of a speedy abdication in favor of his son, Don Jaime, who would marry the Infanta Maria. It is certain, however, that Don Carlos would reject such an offer.

Meanwhile the government is playing into the hands of the Carlists in the most bewildering manner by its policy of dallying, while the repatriated Spanish troops are perambulating the streets in a pitiful condition, relating their hardships and telling stories of how they were left without food or ammunition, while their generals in Cuba were haggling with the American agents as to the price for which a nominal victory was to be purchased by the latter.

Many officers don't hesitate to declare in favor of Don Carlos; but the army waits for a leader. Nobody understands General Weyler's intentions and the generals hesitate to make a pronunciamento. The opinion of the Carlists and of many non-Carlists is that, if Don Carlos should land in Spain, the army would go over to him in overwhelming numbers and he would probably have a "walk-over" after the first skirmish or two.

Wanted to Resign.

Madrid, Jan. 18.—At the cabinet council yesterday Senor Puigcerver, minister of finance, expressed a desire to resign his portfolio; but he ultimately yielded to the persuasions of Premier Sagasta, who represented the necessity of the ministry appearing intact before the cortes. No date has yet been fixed for the meeting of the cortes, but it will probably come together two days after the ratification of the treaty by the United States senate.

Spain's Complaint.

Madrid, Jan. 18.—A semi-official note just issued says the government here has not yet received replies to telegrams sent to General Rios, the Spanish commander at Manila. The note adds: "Such rigorous censorship of official dispatches as exercised by the Americans is unprecedented."

Schmidt Owns Up.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—Herr Schmidt, a Socialist member of the reichstag, has voluntarily informed the public prosecutor at Madgeburg that he was solely responsible for the publication in The Socialist Volks Stimme of the article purporting to be a conversation between the Prince of Bagdad and his tutor, on account of which the editor, Herr August Mueller, was sentenced to 49 months' imprisonment on the charge of lese majeste. The whole case must now be reopened. The Madgeburg court interpreted the allegory, of which Herr Schmidt confesses the authorship, as an insult to the second son of Emperor William, Prince Eitel.

France Is For Peace.

London, Jan. 18.—The French ambassador to Great Britain, Paul Cambon, replying to an address of the International Arbitration association at the embassy here, said no feeling of hostility towards the British existed in France. Speaking from experience, he could say that no European nation desired war. On the contrary, there was an earnest wish for peace, and France cordially supported the czar's aims, but the ambassador feared that their practical realization will be a long time coming.

STILL THE CHAMPION.

Dixon Easily Disposes of Latest Aspirant For Championship Honors.

New York, Jan. 18.—George Dixon proved his cleverness and hard hitting ability last night at the Lenox Athletic club, where he met and defeated Young Pluto of Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in the 10th round of what was to have been a 20-round bout.

The knockout came in the shape of a left swing in the stomach, which crushed the wind out of the latest arrival among the short-haired fraternity in this country. Pluto was heralded as a world beater by his friends, but although he is very clever in defensive work and undoubtedly game he was never dangerous. Dixon soon battered down the African's guard and early in the fight demonstrated that he was Pluto's master. As the rounds rapidly succeeded each other Pluto's strength was fast ebbing, while Dixon showed no signs of distress, but on the contrary seemed to gain renewed energy and forced his opponent all over the ring. He rained lefts and rights on head and body, only receiving an occasional blow in return. In the ninth round he should have knocked Pluto out, as the opportunity presented itself for a right swing on the jaw. Dixon did not try to take advantage of this choice, as he plainly saw that Pluto could not go much further. Many a new boxer has been pitted against Dixon, but he is still the champion, and although he cannot hit as hard as formerly, his wonderful cleverness still stands with him.

Dr. McGillcuddy Dead.

New York, Jan. 18.—Dr. Timothy J. McGillicuddy died at his home here yesterday from pneumonia. He was ill just one week. Dr. McGillicuddy was a plaintiff in a suit brought in the supreme court to recover $24,700 from the estate of Mrs. Jane A. Dwyer, formerly the Duchess Castelluccia, for professional services rendered Mrs. Dwyer. On Jan. 11 Judge McAdams decided that physicians could not testify as to what took place in a sick room where they were engaged professionally, and the suit was dismissed. Dr. McGillicuddy was born in 1856 at Lewiston, Me., where his aged parents still reside. He was a prolific writer, being the author of several works on tuberculosis and nervous diseases of women. He was unmarried.

Big Bill Left Behind.

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—The Press says: A warrant has been issued at the instance of Miss M. H. Rand for the arrest of William Rhodes on a charge of larceny as bailee of $57,000, loaned by Miss Rand to him. Captain of Detectives Miller said last night that Rhodes had left the city. Many others of Mr. Rhodes creditors, whose claims aggregate nearly $1,000,000, it is alleged, are also anxious to see him. Rhodes, who is a brother-in-law of ex-Governor Pattison, was, until about a year ago, generally reputed to have amassed a large fortune as a building speculator. Among Rhodes' creditors perhaps the heaviest loser is Henry R. Shoch, who admits that his confidence in the builder has cost him more than $100,000.

Y. M. C. A. Banquet.

Boston, Jan. 18.—The sixth annual banquet of the state executive committee of Young Men's Christian associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island was held last night, with upwards of 300 persons present. The first speaker was Mr. Pratt of New York, who discussed the work in general along the lines of the Y. M. C. A. and similar organizations. He held that the work is being weighed in the balance of public opinion. The standard, he said, is that of personal honor. Major Darling told of the work of the army Christian commission as it came under his observation in the campaign in Porto Rico.

Sensational Shooting Affair.

Cleveland, Jan. 18.—At the Ellington, a fashionable apartment house, a stylishly dressed and handsome young woman, said to be Miss Edna Raymond, entered the rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hanna, during the absence of the husband, and opened fire on Mrs. Hanna with a revolver. Four shots were fired in rapid succession, one of which struck Mrs. Hanna in the thigh. Miss Raymond escaped. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna were married at Christmas. Up to a short time previous Hanna had kept company, it is said, with Miss Raymond. Jealously undoubtedly led to the shooting.

Missing Banker Returns.

New Haven, Jan. 18.—Gennara Agnone, the Italian banker who disappeared some time ago, and over whose absence scores of local Italians have grieved, returned to New Haven yesterday, and spent most of the day visiting his creditors and making settlements of the claims against him. Agnone asserts that his absence from the city was made necessary by business matters.

Gets Two Millions.

New York, Jan. 18.—Mrs. John J. Chickering, wife of Professor Chickering, the borough superintendent of schools for Queens, has fallen heir to $2,000,000, left her by her father, William B. Russell of Boston, who died on Jan. 10. Professor Chickering will resign his position and accompany his wife, who is in ill-health, on a tour around the world.

UNITED STATES SENATORS.

Many States Choose Men to Represent Them at National Capital.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 18.—The Maine legislature began the work of its third week yesterday. The feature of the session was the election of Eugene Hale to his fourth term in the United States senate. Many Republicans were not present, and quite a large number refrained from voting as an expression of their disapproval of Mr. Hale's course on expansion and in regard to the peace treaty. Several explained that they voted for Mr. Hale only because he was the party nominee. The threatened resolution, binding his future course, did not appear.

Boston, Jan. 18.—United States Senator Henry C. Lodge was re-elected to serve for another term of six years, beginning March 4 next, by the state legislature yesterday. Thirty-one senators voted for Alexander B. Bruce. In the house Winfield P. Porter of Newburyport had the votes of the two socialist members. Mr. Bruce received 65 votes and Mr. Lodge 159. Only 114 were necessary for a choice. The election offered little of interest to spectators.

Hartford, Jan. 18.—The two branches of the Connecticut general assembly took viva voce votes for a United States senator to succeed General Joseph R. Hawley. General Hawley was elected in both branches. The votes stood: House—Joseph R. Hawley, 159; Daniel N. Morgan, 55. Senate—Hawley, 19; Morgan, 2. Daniel N. Morgan, the minority candidate, was formerly United States treasurer, and in the November election was the Democratic candidate for governor.

Indianapolis, Jan. 18. — Albert J. Beveridge was elected United States senator by the general assembly. The name of David Turpie was presented by the Democrats. The Republican candidate received all the Republican votes in the body. The two houses voted separately.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 18.—The formal vote upon election of United States senator was taken yesterday. Senator Julius C. Burrows received 85 votes. Daniel J. Campau was given the complimentary vote of the eight Democratic representatives.

Albany, Jan. 18.—Chauncey M. Depew was the choice of the assembly for United States senator, receiving 84 votes. The minority vote was solidly given for Edward Murphy, Jr., the present incumbent, who received 60 votes.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—The legislature balloted in separate session yesterday for United States senator. The fusionists voted for ex-Congressman Towne. Senator Davis, in joint session today, was declared elected.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 18.—Francis Marion Cockrell was yesterday re-elected to his fifth term in the United States senate by the legislature, the two houses voting separately.

Harrisburg, Jan. 18.—It is Senator Quay against the field in the fight for United States senator, and the indications are that there will be a deadlock lasting some days at least. The Republicans are divided between Quay and eight "favorite sons," and the Democrats are united on George A. Jenks. The senate and house voted separately yesterday, and will take a ballot today in joint session. There was no election yesterday, and, should the ballot show no election today, the balloting will continue daily until a selection is made.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 18.—Senator George introduced a permissive bill providing for holding caucuses for nomination of municipal officers and members of the general court where nominations shall be made by direct vote in the caucus, thus doing away with conventions for the nomination of such officers and representatives.

Mr. Howland presented a petition for legislation to authorize the building of the Cape Cod canal by convict labor.

Mr. Fitts offered the following resolve in the house:

"Whereas, We have the utmost confidence in the president and his advisers, and believe fully in the purity of their motives and desire for the right solution of the matter of the Philippine islands, and

"Whereas, We have the same confidence in the integrity and desire for the right on the part of Senator Hoar and his supporters, and

"Whereas, Many of us have formed no decided opinion and those who have are of many minds,

"Resolved, It would seem to be good judgment on the part of the general court to attend to the business of the state of Massachusetts, allowing congress the same privilege as to that of the nation untrammelled by our immature and diverse opinions."

Ordered to Guam.

Boston, Jan. 18.—Captain Richard P. Leary, attached to the Charlestown navy yard, yesterday received official orders of his assignment as naval governor of Guam. The orders of Captain Kempff, U. S. N., for that duty have been revoked. Captain Leary is the third officer from Charlestown who is under orders to go to that place, Lieutenant Colonel Pope, with First Lieutenant Long, U. S. M. C., as assistant, being the others.

McCoole Sentenced.

Boston, Jan. 18.—John B. McCoole was sentenced to state prison for a term of from four to eight years by Judge Bond yesterday for manslaughter. On Dec. 17 McCoole stabbed Joseph O'Neil, and two days later the victim died at the hospital. McCoole is 56 years of age and a veteran of the Civil war. The man he killed was his most intimate friend, and at O'Neil's deathbed neither could explain the reasons for the act.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

3 O'CLOCK.

THE TRIAL OF EAGAN

Placed In Hands of Thirteen Officers of the Army.

Ordered to Convene on 25th of This Month.

Defendant Must Relinquish Duties of His Office at Once.

Will Be Given Wide Latitude and Placed Under Arrest Only Technically.

Washington, Jan. 19.—At 8 o'clock last evening Adjutant General Corbin made public the formal order for the appointment of a court-martial for the trial of Brigadier General Eagan.

The detail for the court had been approved by the president earlier in the day, but it was held back until last evening for the return from New York of General Corbin, as his signature was necessary before the order could be officially promulgated. The order in full reads as follows:

"The following order is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

"By direction of the president, a general court-martial is appointed to meet in this city at 10 o'clock a. m. on Wednesday, the 25th day of January, 1899, or as soon thereafter as practicable, for the trial of Brigadier General Charles P. Eagan, commissiary general of subsistence, United States army, and such other persons as may be brought before it.

"Detail for the court: Major General Wesley Merritt, U. S. A.; Major General James F. Wade, United States volunteers; Major General Matthew C. Butler, United States volunteers; Major General Samuel B. M. Young, United States volunteers; Brigadier General Royal T. Frank, United States volunteers; Brigadier General Alexander C. McW. Pennington, United States volunteers; Brigadier General George M. Randell, United States volunteers; Brigadier General Jacob Kline, United States volunteers; Brigadier General Richard Comba, United States volunteers; Colonel Peter C. Haynes, corps of engineers; Colonel George L. Gillespie, corps of engineers; Colonel Charles R. Suter, corps of engineers; Colonel Francis L. Guenther, Fourth artillery. Lieutenant Colonel George B. Davis, deputy judge advocate general, judge advocate of the court.

"The court is empowered to proceed with the business before it with any number of members not less than the minimum prescribed by law. Upon the final adjournment of the court, the members will return to their proper stations.

"The journeys required by the members of the court in complying with this order are necessary for the public service."

The order for the appointment of the court-martial will be delivered to General Eagan, it is expected, by an employe or officer of the adjutant general's office. Its receipt and acknowledgment by the commissary general will be tantamount to the relief of that officer from his present duties and will turn over its affairs either to some one designated to act by the secretary of war or to the officer next in charge in the department. Lieutenant Colonel George B. Davis of the commissary department is now on duty with General Eagan, and it may be that he will be detailed to take charge of the office.

If the course indicated by an officer of the adjutant general's office is followed the probability is that General Eagan will not be placed under actual arrest and deprived of any of his liberties pending and during the trial, but will be subject only to constructive and technical arrest during that time. In the case of officers of high rank this is occasionally, but not often, done, and this course does not in any way invalidate the trial or findings of the court. General Eagan will be expected to remain away from his office and make himself inconspicuous until his appearance before the court to answer the charges, when he will be placed under constructive arrest, to remain so during its proceedings. This is believed to be sufficiently carrying out the intent of the law for all practical purposes and may be allowed in the case of an officer of the general rank who has borne a good reputation. Were the defendant a younger officer of an obstreperous character and in the field with his regiment, the usual course of placing him under arrest and depriving him of his sword would no doubt be followed. While the above is believed to be a general outline of Secretary Alger's idea of what should be done, yet no positive statement to that effect has been made.

Adjutant General Corbin refused to make any statement regarding the form of the charges and specifications to be brought against General Eagan, or to say when they would be published. In view of the early meeting of the court this must be done very soon, and indeed it is likely that the judge advocate general of the army has already given some attention to this feature of the proceedings.

General Eagan, after the issue of the formal order for the court, declined to make any statement in connection with his case, but said he had not received formal notice of the appointment of the court.

In Congress.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The feature of yesterday's session of the senate was a speech delivered by Mr. Bacon (Dem., Ga.) in support of his resolution declaring that the United States should not assume sovereignty over the Philippine islands. Mr. Bacon is one of the orators of the senate, and as he gave himself free rein, not confining himself to notes, he spoke strongly and effectively. His peroration, in which he pictured the horrors of some of England's methods of controlling her colonial subjects, was a beautiful and forceful bit of word painting.

Following Mr. Bacon's speech the Nicaragua canal bill was taken up and remained under discussion until 6 o'clock. Amendment after amendment was voted down and until almost the last minute it seemed likely that a vote on the measure would be reached last evening, but just as a final vote was about to be called for Mr. Allison (Rep., Ia.) exploded a bomb under the bill by offering an amendment providing that the secretary of the treasury should issue bonds to raise money with which to construct the canal. The friends of the measure then consented to an adjournment.

The committee on interstate and foreign commerce had the right of way in the house and succeeded in passing quite a number of bills of minor importance, most of which authorized the construction of lighthouses, fog signals, etc. Then the bill to grant the Pacific Cable company a subsidy of $100,000 a year for 20 years for the construction and operation of a cable was called up and a very spirited debate, which consumed the remainder of the day, followed. No conclusion was reached at the hour of adjournment, and as the special order under which the house was operating expired with the adjournment, and as objection was made to fixing another day for consideration, it goes over indefinitely until the committee can get another day or until a special order is adopted.

General Wood's Estimate.

Washington, Jan. 19.—General Wood was before the senate committee on military affairs yesterday. He gave a detailed account of his operations in the province and in the city of Santiago, and also gave his estimate of the military force necessary to maintain order in the islands. On the latter point he expressed the opinion that for some time the 7500 men now in the province of Santiago should be continued, but that after a time 5000 would be sufficient for the service. He considered, however, that a military force would be necessary to the maintenance of order for some years and should be sufficient to effectually and quickly checkmate any trouble before it could gain headway. This remark applied to the island as a whole, and he thought as many as 50,000 troops should be stationed throughout Cuba.

Payne For Floor Leader.

Washington, Jan. 19.—There is no doubt that the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, made vacant by the death of Mr. Dingley, will be filled by Speaker Reed at the present session without waiting for the next congress, and that the new chairman will be Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York. The appointment is likely to be announced within the next few days. Mr. Payne is the ranking member of the committee.

Mr. Payne entered congress 15 years ago, and he served continuously with the exception of the Fiftieth congress. He took an active interest in tariff work and assisted in framing the McKinley and Dingley bills and the war revenue bill. By virtue of the chairmanship, Mr. Payne will become the floor leader of the house.

For American Shipping.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Senator Nelson yesterday introduced a bill providing that trade between the United States and Porto Rico, and also between ports in Porto Rico and adjacent islands ceded to the United States, shall be carried on in American vessels. The bill provides for the forfeiture of any merchandise transported in other vessels, and imposes a penalty of $200 for each passenger so carried. The bill authorizes the commissioner of navigation to make such regulations as he may deem expedient for the nationalization of vessels owned in Porto Rico at the time of the cession of that island. Senator Nelson yesterday also introduced a bill extending the navigation laws of the United States to the Hawaiian islands.

Sexton Seriously Sick.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Colonel James A. Sexton, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., who has been ill for some time, is in a serious condition, and his friends are alarmed as to the outcome. His illnes started from an attack of the grip, which superinduced kidney trouble and other complications.

Mataafa Refuses to Accept Decision In Favor of Malietoa.

Pretender Said to Have Won In a Fierce Conflict.

Indications of Foreign Intrigue In Dealing With Affairs In Samoa.

Auckland, N. Z., Jan. 19.—Samoan advices just received here say that Chief Justice Chambers, on Dec. 31, declared Malietoa Tanus to have been elected king, in succession to the late King Malietoa. The chief justice also announced that Tamasese had been elected vice king. Chief Mataafa was disqualified.

The consuls of the United States and Great Britain and the captains of the German warship Falke and the British warship Porpoise met the German consul, who refused to recognize Malietoa Tanus, and declined to co-operate in the dispersal of the Samoans, who thereupon assembled in large numbers at Mulinu, armed themselves and surrounded the municipality. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese mustered about 2000 men, well armed, but supplied with defective ammunition. The British and American consuls endeavored to avert hostilities, but they commenced on Jan. 1. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese fought bravely, but 500 of their followers were captured. Then, disheartened and outnumbered, the two chiefs sought refuge on the British warship, and their followers sought protection under the guns of the Porpoise.

Mataafa's loss was 61 men killed and wounded, and Malietoa Tanus lost 12 men killed or wounded.

The foreign residents were placed under the protection of a detachment of men belonging to the British warship, and Chief Justice Chambers and his family finally went on board of her.

The followers of Mataafa looted and burned Apia, destroyed the plantations and pillaged considerably in the country.

The consuls later decided to recognize Mataafa and his chiefs as a provisional government, pending the receipt of instructions from the powers.

Afterwards Dr. Rafael and the German consul closed the supreme court, declaring that the power was vested in them. The British and American consuls then appealed to the captain of the British warship Porpoise, who landed a force of bluejackets, and Chief Justice Chambers, under their guard, took his seat.

Mataafa held aloof from these last developments. The excitement continues.

The whole trouble has arisen through the action of the three treaty powers in bringing the deported Mataafa back to Samoa. By so doing they threw down a bone of contention, and converted what might otherwise have been a peaceful election into an angry combat. For many years the Germans have shown a feeling of uncompromising hostility towards Mataafa, but latterly the German officials have changed their views, and have tried to secure Mataafa's return. The natives were encouraged to turbulance, and the lives of the white residents were endangered. The climax was reached when Mataafa and his chiefs actually discharged the chief justice, who is appointed under the Berlin treaty by the three powers. Of course such action was purely farcical, and the chief justice notified Mataafa that he must wait for the decision of the court before he could legally declare himself king. The most serious element in the whole affair was the disagreement between the consuls. The German consul, it is charged, has been playing double with his colleagues, and the English and American officials are naturally indignant. It is understood that there was to be no foreign interference in the royal election, yet throughout it all an undermining current of intrigue has been at work with the Mataafa people, until they have been aroused to aggressive action, have openly declared against all white control and announced their intention of disregarding the Berlin treaty entirely. Chief Justice Chambers commenced his examination into the merits of the rival candidates on Dec. 19 in the presence of a great crowd of natives, and, under the Berlin treaty, the chief justice is the final referee in this matter.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

PROSPEROUS CHURCH

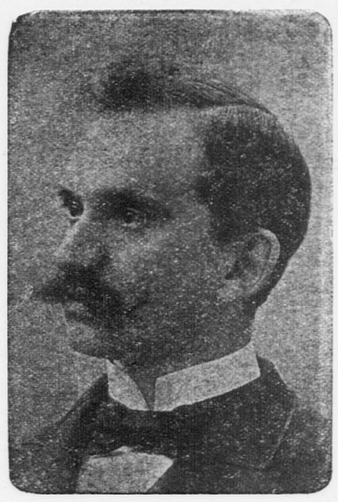
Annual Meeting of Bethany Congregational.

A Grand Supper Attended by Over Three Hundred.

Reports of Officers Show Progress in All Directions.

How could a caterer do it! was the exclamation of many who attended the grand annual supper of Bethany Congregational church on Wednesday evening. That there was variety is shown by the menu which follows and there was plenty of everything:

Chicken Salad.
Celery.
Escalloped Oysters.
Rolls.
Roast Turkey.
Cranberry Sauce.
Cold Ham.
Chocolate and Vanila Ice Cream.
Assorted Cake.
Coffee.



REV. E. N. HARDY, PASTOR.

Landlord Remick of The Greenleaf who was the caterer received praise on all sides for the excellence of the food and the young gentlemen and ladies of the church who served as waiters left nothing undone. Some idea of the size of the gathering may be formed when it is known that it required 85 pounds of turkey, 75 pounds of ham, 60 pounds of fowl, 10 gallons of oysters, 14 gallons of ice cream, 500 rolls, barrel and one-half of coffee etc.

The attendance was very large taxing the banquet room and all connecting rooms to their utmost, yet all were happy and it was pleasant to gaze upon a united church people who have been wonderfully successful in building up a prosperous church, which not only stands well in finances and church conveniences, but is doing the work of the Master. Rev. Edward Norton, the pastor emeritus; Rev. E. N. Hardy the acting pastor; and the active officers and members are all entitled to great credit.

Among those at the tables were: Rev. E. N. Hardy, Deacon Franklin Hardwick, Deacon Elbridge Clapp and wife, Deacon R. D. Chase, Deacon E. W. Branch, Deacon William W. Parry and wife, Deacon C. T. Sherman.

Gourd, Mr. William T. Isaac.

ELECTION AND REPORTS.

The business meeting of the church, which is an incorporated body, followed in the chapel, and was nearly as largely attended as the supper. Mr. Ernest W. Branch was moderator, and Mr. Ernest D. Gourd clerk.

After the reading of the records a ballot was taken for officers for 1899. An Australian ballot with a double list of names had been prepared and after two hours' work the tellers reported these to have been elected:

Moderator, E. W. Branch.

Deacons for three years, Eldridge Clapp and Franklin Hardwick.

Deaconnesses, Mrs. C. L. Badger, Mrs. H. E. C. Burns, Mrs. Geo. L. Badger, Miss A. L. Bumpus, Mrs. Helen F. Fitts and Mrs. A. J. McFarlane.

Clerk, E. D. Gourd.

Treasurer, Miss C. S. Hubbard.

Prudential Committee for three years, Dr. C. T. Sherman.

Financial Committee, F. H. Crane, John F. Hardwick, T. King, W. W. Parry and E. W. Sheppard.

Music Committee, Mrs. Geo. L. Badger, F. W. Crane, Mrs. E. V. Fitts, Mrs. J. O. Hall and Mrs. E. E. Miller.

Superintendent of Sunday School, E. W. Branch.

Auditor, Wm. T. Isaac.

Mrs. Hall resigned from the Music committee, and after some remonstrance, the resignation was accepted, and Miss Addie Miller who stood next on the list was elected. Mrs. Fitts also resigned, but her resignation was not accepted.

Mr. Branch, the very efficient Superintendent of the Bible School for several years, had given notice before the ballot was taken that he could not serve if elected. He resigned and being the Moderator did not wait for any remonstrance, but declared the office vacant

It was voted that when the meeting adjourneq it be to Friday evening, Feb. 3, when the vacancy will be filled.

The report of the clerk showed a net gain of 7 in membership of the church, making a total of 357.

The report of the treasurer showed receipts of $5,217.13 for regular church purposes, and expenditures of $5,178.62, leaving a balance of $38.51 in the treasury.

A summary of the expenses and benevolences for 1898 and 1897 shows reduced expenses and increase in benevolence:

The Bible School report was also of interest as the attendance has been very large. There had been 51 sessions with a total attendance of 14,474, and an average of 283, the largest average on record. The largest attendance was 452 and the smallest 135. The school had expended $169 for mission work. There were five departments, with 40 in the kindergarten, 11 classes with 124 scholars in primary, 18 classes in intermediate, 10 classes in senior, and a home department of 80 members.

There were also reports from the Church committee, Prudential committee, Finance committee, Music committee, Auditor, Ladies' Circle, Ladies' Foreign Missonary society, Ladies' Home Missionary society, Mothers' meetings, King's Daughters, Brotherhood of Andrew and Phillip, Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Daughters of The Covenant, Kwasind club, Boys' Brigade and Twentieth Century club.

An engagement of great interest to the people of this church was announced this evening and caused many congratulations, as the young lady is among the foremost workers for the church; it was that of Miss Zayma King and Mr. Walter E. Burke.

Sadly Afflicted.

In the death of Mrs. Charles F. Kennedy of Davis street, Wollaston Park, on Wednesday evening, of typhoid fever, an extremely sad case was brought to light. Mrs. Kennedy was the wife of Charles F. Kennedy, the claim agent of the New England Railroad. She was born at Somerville, Nova Scotia, twenty-seven years ago.

On Dec 28 last she buried a little son, two years old, Ralph Lester Kennedy, who was sick but a few days with pneumonia. Last Friday two little children were sent to the City Hospital, very sick with typhoid fever, and on Sunday another one was sent to the same institution, sick with the same disease.

The funeral services will take place today, the body being interred in the Mount Wollaston cemetery.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

In Organization of Republican City Committee.

No One Now Charges Crooked Work.

But Nevertheless the Question Is, Was It Legal?

Yesterday's Ledger has revealed a remarkable state of affairs in the organization of the Republican Ward and City committee of this city for 1899, which ostensibly took place on Friday evening, Jan. 13.

On Friday, Jan. 6, President Freeman of the Republican Ward and City Committee, claims that he requested Mr. H. P. Furnald, the secretary of the committee, to issue two sets of notices, one for the members of the 1898 committee to meet at 7.30, to hear the reports of the secretary and treasurer of that committee and wind up such business as may come before it at the conclusion of this year's business. The other notice was to be sent to the members of the 1899 committee to meet at the same place (Durgin & Merrill's block) at 8 o'clock to organize for the ensuing year.

On Thursday, Jan. 11, Mr. Freeman received through the mail a postal card postmarked at "Quincy, Jan. 11, 1899" which read as follows:

"A meeting of the committee will be held on Friday evening, Jan. 13, at 8 o'clock at Granite Manufacturers' rooms, Durgin & Merrills block, to organize. H. P. Furnald, Secretary."

This was the only card which Mr. Freeman received and it will be noticed that the meeting was called at 8 o'clock, "to organize." At the time Mr. Freeman received this notice he supposed that the 7.30 card had been mislaid in transit.

Councilman Jameson also received a similar card with the time 8 o'clock on it "to organize." He also received no other card.

On the same day,—Thursday, Jan. 12, Mr. Enoch S. Thomas received a postal card which read as follows:

"A meeting of the Committee will be held on Friday evening, Jan. 13, at 8.45 o'clock at Granite Manufacturers' rooms, Durgin & Merrill's block to organize. H. P. Furnald, Secretary."

The Wollaston correspondent of the Ledger has had possession of both sets of these cards, one giving the time distinctly at 8 o'clock and the other at 8.45 o'clock "to organize."

Councilman Bryant and Mr. Charles F. Marr also received postal cards saying that the meeting would "be held on Friday evening, Jan. 13, at 8.45 o'clock." etc.

None of these members of the Ward Five Committee received notice to any 7.30 o'clock meeting to close up the 1898 business. Representative Sprague and Councilman Pinkham received no notices. The only two members of the Ward Five Committee who were at the meeting in time to take part in the exercises were President Freeman, and Councilman Pinkham, who had been notified over the telephone by Mr. Freeman. Messrs. Bryant, Thomas and Marr, who received 8.45 notices, arrived at the committee room at 8.40 o'clock just time to see the meeting adjourn.

Representative Sprague, who received no notice, of course did not attend. Councilman Jameson, who had an 8 o'clock notice was prevented from attending by sickness.

Henry P. Furnald, secretary of last year's committee, when seen Wednesday evening, said that he called the meetings upon written notice received from Mr. Freeman. Calls were sent out for two meetings: One for the 1898 committee to meet and wind up its affairs, and the other for the 1899 committee to meet and organize. The former meeting was called for 8 o'clock and the later for 8.45 o'clock of the same evening.

Mr. Furnald, continuing, said that on the night in question he arrived at the place of meeting at 8 o'clock and found a meeting in progress, which had been called to order by Mr. Freeman, who was presiding, and who was then calling the roll of members. To his query as to what committee it was, Mr. Freeman replied, this year's committee. He then resigned the chair to me, and I completed the calling of the roll, after which the committee organized.

Mr. Furnald contends that he acted perfectly honest, and if a blunder was made someone else made it. It would seem that the alleged instructions as to hours for the calls, and the hours in the calls issued did not agree, and hence the blunder.

An effort was made to see Mr. A. G. Dolliver the new chairman, but he was not at home.

Somebody has surely blundered and the Republican State Committee may be asked to straighten out the matter.

CO. K CHEERING.

Another Rumor of Being Mustered Out.

With Co. K 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 16.

This has been another stormy day, clearing away at 3.30 this afternoon. The boys of K company who are on provost duty in the centre of Greenville, are having an exciting time. They are kept busy all through the night and day, preserving order.

At the regimental headquarters the two battalions which are stationed at camp, had their usual evening parade. Tonight the regimental band give a concert in the Army Christian Commission tent. The boys of K company miss all these concerts, being about two miles from camp.

Sergeant McGrath is in charge of the company street at the regimental headquarters, together with Corporal Foster who is not able to perform any duty. This is a rest for both non-commissioned officers.

Corporal Johnston is kept busy mending the tears in the tents. The corporal is an expert with the needle.

Several mustering out officers arrived in the city this morning. The boys heard this morning something interesting to both members of the regiment and their friends at home. The news coming that the Secretary of War had decided not to dispatch any volunteer regiments into Cuba who were dissatisfied with the service. It is known that the members of this command have been dissatisfied for some time back. At supper tonight, throughout every mess house, cheers after cheers were raised, on hearing that our regiment was to be mustered out. The boys are in better humor since hearing this latest report. The 4th Missouri which is brigaded with our regiment, is to be mustered out in about a month's time.

The mustering out to take place here. This does away with the 30 days' furlough after arriving home.

The members of this command wish to go home as a body, so that they can be reviewed by the Governor of Massachusetts, and also the citizens of Boston. K company will possibly return home with two new commissioned officers, providing Lieut. Spear is detailed to some other command. We do not like to lose the lieutenant for he has always been an energetic worker ever since his connection with K Co.

Corporal Hermanson has returned to his company arriving this afternoon. The corporal looks and feels much better. He has been on a sick furlough. Volunteer.

Concert and Ball.

Music Hall, Atlantic, was crowded to its utmost capacity Wednesday evening when a grand concert was given in aid of the Sacred Heart Sunday School. The concert was under the skilful management of J. H. Cunningham. The talent, which was excellent, was composed of Atlantic and out-of-town people. After the concert, the priest having charge of the Sunday School, Rev. Fr. Purcell was presented with a purse containing a sum of money. He responded in a very befitting manner. The floor was then cleared and dancing was continued until 1 P. M. Sprague's orchestra furnished good music.

Monday Evening Club.

In spite of the mud and rain one hundred and eighteen people were present at the Memorial church Monday night for the regular meeting of the Monday Evening Club. It was by all odds the most interesting meeting in the history of the club. Mr. J. B. Willis A. M. of the Youths' Companion was the principal speaker; his subject was "Natural Taxation." Mr. Willis presented this subject in such a polished, keen and brilliant manner, and with such convincing eloquence, that by unanimous vote his time was extended to the extreme possible limit.

The musical programme was excellent—Miss Helen Day sang three numbers most pleasingly, Mattinata; May Morning by Denza, and Nevin's Doris.

Miss Metzger gave two piano solos, a Nocturne, and the Boat Song by Listz.

Miss Alice G. Coe was at her best in a very able paper on "Current Events," the manner in which her paper was presented added much to the enjoyment of it.

At the conclusion of the meeting there was a very urgent request for Mr. Willis to conduct a discussion upon natural taxation, for twenty-five minutes he held the eager attention of the club by his clever management of this discussion, The members would gladly have detained him longer, but he was obliged to make a hasty exit for his train.

Presbyterian Social.

The social given by the First Presbyterian church Tuesday was an unqualified success. The lecture-room was crowded, and the musical exercises were excellent. The choir gave a chorus; Messrs. Fraser, Marr and Bowman each sang solos; Master John Garmory played concert pieces upon the cornet, and Miss Alice Joss upon the violin; Miss Duthie and Mrs. Donald sang a duet, and took part in two quartettes, the other two parts in the first being supplied by Messrs. Stewart and Fraser, and in the second by Misses Milne and Esson. These quartettes were specially enjoyable, and in the first Mr. Fraser's supremacy as "Pro Phundo Basso," was well disputed by the other three, to the amusement of all present. There was also a male quartette, composed of Messrs. Stewart, Bowman and Fraser, and the pastor. Misses Esson and Maggie Milne were the accompanists. After the musical programme, the Ladies' Aid society, assisted by the young ladies, served coffee and cake, and a half hour of social converse followed.

Many wishes for such gatherings more frequently were expressed.

Kansas City Times Comes Out For Senator Cockrell For President.

Kansas City, Jan. 19.—In an editorial today, the Kansas City Times, which has been a staunch supporter of W. J. Bryan, urges the candidacy of United States Senator Francis Marion Cockerell for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1900. The Times asserts that Missouri's right to consideration at the hands of a Democratic convention cannot be questioned, adding that "the sole objection which could have been urged against Cockerell, that he fought with the south, has been answered by the action of the ex-Confederate soldiers in the war of 1898."

The Times states that when the Democratic convention meets in 1900 the time will have come to ignore that old sectional feeling, "which has forced the Democratic party to nominate candidates whom it did not want."

Williams Takes Action.

Williamstown, Mass., Jan. 19.—The pupils of Williams college, in mass meeting yesterday, adopted resolutions stating that inasmuch as Amherst has formally expressed disapproval with the present league, and inasmuch as Dartmouth has shown evidence of dissatisfaction with present athletic arrangements, it is the opinion of this college that the athletic council withdraw from the present league, and take such steps as may be possible to form a new league, to which Dartmouth may be admitted whenever she so desires and gives suitable guarantee of good faith.

The Russell Estate.

Salem, Mass., Jan. 19.—The dispatch from New York to the effect that Mrs. John J. Chickering had fallen heir to $2,000,000, left her by the will of her father, William A. Russell, is thought to be incorrect in some particulars. The deceased man's son, William A. Russell, was appointed administrator of the estate, and the application for administration states that there was no will. The application also states that there are a widow and five children. The estate is estimated not to exceed $100,000 in real estate, and $3,500,000 in personal property.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is transmitted by contagion and not heredity. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) adopts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power, a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encouraging to "consumption families." It is not heriditary, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumption patient should never expectorate when it can dry up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air pasages. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis, thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tisues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

HE WHIPPED DEWEY.

Veteran Schoolmaster Tells a New Story of the Nation's Idol.

Greetings From Manila to Vermonters In Boston.

Letter From Captain Clark Relating to Matters of Naval Importance.

Boston, Jan. 19.—"Dewey and Vermont" was the dual theme discussed last evening at the annual banquet of the Vermont association, held at the Hotel Vendome. "Vermont In the Navy" was supposed to be the text for the meeting, but the name of the great admiral was heard on everyone's lips, and the ratification of all his acts from boyhood seemed to be more in order than anything else.

One of the fortunate circumstances of the occasion was the presence of Z. B. Pangborn of Jersey City, a graduate of the University of Vermont, in the class of '50, and who used to teach Admiral Dewey. Mr. Pangborn graphically told how he once whipped the hero of Manila. His speech was the cleverest and brightest of the evening.

"I received the news of the victory," said he, "with much less astonishment than most men would. I knew Dewey in his boyhood. I haven't forgotten it, and I warrant he hasn't. Several accounts have been given of the incident, but none entirely correct. It was simply this: In those days the schools were not graded. Each school was controlled by the teacher or by the scholars. There was an only question to be settled, namely, who should be master.

"I was then teacher of the State street district school in Montpelier. I didn't weigh more than 90 pounds. I took the place with this understanding that I should be well paid, should be let free to conduct the school my own way, and if I did not succeed, if the boys threw me out, I should return to my home in Burlington and say nothing about salary. I was warned by my friends of the danger involved.

"The conflict came on the eighth day of the term. I had so arranged things that when they put the boldest, most wilful boy in front to do me I was sure to win. My ammunition was all stored and ready for use.

"I simply quelled the rebellion—and did what Dewey did in Manila bay.

"I took him by surprise. George went home feeling very sore, and a big apprentice lay on the floor near dead. I didn't care if I had killed him. Well, I didn't care. I was bound to win. After that I never had a better boy in school than Dewey. I demanded an implicit obedience to lawful authority, and George learned that lesson well. On his ship is the finest discline in the navy."

Here is a copy of Dewey's letter, the reading of which was received with applause from the men and a waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies:

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Oct. 8, 1898, together with a beautifully engrossed and attested copy of the resolutions adopted by the executive committee of the Vermont association of Boston on May 14.

"On behalf of myself and the officers and men under my command, I thank in the heartiest manner the committee for their expressions of approbation and appreciation. It is a signal honor, coming from such a body of men, and will undoubtedly give pleasure to all.

"The resolutions will be read on the quarterdeck of the vessels of the squadron taking part in the action of May 1 at the next general muster."

At the conclusion of the reading of a letter from Admiral Dewey, great and prolonged applause was indicative of the manner in which it was received.

One refusal was not enough from Commodore Clark, and a second urgent invitation was sent, in return to which came a letter from the Oregon's commander. In part he wrote, after stating his still poor physical condition: "I was capable of enduring much, but even after the Oregon joined the fleet in Cuban waters there was little relief from moral responsibilities, for the night work with the searchlights was all taken by the Massachusetts, Iowa and Oregon.

"If the ship was too far out the Spaniards might make the first dash or send their torpedo boats out unperceived; if too far in, the hundreds of men lying about the decks might be suddenly slaughtered by the fire of machine guns. So the question was ever coming up, should they be sent below to stifle and have their spirits broken by seemingly needless cruelty, or should their lives be risked while they slept instead?

"Then there were the seven big ships that give us our naval superiority crowded close up to the entrance, always under way, with propellers projecting so far out on each quarter that if two had even grazed they might have been crippled for months. I only speak of these among many things to show you that it must have been not only constant watching but never ceasing anxiety from the time the ship left San Francisco until Cervera relieved us on the 3rd of July.

"The illness that came to me in August and in consequence of which I was sent north was, after all, the least of the troubles that ran me down."

President Allen Spear called the meeting to order, and the trend of his conversation related to the events of the past year, paying especial attention to matters military and naval. He referred pathetically to the death of Senator Morrill and Arthur Mason Knapp of the Boston public library. Letters of regret were read from Governor Roger Wolcott, Edward Carter Smith, governor of Vermont; Lieutenant Governor W. Murray Crane, John D. Long, Edward Dewey of Montpelier, George H. Converse, D. G. Dewey and several others.

BARRELS OF SAMPLES.

Over Two Hundred Thousand Trial Bottles Sent Free by Mail.

By special arragement with the manufacturers of that justly famous Kidney medicine, Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, the readers of the Quincy Ledger are enabled to obtain a trial bottle and pamphlet of valuable medical advice absolutely free, by simply sending their full name and post office address to Dr. David Kennedy, Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., and mentioning this paper.

Of course this involves enormous expense to the manufactures, but they have received so many grateful letters from those who have been benefited and cured of the various diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation, and all weaknesses peculiar to women, that they willingly send trial bottles to all sufferers.

Upon investigation it was found that 91 per cent. of those who had used the trial bottle had received such benefit from it, that they purchased large sized bottles of their druggists.

It matters not how sick you are or how many physicians have failed to help you, send for a trial bottle of this great medicine, it costs you but a postal card, and benefit and cure will most certainly be the result.

Put some urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has a sediment or if it is pale or discolored, milky or cloudy, stringy or ropy, your Kidneys or Badder are in a bad condition. WOMAN SHO DEAD.

Crime Attributed to Louis Bushay, a Drunken Deaf Mute.

Boston, Jan. 19.—A special to The Herald from Bangor, Me., says: At her home, on Treat and Webster's island, at 10 o'clock last night, Mrs. Frankie Donohue, formerly of Bangor, was shot and instantly killed by a deaf mute named Louis Bushay, who had been stopping there a few days. Bushay was drunk at the time, and no other cause is known for the act. He fired three shots and Mrs. Donohue fell, expiring without a struggle. Bushay is now in the police station, badly intoxicated. Bushay is about 27 years old, and has lived with his parents on Treat and Webster's island. Recently he had some trouble at home, and since then he has been staying at Mrs. Donohue's. Mrs. Donohue has long been known to the police in Bangor and in Veasie. Her husband was killed in the woods of New Hampshire a few years ago by a falling tree. In Veasie, a few years ago, her house was blown up with a charge of dynamite by some person whom she was alleged to have robbed, although it was suspected at the time that the explosion was caused by people who wished to drive her out of town. She has two small children.

Boston, Jan. 19.—In the house a bill was introduced to provide that whatever the payments made upon a life insurance policy, according to its terms, shall amount to in their aggregate and without interest, and exclusive of any dividends or other deductions received by the insured or in his behalf, to a sum equal to that for which the policy is issued, the insurer shall deliver to the insured a paid-up policy for the original amount. It is provided that, if the last payment by the insured makes a total in excess of the face value of the policy, such excess shall be added to the amount of the paid-up policy. A fine of $500 for any violation of this act is imposed.

The petition of the selectmen of Scituate authorizes the harbor and land commission to expend $100,000 in repairing the damage caused by the storm of Nov. 26 last.

Husband Under Arrest.

Providence, Jan. 19.—Mary Connors was found dead here last night in a tenement house under circumstances which led to the suspicion that she had been murdered. She was found by her brother at the foot of the stairs leading to her tenement, covered with blood. The woman's husband, David Connors, had been drinking during the day and was placed under arrest for drunkenness, pending the investigation of the case. Nothing was found to connect him with the death of his wife, and he refuses to make any statement. Mrs. Connors died without saying anything. In the afternoon she had complained to a neighbor that her husband had struck her. The police are investigating the case.

Disapproved by President.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Captain George V. Lane, Eighth Illinois volunteer infantry, was recently found guilty by a court-martial convened at San Luis, Cuba, of failing to resist mutiny, and of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, and was sentenced to be dismissed from the service of the United States. The record in this case having been submitted to the president, he has disapproved the findings and sentence on the ground "that the evidence concerning the charges upon which the accused was convicted was very conflicting and failed to establish his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt."

Looks Bad For Hamel.

Amesbury, Mass., Jan. 19. — When James F. Hamel, who is charged with the burglary of Harvey B. Locke's jewelry store in this town, is brought to trial, it is probable that he will have to face a number of other complaints. Miss Annie MacGowan of Haverhill has identified Hamel as the man who assaulted and robbed her in that city. While she was alone last week a man entered the house and brutally assaulted her, striking her over the head with a bottle and robbing her of a small sum of money. The police of Haverhill are confident they can trace the numerous burglaries that have occurred in this city to Hamel.

Heirs Get It All.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—The trust clause in the will of the late Adolph Sutro, in which he bequeaths much of his most valuable property to charitable and educational purposes, under certain conditions, has been declared invalid by Judge Trout, and the estate will revert back to the heirs.

Murderer Hanged.

Raleigh, Jan. 19.—James Booker, a young negro, was hanged here yesterday. He was convicted of the murder of his sweetheart, Mehaley White, three years ago in a jealous rage. He acknowledged his guilt on the scaffold.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Congressman Walker of Worcester, Mass., delivered an address before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, taking as his subject "The Currency problem of the United States."

A man who gave his name as Horn and said he came from Boston was found overcome by gas in a New York boarding house.

The Minnesota house, by a vote of 101 to 4, adopted concurrent resolutions urging the United States senate to hasten the ratification of the peace treaty with Spain.

Tang'e Continues.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The house attempted to notify the senate of its organigation yesterday, but that body adjourned without recognizing the committee. The governor still ignores the house organization, and has sent no communication whatever. The Republicans talk of making an organization of their own and appealing to the governor for recognition unless the Democrats accede to their demands that the two Republican contestees in the house be seated.

Wanted In New Hampshire.

Laconia, N. H., Jan. 18.—Information has been received here of the arrest of Benjamin F. Whicher of this city at Louisville for the alleged unauthorized soliciting of subscriptions of various newspapers and periodicals, etc., in that section, and the obtaining of money under false pretenses. Whicher left this part of the country in the fall of 1894, after having been sought after by officers on various charges, the chief of which was the robbery of the safe of G. H. Dow. He was arrested at Lebanon, charged with embezzlement. He escaped from the sheriff's keeper by slipping through his coat.

The descent is certain from weak lungs, lingering coughs, throat troubles or bronchial affections through bleeding lungs, to consumption, if the first stages are neglected. Thousands of people who are now in their graves would be alive and well to-day if they had heeded the first warnings of those troubles which lead to consumption and death.

The hacking cough, spitting of blood, weak lungs, and all similar troubles of the organs of breathing, will surely lead to consumption, if they are not already the signs of it. Then there are the other indications of the approach of consumption, such as night-sweats, emaciation, or wasting away of flesh from bad nutrition, which, if neglected, lead to certain death.

Ninety-eight per cent. of all the cases of weak lungs, bleeding lungs, lingering and obstinate coughs, and other bronchial and throat diseases, which have been treated with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, have been cured by it. Do not wait until your throat trouble becomes serious. All bronchial and throat troubles are serious. The time to take the "Golden Medical Discovery" is right at the start.

Even if your throat trouble has been neglected until it has been pronounced pulmonary disease or consumption, do not hesitate to use the "Golden Medical Discovery," for thousands of letters from the sufferers themselves, who are now well, bear evidence that the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure, even after good physicians have pronounced the disease pulmonary consumption.

"I had been troubled with bronchitis for several years," writes Mrs. Orlin O'Hara, Box 114, Fergus Falls, Otertail Co., Minn. "In the first place, I had sore throat. I doctored with different physicians and took various medicines, but got no relief. I raised from my throat a sticky substance like the white of an egg. Could not sleep, and had made up my mind that I would not live through the winter. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription' alternately, and in a few days began to see that I was better. I took eight bottles. I have not felt as well in years as since using these medicines."

AMERICAN INTERESTS

Will Be Protected by Sending Warships to Samoa.

German Consul to Blame For the Trouble.

Belief That He Incited Mataafa's Followers to Open Rebellion.

United States, England and Germany Deeply Concerned In the Matter.

Conflict In the Island Kingdom May Lead to Serious Results.

Washington, Jan. 20.—It is stated at the department of state that dispatches have been received from United States Consul Osborn at Apia, but as to their nature the officials have nothing to say beyond that they went to confirm the news dispatches printed yesterday.

The navy department has prepared orders for the cruiser Philadelphia to proceed to Samoa at once to represent the United States interests there. Meanwhile if any vessel more quickly available can be found, one of Dewey's fleet, for instance, it will be ordered at once to Samoa to answer the urgent appeal of the United States consul. The commander of the Philadelphia will act in conformity with the instructions of the United States consul so far as those instructions are in line with the treaty of Berlin, which the United States contends must be literally enforced until amended. It would take the Philadelphia about 16 days to make the run from San Diego to Apia, touching at Honolulu for coal.

One resource open to the navy department is to send the Oregon to Samoa. She left Callao on the 11th inst., and should reach Honolulu about Feb. 6, where she can be intercepted. The big battleship Iowa is due at San Francisco just about the same time that the Oregon is due at Honolulu, so that the Pacific coast will not be left entirely without naval force.

While the attention of the public has been of late drawn from the Samoan islands to more important subjects ,it appears that interesting events have been succeeding one another with rapidity in the islands. It has been realized for a long time past that there was need for a modification of the tripartite treaty, by which we assume joint guardianship with England and Germany, but up to this point it has not been possible to get all three powers to agree upon any one project.

The immediate effect of the publication in yesterday's papers of the news from Samoa was to bring to the state department Ambassador Pauncefote and Baron Sternberg, secretary of the German embassy. Under the strict rules laid down for the government of diplomatic intercourse neither Secretary Hay nor the two diplomatic representatives named would say anything whatever as to the nature of the conversation that took place between them. The deepest concern is felt by all three parties to the agreement at the outlook.

The common belief is that the German representatives in Samoa, in acting in the arbitrary manner they did, completely exceeded their instructions from their own government. It is quite certain that they exceeded authority with which they were clothed by the treaty of Berlin, and it is expected that the German government will unhesitatingly condemn their actions as soon as it has become officially advised as to what has actually happened.

The authorities feel that the greatest element of danger lies in the possibility of trouble before Raffael and Rose can be restrained by government advices. It is not conceived that they would undertake to carry out the threat reported to have been made by them to forcibly board the British gunboat Porpoise, for, even though the latter might have to reckon with the German gunboat Falke, lying in her immediate vicinity, it is felt here that her captain would resist such an attack or demand to the last extremity. Neither of the warships is very formidable, ranking in offensive power with vessels of the Annapolis and Vicksburg class in the American navy. Still, in the absence of anything like fortifications at Apia, they probably would control the situation within the range of their guns, including the town of Apia proper, presuming that they refrained from attacking each other.

Negotiations have been on foot for some time in relation to the succession to the Samoan throne, and it is calculated to lead to ill feeling, at least, that the German officials should resort to a coup d'etat at this stage of the negotiations. It is believed that much of the responsibility of this arbitrary action must rest upon Raffael, the German president of the municipal council at Apia, whose troublesome attitude of late has led to remonstrance on the part of the other powers. There has been an understanding that he was to be removed to another scene of activity, and the supposition is that, getting wind of this intention, he has precipitated a crisis before his government could reach him with orders. Auckland is 1800 miles distant, and this lack of communication makes the situation more perilous than it would be otherwise.

The United States, Great Britain and Germany, it is believed, could easily reach a satisfactory solution of the crisis in Samoa if they could deal with the subject themselves in the usual course, but there is some fear of ill-considered action on the part of some of the agents of these governments in Samoa before they can receive instructions from their governments. The interests of the United States are in the hands of Luther W. Osborn, in whose discretion the state department reposes great confidence.

Malietoa Laupepa—the last word of which name signifies in English "Scrap of Paper"—was the 27th king of Samoa in succession of the Malietoa family. He died on Aug. 27 last, and from that time forward the affairs of the island were directed by a board of control, consisting of the consuls of the United States, Great Britain and Germany, William Lea Chambers of Alabama, the chief justice, and Dr. Joannes Raffael, the German president of the municipality of Apia. The successor of the dead king was to be selected under the involved system of Samoan law and custom, but under the sixth section of article II, of the Samoan convention, the duty of determining who was lawfully elected king devolves upon the chief justice.

Early in December the supporters of Mataafa elected this chief, who had recently returned from exile, to the kingship, but certain chiefs of the Malietoa party lodged a protest with the chief justice, which was decided in their favor. Later on in the month the chief justice produced the draft of an agreement for signature by the representatives of the rival candidates, by which they were able to abide by his decision. The Malietoans readily signed it, but the Mataafans refused, and from that time forth trouble was expected.

Wednesday's advices gave the first announcement of the fact that Chief Justice Chambers had decided in favor of the elevation of Malietoa Tanus, a member of the Malietoa family, to the kingship. Apparently he is not a son of Malietoa Laupepa, the late king, but he is evidently a member of that chieftain's house. Laupepa's son, Tanumafila, whose name bears the prophetic meaning of ill-omen, "Buried in Strife," was an unknown quantity, at least in the early stages of the contest. He had kept away from Apia because he sided with his own mother as against the most recent queen, and had taken no part in the government. He did not necessarily succeed his father in the headship of the family, and was in no Samoan sense to be regarded as heir to the throne, or as having any claim superior to that of any other member of the family.

Mataafa, who seems determined to become the sovereign of the islands at any cost, acted as king for a time in 1888 and 1889, but he was expelled from the islands and held a prisoner by the Germans at the Marshall islands for several years, being carried there with several other chiefs for making war upon the government of the late king. He was recently brought back to Apia with the consent of all three of the powers to the Samoan convention, but it is impossible to say whether his interests are now being supported by the Germans or not.

Possible Theater of Hostilities.

London, Jan. 20.—The Times, in a special article this morning dealing with affairs in Samoa, after pointing out that when the Central America ship canal is completed, the possession of Pago-Pago harbor, incomparably the safest in the entire Pacific, will become a world important question, says: The decision of Chief Justice Chambers that the Berlin act disqualified Mataafa must be accepted with considerable reserve, for that act expressly reserves to the Samoans the "free right" to elect their king, and to choose their form of government. This right has been solemnly recognized by the three powers.

The only obstacle to Mataafa's election appears to be the promise wrested from him before he was permitted to leave the Marshall islands to renounce participation in Samoan politics. This renunciation evidently owed its origin to Germany, yet Germany now champions Mataafa. Nobody acquainted with the islands can be surprised that the Samoans uphold Mataafa. The astonishing thing about the whole business is that Great Britain and the United States should have consented, while the throne was yet vacant, to allow such a firebrand to be thrown among the smouldering embers of Samoan disaffection.

The part the United States has played in the matter must be considered in connection with President McKinley's last message to congress. It must not be forgotten that these islands were, so long ago as 1872, a cherished object in the eyes of American expansionists, and even now Samoa is a word to conjure with throughout many western states. The present situation will not Postoffice Appropriation Surprises—Foraker Didn't Speak For Administration.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The house practically decided the Brown-Swanson contested election case from the Fifth Virginia district in favor of the sitting member, Mr. Swanson, a Democrat, by declining to consider the case. Twenty-four Republicans joined with the Democrats and Populists on this vote.

The postoffice appropriation bill was then taken up. The greatest surprise of the day was the adoption of two amendments striking out of the bill the appropriation of $171,000 for the fast southern mail and $25,000 for special mail facilities from Kansas City to Newton, Kan. The appropriation for the southern mail has been fought annually for six or seven years, but has always been retained. The increase in the appropriation for the pneumatic tube service from $225,000 to $300,000 was knocked out by the elimination of the provision, which fell under a point of order, for the repeal of the law against the extension of this service. The house adjourned with a motion to recommit pending. The motion carried instructions to strike out the words "newly acquired territory" in connection with an appropriation of $300,000 for mail facilities in Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines.

The senate listened further yesterday to a discussion of the policy of expansion. Mr. Turner (Pop., Wash.) delivered a carefully prepared speech on the Vest resolution. The speech was for the most part a constitutional argument, in which Mr. Turner took issue with Senator Platt and Senator Foraker upon their recent utterances.

At the conclusion of Mr. Turner's argument Mr. Foraker took some sharp exceptions to statements made in the speech, especially those referring to him personally. He explained at length the nature of his statements, declaring among other things that he had spoken only for himself and had no intention or desire to pose as the representative of the administration so far as his utterances were concerned. Referring to the interested comment which had been aroused in Great Britain by his statements, he said:

"I was not speaking for the administration and the chill that went up and down the backs of our friends in London was due perhaps to a misapprehension as to which of the Ohio senators was speaking."

The Nicaragua canal bill was under consideration nearly three hours. After much debate, a substitute presented by Mr. Morgan for the bond amendment offered by Mr. Allison was adopted. It provides that the secretary of the treasury shall not pay out for work on the canal more than $20,000,000 during any fiscal year. Earnest efforts were made to amend the measure in other particulars, but all failed.

The Ledger was favored with a copy of the appointments on Thursday, so that we are able to give brief sketches of several of the appointees.

CITY CLERK HARLOW.

James F. Harlow, who becomes City Clerk, was born in Boston in 1866. He was educated in Quncy at the public schools and Adams Academy. He then entered Harvard college and was graduated in the class of 1888. He later took a three years course at the Boston University law school and was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1891. He has served on the board of School Committee and as one of the managers of the Adams Academy.

CITY TREASURER BURKE

James F. Burke, who will look after the city's treasury during the year, was born in Quincy Nov. 2, 1861. He was educated in the public schools. First he learned the granite cutting business, at which he was employed for a number of years, being a member of the firm of Burke Bros. His first public office was as a member of the City Council, serving in 1889 and 1890. He has also been one of the Board of Trustees of the City Hospital for a number of years. He was a member of the State Legislature from the Quincy-Weymouth district in 1891 and 1892. In 1892 he was a candidate for State senator, from this district, but was defeated by Hon. John F. Merrill. In March, 1894, he was appointed postmaster of Quincy by President Cleveland and served for four years.

CHIEF ENGINEER WILLIAMS.

Peter J. Williams first saw the light of day in Quincy April 18, 1856. Leaving school at the age of 18 years he learned the carpenter and builders' trade which he has since followed. In 1875 he joined the old Tiger hand engine company where he did duty until she went out of commission, part of his service being as steward, leading hoseman and as foreman. In 1885 he was appointed a district engineer for Ward Three, and served four years. During this time he had charge of the steamer house, and through his influence the Hook & Ladder Co. was removed to the steamer house and supplied with horses and a driver. During the second year of the City government he was appointed assistant engineer by Chief Ripley, and was appointed Chief during the first year of Mayor Hodges' administration. He served continuously for four years. In 1898, when succeeded by Chief Packard, he was appointed a district engineer, but declined to serve.

CITY SOLICITOR BLACKMUR.

Paul R. Blackmur, will, after a year's respite, again serve as City Solicitor, which will make his fifth year in that office. He was born in Chelsea, July 25, 1866. He was educated in the public schools of Quincy and at the Adams Academy and then read law in the office of the well known criminal lawyer, the late John L. Eldridge.

At the age of 18 years he entered the Boston University Law school and at his graduation he took charge of Mr. Eldridge's Quincy office for several years. In January, 1890, he was admitted to the Suffolk bar. In 1891 he was a Democratic candidate for one of the Commissioners of Insolvency for Norfolk County and in 1893 was a Democratic candidate for School Committee at Large. In 1894 he was appointed City Solicitor by Mayor Hodges and succeeded himself in that office for the next three years. August 15, 1895, he was appointed on the board of Sewer Commissioners but resigned shortly after.

COMMISSIONER CAVANAGH.

John T. Cavanagh, the new Commissioner of Public Works, was born in Braintree where he passed his early days, receiving his education in the public schools and at the Thayer Academy. Graduating from the latter institution he took a two years' course in mathematics at the Institute of Technology. He also studied architecture four years, two of which were in the office of a Boston firm. He afterward took up contracting and in 1893 did a remarkable work, successfully placing two thirty-inch siphone under the Charles river at Warren bridge, to carry water from Boston to Charlestown. He built the North Harvard bridge over the Charles river, between Cambridge and Brighton. Another difficult task was the putting in of four spindles for the government, one of which was that outside of Baker's Island on the North shore. He furnished and built the large stone abutments for the Berkley street bridge, extended the water pipes for the city of Boston under water to Thompson's, Gallonpe's and Long Islands, and built a section of the Dorchester Parkway from Five Corners to the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. He was a member of the Quincy Water Board for five years and superintendent three years. He was formerly a member of the Boston Merchant's Exchange, and is at present one of the stockholders.

OVERSEER BASS.

E. W. Henry Bass, who has been reappointed Overseer of the Poor, is perhaps the best known of any of the new appointees. He was born in Quincy, Feb. 13, 1842, and for many years was engaged in the shoe business, as manager for N. Curtis & Co. In 1889 he was elected a member of the City Council and served in the years of 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895, and was president of that body during the years '93, '94, and '95.

He has also been mentioned by the Republicans as a candidate for Mayor.

He was appointed Overseer of the Poor in 1896 by Mayor Adams and has served continuously since that time.

CHIEF OF POLICE HAYDEN.

Joseph W. Hayden, who has been appointed Chief of Police, was born in Quincy, Dec. 10, 1842. He was educated in Quincy's public schools. First he followed the stone cutters' trade for a number of years. He was one of the first to respond to the call for volunteers to defend the Union, and on March 18, 1862, he enlisted in Co. M, 14th Massachusetts Regiment, for three years. March 21, 1864, he re-enlisted. He was taken prisoner at Petersburg June 21, 1864, at the battle of Weldan railroad being one of the 1700 taken prisoners at that time. He was held a prisoner for six months and ten days being confined in Andersonville, Libby, Mellin, Florence and Savannah prisons. When taken prisoner he weighed 200 pounds, but when released only tipped the scale at 96. He then came home on a furlough and then went to St. John's college hospital at Annapolis, Md., remaining there until June 30, 1865, when he came home.

He was appointed to the permanent police force in 1892, by Mayor Fairbanks and served on the Quincy Point beat until the election of Mayor Hodges when he was appointed chief, which office he held until removed by Mayor Sears.

During the old hand engine days he was an enthusiastic fireman and ran with the old "Tiger," of which he was foreman for a number of years. He also served as one of the district engineers for seven years.

DR. J. A. ELMERE.

Who succeeds Dr. Welch as City Physician was born in Lawrence, Kansas, in the sixties. He commenced his education there and later came to New York, where he graduated from the New York University. He then went to Germany and studied medicine in the University at Berlin and other places. He came to Quincy about two years ago.

PRINCIPAL ASSESSOR HODGES.

Ex-Mayor William A. Hodges, who has been selected as Principal Assessor to carry out Mayor Keith's idea of assessment of taxes, is a man well qualified for the position owing to the long an active part he has taken in administration of Quincy's affairs, both as selectmen, assessor and mayor. He was first elected a member of the Selectmen of Quincy in 1872 and served in the same office during the years, '72, '73, '74, '75, '77, '78, '80, '81, '86, '87 and '88. During much of this time the duties of Assessor were also fulfilled by the Selectmen.

In 1874 he was a Representative in the Legislature from this district, and in 1876 was alternate to the Democratic National Convention, which nominated Tilden for president.

He was Democratic candidate for senator from the first Norfolk District in 1876. He was defeated but in 1878 upon the death of Mr. Barker, senator-elect, he was elected at a special election. He was a candidate for Councillor in 1899 and for State Treasurer on the Democratic ticket in 1881 and 1882. In 1883 he was again a candidate for the Senate.

He was a candidate for Mayor a number of years but it was not until the election in 1893 that he was elected. He was reelected in 1894.

Mr. Hodges was born in Petersham, May 15, 1834. He first commenced business for himself in Boston in 1848, afterward going to Milton where he served three years as a baker. He worked at that business in Milton and Roxbury until 1858, when he went to California and remained two years. In 1862 he again went west but after five months he returned to Boston and came to Quincy in 1866. He purchased an interest in the bakery, which he carried on until recently.

ALBET F. SCHENKELBERGER,

Who will succeed Herbert T. Whitman upon the board of Sewer Commissioners, will go upon that board with previous experience, having been appointed by Mayor Hodges to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Paul R. Blackmur, who resigned to become City Solicitor. Mr. Schenkelberger's term expired in 1898, when Frederick L. Jones was appointed to succeed him.

ASSESSOR FEDERHEN.

DR. CHARLES W. GAREY,

Who has been appointed on the Board of Health, was born in East Weymouth, May 27, 1866, and is a son of the late Andrew J. Garey, who was well known for his connections with the State Police.

Dr. Garey received his early education in the public schools of his native place and at the High school. He entered the Boston University in 1885 and took a four years' course. He received his deegree of C. B. in 1888 and of M. D. in 1889. He came to Quincy in May of that same year and opened an office where he has since built up a large practice. He was appointed Inspector of Milk under Mayor Porter and served four years, being removed by Mayor Hodges.

—A contemporary calls attention to the fact that if you add the first two figures of 1899 you will have the equal of each of the last two, and by adding the latter two you have the equal of the first pair.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

Water Commissioners Abolished.

Commissioner of Public Works to Have Charge

As Provided in Chap. 401 of Acts of 1891.

Some of the members of the board of Water Commissioners of the city have been expecting for several days a request for their resignation. They had an idea because the board was constituted of two Republicans and one Democrat, and the term of the Democrat expired, that its political complexion would not be satisfactory to the new Mayor.

Mayor Keith, however, kept his own counsel, but last evening he delivered to the board, at its regular meeting, the following communication, and its importance overshadows the appointment of department officials announced today:

Mayor's Office
Quincy, Jan. 19, 1899.

To Messrs. Henry O. Fairbanks Charles T. Baker and Luther S. Anderson, Water Commissioners of the City of Quincy:

In accordance with the provisions of Sect. 12, Chap. 401, of the Acts of the Legislature of Massachusetts for the year 1891, I hereby request you to transfer to the Commissioner of Public Works, the system of water works now in operation in this city.

Very respectfully,
H. A. Keith, Mayor.

When interviewd by the, Ledger His Honor said the step was taken in the interest of economy and the good of the service. Relative to the rumor that the course was taken because the Commissioners refused to remove Superintendent Ewell, who is a Republican, he denied the charge emphatically. He had had no conference with the board or any of its members and had made no such request.

Chapter 401 referred to in the communication of Mayor Keith is "the act to authorize the City of Quincy to introduce a public water supply, and Section 12 reads:

SECTION. 12. The said commissioners shall superintend and direct the construction, execution and performance of all the works, matters and things mentioned in the preceding sections. They shall be subject to such ordinances, rules and regulations in the execution of such duties as the city council may from time to time ordain and establish, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act and the laws of this Commonwealth: provided, however, that whenever a system of water works under the provision of this act shall be substantially completed and put in successful operation, said commissioners, upon written request of the mayor, shall transfer the same to the commissioner of public works of said city, and thereupon the powers of said board of water commissioners shall cease and all of its powers shall be vested in and all of its duties imposed upon said commissioner of public works.

The attention of the Ledger has been called by an interested party to Chap. 373 of the Acts of 1892, one year later than the act under which Mayor Keith acted. Section one of that act reads as follows, and may have precedent to 1891:

SECTION 1. A board consisting of three commissioners, who shall be citizens of the city of Quincy, shall be appointed by the mayor of said city upon the passage of this act; they shall hold their offices respectively until the expiration of one, two and three years from the first Monday of February next preceding their appointment and until their respective successors have been appointed and qualified, unless they shall sooner resign or be removed for cause as hereinafter provided; and thereafter in January of each succeeding municipal year one person shall be so appointed a member of said board, who shall hold office for three years from the first Monday of the February next ensuing and until his successor has been appointed and qualified, unless his duties are sooner terminated as hereinafter provided. Appointments to fill vacancies, which may occur by death, resignation or otherwise, shall be made without delay by the mayor, and he may remove any water commissioner from office for the causes and in the manner provided in section twenty-seven of chapter three hundred and forty-seven of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-eight. Said commissioners shall have such office room and clerical assistance, and receive such compensation as the city council from time to time may determine.

REBEKAHS INSTALL.

Grace L. Spear the New Noble Grand.

Odd Fellows hall, in the Adams building, was the scene last evening of a gathering of one hundred and seventy-five, who were present from Neponset, Randolph, South Braintree, East Weymouth, Wollaston and Brockton to witness the initiatory work, and installation of the officers of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, No. 146, of this city, by D. D. G. M. Grace W. Mitchell and suite of Brockton. It was performed in a very able manner in the following order:

P. G.,—Lizzie A. Monk.
N. G.,—Grace L. Spear.
V. G.,—Kate A. Hayden.
Secretary,—Adeline Young.
Financial Secretary,—M. Jennie Davies.
Treasurer,—M. Lizzie Furnald.
W.,—Kate A. Prout.
C,—Inez Nutting.
Chaplain,—Susie A. Furnald.
O. S. G.,—Susie Gragg.
I. S. G.,—Addie J. Jones.
R. S. N. G.,—Aubrey Keith.
L. S. N. G.,—Beatrice Porterfield.
R. S. V. G.,—Dora E. Good.
L. S. V. G.,—Lydia C. Willey.
Pianist,—Elvira Ewell.

After the installation ceremony, D. D. G. M. Grace W. Mitchell, who is most highly esteemed and respected by the members of the lodge, was presented with two beautiful bouquets. Although greatly surprised, she responded in a very pleasing manner. Said she should continue to take a deep interest in the future welfare of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, of which she was first deputy, and which had started with a good, intelligent membership and promises to be worthy of a place in this jurisdiction.

The lodge, although not a year old, numbers one hundred and thirty. At the close of the meeting, a fine collation was served in the banquet hall under the superintendence of Mrs. Frank Mitchell and an able body of assistants.

Poor Equipment.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Your editorial in Wednesday's Ledger in relation to politics in the Police Department hit the keynote. There never was and never will be an efficient police force in this city or any other city, as long as politics are allowed to upset it every time the political wind changes, for it demoralizes the whole force. The old maxim "That the stream never rises higher than its fountain head," can be applied to Quincy's Police Department.

Citizens should give this important department serious consideration and do something toward helping the police to obtain equipment that is in keeping with the work they have to do. Progressive business men, who are moving forward, will not go back twenty-five years for the sake of lifting Quincy's police force out of the deep rut in which it now and always has moved without any fault of its own.

It is unfair to compare the work of Quincy's Police Department with that of other cities in the Commonwealth of the same size, for there is not another city in the same condition. Other cities have the benefit of a police signal system, patrol wagons, and a station in which prisoners can be kept for a few days, when awaiting trial.

In Quincy, in such cases, the police are obliged to take the prisoner to the county jail, sometimes two or three times, and return at the expense of the city.

Do not expect the Quincy Police force to be up to date when its surroundings are so far behind the times. There is just as good material for a police force in Quincy as in any other city, but it must be remembered that an officer can not walk with a communication as quickly as it can be transmitted by electricity.

Observant Citizen.

Dinner of Ancients,

The editor of the Ledger was the guest of Mr. George H. Wilson at the dinner of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company at the Quincy House, Boston, and thoroughly enjoyed a grand banquet and the hearty good fellowship of the occasion. The committee were Capt. Lawrence N. Duchesney, Lieut. George H. Innis, Lieut. James M. Usher and Adjt. J. Henry Brown. Others from Quincy were E H. Doane, H. L. Kincaide, A. G. Durgin and Elisha Packard. The Ancients are planning for a grand reception to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of London in 1900.

JOHN WANAMAKER,

The millionaire of Philadelphia, who made his fortune by store advertising, says "I never in my life used such a thing as a poster, or hand bill, or dodger. My plan for 20 years has been to buy so much space in a newspaper and fill it up as I want it."

Davis Takes Charge.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Just before the close of office hours yesterday General Eagan was served with legal notice of the ordering of a court-martial for his trial. This notice was delivered by the messenger of the adjutant general in the usual course, and it had the effect to relieve General Eagan from duty as commissary general of the army, pending the conclusion of the court-martial. The office was placed in charge of Lieutenant Colonel Davis, who has been on duty as assistant to General Eagan. The text of the charges and specifications upon which General Eagan is to be tried will not be made public by the war department, but will be placed in the hands of the judge advocate of the court-martial, Colonel Davis, and the court itself may give them publicity.

The Philippine Commission.

Washington, Jan. 20.—President Schurman of Cornell university, Professor Worcester of Ann Arbor and Colonel Denby, the three members of the Philippine commission now in the United States, had a long conference with the president yesterday. Mr. Schurman will be chairman and Edward W. Harden of Chicago secretary. With the exception of Colonel Denby, who will be unavoidably detained here about two weeks, the members, with a corps of clerks and stenographers, will leave New York next Tuesday for Vancouver, where they will take the steamer Empress of Japan on the 30th inst. for Hong Kong.

To Abolish Puts and Calls.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—The local news agency says that commission houses on the board of trade are unanimously opposed to the continuance of the practice of trading in puts and calls, and are very generally sending notices to their clients that they will accept no more orders of this character. It adds that the put and call room will probably be closed by the directors at once.

Communication Cut Off.

New York, Jan. 20.—The Commercial Cable company has sent out the following notice: "We are advised that telegraphic communication with the islands of Panay, Negros and Zebu, Philippine islands, is temporarily interrupted."

Seeks Connubial Bliss.

When a man has been a helpless invalid for 12 years and suddenly announces that he is no longer ill and is now a candidate for matrimony there can be no better evidence of his perfect restoration to health. This is what that scientific wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in health but fully restored, all made over new again, they claim and experience the vigor, activity, hopes and ambitions of youth once more. This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give herewith. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last season was spent in Florada. Employed many local physicians during this time and used socalled sarsaparillas but found no permanent relief till I tried Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 28 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.

Sincerely yours.
ARTHUR B. CUNNINGHAM.

CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

50,000 MEN NEEDED,

Army In Cuba Cannot Get Along With Less Than That Number.

Large Percentage Constantly on the Sick List.

Climatic Conditions, Sanitation and Resources Discussed by General Wood.

Washington, Jan. 20.—General Leonard Wood continued his testimony before the senate committee on military affairs yesterday, dealing especially with the requirements as to troops in Cuba. He explained his estimate of 50,000 as the number of troops necessary to be kept in the entire island, saying that he had placed the number so high because the effect of the climate was such as to render a large percent of American soldiers there ineffective for aggressive action. Malaria was the prevailing disease, and, as a rule, while not more than 20 percent might be on the actual sick list, not to exceed 35 or 40 percent would, as a rule, be capable of effectual action. A day's active exercise would cause half of the men to drop out of any military force. Of his present force, he did not believe to exceed one-half was now fit for effective service. It could be almost said that no troops stationed there had escaped the disease, due to the climate. This fact accounted for the non-aggressive character of the Spanish campaign in the island, and, he thought, explained why as many as 280,000 Spanish soldiers were required in the service there.

BRIGADIER GENERAL LEONARD WOOD.

He had found that the Spanish were affected by the climate just as the Americans were, and also that the Cubans themselves were under constant liability to malaria. Often as many as 60 percent of the Cubans were disabled.

It was as yet too early to say whether our troops in the island would become so acclimated that they would be able to resist disease. This was an important point, and if decided in the negative would require the frequent change of troops. He was hopeful that, by an elaborate system of sanitation, in the island, improved conditions might be secured, just as Great Britain had produced an improvement in Jamaica. Still it might prove, as it had in India, that Cuba was not a white man's country. A year or two at least would be necessary to decide this problem.

Replying to a question from Senator Proctor, General Wood said that it was feasible to construct a railroad line between Santiago and Havana, and that a Santiago firm had agreed to guarantee the funds for the enterprise. The most practicable route would be along the central plauteau of the island, and the general thought the enterprise would be a great civilizer.

"It would," he said, "afford employment to many men in the interior whose present principal employment is that of carrying guns."

He spoke at considerable length in regard to the resources of Cuba, saying that it could be made the market garden of the world. He thought that this government should grow there the vegetables used by the army in Cuba, and said he meant to confer with the secretary of agriculture on this question. Speaking of the timber of the island he said the cross-ties of the railroads and the wharves at Santiago were composed largely of mahogany and other more valuable woods.

General Wood also expressed the opinion that the native Cubans might be used to some extent as soldiers in the United States army.

Acted Like Crazy Man.

Boston, Jan. 20.—Sembrick Herris, the Russian convict at the state prison, who a short time ago committed a murderous assault with a knife upon Deputy Warden Allen of that institution, was brought to the superior criminal court yesterday, to plead to the indictment which charged him with assault with intent to kill. Herris acted the part of a crazy man, and Judge Bond ordered an entry of "not guilty" to be made upon the indictment. The clerk told the defendant that he would be remanded for trial. As he is now serving a long term in the state prison no bail was set.

Quay Feels Safe.

Harrisburg, Jan. 20.—Senator Quay made the following statement yesterday before returning to Washington: "I am going to Washington to attend to some official matters that require my attention. The situation here as far as the United States senatorship is concerned is entirely satisfactory to me. I have not the slightest doubt of my election. My friends have a thorough and perfect organization, and I am satisfied to leave the management of my canvass in their hands during my absence."

Frohman's Latest Investment.

New York, Jan. 20.—Charles Frohman has secured the Lyric theater for a term of five years. This is the fifth New York theater acquired by him, and it is located in the Olympia building. It is to be isolated by heavy walls from the other parts of the house. It will be opened next fall.

TRUE HUMAN BROTHERHOOD.

Dr. Abbott Says the Constitution Is Written In Our Hearts.

Boston, Jan. 20.—Dr. Lyman Abbott, late of the Plymouth church, Brooklyn, spoke last night on "Expansion, Not Imperialism," the lecture being one of those instituted by the city. The lecturer took the ground that the policy of expansion, as far as the Philippines were concerned, would not be harmful to the American people or their government, and would be a great benefit to the Philippines. He believed in appeals to reason and not to remarks, and thought that was the idea of the majority of the American people. He believed in the righteousness of the Spanish war.

"I am not going to discuss," said the speaker, "whether the war was just or unjust, a necessary or unnecessary war. Personally, I believe it to be a most righteous and necessary war. I hope to see a right, just and honorable government established in place of that now in existence at Manila. I have no patience with those who say we must either annex the Philippines or allow the Filipinos to govern themselves. We want to do for the Philippines what we are doing today for Cuba, appoint the natives for mayors, commissioners, road builders and policemen.

"There must not be imperialism on the one hand and indifference on the other. It is possible to have our flag float over the Philippine islands and yet allow the Filipinos to have an absolutely free government, as we have.

"I believe that in America we have approached nearer to the true human brotherhood than in any other country in the world, notwithstanding all our faults. We have the constitution not written on paper alone, but in our hearts."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 20.—Representative Dalton will make a strong effort during the present session of the legislature to abolish capital punishment. He says the hearings upon the subject will demonstrate that the ablest men and women in Massachusetts favor the bill. His bill provides that in case a convict is wrongfully accused, and there is evidence to prove his innocence, he shall have an opportunity to present such evidence to the supreme judicial court, which shall have power to act in the matter.

Mr. Mills introduced a resolution requesting that a committee of seven and a similar number from the senate be appointed to go to Washington and invite President McKinley to address a joint session of the legislature on Feb. 16.

A set of resolutions was introduced in the house for a joint committee to invite President McKinley to visit the state legislature when he comes to Boston next month.

Mr. Washburn introduced a set of resolutions in the upper branch that may offer an easy solution of the question about anti-expansion papers now pending in the legislature. They express hearty thanks to Senator Hoar for his speech against an expansion policy, but do not make a distinct reflection on the junior senator, as do the Mellen resolutions.

C. F. Sargent and others petitioned that the law limiting the number of liquor licenses in towns and cities be repealed, whenever so voted at a general election by municipalities, and that the authorities be given discretionary powers as to the number to be granted in such cases.

John F. Wood and others petitioned for a law licensing peddling in Boston, providing that no person shall sell any goods, wares and merchandise from house to house unless licensed so to do by the superintendent of streets.

Peter F. Tague asked that the Boston Letter Carriers' union may hold grants, bequests and donations.

Alice Freeman Palmer and others petitioned for the incorporation of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae.

In No Hurry.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 20.—Governor Powers says in regard to the time of the special election to be held to elect a successor to the late Congressman Dingley: "There will be no election had at present. It would be impossible under the Australian ballot system to hold the election in time to have the successor take his seat before March 4. I do not know just when the election will be." Public men do not expect an election to be held before next September.

"Butterflies" In Dispute,

New York, Jan. 20.—Olive May, the actress, who September last secured a decree of divorce in North Dakota from her husband, Henry Guy Carleton, the playwright, was yesterday granted by the supreme court a temporary injunction, pending trial, restraining Carleton from producing the play "Butterflies," which his former wife claims he assigned to her as a wedding gift.

Judge Field Ill.

Boston, Jan. 20.—While on his way from the courthouse to the Union club yesterday, Chief Justice Walbridge A. Field of the supreme court fell prostrate at the corner of Beacon and Park streets, as the result of an attack of vertigo. Physicians who attended him said that the attack was probably brought on by indigestion, and indicated no failing in health.

Dishonest Postal Clerk.

Boston, Jan. 20.—W. L. Grady, a clerk in the Dorchester postoffice, was arrested yesterday on the charge of embezzlement. Two test letters were found upon him. Grady was held in $1500 bonds for a hearing. Grady lately has been reading law. He is not known to be a man of bad habits, or especially extravagant tastes.

Injured by Dynamite.

Beverly, Mass., Jan. 20.—By a premature explosion of a charge of dynamite three Italians employed by Connelly Bros., contractors, were seriously injured at Pride's crossing yesterday. Neither of them is expected to live.

The weather conditions are moderate over the whole country. A ridge of high pressure extends from southern New England to Texas, and thence through Utah to the middle Pacific coast. AMERICAN INTERESTS.

be devoid of benefit, if it serves to convince the three powers that the Berlin act requires immediate and radical amendment, in default of which Samoa will always be liable to become the prey of civil war, and a source of anxiety to the signatory powers. It might even be, as was nearly the case 10 years ago, the theatre of hostilities between two of their number.

Gravity of the Situation.

Berlin, Jan. 20.—The news from Samoa has been received with foreboding. The Lokal Anzeiger says: All this, doubtless, signifies an appreciable quarrel and, with the unceremoniousness which the Americans have affected lately toward us, it may easily take a serious turn. The Samoan situation has always involved a lurking danger.

The Vossische-Zeitung says: The situation will become even graver when the American warship arrives at Apia. It is said that the Washington department of state has instructed the United States consul general there (L. W. Osborn) not to trust the German consul. Evidently the United States, who are least interested in Samoa among the three powers, do not mean to respect Germany's paramount interests. Germany will have to show firmness, all the more so as our position is made the worse by the evident desire of England to help the United States, so as to retain the latter's friendship.

Test Was Success-ful.

New York, Jan. 20.—The board of ordnance and fortifications yesterday conducted a test of the Howell disappearing gun carriage at the Sandy Hook proving grounds. Five shots were fired from a 10-inch gun, with the regular service charge of a projectile weighing 575 pounds, and 240 pounds of powder. The total time of firing, including the handling of the gun, was 12 minutes and 38 seconds. Lieutenant Lewis said the test was very successful; that the mechanism of the carriage had worked well. He said the time could not be fairly compared with other carriages, as the test was not competitive.

Platt to Depew.

New York, Jan. 19.—Senator T. C. Platt has sent the following letter to Chauncey M. Depew: "Now that your election is an accomplished fact, I hasten to congratulate you upon the unanimity and enthusiasm, unparalleled in the political annals of the state, with which it was accomplished. I congratulate the Republican party of the state upon their harmony and union now existing, which your elevation emphasizes; and last, but not least, I congratulate myself upon the selection of a colleague so able and congenial."

Cordial Toward Americans.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—The court reception last night was a very brilliant affair. The emperor and empress were very cordial towards the members of the United States embassy, and the empress conversed at length with Mrs. White, wife of the United States ambassador, condoling with her on the loss of her mother. Mrs. White was obliged, on this occasion, owing to court etiquette, to doff her black. The wife of Professor Stiles, the United States scientific attache, attracted much attention.

A Dangerous Spot.

Boston, Jan. 19.—A passenger train on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad struck a milk wagon driven by John Aiken yesterday, killing the driver and demolishing the wagon. The accident occurred at the Freeman street crossing, and as the street is a private way, the roadway is not protected in the usual manner. Several other accidents have occurred on this spot, other teams having been struck, but this is the first fatality.

All For Four Cents.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Henry Allison, president of the Safety Fund National bank of Fitchburg, and senior member of the insurance firm of Allison & Borley, with headquarters in that city, who is charged with removing a 4-cent United States revenue stamp from a cancelled insurance policy and reissuing it on a bank check, was held yesterday for the United States district court in March under $1000 bonds. He was released under his own recognizance.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M. the well-known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

THERE IS A CLASS OF PEOPLE

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 1-4 as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

"BOSTON VEGETABLE VAPOR."

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. It is certainly a boon to suffering humanity to be relieved of the nausea too often following the administering of sedatives of the old school.—Boston Transcript.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Charles O. Brackett, a well known citizen of Quincy, died at his residence on Thayer street this morning after a brief illness of neuralgia of the heart, aged 64 years. Mr. Brackett was first taken ill Wednesday of this week, and although confined to his home, it was reported that he was about the house no later than yesterday, so that the end came suddenly. Mr. Brackett was for many years employed at the Boston & Albany railroad grain elevator, although for the past few years he has been engaged in selling hay and grain upon commission. He leaves a widow, a son and daughter the later being Miss Abby B. Brackett for a number of years clerk to the Board of Assessors.

IN LAND OF THE FREE.

Russian Quakers Come to Seek Civil and Religious Freedom.

Gladdened by the Sight of Promised Land.

Ten Infants Died While on the Voyage Across the Sea.

Halifax, Jan. 21.—The Elder Dempster line steamer Lake Huron arrived at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, with the first party of the 10,000 Doukhobortsi, who are coming to Canada to make new homes, and to escape the persecutions which have pursued them relentlessly in despotic Russia. No band of immigrants from the old world has awakened such interest in Canada as these spirit wrestling peasants from the shores of the Black sea. The Canadian government has expended great efforts in making every provision to ensure their comfort, and in arranging to expeditiously transport thef to their homes in Manitoba, and the Canadian northwest.

Like the Pilgrim Fathers, these poor Russian Quakers come to the American continent to seek civil and religious liberty. They have been persecuted for years, because their principles will not allow them to comply with certain government regulations, and finally they decided to leave their native land and settle in the new world.

It was a wonderfully impressive sight when the steamer entered the harbor yesterday, and the poor immigrants, gladdened by the sight of what was to them a promised land, fell on their knees on the deck, and men, women and children joined in a hymn of thanksgiving. Shortly afterwards Russian Prince Hilkoff came on board, and again the immigrants broke into a hymn of praise.

When the ship came to an anchor the Roukhobers gazed with interest at their surroundings. They were mainly undemonstrative and stolid in appearance. They seemed comfortable and showed pleasure at their safe arrival. The immigrants wear skin garments and caps.

Mr. Elkinton of Philadelphia and other Quakers who received them wore the broad-brimmed hats peculiar to their sect. The latter wept with emotion, and as their boat approached the side of the big steamer they called to the people leaning over the rail, "Welcome Doukhobors."

At the head of the gangway the scene was affecting. The immigrants recognized Prince Hilkoff and crowded around him, all eager to hear him speak and to kiss him. The striking feature was the psalm chanting and the solemn service. The former commenced by the passengers themselves as the ship slowly came to anchor.

The singing was strong in volume and remarkably plaintive. It was interrupted by the prince's advent on board and gave place to divine service conducted by Elkinton, who with streaming eyes and face raised to the blue sky and outstretched arms seemed deeply moved. This service consisted of prayer and supplication.

Everybody uncovered, notwithstanding the chilly atmosphere. The singing of the hymn was then resumed. The burden of the chant as translated from Russian by Prince Hilkoff was, "God Is With Us; He Has Brought Us Through."

The Lake Huron left Batoun on Dec. 22, and since leaving Gibraltar the steamer met some very rough weather. On account of the great crowd on board, there was considerable suffering, and it is doubtless because of this fact that no less than 10 infants died on the voyage. Outside of this, however, the passengers are remarkably free from contagion. There is one case of measles on board, but it has been isolated.

The Doukhobortsi will be forwarded in six train loads to Winnipeg, Brandon and Portage la Prairie, where unsettled land has been allotted to them. At these places the Canadian government has already laid in large quantities of supplies, for, although the government had nothing to do with the coming of the immigrants to Canada, they are anxious to give them a proper reception in the country which they have chosen to adopt.

As the Doukhobortsi are vegetarians, large quantities of vegetables have been provided at the various stations where they will settle. The arrangements for the sea migration of the Doukhobortsi were made by the Society of Friends in England. They engaged the Elder Dempster line steamers to carry them to St. John, and the Canadian Pacific railway to transport them westward to Manitoba and the northwest territories. A committee, consisting of Prince Hilkoff of Russia and three Winnipeg government officials, have charge of this people in Canada.

LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS.

President Looks With Favor Upon Samuel J. Barrows of Massachusetts.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Congressman Samuel J. Barrows is quite likely to be the next librarian of congress. Secretary Long was the first to suggest it, but he has been seconded by the Massachusetts senators and a large number of members of both houses who are acquainted with Mr. Barrows and realize the suitability of his appointment. Besides having a wide acquaintance with books, Congressman Barrows has had technical experience as a librarian, having organized and put upon an excellent basis the library of the state department.

REV. S. J. BARROWS.

There are many other candidates in the field, nearly every state presenting its man, but the president is said to have told a senator Thursday that he was really considering only two men for the place, and that one of these was Mr. Barrows of Massachusetts. For him the president has long had a high personal regard. No man who has served but a single term in congress is more favorably known at the White House.

Few positions are more coveted than that of librarian of congress. It is a position of honor and dignity. The salary is the same as that of a congressman. The opportunities for literary research and for advancing American scholarship can hardly be excelled. It has not in the past been regarded as a political plum, and Mr. Barrows would be likely to hold the position, if now nominated, indefinitely.

Assault at Marlboro.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 21.—Last evening while John Miller, an employe of the Middlesex factory, was going to his home, he was followed by two men, one of whom approached him as he was about to enter his yard. The stranger made reference to the fact that Miller was working against the principles of the strikers, and told him if he would cease work the union would pay him weekly a certain sum. Miller replied that he would rather work, as he believed the strike would terminate a failure. Thereupon the stranger struck Miller a heavy blow, felling him, his head striking on the ground, being severely cut. He also lost two teeth. The strangers departed.

More Claimants Appear.

Newport, R. I., Jan. 21.—The celebrated King will case, in which Mrs. Ross is the contestant, has developed another extremely interesting feature. New claimants have appeared, on the ground that they are descendants of one of the daughters of Dr. David King, the first. They assert that the Miss King, from whom they are descended, left Newport and settled in Ohio, that she married and that she was a sister of the William M. King whose property is in controversy, he having died without issue. Their contention is that they are entitled to the proportion of this estate a sister would have inherited, had she lived.

Vote For Editor Was Close.

Hartford, Jan. 21.—The Bricklayers and Masons' International union elected the following officers: President, William Klein of New York; first vice president, George Thompson of Newark; second vice president, William J. Sheedy of Hartford; secretary, Thomas O'Dea of Cohoes, N. Y.; treasurer, Patrick Murray of Albany; editor of the union's journal, Edward A. Moffett of Philadelphia. The question of an eight-hour law was left to the executive board, which consists of the above officers. The principal contest was for editor, and M. R. Grady of Chicago was defeated by two votes.

Sharkey on the List.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 21.—Thomas Sharkey visited Hemenway gymnasium yesterday at the request of Dr. Sargent, the athletic director of the university, and was measured and had his strength tested. Dr. Sargent pronounced Sharkey to be a very well developed man, his chest measurement being 46 inches. Nearly all of the heavyweight pugilists have been measured by Dr. Sargent, and the results are kept at the gymnasium for reference.

He refused to say anything in regard to his reported resignation from his position at the Knickerbocker club.

MOVING CAREFULLY.

Government Has Not Yet Received Definite News From Samoa.

Terms of Berlin Treaty Will Not Be Violated.

Judge Chambers' Decision May Have Been Due to Improper Influence.

Washington, Jan. 21.—All of the members of the cabinet were present at yesterday's meeting. The situation in Samoa was under discussion, but, in the absence of any official or late information, it is thought no action will be taken at once beyond asking for a conference between representatives of the three powers, which have concurrent jurisdiction over the island under the present treaty.

It was stated that it must be presumed that whatever overt action was taken by the German consul in Apia was not with the knowledge or consent of his sovereign, but rather was taken on his own account, and that such action, should it be found to amount to an unjust usurpation of authority under the treaty, will be promptly disavowed by the German government. It is believed that the conference of the three powers will be held at Berlin and at an early day.

The state department is moving with due deliberation, yet with firmness, respecting the adjustment of conditions in Samoa, and is directing all of its efforts now, as it has in the past, to the use of lawful and regular means to settle the succession at Apia. In fact, it was its insistence upon the compliance of all the parties to the tripartite treaty with the terms of that document so long as it stood undenounced and unamended that has made its position so strong legally at this juncture.

There is still a lack of official reports upon the details of the stirring events at Apia. A brief statement of these events has reached the department through the United States dispatch agent at San Francisco, but so far as can be gathered it is not yet known just why Chief Justice Chambers decided that Mataafa, the German candidate for the succession to the throne of Samoa, was ineligible. It is suspected here that the decision was based on the use of improper influence by outside but interested parties in the election of the king. That, if established, would be sufficient to disqualify Mataafa under the strict terms of the treaty, which expressly provides for an untrammelled choice by the natives, according to their own established customs. The United States government must adhere to the terms of the treaty so long as it stands, this being a duty imposed upon the government by the document itself. It is to be presumed, in the absence of an official statement, that the instructions sent to the United States consul general at Apia, and perhaps also to Ambassador White at Berlin, are to be governed by this understanding in any presentation of the case that it may be necessary to make.

The instructions to the Philippine commissioners have been prepared by the secretary of state and no doubt they will be presented to the commissioners before they leave for New York. They will be asked to inquire into the condition, characteristics and education of the people of the several islands of the Philippine group; the extent and character of the government in force in each; all facts as to the intercourse between the several islands, and all other facts necessary to a good knowledge of the people, their laws, customs, habits and social condition. The commissioners will be expected to interpret to the people the sentiments of friendship and good will of this government, and to explain that we do not come as conquerors, but friends anxious for their well being and advancement in the ways of civilization.

At the cabinet meeting the president signed a new tariff for Porto Rico, which will go into operation on Feb. 1 next. The regulations and general makeup of this tariff will be along the lines of that recently put into operation in Cuba, except that as a whole the rate of duty will be about 15 percent ad valorem, or 10 percent less than the Cuban tariff. The president had placed before him by Secretary Gage a form of executive order fixing the ratio between the native Porto Rican silver and the money of the United States. The ratio of the peso will be 60 cents to the dollar, American money.

Feeling In Germany.

Berlin, Jan. 21.—In authoritative quarters here it is firmly believed that the diplomatic negotiations, which must now inevitably be resumed, will lead to a solution of the Samoan question satisfactory to all the interested powers. It is thought most improbable that any complications will arise with the United States.

The Vossishe Zeitung assures its readers that the German government can be depended upon to act correctly and in accordance with the treaty obligations, "of course with due appreciation of German interests, which cannot be surrendered."

The Post remarks: When the actual situation is known, Germany will take a decision injurious to no existing rights.

The official Reichsanzeiger says Emperor William received the German minister of foreign affairs, Baron Von Buelow, in audience yesterday, and that later he accorded an audience to the British ambassador to Germany, Mr. Lasselles.

Horse In City Hall.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 21.—Daniel N. Govel was thrown out of his sleigh yesterday, and his shoulder blade was broken, and he is believed to be internally injured. The horse continued down a street at a furious pace, and dashed headlong into City Clerk Smith's office in the city hall, going through a thick plate glass door. The animal then tried to enter Mayor Clarke's office, being prevented only by the greatest effort. The sleigh was smashed to pieces, and the horse was uninjured.

COLORADO'S DAWSON.

NEW GOLD FIND WHICH HAS CAUSED AN OLD TIME STAMPEDE.

Camp Is Named For the Miner Who Discovered a Pay Streak In an Abandoned Copper Mine—Wild Rush For the New Field.

A new gold strike has been made in Colorado, and the miners of the west have joined in another of those famous stampedes. By a curious coincidence the strike was made by a man named B. X. Dawson. So the new camp is called Dawson. Just at present it is even livelier than the Klondike metropolis of the same name.

Dawson is a miner and prospector. He has four brothers who are also miners. He had been wandering about the Colorado goldfields for several months. A few weeks ago he was looking over the site of the Copper King, an abandoned copper mine about ten miles from Canon City and almost directly south of Denver. Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek are also in the neighborhood. Dawson decided to put up a shanty and spend some time in the neighborhood. A careless blow of his ax as he was clearing the ground knocked the top from a projecting ledge and showed him a vein of gold which is said to have assayed as high as $16,000 to the ton.

Dawson at once located his claim and sent for his brothers. The news leaked out, and within 24 hours thousands of people were on their way to the new strike. Being in a mining neighborhood and comparatively easy of access, the rush was a big one. Where Dawson's lonely hut had been tents by the hundreds began to spring up. The first one was erected by an enterprising saloon keeper who led the van in a wagon. He took with him three barrels of whisky. Three restaurants were started the first forenoon.

The mining camp was peopled as though by magic. Two dance halls were in full blast when night fell over the new camp, and a general provision store was doing a land office business.

The news of the find was telegraphed to Denver and all the other cities of the state, and every train that has gone into Canon City since then has carried carloads of fortune hunters.

The excitement aroused by the discovery of gold grew hourly. Denver capitalists sent trusted agents to the scene, accompanied by expert assayers, with instructions to buy every claim that could be purchased if the ore tests should warrant the investment. In Canon City and Dawson City the excitement was at fever heat.

Long before daylight on the morning after the news was spread the old Canon City and Silver Cliff road was thronged with a long string of wagons, horses and men on foot from Canon City. The hills on which the find was made were spotted all day with the prospectors. No profession or occupation withheld its members from joining in the hunt for gold.

Old men who could not bear the weight of picks scrambled up the snowy slopes in the wake of boys just out of the graded schools. Former convicts just out of the penitentiaries, lawyers, county officials, tradesmen and clerks joined in the procession with prospectors and trained geologists.

Women even joined in the chase. Men on foot begged transportation from the luckier ones in wagons and even prayed men on horseback to allow them the privilege of hanging to the horses' tails.

Experts on the ground say that there can be no doubt that a new and wonderfully productive goldfield has been discovered. The skeptical said at first that only a pocket had been found, but this theory has been exploded by new finds made. The original seam showed cubes and threads of pure gold in places, but most of the specimens show it mixed with mica and copper.

The new town which has been staked out lies at the foot of Greenhorn mountain, half a mile from the discovery claim. Creede and Cripple Creek have both been emptied of their floating population. A town company has been formed and a crude kind of local government organized. A spur railroad track will be put into the town.

All the scenes which have made famous the mining camps of former days are being repeated in the new Dawson. Reports of new finds cause frantic stampedes at intervals. Speculators are eagerly bidding for claims, and many wild rumors are circulated.

How long the new Dawson will last is not certain, but it will be several weeks before comprehensive examinations and assays can be made. If these indicate as much gold as has been reported, the boom will continue. If it is found that nothing but a pocket has been unearthed, the boom will fall flat, and Dawson will be deserted as quickly as it was populated.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

THE SULTAN OF SULU.

AN AMERICAN SUBJECT WHO IS LIKELY TO BE TROUBLESOME.

He Is an Uncivilized, Haughty, Headstrong Young Man, and His People Are Enthusiastic and Fearless Fighters—Gave Spain Lots of Bother.

As expansionists we have already had some little difficulty with Aguinaldo, and we are likely to have much more. But the Philippine problem is an easy one compared to that which awaits us in the Sulu islands. The would be president of the Filipino republic is as mild and tractable as a pet lamb when compared to the sultan of Sulu.

As this is the first real sultan who has ever become an American subject we ought to be very much interested in his personality. Biographical data about this new American potentate are somewhat lacking, but a few facts have been made public.

The sultan of Sulu is a young man. He knows about as much concerning civilization as we do of the other side of the moon. He is headstrong and haughty. He probably imagines that he is just as good as Hobson or any other great American, providing he has ever heard of Hobson. He will have to be thrashed a few times before he recognizes the American flag.

The inhabitants of the Sulus are called Moros. The foundation of the race is Malay, as in the Philippines, but the Moros have been strongly influenced by Arab blood. In the seventeenth century an Arab named Said Ali conquered the Sulu islands and forcibly converted the natives to Islamism. He and his followers took large numbers of wives, and thus added an Arabian strain to the Malay race.

The Moros are governed by sultans and by hereditary chiefs called datus. The latter are often supreme in their own domains, but are supposed to give homage to the sultan of Sulu.

The sultan lives as we expect a sultan to do. He has a great harem, replenish-

THE SULTAN OF SULU.

ed by periodical raids among all the Philippine islands. He has a grand vizier and a barber who tells him stories. The Moros are not particularly obedient to their sultan. Sometimes they kill him and sometimes they set up another in his place.

Mr. Dean C. Worcester, the acknowledged American authority on the Philippines, devotes considerable attention to the Sulu islands, their rival sultans and the blood curdling features of life there. A few years before the Spanish-American war the Spaniards deposed Mahmoud, the rightful sultan of Sulu, and appointed in his place a chief, under the title of "his excellency, Paduca Majasari Malauna Amiril Mauinin Sultan Harun Narrasid."

The Spanish had invited the rightful sultan to come to Manila and be invested with his crown. Remembering that a predecessor, who received a similar invitation, had been kept in prison for life by the Spanish, the sultan did not respond. Thereupon the Spanish put Harun in his place.

That did not worry the legitimate sultan. Harun occupied the palace in the city of Sulu, carefully guarded by Spanish soldiers. Mahmoud occupied the rest of the island with 10,000 well armed followers.

The most interesting character in Sulu is the old sultana, mother of the Sultan Mahmoud. Although born a slave, she married a previous sultan. She hastened his departure from this world with corrosive sublimate. When Harun was appointed sultan, she sent him an offer of marriage, but he declined it, as "he wished to die a natural death." Mr. Worcester remarks that she has a genius for organization, but a mania for poisoning.

The social arrangement is distinctly feudal, each nobleman keeping a large number of armed retainers, who are employed to fight in his behalf if there be occasion. The nobles form a governing council, in which the sultan has two votes. All the land is owned by the datus, and the common people are severely oppressed. Those who can afford the luxury have slaves, who, as a rule, are badly treated. The masters have power of life and death over their slaves, and a nobleman who happens to be displeased with one of his human chattels is as apt as not to strike off his head with a single sweep of his creese.

A Sulu nobleman never goes abroad without being accompanied by a band of armed followers. Indeed the whole population is always armed. Arms form part of the national costume. A gentleman of the archipelago commonly carries a lance and a creese, both of which he knows how to use with great dexterity. The blowpipe is a national weapon. It is a hollow tube of palm, through which small darts are propelled by the breath to considerable distance and with marvelous accuracy. This instrument is employed chiefly for killing birds.

It is to be feared that not a few bright young American soldiers will die by the creese and poisoned arrow before the sultan of Sulu has been thoroughly introduced to Uncle Sam.

LIEUTENANT H. R. GAHAN.

MR. BLISS' SUCCESSOR.

The New Cabinet Member a Highly Successful Business Man.

Ethan Allen Hitchcock, the new secretary of the interior, who was appointed while serving as embassador to Russia, is a prominent St. Louis business man and a personal friend of President McKinley. He is at the head of a large glass manufacturing concern, and first met the president in 1890 when the latter was drafting the new tariff bill, in the work of which Mr. Hitchcock assisted materially.

Mr. Hitchcock was born in Mobile, Ala., in 1825. He is the son of Henry

ETHAN ALLEN HITCHCOCK.

Hitchcock, an eminent lawyer, who went to Alabama from Vermont to practice law and was so successful that at the time of his death, in 1839, he was chief justice of the state. The family then removed to Tennessee, where young Ethan lived until 1851. After taking an academic course in New Haven he went to St. Louis and engaged in business up to 1860, when, at the urgent request of relatives in China, he left for that country to accept employment in the old established firm of Olyphant & Co.

Mr. Hitchcock has since been actively engaged in business as president of several large manufacturing and railway corporations at St. Louis.

While minister to Russia Mr. Hitchcock has labored to introduce in that country machinery and articles made in the United States. Before sailing Mr. Hitchcock visited some of the largest manufacturing establishments in the country and promised to co-operate with the manufacturers to further their interests.

Colonel Hitchcock is a great-grandson of Colonel Ethan Allen, who captured Fort Ticonderoga "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental congress." He has for years been a society leader in St. Louis and is wealthy. His brother, Henry Hitchcock, is a leading lawyer of St. Louis and was offered a place on the bench of the supreme court by President Harrison, but declined.

SACRED BIT OF BONE.

Relic of St. Anthony Which Is Being Exhibited In New York.

Hundreds of pilgrims from all parts of the country have visited the little church of Our Lady Queen of Angels in New York for the purpose of kissing the relic of St. Anthony which was recently brought over from Padua for exhibition in this country. At the conclusion of the first service at which the relic was exhibited it is estimated that more than 5,000 persons accepted the invitation to kiss the relic.

The sacred relic of St. Anne in the little French-Canadian church of St.

THE RELIC OF ST. ANTHONY.

John the Baptist, New York, is reputed to have worked marvelous cures, and equally marvelous cures are expected from the exposure of this relic of St. Anthony.

The relic is a splinter from the thigh bone of St. Anthony. The fragment of bone is scarcely larger than a good sized pea. It is set in jewels arranged in the form of the emblem of the Capuchin order. It has a blood red stone for a background and is mounted on a silver stand covered with glass. The genuineness of the relic is certified in Latin.

The relic is in charge of the Capuchin friars who conduct the church and was sent to them by the very reverend father superior of the basilica in Padua.

The Remedy.

The remark is so frequently made that "a man who refused to give his name was knocked down by a street car," or that "a woman whose identity could not be learned was run over by a grocer's wagon," that the Springfield Homestead advises people to give their names cheerfully and avoid such a penalty.

ORDEAL BY FIRE IN INDIA

Performance of a Strange Ceremony at Benares.

ACCOUNT OF AN EYEWITNESS.

Sivaite Hindoos Walked Unharmed Over a Bed of Live Coals Before Mrs. Besant and Others—Their Bare Feet Were Untouched by the Fire. Even Little Children Were Unhurt.

A controversy having arisen in some of the papers about the recent performance of the fire ceremony at Benares, India, an account of what actually took place, by an English onlooker, may be of interest. It was during the recent convention of the Theosophical society that, a good many of us who are interested in the life of India below the surface being present, some Hindoo friends arranged with a certain sect of Sivaite Hindoos, who claim the power of rendering fire harmless, to give an exhibition of their powers. Accordingly a trench was dug in the grounds of the Tagore villa about 15 feet by 4, and this was filled with logs of wood, which were left to blaze all day. In the evening the trench was filled by a thick layer of glowing coals giving off a tremendous heat. At 7 p. m. we repaired to the scene of action. Our party consisted of Mrs. Besant, Countess Wachtmeister, Dr. Richardson, late professor of chemistry at University college, Bristol; Dr. Pascal, a French doctor of medicine; Mr. Bertram Keightley, barrister-at-law; Miss Lilian Edger, M. A.; Colonel Olcott and others. Chairs were arranged for us on a kind of dais formed of the earth thrown out of the trench and about eight feet from it. This was the nearest point to the big fire at which one could bear the scorching heat. At our back, and surrounding the trench, was a dense but orderly crowd of hundreds of Hindoos. All waited with eager expectation. At last a hubbub approaching from the gates of the villa announced the arrival of the procession.

It consisted of a chief priest, who presided, carrying a sword, two others who were going to pass through the flames, and an image in a glass canopy borne along by others. The leader intimated that his two colleagues would pass through the fiery furnace, and afterward anybody who liked of the male persuasion might follow them through unharmed, but no women were permitted to go through. Then ensued a most extraordinary and in some respects painful spectacle. It is a doctrine of Hindooism that all the functions of nature, fire, rain, etc., are presided over by nature spirits. This particular sect of Hindoos claims to have preserved the secret of being able to control the fire spirits so that for the time they are unable to burn. Whatever may be the explanation these are the facts.

Certain mystic ceremonies having been performed and cocoanuts having been tossed into the flames the two junior priests apparently became possessed. With frantic shrieks and cries they passed twice round the blazing trench, preceded by the chief priest with his sword and followed by the brilliantly illuminated canopy. Then, still in a frenzy painful to behold, they plunged up to their ankles in the scorching furnace and passed backward and forward several times, the redhot coals and sparks scattering about their feet. The crowd followed in their wake, first one or two individuals, until the others, gaining confidence and caught by enthusiasm, rushed through in hundreds, even little children of 4 and 5 years old running up and down the trench over the burning coals exactly as if it had been a soft carpet. All were unhurt. Among those who ventured was a brother of one of our party. This gentleman, whose name I am prepared to give privately, walked through the trench twice very slowly, and described the sensation afterward as having been like walking over hot sand.

A skeptic among us having propounded the theory that the feet of natives were covered by an integument so dense that it was proof even against live coals, Dr. Pascal carefully examined the feet of this witness immediately after his performance and found the skin of the soles was of the normal thickness of European feet and that they were untouched by the fire. I saw one man deliberately pause in the middle of the trench to pick up a handful of the flaming embers, which he then carried through to the side. A linen turban which fell from some one's head lay on the coals without igniting, as did the cocoanuts. The priests remained on the scene for about 20 minutes, during which time the two apparently possessed men were held by others. After they left the crowd was advised to cease experimenting with the fire, and no more passed over. At this stage Dr. Richardson and myself left our seats and attempted to approach to the brink of the fiery gulf, but the heat was so great that we had to turn back.—Cor. Labore (India) Civil and Military Gazette.

A Society Note.

A dinner dance is the proper thing. It kills two birds with one stone, and if it is not kept up late enough to be called a breakfast dance it should be a good thing. The dinner for a dinner dance can be made a light affair and will please all save the swine of society, who dine out for what they may get to eat.—New Orleans Picayune.

Difference In Living.

It is true that Embassador Hitchcock's salary was $17,500 per annum and that Secretary Hitchcock's salary will be only $8,000 per annum, but think of the difference in the expense of living between St. Petersburg and Washington!—Boston Advertiser.

DESIGNS FOR CAMPS.

Simple and Convenient Homes For Summer Outings.

[Copyright, 1899, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

Oh, for a camp in the wilds, a time in the silent woods, away from the busy city, where we may fish and shoot, shout and play, and have a rest from all dull business cares! This is how we feel at least once a year, some time about the Fourth of July generally, and the man who owns a few acres, with a camp of one or two rooms, in some sequestered spot in the mountains or at the lakeside has decidedly the best of it over those who have to take to a hotel at their outing time. A party can go together, and a well equipped camp will shelter all. Have your camp already furnished and let everything in it be of the simplest and most inexpensive but substantial order. There should be a strong table, a few chairs and benches, half a dozen hammocks (the hooks for these carefully adjusted) and cooking utensils, crockery, etc. The closet is the only place needing a lock, as in it you keep your bedding, stores, guns and ammunition, and it is the only part requiring locking up when you leave. Everything else can be safely left open in the hope that it may serve to shelter some benighted huntsman, for whom you leave a standing invitation by the open door, and a written notice may be left to visitors asking them to carefully leave fire, close door and protect property in general. On these liberal terms you can always depend upon fair treatment, since it is doing as you would be done by, which is an excellent rule to follow, even in camp life.

The camps illustrated are both in the Adirondack mountains. The small one is constructed of rough slabs, with the bark on, carefully fitted together. The interior is ceiled up in panels, the fireplace being stone and the parts exposed to fire brick lined. The roof is shingled and projects about five feet, giving excellent shelter. The stairs go up to the flat part of the roof, which is used as an observatory, and with its flagpole is a useful adjunct to camp life.

The two story, two room camp has been added to considerably since it was first built, as here shown, and is now quite a large house, the two story part being the nucleus for the present house. It is a good idea to erect a part, just enough to try the life, and if it proves desirable it is easy to add to it, and as the family needs grow the house can grow with them.

I have taken great pleasure in planning many camps and mountain cottages on this line and have derived much satisfaction from the enjoyment the owners have obtained from their success and use. I believe camp life can be utilized as a forerunner in building up any desirable mountain section, if rightly set about by those interested, and especially so if they know how to take advantage of the natural resources and materials to be found in the woods themselves.

Cellar Ventilation.

For cellar ventilation use one or more windows at either end, the sash glazed and hung on hinges so the window can be raised or lowered, as desired, by a balance weight and cord from a pulley at the side. Put a good wire screen outside to keep mice and insects from entering, and you will have a cellar as perfect as any room in your house.—American Homes.

Good Afternoon.

The "clean sweep" of the officers at City Hall was expected, and yet Mayor Keith admitted to the Ledger that it was not his original intention, and he did not start in with that purpose. Many of the present incumbents have friends among Democrats, as well as Republicans, who would have been better pleased with their reappointment. Several desired to see Commissioner Knowlton retained. Others believed it would be a mistake to remove City Treasurer Gray. Yet it seems to be generally admitted that very good selections have been made all the positions. The Wollaston ward and Atlantic ward think, however, that they came out at the little end of the horn with only one appointee each, and that on the board of assessors where each ward is expected to have one. It was a little singular, however, that in this respect Ward One should have no assistant assessor, while Ward Two will have two. Wards One and Two get their share of the plums—six each—while Ward Three gets two and Ward Four but three.

With but few exceptions all the appointees will be recognized as "good Democrats." For the positions requiring the most active service, young men have been selected,—the Commissioner of Public Works, City Treasurer, City Solicitor and City Physician all being in the thirties. While for positions requiring mature judgment Mayor Keith has not only secured age but experience.

There are yet to be appointed by the Mayor, a Collector of Taxes, an Inspector of Milk, an Inspector of Animals and Provisions, three Park Commissioners, six Trustees of Thomas Crane Public Library, six Managers of Burial Place, six Managers of Adams academy, and a Registrar of Voters for three years.

There seems considerable doubt as to the authority of the Mayor to abolish the board of Water Commissioners. Chapter 401 of the Acts of 1891, under which Mayor Keith acted, was never operative, as the city did not introduce a water supply; but instead purchased the works of the Quincy Water Company. However, it is true that the city has availed itself of the privilege of issuing water bonds under the Act of 1891 in excess of the amount permitted by other acts. The act of 1891 has well been termed the "bluff act," while the act of 1892 was secured after the taking, and is "An act authorizing the appointment of Water Commissioners for the City of Quincy, and providing means for the purchase of the franchise, corporate property, and all the rights and privileges of the Quincy Water Company."

Section 1 of the act of 1892 quoted in the Ledger is almost identical with Section 11 of the Act of 1891. There is certainly a fine law point involved, and the Water Commissioners may not transfer the property. However, Section 2 of the Act of 1892, says the Commissioners shall be under the general supervision and control of the Mayor, and it would be easy for his honor to remove the members.

THEY ALL CHEERED

All Norfolk Downs Interested in House Moving.

Pleased at Success of Contractor Shaw.

Unable to Collect on House He Moved It Off the Lot.

John Cavanagh & Sons evidently meant business when they appeared on Rawson road at Norfolk Downs yesterday with six teams loaded with moving blocks, etc., and sixty men. It did not take the people long to find out what was up, and the movement seemed to have the approval of the neighbors generally. Upon Rawson road there was upon a lot of 5,000 feet, an unfinished house; one which Alfred Shaw, the local contractor had erected, but upon which he had been unable to secure any payments. The house was approaching completion, and was about ready for the plaster. Messrs. Cavanagh arrived about 4 P.M. and proceeded directly to work. It was remarked that they seemed to know their business, and it required but a short time to run timbers under the house and jack it up. Sentinels were posted to give notice of "enemies" and the work progressed rapidly. Early in the evening the horses were in motion, and the house was on the move. Everyone present seemed anxious to give the house a push, but the horses were equal to the occasion, and as early as 10.15 the house cleared the lot amid cheers that were heard almost a mile away.

It was a quick job but a rush was necessary, as the work would have gone for naught, had an opportunity been offered to secure an injunction to stop the work. But it was not intended to offer this opportunity.

Mr. Shaw, who is a small contractor with only a small capital, is respected by acquaintances and people of Norfolk Downs generally. The step that he took was upon the advice of his lawyer, and there is great rejoicing at the apparent success.

The house is a pretty French roof cottage, with a frontage of thirty feet and a depth of thirty-eight feet. The roof had been shingled and sides clapboarded. The cost of the house when completed was to have been about $3,000. When moved it was taken in a northerly direction for about two hundred feet. The building movers are at work today upon the building and it will be moved across the street to a lot at the corner of Billings street and Rawson road.

A BUNCO GAME.

Some of the suburban contractors and builders have recently learned to their grief of a neatly planned and carefully executed bunco game, one which seems to be beyond the reach of any legal redress.

The scheme, as reported to a Herald man the other day is like this: A plot of land is purchased in some suburban locality, and laid out in house lots by a party with capital enough to buy the land and plot it into house lots. The principal does not appear in the transaction, but the property is deeded to another party, who might not inaptly be styled the stool-pigeon for the principal. Then the principal takes a mortgage on the lots for twice or thrice their value. When things have reached this stage of the game the ostensible owner, whom we will call the mortgagor, looks around for a carpenter to build him one or more houses on the lots.

When the mortgagor finds a contractor who is willing to take a contract to build the contract is placed with the agreement that the first payment is not to be made on the structure until the building is up and finished on the outside.

When the building has reached that stage where the first payment to the contractor is due from the mortgagor, the latter has a nearly completed house on the lot, lacking only the interior finish. The contractor is then likely to apply to the mortgator for his money due him, as per contract. To his astonishment he is told that the mortgagor has no money, and is unable to meet his obligations. The contractor's first recourse in such a contingency is to place a mechanic's lien on the property to recover his claim for material and labor used in the construction of the building.

Then the contractor for the first time learns that there is a mortgage on the land, and that the land holds the building. The principal, or mortgagee, now appears on the scene, and flourishing his mortgage in the face of the bewildered contractor, says: "Look here, sit, I hold a mortgage on that property, and if you want to recover your money invested in the construction of that house, you must first pay me my claim as otherwise I shall hold the building subject to my mortgage on the land."

The contractor then learns that there is a mortgage of $1200 or $1500 on the lot, the actual value of which is not more than $400 or $500. This places the contractor in a position where he must either purchase the lot on which the uncompleted house stands for two or three times its value, or lose what he has expended in labor and material on the building, as he cannot have recourse to a process of law to enforce his claim.

The transaction between the mortagor and mortgagee in the deal is apparently, on the face of it, perfectly legal, and the matter of proving fraud or collusion between them is practically impossible, thus leaving the honest contractor without redress.

The victims are, as a rule, the smaller builders and contractors, who are not blessed with a very large amount of capital and are therefore not in a condition to make a legal fight.

The only protection the builder has it would seem is to carefully look up the financial standing of the parties who are anxious to place contracts for buildings and ascertain what encumbrance if any is on the land on which it is proposed to build.

Quincy Yacht Club.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Quincy Yacht club held on Thursday evening the revision of the declaration of trust was finished. The catamaran type of boat is barred out under the clause "No point of any cross section of a yacht shall be lower than its centre."

It was voted to insert these two articles in the call for the annual meeting: "To see if the club will authorize the regatta committee to revise the rules and regulations;" and also "to see if the club will amend Article VIII of the by-laws by striking out the word "five" in the second line and inserting the word "eight."

The latter proposition proposes to raise the dues from five to eight dollars annually. Th ballot which was filled with the committee was as follows:

Commodore,—Fred B. Rice.

Vice Commodore,—Edwin E. Davis.

Secretary and Treasurer, — Harold B. Faxon.

Measurer,—William C. Harrison.

Executive Committee, — William P. Barker, Henry M. Faxon, George E. Pfaffmann, and John W. Sanborn.

House Committee, — Herbert W. Barker, George D. Follett, Charles W. Hall, George W. Jones, Frederick E. Jones, William H. Shaw, James S. Whiting and Joseph L. Whiton, Jr.

Challenge from Beverly.

Another challenge for the Quincy yacht club's $500 challenge cup for 21-footers will soon be sent, says the Globe. It will come from W. E. C. Eustis of the Beverly yacht club, and may result in the building of several 21-footers by members of the club, so that Mr. Eustis may be certain of having a fast boat.

At a special meeting of the Beverly club yesterday afternoon, a formal sanction to the challenge of Mr. Eustis was given, and an amendment to the club's sailing rule was made so that the boats could carry five men, as under the Quincy rules, instead of four as under the original Beverly rule.

Mr. Eustis is widely known as a racing man in both large and small yachts, and has raced in recent ye ars with the 17-footers Grilse and Cape lin, and the 33-footers Salmon and Cero. He is an enthusiast in the sport, and has original ideas as to model and design which have been well worked out in his latest flyers. Something fast may confidently be expected.

Assurance of the acceptance of his challenge has already come from the Quincy club, and a race next summer for the cup between three if not four competitors is assured.

The engagement is announced of Miss Emma E. Jarvis of Neponset and Mr. George W. Wise, Jr., of Dorchester.

Mrs. Effie Rhines is arranging for a grand private masquerade party to be held in Faxon hall, Wasington's Birthday.

Another of the social dances by by Winthrop J. Fearebay was held in Music hall Atlantic last evening and was a great success.

A whist party will be given at Brasee hall next Monday evening, Jan. 23d under the direction of Mrs. William W. Chase.

Frederic Allison Tupper headmaster of the Quincy High school entertained the foot ball eleven of the school with a complimentary dinner at The Greenleaf last evening.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Aid Association will be held Thursday, Jan. 26th, at 3 P. M., in the room of the Granite Manufacturers' Association in Durgin & Merrill's block.

Amusing replies are often made by witnesses in cases at the District Court. One of these incidents occurred this morning when a witness in a civil case in reply to a question as to how many children he had, smilingly said pretty near a dozen.

Those that have had the rare pleasure of a winter in the south can appreciate the fact of the fine weather at present down there. Mr. Henry P. Kittredge and Mr. Walter Burrell who are at Hawkes Park, Florida for the winter months report fine balmy weather and the orange groves in full blossom.

The engagement is announced of Mr. Evart W. Adams of Colorado Springs to Miss Anna P. Putnam of Danvers, Mass. Mr. Adams is a son of Mr. Warren W. Adams and is well known in Quincy where he has a host of friends who are sending congratulations.

Good skating is found almost anywhere. The many hollow places about the fields containing water early in the week now afford to those who love to skate an opportunity not often enjoyed when moon and weather conditions are taken into account. Parties old and young were seen out last evening where ice could be found.

Wednesday evening occurred the chicken supper given by the Ladies' Benevolent society which proved quite a success. The dramatic and musical entertainment advertised in connection with the supper was obliged to be postponed on account of the serious illness of some of the performers. It will be given, probably, a week or two later.

At the Calvary Baptist church last night, the Sunday School scholars with their parents and friends spent a very enjoyable evening. The principal item on a good programme was a very interesting and instructive address given by Rev. David Kerr, the pastor. It was illustrated by candles and a few sacred solos. At the close Deacon Farquhar, superintendent of the school, and the teachers, distributed to all the scholars a seasonable gift purchased from the money so generously given by Mr. Henry H. Faxon to the Sabbath School. Mrs. Lloyd Jones played the accompaniment on the organ.

Mr. Ira Litchfield of Pearl street passed another mile stone yesterday his sixty-fifth, and that it might not pass unnoticed Mrs. Litchfield so planned it that the Ladies Whist club with their better halves should call in the evening. The result was that Mr. Litchfield found himself surrounded by a number of his friends. The gathering was in the nature of a surprise but none the less enjoyable the only regret being that he was little under the weather from the grip. Whist of course was the game of the evening with five tables. Light refreshments were served and at a seasonable hour the guests took their departure with many wishes for a prosperous year.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 2, 1899.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1898, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvass will be commenced on Jan. 1, 1899.

EDGAR G. CLEAVES, City Clerk.

BRAINTREE.

J. F. Sheppard & Sons commenced ice cutting again on Thursday.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McGibbon has been quite ill this week.

Mr. George D. Willis has sold his handsome black horses to an Abington gentleman.

Mr. Field, principal of the Monatiquot Grammar school, has been confined to his room with the grip.

Rev. O. O. Ordway left last night for North Haven, Me., where he will preach for the coming month.

The skating on the Old Colony meadows is excellent and large parties from this and surrounding towns have been enjoying the fine moonlight nights

The Union Choral society met with the Weymouth society on Tuesday evening and although many had that roughness in the throat the members managed to have a very successful sing. Next Wednesday night the societies meet at Braintree.

Capt. Emerson resigned his position in the Boys' Brigade at the meeting on Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected to fill the vacancy. Capt. A. A. Dyer; First Lieutenant E. F. Dyer; Second Lieutenant Leroy Day; First Sergeant Thurlow Torrey.

The finest speaker in his line, in this country is Mr. Henry T. Bailey who is to give an address on "Art instruction in our schools," at the Jonas Perkins school hall next Tuesday evening. Mr. Bailey illustrates his talks with drawings on a blackboard and keeps the interest and attention of his audience to the end.

The Braintree Roller polo club disbanded this week on account of some of the members not taking interest in the game. For the last two Wednesday nights they have disappointed the management of the East Weymouth rink by not showing up to play at that place.

Mrs. William Tirrell met with a very painful accident Sunday morning. She was coming from the bakery, the sidewalk was very slippery, and when near Hall avenue she slipped and fell breaking her hip. She was conveyed to her home and Dr. Brett was called, who in turn called to his assistance Dr. T. Haven Dearing, who set the break. She is getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances. It will be three months before she can walk again. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Many of the friends of Rev. John Purcell, attended the concert given at Atlantic on Wednesday evening, by the teachers connected with the Sunday School of the Sacred Heart church, of which Rev. Fr. Purcell is director. There was an excellent programme. Miss Winnifred G. Shay and Master Leo. McSherry of this town took part. The singing by Miss Hyde was much enjoyed; as was also that of Master Smith. A purse of money was presented the reverend director.

Mrs. George A. Arnold and Mrs. M. A. Minchin are victims of the grip.

Mr. Charles Gardner, the oldest resident of Braintree, died at his home in East Braintree, Thursday, at the age of 91.

Surveyors have been at work in East Braintree, apparently with a view to separating the Quincy avenue grade crossing.

Mr. C. O. Miller completed the great ship house for the Fore River Engine works last night.

Mr. Ellsworth will draw some lessons from the life of the late Mr. Dingley tomorrow morning at 10.30. Subject for evening "Something New."

Dr. Samuel Dike, father-in-law of Mrs. Ellen J. Dike, Washington street, died at Bath, Maine, on the 9th inst., aged 85. He was a man of much influence in Maine in educational matters. At the age of 70 he went round the world; and may be remembered here, as he gave a lecture a few years ago in the First church.

Mr. George H. Gerrior met with a serious accident Wednesday night while driving his provision wagon near the residence of E. W. Arnold; his horse ran and in some way Mr. Gerrior was thrown out and received a severe scalp wound. He was taken to Dr. T. H. Dearing's where both Dr. T. H. and Dr. H. L. Dearing were called upon to dress the wound. It was first thought the wound was a dangerous one but at time of writing we learn that the patient is recovering.

1,000,000 GIVEN AWAY.

By a special and particular arrangement with the manufacturers of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, free trial bottles of this great medicine for the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Constipation will be sent absolutely free, postpaid, to all persons suffering from any of the diseases mentioned above who will send their full name and post office address to the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., providing they mention the Quincy Ledger when they write.

A very simple test to determine whether your Kidneys or Bladder are diseased is to put some of your urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has a sediment or a cloudy, ropy or stringy appearance, if it is pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that you are in a dangerous condition. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedily cures such serious symptoms as a pain in the back, inability to hold urine, a burning scalding pain in passing it. Frequent desire to urinate especially at night, the staining of linen by your urine and all unpleasant and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

By a searching investigation it was found that over 91 per cent. of the people who sent for a sample bottle were so much benefited by its use that they purchased a large size bottle of their druggist, which in most cases cured them, while in some rare instances it took as many as two or even three bottles to effect a permanent cure.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per large bottle, or six bottles for $5.00.

IN A SMASH UP.

Electric Demolishes a Buggy—Miraculous Escape.

A collision between an electric car and a light top buggy where the buggy is reduced to a useless wreck, and the occupant of the carriage, a lady, escapes without injury, is almost miraculous. An accident of this nature took place on Hancock street, Norfolk Downs, Thursday night, about 5.50 o'clock.

Mrs. E. M. Pope residing on Billings street, Atlantic, whose custom it is to drive to the T. R. & S. Co.'s works nightly to convey home her husband, who is foreman of the machine shops of that establishment, was on her way thither at her usual time. When opposite Mr. Turner's carriage shop on Hancock street, she came up to a slowly moving express wagon loaded with what appeared to be empty boxes and piled so high and broad that a view of the street in front was obscured

Mrs. Pope was on the right side of the street and attempted to pass. Turning to the left brought the buggy onto the car tracks. She had not proceeded far when she noticed a north bound car approaching rapidly. Whipping up the horse in an effort to clear the car, she barely succeeded in getting the animal clear from the track when the car struck the buggy and completely demolished it. Mrs. Pope miraculously escaped serious injury if not death.

Those on the car who witnessed the accident were horrified at the scene, and could hardly believe the lady's own word that she was not injured. Mrs. Pope, owing to the suddeness of the collison and the natural excitement attending, had not a clear conception of how she came out of it all with only a shaking up.

The Commercial Club.

The list of names to form the new business and social club continues to increase, says the Braintree Reporter, and the committee is gratified with the generous support which so far has been given. As usual in such cases, there is a variety of opinions in regard to the methods of conduct of the club, but the committee who investigated the matter believe that the Commercial club of Brockton is a good example of the club that should be established in Braintree.

Not only has that club been a centre through its entertainments and receptions of refined social life for its members and their families, but it has also taken the initiative in the important municipal and social movements that have done so much to build up and unify that enterprising city.

At each meeting the club listens to a presentation or discussion of some question of public interest, such as railroad service, taxation, schools, highways, or the industrial enterprises of the city. It has entertained Thomas A. Edison, the railroad commissioners, the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, the state highway commission and many other distinguished and influential people, who have been glad to give its member the best results of their experience and study. In consequence, Brockton had the first village electric lighting plant in the United States; its railroad improvements recently completed have cost more than $3,000,000,; it is the seat of the county court house; from it state roads are being constructed to Whitman and Easton; its agricultural fair is the best in New England.

The club house has afforded the ladies of the club excellent opportunities for both sociability and culture. They have enjoyed many lectures on literature, art, foods, cooking, home sanitation, etc., and have entertained some of the most interesting women of this country. Many of the people who have been entertained and in turn have entertained, have been introduced to the club through friends or acquaintances among its members.

While the committee realize that such a club is more expensive than a club that renders none of these services, yet they are unanimously of the opinion that is inestimable value to its members and to the town of Braintree will more than offset the additional expense made necessary. The committee unanimously recommend that if a business and social club be formed in Braintree, it be formed on this broad basis.—Brockton Times.

CARE.

All in the leafy darkness, when sleep had passed me by,
I knew the surging of the sea,
Though never wave were nigh.
All in the leafy darkness, unbroken by a star,
There came the clamorous call of day,
While yet the day was far.
All in the leafy darkness, woven with hushes deep,
I heard the vulture wings of fear
Above me tireless sweep.
The sea of doubt, the dread of day, upon me
surged and swept,
All in the leafy darkness,
And while the whole world slept.
—Virginia Woodward Cloud in Century.

HER OBJECT LESSON.

She was very pretty, very witty, very sarcastic. Her world had a wholesome dread of Mrs. Trelawney's tongue. She had just intimated a desire for an ice, and her attendant satellites had dispersed at once, each eager to be foremost in the quest.

She had had a busy day, and it was pleasant and cool there behind the palm. She only wished that people would not whisper somewhere near. If only they were aware how much farther a whisper carried than an ordinary tone! And while she meditated an epigram on this subject she opened her eyes and looked round impatiently for the whisperers.

There was a particularly ineligible corner near Mrs. Trelawney's snug retreat, a three cornered, low backed seat, in the full glare of the light and unpleasantly close to an intrusive and spiky cactus.

Hither had retreated a poor cousin of the hostess, a little girl of 17, underdressed and pale faced, conspicuous only for a very new and shining wedding ring. She had been alone most of the evening, and now it was she and her boy husband whose whispering had disturbed Mrs. Trelawney.

"Darling, are you enjoying yourself?" whispered the boy husband.

"So much, dear!" answered the little girl enthusiastically. "It's all so pretty and so amusing to watch. I've never seen anything so pretty in my life!"

"I've been helping Lady Lucy. She asked me to take some old ladies down to supper," the boy husband went on with a comical importance. "You're sure you are not dull here all alone?"

"Dull? Oh, dear no!" cried the little girl, opening wide eyes of amazement. "Oh, there's Lady Lucy looking at us, dear. I expect she wants you again."

The boy hurried off again, proud and elated, and his little wife sat smiling after him from her corner. Mrs. Trelawney looked sharply from one to the other. "I wonder how long that state of things will last?" she meditated cynically.

She knew a certain amount about the affairs of the foolish couple—Lady Lucy had confided various details in the course of her apology for their presence there at all. The boy was a journalist, with a microscopic income and very limited talents, and the little wife was penniless, and they had a tiny flat somewhere in the east—some uncivilized locality, the bare thought of which sent a shudder through Lady Lucy. "In ten years' time," she said to herself, "what will have become of them?" And at that point she paused aghast.

It was exactly ten years since she herself, a girl of 17, had made a runaway love match with handsome Captain Trelawney.

She sat curiously white and still, while that dead and half forgotten past flashed vividly before her. She would never have thought it possible then for her husband to be at his club while she amused herself successfully elsewhere, and now this was the normal state of things between them.

There had been no quarrel, no dispute. They had simply drifted away from each other in those ten years of married life, until now they were comparative strangers. Neither could have told how or when the division began.

She looked at the uncomfortable corner again and with new eyes. That pale little face was the happiest in the room—the only contented one in sight—and when the boy husband came near, always with a glance and smile in that direction, what a radiant look was floated back at him! They really seemed to be enjoying their evening.

Mrs. Trelawney reflected, and then, with an indescribable sensation, it occurred to her that she, the admired and petted society beauty, was actually envying that plain, badly dressed, penniless little girl.

Mrs. Trelawney breathed a long sigh of relief when the brougham door was shut upon her and she was on her way home. She had a long way to drive, plenty of time to follow out her present train of thought and to be as unhappy as she pleased.

She told herself that she was a despicable little wretch, a mere society butterfly, and it was no wonder Horace was tired of her. If only Horace had been poor, so that he and she could have worked and struggled together! If only their one child had lived beyond babyhood! But that she could not bear to think of even now. If only all the past ten years could be lived over again, how differently she would use them!

Now it was too late, and then she suddenly sat up straight, with fast beating heart. It was not too late; it could not be too late. She would begin this very night and try to restore something of the old loving relations of ten years ago. She would call for her husband now at his club. She remembered having done so once or twice in those bygone days, when something imperative had prevented him from coming with her to their mutual disappointment.

She gave the necessary order to her coachman, and then sat tense and upright, her eyes bright, her cheeks flushed.

Ah, they were not far from the club now—five, ten minutes more and her new life would have begun!

She had no idea what the time was, but it could not be so very late, for the pavement was thronged with people—all going the same way, oddly enough, as it occurred to her after a moment. There were so many of them that presently the carriage was blocked and obliged to go slowly. She beat her little hands on the seat in her impatience and looked out again.

A policeman appeared, shouting inaudible directions, and pressing forward through the crowd, which gave way reluctantly on either side. In her ungovernable impatience she let down the window and beckoned him to come nearer.

"Can't we get on?" she cried. "I am in a hurry. What is the meaning of this crowd?"

"They have come to see the fire, ma'am," the policeman answered civilly. "I'm afraid you will have to go round."

"But we are almost there—the Rangun club!" she cried.

"It's the club that is on fire, ma'am," the policeman answered. Then, as she turned white, he added kindly, "Don't be frightened, ma'am; they've got the fire well in hand by this time and every one is out."

"All safe?" Mrs. Trelawney gasped.

"Well, a few broken bones and such like," said the policeman cheerfully. "Nothing to speak of, ma'am—only one gentleman killed. A sad business that."

"Who?"

"The gentleman who did such great things out in Burma a few years ago—Major Trelawney."

"My husband!"

It seemed to her that she had known it all the time. She saw, as if in a dream, the sudden pity and respect in the policeman's face, and then she covered her own and sank back in the carriage.

The long agony of the drive seemed interminable, and yet when at last the carriage stopped she sat quite still for a moment, unable to nerve herself for the next move. Then the door was opened, and, as if in a dream, she passed up the steps, walking firmly, her face white and her eyes set and hard. Her apparent heartlessness was silently noted at the time and afterward freely commented on in the servants' hall.

Had they brought him—it—home? she wondered with a long shudder. She was in the hall now and some one was hurrying to meet her—the doctor. She was not surprised to see him there. In her dreamlike state nothing seemed strange any more.

"I have bad news for you, Mrs. Trelawney."

"I know—I know!" she answered petulantly. In her unreasoning misery she was annoyed by his hushed tone. Her own voice was unnaturally shrill and strained, and the doctor raised his hand in protest.

"What heartless creatures these pretty women are!" he was thinking—an unconscious echo of the servants' opinion.

"I must beg of you to control yourself," he said sternly. "Everything depends on quiet. His life is hanging on a thread."

"His life? Oh, God! Then he is not dead?"

She had brushed past the doctor, deaf to his remonstrances. With noiseless, flying feet, she was up the staircase and a moment later kneeling by her husband's bedside.

The doctor, following rapidly, stood arrested at the door, looking in at the darkened room, the kneeling white figure, with clasped hands and large, fixed eyes, the swathed wreck of a man lying very still on the bed.

One hand lay outside the coverlet. Her own stole out slowly, hungrily, toward it, as if her own daring scared her. She bowed her head over the bandaged hand at last and knelt on motionless. The doctor, watching and quite forgetting his scathing condemnation of a moment before, thought with a swift contempt of certain reports concerning the Trelawneys' domestic happiness which had reached his ears.

Something came before his shrewd, keen eyes which blurred the picture before him. He turned aside for a moment and then was recalled by a swift, low cry: "Horace! Oh, Horace!"

The doctor sprang forward and then drew back. The injured man's eyes had opened and were fixed on the shimmering white figure with an expression of mingled awe, unbelief, bliss.

"Clara!" said the faintest whisper in the world.

The doctor could scarcely hear it. He did not know that the old pet name had never been used for years.—London Forget-Me-Not.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

NEW PRINCESSE REDINGOTE FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A redingote "built" upon a model just appearing in imported garments, and one which later will be rendered in light silks, cloths, and even batiste, is issued with this number. It is a perfectly feasible garment, and one which is equally effective for either thin or stout persons. It is smooth-fitting in the back, as are all princess garments, and the front is equally innocent of wrinkle. In the centre of the front there is a slight dip or scallop, which passes the waist-line to a depth of perhaps an inch and a half. Beginning with the second dart, the skirt of the redingote descends in a straight line quite to the hem of the under-skirt. The sleeves are very smooth and plain but for the turned-back cuff, which is finished with a deep flounce of lace. The waist closes slightly towards the left side, and the jewelled buttons form the centre of Louis XV. bows of velvet. The revers, embroidered, turned back over a chemisete of white tulle, and the stock collar is of white taffeta.

The pattern published by Harper's Bazar in which the gown appears, consists of the redingote only, which was originally rendered in old-rose embroidered in white, old-rose and crystal beads with bow fastenings of bright Lincoln green velvet. The accompanying skirt was of white tulle over silk, the tulle being secured just below the knee by a five-inch band of white lace insertion, which was, like the embroidery on the redingote, enhanced by the introduction of crystal beads.

Twelve yards of silk, or velvet, 22 inches wide, would be required to make this redingote, or 8 yards of cashmere or other soft cloth of double width.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 22—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A student's prayer.—Ps. xix, 1-14. (A meeting for the day of prayer for colleges.)

The day of prayer for colleges may well be observed by the Christian Endeavor organization. Many Endeavorers are in college subject to the peculiar temptations of college life. They need and want our special prayers. The present is particularly opportune for this observance, because recently a great religious movement has been begun in our colleges and universities. The trend of college thought and life today as never before is toward religion, and the Christian religion. It is one of the most hopeful signs of the times that the educated young men of our country are turning more and more toward religion. The proofs of it are flourishing college Young Men's Christian associations, the wonderful students' volunteer movement and great interest on the part of thousands of students in general religious services and work. These facts are matters of great rejoicing and thanksgiving and invite our earnest, united prayers for their continuance, under the richest blessing of God.

The prayer of the Nineteenth Psalm may well be called a student's prayer. It is the prayer of one who was himself a student, and the petitions contained in it are particularly applicable to students. The writer is a student both of nature and of the revealed word of God. He sees the glory of God revealed in the heavens, the firmament, day and night and in the sun. This knowledge has come from study. He has also studied the revealed law of God, and has seen its beauty and its utility.

The petitions of this psalm are also peculiarly adaptable to students in our colleges and universities, away from home surroundings and influences and cultivating the intellectual side of man. For these things we may well pray for all students.

1. The first petition is for cleansing from secret faults. "Cleanse Thou me from secret faults" (verse 12). College life abounds in temptation to "secret faults." The boy who at home has kept nothing from parents finds it so easy to do many things which he would not have them know. There is a temptation to deceive professors in recitations and in examinations. Let us pray earnestly that our young men at college may be delivered from "secret faults."

2. The second petition is for deliverance from presumptuous sins. "Keep back Thy servant also from presumptuous sins. Let them not have dominion over me." College life breeds presumptuousness. What the undergraduate does not know, in his own opinion, is not worth knowing. It is a scholastic presumptuousness that leads to skepticism and even to atheism. Pray that our students be delivered from sins of presumption.

3. The third petition asks for acceptableness of words and thoughts. How important that educated and intelligent men and women should think and speak only things acceptable to God. Their thoughts and words have increased weight because of their learning, and for this reason we should utter this petition of this prayer.

Bible Readings.—Lev. iv, 1-3; Num. xv, 30; Deut. vi, 6-9; xvii, 12; I Sam. xv, 1-26; II Sam. vi, 6, 7; II Kings xx, 1-6; Ps. li, 15; xc, 8; Math. vi, 5-15; Luke xviii, 1-14; Col. iv, 2-6; I Tim. ii, 1-4; II Pet. ii, 9, 10.

Be Still and Know That I Am God.

God takes no pleasure in pain or sorrow, but He will impose both if thereby He may bring us to love Him or make us more like Himself. At such a time it is selfish, unbelieving, to complain and murmur—very wicked to find fault with God. There are medicines which, taken with wisdom and in moderation, baffle disease and restore health; but abused, they weaken and destroy. So with sickness and sorrow, as we please to use them. To some they are what God means them for all, a savor of life unto life; to others, a savor of death unto death. At such a time it is only wise to be very considerate, very humble, very submissive.—Lutheran Observer.

No Sure Sign.

Prominence in the church is no sure sign of personal piety and certain safety. Christ denominated the heads of the ecclesiastical departments of His day as a "generation of vipers," whose warning to flee from the wrath to come was as daring, and their heeding that warning was as astonishing as its worthlessness would be proved unless they "brought forth fruits meet for repentance." Hypocrisy will save no man because he happens to be the head of some ecclesiastical department.—Church Standard.

No Reason.

Because you are not of the most impious class of transgressors is no sufficient reason to despise others nor to boast before God how good you are, so that your prayer does not need to ask for the Divine mercy. Some have prayed for grace just because they have been so dreadfully wicked. Others in this age rather boast of their extra degree of sinfulness, thinking to make them apparently more fit for redemption.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Peace.

There is a peace that cometh after sorrow,
Of hope surrendered, not of hope fulfilled;
A peace that looketh not upon tomorrow,
But calmly on a tempest that is stilled;

A peace that lives not now in joy's excesses
Nor in the happy life of love secure,
But in the unerring strength the heart possesses
Of conflicts won while learning to endure;

A peace there is in sacrifice secluded,
A life subdued, from will and passion free.
'Tis not the peace that over Eden brooded,
But that which triumphed in Gethsemane.

WEYLER IN EVIDENCE.

Willing to Accept War Office Portfolio Under Certain Conditions.

Prefers Carlists to Modern Conservative Party.

Wants Liberal Party Reconstructed to Aim at Army and Navy Reorganization.

London, Jan. 21.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: General Weyler has made an important declaration. He says he is willing to accept the war office portfolio in a Liberal cabinet on two conditions—first, that the Liberal party be reconstructed with his assistance and that of his military and political friends and allies, Senores Romero y Robledo and Jose Canalejas; and second, that the Liberal policy be aimed chiefly at a prompt reorganization of the army and navy, giving satisfaction to the legitimate aspirations of both, besides being inspired by such democratic principles as would win the support of moderate republicans.

CAPTAIN GENERAL WEYLER.

He approves Senor Sagasta's decision to invite the cortes to discuss the peace treaty and the conduct of the war; but he is determined only to join Sagasta after the debates, when a new Liberal party and cabinet are formed. He regards the present cabinet as utterly incapable of undertaking the regeneration of the country and its defenses, and considers that the present ministry cannot survive the beginning of the coming session.

The real Conservative party decided, General Weyler contends, with Senor Canovas, and he declares that he prefers the Carlists to the modern Conservative party, which is bound to disappear from Spanish politics. His dictatorial pretensions are daily attracting more attention, and they remind Spaniards of the era which the restoration was supposed to have closed in 1875.

First Attempt a Failure.

Bristol, R. I., Jan. 21.—The first actual work of building the new America's cup defender started off with an accident. The attempt to pour the big lead keel of the boat was a failure. About half of the amount of metal that is to comprise the keel was poured, when one of the melting pots suddenly cracked and the work was stopped immediately. The metal that was poured was allowed to cool until night, when the work of demolishing the scaffolding and mould was begun. A new kiln will have to be built around a new melting pot, and it will probably be next week before another attempt is made to cast the keel.

For His Wife's Sake.

New York, Jan. 21.—Louis J. Snure, formerly confidential clerk for a wholesale clothing firm of this city, is under arrest, charged with stealing $20,000 by means of forged checks. The forgeries were discovered about a year ago, but Snure had managed to escape arrest until now. Meanwhile he had been travelling through Europe with his wife, who is a consumptive. Snure claims that he stole for the sake of his wife, and that the desire to find a climate and surroundings which would improve her health was the sole cause of his flight from New York.

Charges and Counter Charges.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 21.—A sensational statement was published in The News, which is devoted to the senatorial aspirations of Congressman Newlands, charging that Assemblyman Leedy had been paid $50, and promised a position in the Southern Pacific office at San Francisco, to vote for the re-election of Senator Stewart. On the other hand, Stewart's managers allege that Leedy was induced to remain away from the caucus through improper influences, exerted on behalf of Newlands. It is probable that an investigation of the charges will be made.

Sadly Afflicted.

Avon, Mass., Jan. 21.—Emery French, who, for several days past, has practically been dying as a result of hiccoughs, was reported to be resting more comfortably last evening, although the physicians have very little hope of his recovery. Thirteen days ago he was first attacked with the trouble, which has now proved to be one of the most extraordinary cases on record, violent attacks having been the order at short intervals ever since.

Mrs. Chandler Shut Out.

Machias, Me., Jan. 21.—The jury in the Peasley will case decided yesterday, after being out three hours, that Jerome W. Peasley was not of a sound and disposing mind when he made the will leaving all his property to Mrs. Cecilia Chandler, his housekeeper. If the decision is sustained by the higher court, in case an appeal is made, the property will go to Mr. Peasley's half-brother and other relations who contested the will.

To Cost Half a Million.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 21.—The committee representing the grand lodges of Knights of Pythias of Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois and Indiana, which has been here investigating the government site for a national Pythian sanitarium, will recommend the establishment of the institution in this city. The location here means an investment of $500,000.

HIGHLY ENCOURAGING.

Trade Review Shows a Continuation of General Improvement.

New York, Jan. 21.—Bradstreet's says: The continued strength of staple values, accentuated this week by further advances in iron and steel and other metals, in cotton at the south and in lumber at some western points, has undoubtedly added to the confidence with which the outlook for the ensuing year is regarded. That this confidence has a fair basis in fact will be gathered from the reports received from the iron and cotton goods trades, the firmness in cotton goods being of considerable interest in view of the depression ruling throughout the larger part of last year. Good trade advices from abroad, a reduced movement at the south and a tendency to pare down estimates are reflected in the slight gain in raw cotton values this week. The advance shown, however, hardly reflects the urgency noted in the demand for the better grades of cotton which this year are scarcer than usual, owing to bad weather during the picking season.

The iron trade situation remains, as for some time past, a feature of absorbing interest. Large as the production of pig iron is, eager buyers are found apparently for every ton offered. Most furnaces are reported booked ahead on orders.

Little change is reported in the market for cereals, and the market for cash wheat still reflects the commanding position held by the United States as the supplier of the world's wheat, notwithstanding the predictions of near approaching competition from Argentina and from Russia, shipments from which, particularly the latter, do not at all accord with the liberal estimates of production published some little time ago.

There is a perceptible improvement in the demand for dry goods, particularly cotton fabrics, at New York and Boston, where late advances are firmly held. There is also more doing in dress woolens at those markets. Reports from the men's wear trade show little gain, however, and a number of makes of heavy woolens are opening below last year's prices.

Advices as to general distributive trade are quite favorable, and spring orders are reported coming in in good volume at many centers.

Raw wool is dull but steady. The prediction is made that present American stocks of wool will have to be replaced at a considerably higher range of values.

The outlook in the boot and shoe trade is regarded as good, and a fair business is doing at steady prices in hides and leather.

Bank clearings are again of record-breaking volume, aggregating $1,996,541,180, 3 percent larger than last week, 41 percent larger than in this week a year ago, 91 percent larger than in 1897 and 137 percent larger than in the corresponding week of 1894, the year of low water in bank clearings. Compared with this week in 1893, a period of very large clearings, just preceding the panic, the gain shown is 36.3 percent.

Business failures in the United States number 262, against 304 a week ago; 309 in this week a year ago, 429 in 1897, 341 in 1896 and 312 in 1895.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 21.—A bill was introduced in the legislature yesterday providing that all personal and real estate belonging to incorporated or unincorporated educational institutions within the commonwealth shall be subject to taxation the same as any other property in this commonwealth, excepting only such personal property and real estate as is actually and necessarily used for the sole purpose of education and instruction. It is understood that a good many millions of property will be affected by the bill if it becomes a law, Harvard college being credited with $10,000,000 of such property.

The following bills were introduced: For the registration of horseshoers; amending the section of the election laws relating to recounts; providing that every steamship company whose vessels sail from Boston shall keep duplicate passenger lists; making eight hours or less a day's work for state, county, city and town employes; exempting fraternal beneficiary organizations whose membership is confined to permanent employes of the state, city or town, from the limitations of section 12, chapter 474, acts of 1898; to facilitate the sale of securities by cities of the commonwealth; forbidding the depositing of money with a firm by its employes unless the promisory note of the firm is given in exchange.

The bill amending the charter of the Hampden Savings bank of Springfield was passed to be engrossed, under suspension of the rules.

Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island, who is ill at New York, is reported unchanged in condition.

The Minnesota state senate concurred in the house resolution favoring the speedy ratification by the United States senate of the peace treaty.

Senator Putnam introduced a resolve in the senate, urging the ratification of the treaty with Spain at the earliest moment. The resolution states that the legislature of Massachusetts, in common with all Americans, rejoices in the successful conclusion of the war with Spain, and congratulates the president upon the manner in which he has led the country through a victorious war to a triumphant peace. Believing that peace should be legally re-established at the earliest moment, the ratification of the treaty with Spain is urged.

A petition for the passage of a bill "relative to the finances of the city of Boston" was presented. The bill makes very important amendments to the board of apportionment act of 1898. The bill amends the section which provides that the general maintenance appropriation order, based on the department estimates, shall be passed by the affirmative vote and signatures of "all the members" of the board of apportionment, instead of "at least four of its members, including the mayor," as the law now reads.

Bold Bank Robbery.

Arcola, Ills., Jan. 21.—The bank at Arthur was robbed of between $4000 and $5000 last night. Six men overpowered the night watchman, bound and gagged him, blew open the safe, secured the money, stole a hand car, and came toward this city. A posse has been organized, and bloodhounds put on the trail.

ATTITUDE OF SENATE

On the Peace Treaty Causing the President Some Anxiety.

Cannot Understand Why the Minority Should Rule.

The Present Peaceful Atmosphere Merely One of Truce or Armistice.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The supporters of the peace treaty were in conference among themselves yesterday as to whether they should agree to accept the Bacon resolutions as a condition precedent to the ratification of the treaty. Before leaving the capitol Senator Davis, in charge of the bill, told his friends that he would not agree to the passage of the resolutions.

The reports brought to the White House by senators friendly to the treaty vary all the way from estimates of 65 votes for the treaty and 25 against it, down to 54 votes for the treaty, 26 against, and 10 uncertain. The president, who, until within a few days, has had no doubt of an early vote in favor of ratification, is now disturbed by the fact that although the friends of the treaty insist that they have a majority sufficient to carry their point, and that they are anxious for a vote as quickly as it can be reached, they cannot see their way clear to forcing one. The president's whole training in legislative work has been in the house of representatives, where it has always been possible for a clear majority to force a vote, no matter whether the minority felt so disposed or not. It therefore seems strange to him, almost an outrage, that the senate should let itself be held at bay by a rather meagre minority.

It was said at the war department that the text of the charges and specifications upon which General Eagan is to be tried will not be made public in the war department, but will be placed in the hands of the judge advocate of the court-martial, Colonel Davis, and the court itself may give them publicity.

Aside from the question of allowing a minority to dominate the majority, the president is puzzled at the attitude of the senate in refusing to recognize the embarrasment which must result either from the rejection of the treaty or from an indefinite prolongation of its consideration. Our government is still in a state of war with Spain. The peaceful atmosphere in which we are now living is simply one of truce or armistice. On every ground, therefore, the president wonders at the attitude of the senate toward the treaty. He reasons that if there is a majority of that body favorable to giving the Philippines independence, the natural and orderly course would be to get posession of the islands by the ratification of the treaty, and then enact the necessary legislation to provide for their future. For himself, there is no reason to suppose that he has changed his view as to the unwillingness of our people to let the American flag be lowered on any ground where it has once been raised, and that the most he would favor in that direction would be the granting of a very liberal form of autonomy to the Philippines as a part of our federal system.

If there is not a majority in the senate favorable to the independence of the Philippines, he cannot understand why the minority should be willing to leave him with practically dictatorial powers over them, or why a majority favorable to the administration's views should allow the minority to dominate. It is on this basis that he is now reasoning with the senators who visit the White House. One of them said the other day: "I do not know how it is, but the president has a very persuasive way. When the Hawaiian annexation scheme was in process of development, he contrived to tie the entire foreign relations committee hand and foot. In the case of the Philippines he is making the same plea, that the question shall not be treated as a political or partisan one."

IN CONGRESS.

Representative Lewis Takes a Whack at Army and Navy Contractors.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The proceedings in the house were enlivened yesterday by a wordy duel between Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio and Mr. Lewis, the picturesque member from Washington. During the debate on a private bill to refer to the court of claims the claim of Cramp & Sons, the Philadelphia ship-builders, for damages from the government for delays incident to the building of the warships New York, Massachusetts, Indiana and Columbia, due to the failure of the government to deliver armor plate and other materials for these ships on time, Mr. Lewis got the floor.

The claims aggregated about $1,200,000, and the bill had encountered a good deal of opposition. Mr. Lewis made it the text for a general attack on army and navy contractors, whom he charged with being traitors for taking advantage of the necessities of the government in time of stress. Mr. Simpson, the Kansas Populist, followed along the same lines, and Mr. Grosvenor undertook to rebuke them both. Mr. Lewis, in reply, made a very witty speech ridiculing the Ohioan for his alleged pretensions. Mr. Grosvenor did not make an extensive rejoinder, though he displayed a lot of documents and intimated that he had plenty of reserve ammunition in store for Mr. Lewis. The Cramp bill was edged out of the way after the flow of oratory ceased.

Earlier in the day the postoffice appropriation bill was finally passed, and just before recess in the afternoon Speaker Reed put an end to the speculation regarding the chairmanship of the ways and means committee by appointing Mr. Payne (Rep., N. Y.) to the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Dingley. This carries with it the floor leadership of the majority. At the same time he filled the vacancies in the minority representation on ways and means and rules caused by the retirement of Mr. McMillin by appointing Mr. Richardson of Tennessee to both places. Mr. Crumpacker of Indiana was appointed on census.

An arrangement was made for the consideration of the army reorganization bill, beginning next Tuesday. Fifteen hours are to be allowed for general debate exclusive of night sessions Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

A night session was held last night for pension legislation, and the house then adjourned until Monday.

The senate was in session for five hours and a half, but the session was barren of results. Two speeches were delivered, one by Mr. Nelson (Rep. Minn.), in opposition to Mr. Vest's anti-expansion resolution, and the other by Mr. White (Dem. Cal.), a personal explanation of his position with respect to the instructions given the California senators by the legislature of that state as to voting on the pending peace treaty.

At the conclusion of the speeches, the senate resumed consideration of the Nicaraguan canal bill. Its completion was prevented probably by the filibustering tactics adopted by Mr. Tillman (Dem., S. C.), who frankly announced that the bill could not pass yesterday, as he and other senators, if necessary, would remain in the chamber until midnight to prevent a final vote.

Wood to Visit Brooke,

Washington, Jan. 21.—General Wood called at the war department yesterday to say farewell prior to his departure for Cuba. He will have a full conference with Major General Brooke, in charge of Cuba, before proceeding to his post at Santiago. The war department expects to be able soon to promulgate the plan it has formulated after consultation with General Wood, for the distribution of the customs revenues of Cuba, a question which is agitating the people of Santiago just now rather unreasonably. The plan will be fair and just to all interests.

Bids Invited.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The war department has issued an invitation for bids from responsible shipping concerns of all nations for transportation of the Spanish prisoners in the Philippines from Manila to Spain. The treaty requires the United States to transport these prisoners home without awaiting ratification of the peace treaty. Bids will be opened Feb. 1.

Capitol Gleanings.

President and Mrs. McKinley gave a dinner to a large company at the White House last evening in honor of the young ladies now visiting at the executive mansion.

Senator Gear offered a joint resolution in the senate appointing Oscar W. Diegnan of Iowa a cadet at the United States naval academy. Diegnan was one of the Merrimac heroes.

Brigadier General Breckinridge, inspector general of the army, starts today on his journey to Cuba and Porto Rico to investigate the conditions of army posts on the islands. This duty, it is thought, will consume probably two months.

Mr. Harris, the newly appointed minister to Austria, has arrived in Washington from Indianapolis. The department will shortly erect the Austrian mission into an embassy of the first class.

Colonel Kimball of the quartermaster's department has received orders from the war department that the transport Panama will be fitted out at New York as a cable steamer.

A Fortune In Sight.

Denver, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Mary Tyson Williams of this city, who is 45 years old, and has three children, claims to be a niece of James Tyson, the Australian, who recently died, leaving a fortune estimated to be worth over $25,000,000, and she expects to receive a share of the estate. Mrs. Williams says that Tyson's correct name was Roberts, that he was born at Festiniog, North Wales.

Dreyfus to Be Brought Home.

Paris, Jan. 21.—According to The Soir the court of cassation intends to conclude the inquiry in the Dreyfus case by confronting Captain Labrun-Renault, who was in charge of Dreyfus at the time of his degradation, with Dreyfus himself. The necessity for this is advanced as a pretext to justify the return of Dreyfus to Paris.

Smuggler Seized.

Halifax, Jan. 21.—The customs authorities have seized the schooner Rising Sun, with a large quantity of smuggled liquor on board. The vessel has been seized three times previously, and will probably be confiscated.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Those of Massachusetts Cost Over Thirteen Million Dollars.

The annual report of the State Board of Education contains these facts and comments of interest:

SCHOOL AND FISCAL YEARS.

Attendance returns to the State are based on school years; money returns, on fiscal years. The fiscal years of 41 towns and 3 cities end in January; of 72 towns and 2 cities, in February; of 130 towns and 1 city, in March; of 6 cities, in November; of 57 towns and 18 cities, in December; of 23 towns, not reported. Those that end in the same month end often on different days of that month. A similar diversity exists about the school years. Moreover, the school years are frequently different from the fiscal years in the same places. Uniformity of fiscal years as well as the uniform coincidence of school years with fiscal is out of the question; but uniformity of school years is feasible and desirable. It is recommended that hereafter all attendance returns shall be based on the natural school year that begins in September and ends in June, money returns to be made as heretofor for their respective fiscal years.

NUMBER OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The number of public schools, the unit being a single school with one principal, is 4,616,—an increase over last year of 115. The number of public schools, the unit being a single classroom, is 9,863,—an increase of 306.

ENROLLMENT AND ATTENDANCE.

The returns give 441,352 as the number of children in the State May 1, 1897 between five and fifteen—an increase of 9,965 over the preceding year; 456,141 as the number of different persons in attendance upon the public schools,—an increase of 16,774; 378,770 as the average membership,—an increase of 14,904; and 349,147 as the average attendance,—an increase of 14,202. The percentage of attendance for the state was 92. The number of children under five years of age attending school was 7,702,—an increase of 834; of children over fifteen attending school, 44,700,—an increase of 2,814.

TEACHERS.

The number of different teachers employed was 13,203,—an increase of 360. The number of men employed was 1,174, — an increase of 54; of women 12,029,—an increase of 306. The number of teachers required was 11,678,—an increase of 377. The ratio of the number of positions to be filled to the number of different teahers was 1 to 1.16 in 1888 and 1 to 1.12 in 1898, indicating an increase in permanency of tenure. In Boston, for 1898, the ratio was 1 to 1.06; in the 59 towns that in 1897 paid their women teachers less than $30 a month, the ratio was 1 to 1.41. In other words, changes in places that pay good salaries are comparatively few; in places that pay poor salaries, somewhat numerous.

TENURE OF OFFICE ACT.

One hundred and eleven towns appint their teachers under the tenure of office act to serve during the pleasure of the school committee, or, practically, during good behavior.

WAGES OF TEACHERS.

The returns give the average pay of men per month as $137.50, — a decrease of $7.30; of women, $51.44,—a decrease of 76 cents. The decrease is probably more apparent than real, the averages having been computed the past year in accordance with more careful directions from the office.

LENGTH OF SCHOOLING.

The average length of schooling for the State is 9 months and 6 days. The law of 1898 requires that after Sept. 1, 1898, all schools shall be kept at least 8 months during the year. This year is interpreted by the Attorney-General to mean the net fiscal year after Sept. 1, 1898, for which appropriations are made Only 47 towns will need to increase their schooling under the law,—33 of them less than a month each and 14 from one to two months each.

COST OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The State valuation for 1897 was $2,702,328,054. The amount expended for wages of teachers, fuel, care of rooms and transportation of children was $3.10 on each thousand dollars of this valuation, or $8,292,320.12,—an increase over the preceding year of $555,504.64; for supervision, $333,131,999,—an increase of $7,041.53; for text books and supplies, $592,905.76,—an increase of $14,759.17; for new schoolhouses, $2,719,912.01,—an increase of $511,930.23; for permanent improvements of schoolhouses, $551,004.48,—an increase of $30,789.20; for ordinary repairs, $543,153.81,—an increase of $13,004.92; and for sundries, $335,449.77,—an increase of $39,098.99. The grand total expended of the public schools for all puporses, including the foregoing amounts, and an additional amount of $423,446.36 derived from voluntary contributions ($91,955.20), income of local funds ($103,797.98), tax on dogs, etc., ($103,797.98,) and the income of the school fund ($9,018.51), reaches $13,653,649.63, which is $1,263,011.71 more than the total of last year.

COST PER PUPIL.

Since 1850 the reports of the Board have given the cost of the schools for each child in the State between five and fifteen years of age whether the children were in public schools or not, basing this cost substantially on the amount raised by taxation and expended for certain purposes specifically mentioned in the statutes, namely, the wages and board of teachers, fuel for the schools, the care of fires and school rooms, and, for the last three years, the transportation of children. The cost has been determined in this way because the law requires that at least $3 shall be raised for each child between five and fifteen for the purposes above designated. The cost thus ascertained for each child in the State between five and fifteen is found to be $19.02. If, however, it is computed on the same basis for each child in the average membership of the public schools, it is found to be $21.64. But the amount used in the foregoing determinations does not include supervision, text books, and sundries. Include these expenses, but continue to exclude all sums expended on buildings, and the cost for each child in the State between five and fifteen becomes $21.64; for each child in the average membership of the public schools, $25.22.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Expenditures on school buildings are for repairs, permanent alterations and new construction. Repairs are usually but not always paid for out of the tax receipts for the year, while permanent alterations and new construction are frequently, perhaps generally, but not always, paid for from the proceeds of notes or bonds whose final payment by taxation may be distributed over a series of years. What proportion of the expenditures for buildings during a single year is met by the taxation of that year is not known. The money actually expended on buildings for 1888 was equivalent to 65 cents on a thousand dollars of the State's valuation; in 1889, to 90 cents; in 1890, to 80 cents; in 1891, to $1.18; in 1892, to 97 cents; in 1893, to 89 cents; in 1894, to $1.01; in 1895, to $1.25; in 1896, to $1.25; and in 1897, to $1.41. The last three years have been years of extraordinary activity in building schoolhouses.

SCHOOL AND MUNICIPAL TAX.

The aggregate of the municipal taxes in the State for 1888 was $29,379,674 the total valuation of the State was then $1,992,804,101; the average rate of taxation was $14.74 on each thousand dollars of the valuation, of which $2.74, or 18.5 per cent. of the total tax, was expended for wages of teachers, fuel for the schools and care of fires and schoolrooms, and $3.03, or 20.5 per cent. of the total tax, for all school purposes, excluding buildings. The agregate of municipal taxes in the State for 1897, ten years later, was $41,593,555; the total valuation of the State, $2,702,328,054; the average rate of taxation, $15.39, of which $3.10, or 20.1 per cent. of the total tax, was expended for wages, fuel and care of schoolrooms, and $3.53, or 22.9 per cent. of the total tax, for all school purposes, buildings excluded. In other words, the increase for ten years in the percentage of the total tax expended for wages, etc., is only .016; and in the percentage of the total tax expended for all school purposes except buildings, only .024. This increase is believed to be swollen somewhat because of increasing care in returning school expenditures, certain items having been returned during the last three years of the ten that were omitted during the first seven.

A vivacious woman's fan can frequently speak in more eloquent language than any known to the tongue of man. It can invite or repel, sigh or smile, be meek or haughty, tear a passion to tatters or humbly seek forgiveness.

It can also tell the story of health. A woman who suffers from weakness and disease in a womanly way sits in sorrow and dejection while her healthy sisters enjoy themselves. She may be naturally beautiful, naturally attractive, naturally interesting and animated and witty, but the demon of ill-health is gnawing at the very vitals of her womanly nature, and she soon becomes a withered wall flower in comparison with her brighter and more healthy sisters. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine for women who suffer in this way. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood. It tones and builds up the shattered nerves. It restores the glow of health to the pallid cheek. It gives springiness and trip to the carriage. It makes the eyes sparkle with returning vivacity. It imparts animation to the mien and gestures. The fan that long lay listless and idle in the lap of an invalid again speaks the eloquent language of a healthy, happy woman. Thousands of women have testified to the marvelous merits of this wonderful medicine.

"For several years I suffered with prolapsus of the uterus," writes Miss A. Lee Schuster, of Box 12, Rodney, Jefferson Co., Miss. "Our family physician treated me for kidney trouble, and everything else but the right thing. I grew worse and worse. My body was emaciated, hands and feet clammy and cold, stomach weak, with great palpitation of the heart. I would suffer with nausea all night. I began taking your 'Favorite Prescription' and I began to improve right away. I have taken three bottles and now I am very nearly well and am very happy and thankful to you."

Keep your head up and your bowels open. The "Golden Medical Discovery" will put steel in your backbone, and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure constipation.

Keith's Theatre.

Marie Jansen, whose first real success in comic opera was won when she sang, "Oh, Mamma," in The Beggar Student, as it probably never has been sung since, will be the leading attraction at Keith's Boston theatre for the week of Jan. 23. Just how much damage to the hearts of her numerous admirers she did with this simple ballad it would be difficult to say. When Marie Jansen and Francis Wilson were together they formed the most popular comic opera team which this country ever had. Miss Jansen is as shapely and sings just as fetchingly as of yore. Other attractions are: Bert Coote and company, in "The Dead Shot;" Filson and Errol, Eli and Harvey, and Murray and Alden, in comedy sketches; Mr. and Mrs. Tobin high class instrumentalists; Augustus F. Howell, humorist and mimic; the Glees, vocalists and instrumentalists; Willard Simms, impersonator, and George H. Diamond, descriptive vocalist. Prof. Gies will show some beautiful new colored views of Japan and historical England, and the biograph will have its usual additions of new motion pictures. Joaquin Miller is to talk on the Klondike the week of Feb. 6.

An Important Secret.

The secret is how Brazilian Balm can get to the seat of Catarrh, between the folds and in the deep, tortuous passages of the head, kill the microbes heal the running sores or ulcers and make a radical cure of the putrid and stubborn disease. You see the edges of the folds or curtains that hang from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and in health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the oder to the brain. When cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swollen and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can live. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrane. If you have a cold in the head use Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from finding a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes a running sore or ulcer on the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passage clear up in behind the eyes. All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of mucus into the throat, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressed Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the balm as the Catarrh germ disappears. Also the effects of Grippe however serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permanently cured by this wonderful balsam. Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

ITS FATE IN DOUBT.

Considerable Hostility Shown Toward the Army Reorganization Bill.

Nicaragua Canal Bill Goes Through the Senate.

Great Waterway to Be Completed In Six Years at Cost Not Exceeding $115,000,000.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The time of the house this week, except today, which was set aside for the consideration of District of Columbia business, will be devoted to the army reorganization bill.

The consideration of this bill, which is regarded as pre-eminently the most important general measure to come before congress at this session, has been delayed by the illness of Chairman Hull of the military affairs committee. He has recovered sufficiently to pilot the measure, however, and the house has formally agreed to take up its consideration tomorrow. The general debate, not including three night sessions, is to continue 15 hours. This is as far as the agreement goes. It includes no provision for a final vote.

The debate promises to be both interesting and important, as it will raise all the questions involved in increasing our standing army to 100,000 men, as proposed by the bill, together with our whole future policy relative to the territory acquired in the recent war with Spain.

There exist a wide variety of opinions on the proposition to increase the standing army. It has a strong majority of the Republicans behind it, and it comes into the house with the indorsement of the president's message, practically as an administration measure. The Democrats and Populists are intensely hostile to the whole proposition and intend to fight it to the last ditch. They will have some support from the Republican side. The opposition, however, do not desire to embarrass the government and are willing to provide for a temporary increase in the army of 50,000 men in accordance with the provisions of the substitute bill offered by the minority of the committee. Or they are willing to authorize the continuance, temporarily, of the present war strength of the regular army (62,000); anything, in fact, to prevent the creation of a permanent increase. In this they have the sympathy of many of the Republicans.

The fate of the bill is in grave doubt. The statements made on the floor of the senate to the effect that it was not the intention of the government to hold the Philippines permanently, although their authoritative character was denied, have placed a weapon in the hands of the opponents of the measure, who will use the statement that there is doubt as to the future of the Philippines as a strong argument against a permanent increase of the regular army. The bill may not be completed this week, as the order permits its consideration to be interrupted by appropriation bills and conference reports. One of these, the military academy, is on the calendar. The river and harbor bill will be reported today, and the naval bill probably before the end of the week.

The fact that the anti-scalping bill was made the unfinished business of the senate by Saturday's vote does not necessarily insure its immediate consideration. The general understanding is that this bill will wait upon the peace treaty and the appropriation bills, and that the Indian appropriation bill will be the first measure to receive the attention of the senate during the week. The diplomatic and pension appropriation bills also may be considered during the week.

Several speeches on the subject of expansion are expected to be made. One of these, by Senator White, in opposition to the government's policy, will be made today, and Senator Lodge will follow with a brief talk in support of the policy and in advocacy of the early ratification of the peace treaty.

How much time will be given to the treaty in executive session will be pend upon whether the committee on foreign relations considers it in the interest of the treaty to press consideration. There is an effort to arrange a compromise, which would permit speedy action upon the treaty, but if this is not successful the indications are for considerable delay. Two compromises are suggested. One of these is for a modification of the treaty, or the adoption of a resolution declaratory against the permanent holding of the Philippine archipelago, and the other is for a modification of the army reorganization bill, on lines desired by the treaty opponents. It is not yet possible to state whether either course will be pursued.

The senate passed the Nicaragua canal bill Saturday. A number of amendments were made to the bill, and there were many short speeches during the day. There was, however, no opposition to a vote when the time came, and a rollcall developed only six votes in opposition to final passage.

The Nicaragua bill, as it passed, continues the name of the Maritime Canal company. It provides for the issuance of 6,000,000 shares of stock of $100 each. The canal company is required to call in all the stock issued except that held by the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican governments. The company is also required to redeem and cancel all bonds and scrip heretofore issued by the company and to satisfy all cash liabilities. To enable the company to comply with this requirement, treasury warrants to the amount of $5,000,000 are authorized, with a proviso to the effect that only so much of the amount shall be paid as shall be required to pay the actual value of the rights, privileges, franchises and property at the time of the payment, the value to be determined by commissioners to be appointed by the president. This being done the secretary of the treasury is authorized to subscribe for 925,000 shares of the company's stock for the government of the United States. The present members of the board of directors are then to resign and a board of seven is to be appointed in their stead, consisting of five on behalf of the United States and one each on behalf of Nicaragua and Costa Rica. The directors on behalf of the United States are to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. No two of them are to be residents of any one state, and no person who has heretofore been interested in the canal company is to be appointed to this office. They are also prohibited from being interested in contracts on the canal.

Each of the directors, except the president, is to receive a salary of $5000 per year and the president is to have $6000. All travelling expenses are to be paid. Annual reports are required. There is a provision against declaring a dividend except upon the net earnings. The company is authorized to contract for the completion of the canal within six years. The payments are restricted to $20,000,000 annually. The canal is to be made large enough "for the use of the largest seagoing vessels at a cost not to exceed the estimate of the engineers and not to exceed $115,000,000." This amount is made a permanent appropriation for the work to be used as occasion may require.

The bill gives the government a lien upon the property to secure the repayment of the moneys advanced and the president is empowered to declare forfeiture of the property to the United States without the necessity of judicial or other ascertainment. Thereafter full title is to rest in the government of the United States.

The president is authorized to suspend payments at any time. The president is also authorized to secure any change in or modification of the terms of the concern either from the concessionaires or from Nicaragua and Costa Rica. In case of failure in such negotiations, the president is empowered to negotiate for another route across the isthmus. He is further required to open negotiations for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty or any other treaty found to be in existence and standing in the way of the construction of the canal.

The neutrality of the canal is guaranteed, but the right to protect it against interruptions of business between the Atlantic and Pacific coast of the United States is reserved.

Government Not to Blame.

Washington, Jan. 23.—It can be stated authoritatively that, if the published reports of the events at Apia are true, the acts of the German consul, Rose, and of the president of the municipal council, Rafael, were not the result of instructions from the German government, and so far as these acts were violative of the treaty of Berlin it is not believed at the state department that they will receive the approval of the German government.

Alleged Assailant Missing.

Boston, Jan. 23.—An autopsy was held yesterday on the body of Mrs. Bertha Ryan, who was found dead in her room at the west end late Saturday night, and it was found that, while the immediate cause of her death was neglect, she had previously sustained severe internal injuries, and also had three broken ribs. The police are looking for a man named Sutherland, who lived with the woman as her husband, and who, it is claimed, is responsible for the woman's death. A friend of Mrs. Ryan's stated yesterday that, previous to her death, she had confessed that Sutherland assaulted her. To the police Mrs. Ryan had said that she received her injuries through a fall on the common.

FOUGHT IN THE DARK.

Somerville Man Has an Exciting Encounter With a Burglar.

Received a Wound In an Arm During the Tussle.

Young Desperado With a Bad Record Overcome and Locked Up.

Somerville, Mass., Jan. 23.—The burglaries which for a number of weeks have terrorized the residents of Somerville culminated yesterday morning in the capture of a 16-year-old miscreant, who, with the desperation of a rogue at bay, fired at the man who discovered him. The affair occurred in the house of William Wade on Elm street, West Somerville, and Howard Wade, who grappled with the burglar, received a bullet wound in the arm. This did not prevent his holding the burglar until his brother came to his assistance, while a man in the street went after the police. The burglar proved to be Ernest C. Darling, who has been arrested and served time for several other offenses. He will be arraigned for breaking and entering and assault with intent to kill.

Howard Wade was awakened by the man at 2 o'clock in the morning. As his eyes became accustomed to the darkness he discovered the burglar, who, in reply to Wade's demand as to who he was, said, "Shut up or I'll shoot you." Undaunted by the threat, Wade made a spring at the burglar.

At the moment Wade, with arms outstretched, jumped to grapple his unknown visitor the burglar fired. So near was he that the flame singed Wade's mustache, while the grains of burning powder entered the skin of the upper lip. The bullet passed through the fleshy part of Wade's upper right arm. Wade grappled with his assailant, and in the struggle which ensued the revolver fell to the floor. By this time Wade's sister had been awakened and soon his brother, William, came to his assistance, and the two soon had the young burglar under subjection.

Then Howard Wade opened the window and shouted for the police, but the only reply came from a man further down the street, who jumped on board a passing electric car and rode half a mile before sighting a policeman. While the officer was learning from the stranger a few meager details of the affair the conductor and motorman reversed the trolley and the car went at full speed back to the scene of the shooting. William Wade held Darling 15 minutes before the policeman arrived, his brother in the meantime going to a druggist's to telephone for a doctor.

At the station Darling was at once recognized, and with great bravado gave the officers a full account of his entrance into the house. A pocketbook belonging to Howard Wade was found in his pocket, while other articles were also found that connect him with numerous other burglaries that have taken place in the city during the past two weeks.

Darling was arrested when only 11 years old for breaking and entering and placed on probation. He was afterwards sent to state institutions for other offenses, and the night of his last release from the reformatory he stole a horse and buggy at Framingham. Wade's wound is not dangerous.

All Invited to Contribute.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The executive committee of the Longfellow National Memorial association, formed for the purpose of erecting a statue of the poet in Washington, has issued an appeal to the public for subscriptions to accomplish this purpose. The committee estimates that $35,000 will be needed to procure a statue worthy of the poet and the site. The smallest contributions will be welcomed. The Riggs National bank of Washington has consented to act as financial agent for the memorial association, and checks may be made payable to it.

Killed Wife and Himself.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—John Diethoff shot his wife yesterday after a quarrel. He then shot himself twice. Both died later at a hospital. Deithoff and his wife had not been living together for some time. Deithoff frequently demanded money from his wife, and her refusal to supply him with funds is supposed to have caused the crime.

Three Died Together.

Albany, Jan. 23.—Three children of John and Susie Shear were drowned yesterday at Ravenna, in the reservoir there. They had been playing on the ice and broke through. The bodies have been recovered.

Good Afternoon.

At the last meeting of the City Council there were introduced several orders, petitions and communicaions involving appropriations. The City Auditor reported several appropriations of 1898 exhausted with many unpaid bills; there was a petition for the widening of Willard street, to be charged to the general highway appropriation; an order seeking authority to raise $150,000 outside the debt limit for widening and improving streets and another order appropriating $75,000 for sewer extensions. In view of the outrageous apportionment of the city's municipal debt, as shown in the statement just issued by City Auditor Hall, and published in this issue, it is important, yes imperative, that the Finance Committee and City Council have their eyes open. While our municipal debt is being reduced annually, and should lighten the burden of the taxpayer, it is a startling fact that the maturing debt is larger each year, and that it has reached formidable size.

The Ledger did last year compliment the Finance Committee because of its efforts to equally apportion the debt, but this was previous to October 1. Since that date, by gross carelessness of the Finance Committee, new debts amounting to $7,900 was so apportioned that $6,400 matures this year. In view of the fact that at the beginning of 1898 it was known that $68,380 of the debt was to mature in 1899, and that up to Oct. 1 the Council had added $7,130.25, it was an imposition upon the taxpayers of 1899 to make one, two and three year loans. The taxpayers cannot stand such financiering.

What is the result! Why! the municipal debt is but $265,505.86, yet the taxpayers must this year pay $81,590.25. The city is allowed to apportion its municipal debt over ten years, but instead of paying one-tenth or one-ninth, it will this year pay very nearly one-third. This is altogether too much, and a grievous wrong upon the taxpayers. The city is limited this year to $271,938.20 for current expenses, yet the law is defeated by one and two year loans, so that this year we must pay $81,950.25 additional. This is aside from debts outside the debt limit, of which $1,000 this year matures for playgrounds $29,500 for water, and $8,000 for sewers. The grand total of the maturing debt this year is $120,-450.25.

The amout of the maturing municipal debt paid in 1898 was $62,080 and this year taxpayers must pay $19,870 more, which of itself will require an additional dollar on the tax rate.

It is not to secure relief for the taxpayers this year that this article is written, but to save them next year. The only relief this year can come from a reduction of current expenses, and to do this all appropriations for improvements must be excluded and incorporated in an improvement loan. The Willard street order, if the improvement is necessary, comes in this category.

To obtain relief in 1900 it is important that the maturing debt of that year, which now amounts to $62,700.00, shall NOT BE INCREASED ONE DOLLAR. The first payment on all loans authorized should not fall due until 1901; even the loan to pay the debts of 1898.

If it is deemed advisable to expend $150,000 for the purpose of laying out, establishing, constructing, widening or improving streets, as contemplated in the order of Councilman Swithin, it is not at all necessary to seek special legislation. The limit of the municipal debt is two and one-half per cent. of the average valuation of 1896, 1897 and 1898, which Mayor Keith gave in his inaugural as $18,161,-517. Two and one-half per cent. of this amount would be $454,037.82. As the municipal debt is but $265,-505.86, the city has a leeway of $188,-531.96. Before July 2 the city will pay off $36,750.00, increasing the margin to $225,281.96, and before the end of the year it will pay $81,950.25, increasing the margin to 270,482.21. This latter sum should provide for the highway improvement loan (which need not be $150,000 in a single year), and for all other municipal loans necessary. It will surprise many to learn that the city has such a large margin on its municipal debt.

With the sewer loan the situation is much different, as the city is to be reimbursed within ten years for one-half the cost by the abutters on sewered streets. The special sewer act provides, just how the receipts from assessments shall be applied, and the facts are that the assessments levied will for some years pay the entire cost of maintenance, interest and maturing sewer debt. It is for the Finance Committee to estimate these receipts and ascertain if they will not largely exceed the above requirements. If they do, a large sum should be paid annually on new loans rather than accumulate a surplus which must lay in the treasury while interest is paid on the bonds.

The Ledger has marked the 1898 loans in the statement of City Auditor Hall with an asterisk.

Ladies in a Runaway.

There was a lively runaway in City Square Saturday afternoon, and that Mrs. Charles H. Hersey and her daughter, who were in the carriage, escaped without serious injury, was remarkable. They were driving near the fountain when the horse kicked and broke the shaft, which flying up, startled the animal, who started up Hancock street on the jump. The shaft being broken, the horse was unmanageable. When in front of the Y. M. C. A. building, the runaway collided with the carriage of E. J. Sandberg, the force of the collision throwing the two ladies out and dragging them a short distance. The animal continued on with the broken carriage and turned into Granite street distributing parts of the wheels on the way. On Granite street it collided with Franklin Jacob's carriage, and a little further on with L. M. Pratt & Co.'s grocery wagon. In front of Sheppard's coal office the animal cleared himself from the teams, and ran as far as the residence of E. W. H. Bass, when he was captured unhurt by Dr. Henderson.

Mrs. Hersey and her daughter were taken into store of Mr. G. Bates and then into Miss Hubbard's, where they were attended by Dr. Jones and Dr. Gordon. Later they were taken to their homes. They were both bruised somewhat but fortunately escaped without any broken bones. This morning both are reported as being all right.

The buggy is a total wreck, both forward wheels being smashed and the body otherwise broken. The other teams in the affair were not damaged. The runaway was witnessed by a large number of people and a crowd quickly collected. Mr. Hersey appreciates the kindly services of the many who rushed to the rescue of the ladies, and desires herewith to return his thanks.

The City Hall Nuisance.

Dr. Jones, secretary of the Board of Health, thinks the criticism of Mayor Keith, relative to the removal of the nuisance in the rear of City Hall does the board an injustice, as all of the facts in the matter were not stated.

Dr. Jones says that on the day of the inauguration of Mayor Keith, after the ceremonies, he had a talk with His Honor, in which the Mayor said that the affair was a nuisance and should be abolished.

The next meeting of the board was held last Tuesday evening and out of courtesy to the Mayor the board voted to have the nuisance abolished. The next morning a notice was served upon Commissioner Knowlton. The Commissioner, however, said that the ground was frozen and that as he was about to go out of office he did not desire to do it and the notice was returned.

Understanding that the Mayor was the proper party to serve the notice upon, it was made out to him and served that he might turn it over to the new Commissioner. This notice was served by Inspector Cunningham on Saturday. The notice was made out upon the legal form provided for such cases. No discourtesy was intended, says Dr. Jones, the board considering it rather a matter of courtesy.

QUARTER CENTENNIAL.

A Notable Day for the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal Church.

A large congregation gathered Sunday morning in the First Methodist Episcopal church of Wollaston for the first of the quarter centennial anniversary services.

The preacher was the Rev. Dr. W. E. Huntington, dean of the C. L. A. department of Boston University, who gave a scholarly and inspiring sermon, which was listeneed to with marked interest. His text was from Matthew 20:26. He pointed out the fact that men's ideas of greatness differ. There are some people, especially the less enlightened, who look upon the physical giant as great. There are others, especially commercial nations, who consider the man of immense wealth as great. There are still others, as in this age, who look upon the intellectual giant as great while there are some who declare those whom the world call geniuses, to be great. But Jesus set up a different standard. The Christ did not teach men to torture the body. He did not command his followers to wander about as penniless vagrants. He did not condemn schools and education. He simply put aside all human standards of greatness and said: "Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your servant. The Master declared that among his followers he shall be great who gives himself unselfishly to the service of others. This is a kind of greatness to which all may attain. One thing, however, is first neecessary. We must repent, must turn away from their sins and receive the spirit of Him who lived and died to serve humanity.

The past twenty-five years history of the society is replete with interest. From a small beginning it has grown to be one of the largest and strongest in Wollaston.

In 1872 while Rev. Samuel Kelly was serving West Quincy and the National Sailors' Home, he found a few Methodist families at Wollaston Heights, and in the fall of that year organized a class with H. S. Braden as leader. In the spring of 1873 a prayer meeting was begun, and at the first service two souls were converted.

But when zeal is guided by discretion more must always be attempted, and January 4, 1874, a church and Sunday school were organized by Rev. William R. Cark, D. D., Presiding Elder of Boston District, in the hall of the school house. The office bearers were, Henry S. Braden, class leader; Isaac Mellish, Sunday School superintendent; Benjamin C. Barlow, H. S. Bradden, M. G. Brown, Isaac Mellish, stewards; H. S. Braden, B. C. Barlow, Israel Waterhouse, trustees.

September 27, 1874, Rev. S. L. Beiler was appointed the first pastor; and on the 22d of November they voted to build a church. "Through the efficient services of Rev. B. I. Ives of New York, and Rev. E. P. King, City Missionary, $2,500 were subscribed toward the building in the public congregation. A puilding committee was soon after appointed, consisting of Irsael Waterhouse, H. S. Braden, B. C. Barlow, and to the latter the contract for building the church was let. In the meantime the Wollaston Land Associates had given the society 15,000 feet of land on the corner of Beach street and Central avenue, on which to erect the church.

At the beginning of the conference year, April, 7, 1875, being Fast Day, the new edifice was dedicated, with a membership of 16, and 15 on probation Rev. Luther T. Townsend, D. D., preached the sermon, and Rev. S. L. Gracey preached in the evening. The cost of the church was about $6,000.

The April conference appointed the Rev. S. L. Beiler was pastor to this church and at Quincy Point. He gave one-half his time to each place. During his ministry the membership increaased from eight to 28, with 12 probationers. The next year the Rev. Mark Trafton, who had moved to Wollaston, was appointed pastor and reappointed in 1877-78. The Sunday School was disbanded during the later part of the year 1878, but was revived by the Rev. Dr. Trafton, who was chosen superintendent. During 1879, Fr. Kelley had charge of the services and was also superintend ent of the Sunday School.

At this time there were but 13 members and five probationers, including a small class at Germantown. The pastor received for his years services the sum of $32, but the burden of the debt rested heavily upon the small society, and the village was—owing to the hard times—not growing much, and future prospects were dark indeed. The society voted to supply themselves for 1880, and no preacher was appointed from conference, and during the winter of 1880 the church was closed, but in the spring of 1881 the Rev. Dr. Trafton began to supply the pulpit, continuing to do so until May 1882. For the balance of the year the pulpit was supplied by the Rev. Mr. Hock, the Rev. Franklin Furber, the Rev. Mr. Reed and the Rev. Mr. Robinson.

During the year Mr. I. B. Quimby reorganized the Sunday School. He was succeeded as superintendent by Mr. L. S. Parsons, who kept it until he moved away in 1883, when Mr. E. Hewitson was elected to the office which he held during the remainder of the year and until the end of the Sunday School year in April, 1858 when he was succeeded by Mr. Charles W. Johnson.

In 1883 conference appointed the Rev. L. D. Younkin as supply, having had charge of the service since Dec. 23, 1882. Brighter prospects were in store for the struggling society, for during this year a debt of $4,800 was raised, and the church cleared from debt. Bishop W. F. Mallalieu being prominent in the movement.

Since this time the following pastors have served the church: Fred H. Knight, 1884-5-6; Henry B. Schwartz, 1887-88; Luther Freeman, 1889-90-91; W. S. Fritch and W. B. Holingshead, 1892; Charles W. Wilder, 1893-4-5; Seth C. Cary. 1896-7.

In 1897 the chapel was moved to the corner of Beale and Safford streets and was remodelled and enlarged at an expense of over $4,600, all of which has been paid. The edifice was rededicated Nov. 30, 1897.

The present pastor, the Rev. J. E. Waterhouse, was born in Gorham, Me., Jan. 12, 1867, but removed to Boston in 1873. He attended the public schools of Boston and graduated from the East Boston high school in 1885 and the Boston Latin school in 1887. He graduated from the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University in 1891 with the degree of A. B. he spent a year in the graduate department of Harvard College, and then took a special course at the Theological school of Boston University. He united with the New England conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1894, and was assigned to the pastorate of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Revere. At the close of his connection with the Revere church he filled a three years pastorate with the Methodist church at Shrewsbury, from which church he was assigned to the Wollaston church last April.

Thanks Voted.

The closing entertainment of the People's course, was held Saturday evening, and the Salem Cadet band was a great drawing attraction. The hall was crowded and the programme as advertised was given with encores or nearly every number. It was thoughtful of Hon. John Shaw at the close to obtain an expression of the audience upon the course this winter. It was a vociferous response which came upon his motion that a vote of thanks be given to the managers, Mr. F. B. Rice and Mr. Emery L. Crane.

Fabulous Piano Profits

There is satisfaction in owning a piano, but the satisfaction is two-fold, when you know you didn't pay a fabulous profit to the man you bought it from. People do pay too much for pianos, pay a great deal more than they are worth. Ask them why and everyone will tell the same old story, "Supposed the price was right and as low as it could be bought." Now here's the difference, we are doing a splendid piano business, saving our customers hundreds of dollars on pianos, selling a first-class new piano for $185.00, worth at least $350.00.

No matter what kind of a piano you want, come here; buy it through us and save a small barrel of money.

GRAND RECEPTION.

W. R. Lofgren and Miss Augusta Peterson United in Marrige.

Mr. W. R. Lofgren, the well known carpenter and builder, and Miss Augusta Peterson were united in marriage on Saturday. The ceremony which made these two hearts beat as one was performed in Boston in the early evening. Meanwhile many of the friends of the happy pair were gathering at Colonial hall, where the reception was to be held. Mr. and Mrs. Lofgren arrived at 8 o'clock, and for the first half hour were busy receiving the congratulations which were showered upon them by the hundred or more present.

Seats were then taken at the tables which had been laid in the hall, and from that time on until 11 o'clock the wedding feast was served. During the evening there was music by an orchestra, guitar and mandolin duets by Mr. Lord and Master Muer, and singing by the church choir and solos by Galen V. Bowditch.

There were also remarks of a congratulatory nature Mr. Lindstrom, the pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, acting as master of ceremonies. Remarks were made by Mr. Linstrom, Rev. W. W. Dornan, Henry H. Faxon, Commissioner of Public Works C. F. Knowlton, Thomas B. Davenport, Mr. Burgess and others in the English language, and Dr. J. A. Elmere and August Weeden in the Swedish language.

It was a very pleasant occasion and if Mr. and Mrs. Lofgren realize all the good things wished them, their life will be one of eternal bliss.

One of the gems of the new south Station is the sign Men's Smoking Room." As smoking is not yet in vogue among ladies, the phraseology on the sign causes some wonderment.

WHITMARSH—In Wollaston, Jan. 20, Mrs. Kittie, wife of Mr. William P. Whitmarsh, aged 28 years.

TO BE MUSTERED OUT

Co. K Boys Now Confident of It and Are Happy.

With Co. K, 5th Mass., Camp Wetherill, Greenville, S. C., Jan. 19.

This has been an extraordinary day. The weather is fair but chilly; the theremometer ranging at 40 above.

The boys continue to promenade around the camp after dark, celebrating the mustering out of our regiment which will take place shortly.

Tonight a number of the boys from the regimental headquarters, made a friendly visit over to the camp of the 4th Missouri, to congratulate the members of the said regiment on their future. Tomorrow (Friday), a board of medical officers meet to examine the boys of the 4th Missouri previous to their mustering out. On the board is Sergeon Major Pearl of the 5th Massachusetts. The mustering out will take about three weeks before it is completed.

The members of our "Dandy Fifth" expect to be prepared for mustering out about the end of February. It is the desire of our members to parade in Boston but according to the new orders issued, all regiments that are mustered out will have to turn in at camp all government property, including rifles. Therefore, with this new order, it will be utterly impossible to parade, for it would be useless without arms.

The boys feel overjoyed, at the good news. The public in general must understand that the order will not stand if there is any trouble in the Philippines. Our boys can only trust that peace will reign until the date of mustering out.

K company boys who are on provost duty still continue to walk their lonely beats. They are busily engaged every passing moment. Numbers of arrests take place hourly. Major Morrison keeps a sharp watch on all evil doers. He is an energetic worker, and fills his position ably and well.

Corporal Hermanson has again resumed his duties, having taken charge of a detail of provosts.

Private "Bill" Morrisey walks his beat in a military manner. Bill keeps constantly on the alert, having his eyes open for any trouble that might ensue.

Private "Buckie" Collins also makes a good provost guard.

Quarter master Sergeant Crane has his hands full of business all the day, drawing and furnishing rations for the company.

Private Malcolm is detailed to Company I to fill a vacancy. His patrol is in the centre of the city. The boys of K continue fair in health.

VOLUNTEER.

Could Not Wait for Him.

Saturday night about 10 o'clock, the officer of the District court saw, or thought he saw, an owl perched upon a pole in front of the Adams building. He had a desire to secure that owl for his own, and although several schemes suggested themselves to him, the most feasible one was to place a ladder against the pole and go up and shoot him. He presumingly supposed that the owl would wait for him. He sent to the police station for a revolver, and while waiting for it to arrive, he placed a fifteen foot ladder against a twenty-five foot pole and waited for the gun. The owl, however, had ideas of his own, for as the man with the revolver came across the street, the owl gave a hoot and disappeared.

Embree Bros., the Quincy Point boat builders, are at work on the new "Claytonia," Mr. Charles Alden's yacht. Last season Mr. Alden was anxious to rush her through to have the use of her last year, but now he is putting in a toilet room, ice chest and set bowl and sink, and when completed she will be a fine boat. A new tender about 12 feet long is being built also for the "Claytonia."

The circulation of the Daily Ledger is more than gaining steadily; it is jumping. Twice last week it was necessary to print second editions to supply the demand. The second edition of Saturday was of four pages.

Henry H. Faxon was probably pleased to read in a Sunday paper that club life was on the decline in New York.

Brockton also wants to obtain permission to borrow $100,000 outside the debt limit for permanent street improvements.

Bicycle Models for 1899

In less than two week's time we will show to the citizens of Quincy and vicinity at least 40 different 1899 models of bicycles, comprising the most advanced ideas of bicycle perfection, and affording to bicycle lovers the smoothest running bicycles it has ever been your good fortune to feast your eyes upon.

We merely make this announcement to notify the public at large that we intend to be in the bicycle business for the year of 1899 even more than ever before.

Both Sides Firm.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 23.—In connection with the meeting Saturday between the shoe manufacturers and the state board of arbitration, the former state that the conference was without result, and that they are as firm as ever in their adherence to the notice. They also claim that over 1000 workmen are in the factories in this city, and that all are turning out good work. At the Boot and Shoe Workers' union meeting yesterday, a motion was made that members be allowed to work in the factories without being called scabs. The motion was defeated.

Fell From Ice Wagon.

Providence, Jan. 23. — Welford W. Boucher was found dead in a yard of the East Providence Ice company yesterday morning, and the position of the body when found indicated a fall from an ice wagon was the cause. Death was not due to the injuries sustained, but was caused by suffocation, the head being doubled under the body in such a manner as to prevent respiration. Boucher was in all probability stunned by the fall and unable to extricate himself from the position he was in.

That terrible suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began a treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is transmitted by contagion and not heredity. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) adopts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power, a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encouraging to "consumption families." It is not heriditary, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumption patient should never expectorate when it can dry up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air pasages. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis, thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tissues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. EXPANSION OPPOSED.

Ex-Ambassador Eustis Denounces "Wild Theory" of Annexationists.

Characterized by Cockran as a "Policy of Infamy."

Gompers Says the Nation's Flag Should Never Be Used to Hide Tyranny.

New York, Jan. 23.—W. Bourke Cockran made his debut as an anti-imperialist last night at a mass meeting of citizens in the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Continental league for the purpose of protesting against the policy of imperialism.

The first speaker of the evening was Hon. James B. Eustis, former United States ambassador to France. Mr. Eustis said in part: "What a strange sight. A meeting of intelligent American citizens on American soil protesting against imperialism and the imperialistic policy of the American government. The representatives of the people of this great country are combatting the idea, and I hardly feel as though I were living in the republic of the United States; I feel as though I were living instead in some continental country where imperialism is recognized.

"The sentiment of the American people is against the rash idea of expansion; for to fight the Filipinos would mean loss of life to American soldiers in the future in a sickly clime, if this wild theory is carried out. There are only two persons whose ideas on the question of annexing the Philippines have given me cause for serious thought. One of them thought that by annexation certain United States merchandise could be sold to the Philippines. The other was a preacher who thought that by expansion and annexation he could sell some Protestant bibles to the natives.

"The president of the United States," continued the speaker, "will on March 4 next adjourn congress, which will not meet again until December, during which time he will become military dictator of more than 12,500,000 of people in these conquered islands. Yet our constitutional president is going to govern them by his personal will."

Mr. Eustis referred to the late war with Spain and contended that the signing of the peace protocol after the sueing for peace by Spain was in itself sufficient to decide the questions involved.

Samuel Gompers was the next speaker. Mr. Gompers severely criticised the action and inconsistency, he said, of the United States government in going to war to free the Cubans and of denying the same measure of freedom and liberty to the Filipinos. The flag of the nation should never be used to hide tyranny. He said that it is not at all improbable that the Filipinos will yet become part of the standing army of the United States, and might yet be called upon to shoot down American wage earners. He said it was un-American to subdue a people by force of arms and at the same time maintain our free institutions.

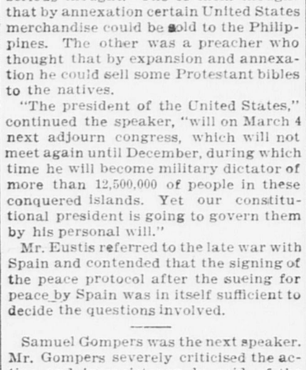
W. Bourke Cockran, the next speaker, said: "This heresy of imperialism is sweeping over the country and is threatening the stability of our institutions and our measure of free government. It is a policy of infamy. This country of ours, the home of alien races, is now raising aloft its hands in protest against a policy which, if successful, will obscure the horizon of the whole human race. Shall this country step down from the high eminence which she has attained in the family of nations in the matter of imperialism? When we are asked to take this step, it is but natural that we ask its promulgators to unravel their pretenses and when we do so we find them advocating contradictory arguments. The question of imperialism and expansion boiled down to its true import is a dangerous policy to either adopt or pursue. The imperialists tell you that trade follows the flag when in fact every American knows that the opposite is the case. It is the flag that follows trade.

we want expansion, why, here to the north of us lies a country which is a natural part of us. Why not annex Canada? I'd be delighted to see that line of custom houses beyond our border blown into the Great Lakes and our line of territory to the north of us extended to Baffin's bay. Deeply as I desire annexation with Canada, I would not have it by force of arms. The histories of Alsace-Lorraine and England's treatment of Ireland but too well illustrate the foolishness of annexation by force and coercion. Now if England likes us as she claims she does, let her convince Canadians that her true destiny is with us."

Communications were read from ex-President Cleveland and William Jennings Bryan, regretting their inability to be present. Mr. Cleveland in his letter said: "I am so opposed to the expansionist craze now afflicting our body politic that any organization formed in opposition to it has my hearty sympathy and approval."

Mr. Bryan said that he was fully in sympathy with every effort put forth to save the nation from the dangers of imperialism.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted condemning imperialism and in favor of independence of the Filipinos.



BOURKE COCKRAN.

"Is it part of the principles of our free and independent government to proceed to civilize a weaker people by first shooting and then robbing them? We shrink from the responsibility imposed on us by destiny, and when we fail to be convinced of this appeal to destiny, we are charged with being un-American. This child of destiny is a new growth in this country, but in the old he is as old as human depravity.

"No nation, particularly the American nation, can have a citizen soldiery and a mercenary army. It is against the faith of Washington and the signers of the declaration of independence. The imperialists of today would have you and I believe that Washington and the framers of the constitution descended on the Capitol at Washington and played havoc with the nation and of course were decidedly un-American.

"With regard to the Philippines, if we are to become barbarous let us excel in our barbarity as we have excelled in our civilization all the other nations of the world. Let us not substitute the weight of cannon balls for moral integrity and support. I confess I am in favor of expansion if it is meant in the right direction. In this case everything depends on what is meant by the right direction. If

FREE FROM BITTERNESS.

Germany Willing to Make Sacrifices to Retain Our Friendship.

London, Jan. 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says: There are good reasons for believing that the German government regards the maintenance of cordial relations with Great Britain and the United States as far more important than even German commercial interests in Samoa. The tone of the leading journals, therefore, is, on the whole, free from bitterness or exaggeration. In a word, there are many indications that Germany will not frustrate a revision of the treaty of Berlin by extravagant demands, such as for the cession of the islands to Germany. The Kolnische Zeltung ridicules the report that Dr. Von Holleben, German ambassador at Washington, has complained of Mr. Berry's remarks in the house of representatives, and says that the United States ambassador in Berlin (Mr. White) might as well have complained of Herr Ahlwardt's anti-American ravings in the reichstag.

Murdered by Filipinos.

Labuan, British Borneo, Jan. 23.—The steamer Labuan, Captain Pfort, which has just returned from the island of Palawan, in the southwestern portion of the Philippine archipelago, reports that the Spanish governor of the island and a number of Spanish officers were murdered by the natives while issuing from church. The natives then retired to the hills, taking the women and children and some men as prisoners. A Spanish gunboat and a mail boat called and left again. Captain Pfort interviewed the natives and brought away the governor's wife, the other women and children, a priest and 12 soldiers, all of whom are now safe at Sandakan, British Borneo.

The Congo Rebellion.

Brussels, Jan. 23.—There has been fresh fighting in the Congo state. The Patriote announces, between the Belgian troops and the rebels, the former having sustained heavy losses, including some white officers killed. Le Patriote says: The real truth as to the situation in the Congo state is being hidden. The losses of the Congo state troops of late have been much understated here. The whole country is in a ferment, and the rebellion is not being put down. The government troops appear to fear the rebels, and the prestige of the whites has been much impaired.

But One of Family Left.

Hong Kong, Jan. 23.—A crowded meeting of the leading commercial Chinese, held at the Chinese chamber of commerce yesterday, unanimously approved the views recently expressed here by Lord Beresford as to the necessity for reform, the maintenance of the "open door" and the reorganization of the army and navy under British officers. It was a spontaneous Chinese meeting, unprompted by foreigners, and was, therefore, highly significant.

May Testify Today.

Paris, Jan. 23.—Major Esterhazy, the reputed author of the Dreyfus bordereau, who arrived here from Rotterdam to testify before the court of cassation, wrote to M. De Freycinet, asking to be released from his oath of professional secrecy. M. De Freycinet acceded to his request, and it is believed that Comte Esterhazy will appear before the court today. He continues to decline to receive visitors.

Complaint on Tariff.

Berlin, Jan. 23.—It is understood that Dr. Von Holleben, German ambassador to the United States, will be instructed to include in the pending negotiations for a commercial treaty the recent interpretation of the tariff appraisement of cotton velvets, eau de cologne and chocolate, under the ruling of the United States supreme court of Dec. 27 last, on the ground that the court's decision is unfair to German exporters.

A Newspaper Yarn.

Madrid, Jan. 23.—El Tiempo publishes an interview with an Englishman, whose name is not given, but who is described as "prominent in British public affairs," in which he is represented as declaring that, although a Spanish victory in the Hispano-American war would not have suited England's aims, she is now desirous of an alliance with Spain to forward her interests in Africa.

Not Opposed to Conference.

Berlin, Jan. 23.—Germany, it is understood, is not likely to propose a conference as to Samoan affairs, but the government will readily consent to enter a conference, if the United States government proposes one. The German gunboat Iltis has been ordered to Samoa to replace the cruiser Cormoran.

Priest Released.

Shanghai, Jan. 23.—A telegram from Chun Khing (province of So-Chuen) announces the release of Father Fleury, after several months' captivity in the hands of the So-Chuen rebels. It was supposed he had been murdered.

Talking of a Swap.

London, Jan. 23.—The Times, discussing editorially Anglo-French relations, hints that France will be offered concessions in Madagascar as a set-off to the French shore rights in Newfoundland.

NO HOPE FOR QUAY.

Manager of Opponents Says the Senator Will Surely Be Beaten.

Harrisburg, Jan. 23.—E. A. Van Valkenburg, who is managing the anti-Quay campaign, issued a statement last night in which he says the senatorial situation is no longer complicated or uncertain. Van Valkenburg claims that Senator Quay's strength was at high tide when he received 113 votes, which is just 14 short of a majority. Against him are 139 votes; 87 are Democrats and 52 anti-Quay Republicans. He says:

"The Quay managers have abandoned all hope of securing a single vote from the anti-Quay ranks. But, while admitting that no Democrat will vote directly for Quay at any stage of the contest, they assert, with an air of mystery, rather than of confidence, that at the proper time enough Democrats will be found to supply the necessary 14 votes that Senator Quay must have to elect him.

"The Quay machine is hankrupt in the matter of political patronage. All the attempts of the Quay people to create friction between the Democrats and the anti-Quay Republicans have failed. Senator Quay massed all of his strength to break the anti-Quay lines last Wednesday, and failed. He has given orders that every effort must be made to break them next Tuesday, but he will again fail. Senator Quay may be able to prolong the deadlock, but re-elect himself United States senator from Pennsylvania, never."

Governor Stone gave out the following statement last evening on the senatorial situation:

"My opinion has not changed since I expressed the belief, after the action of the caucus making Quay the nominee of the Republican party for the United States senate, that he will be re-elected. His supporters have not had a break in their lines since that time, and they have made gains. Pennsylvania is a Republican state and unless there are some serious reasons why a regularly named candidate of the Republican party in the state should not be elected, it is safe to predict that he will win. More than two-thirds of the Republican members of the general assembly are already publicly committed to him. No one can honestly or fairly question the regularity of the nomination of Senator Quay. The caucus was regularly called and properly conducted. Stalwart Republicans generally throughout the commonwealth have accepted him as the candidate of their party and want to see him elected.

"There should be no occasion for concern among the friends of Senator Quay on account of the present deadlock on the senatorship. Public sentiment in his favor is making itself felt among the members of the legislature. If Senator Quay's supporters stand firm, as I am convinced they will, his re-election will certainly follow in due time."

A Remarkable Case.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 23.—While stealing a ride on a freight train from Salem to Boston Saturday night, Timothy Connors fell beneath the cars and had both his legs cut off. Connors lay all night in a ditch by the side of the tracks near the Swampscott station, being unable to attract attention from passers-by. He was conscious when found yesterday morning, but physicians entertain but slight hopes of his recovery. The reason he did not bleed to death during the night was that the arteries in his legs were closed up, and also from the fact that he lay all night with the stumps of his legs higher than his head.

Bondsmen Settle.

Melrose, Mass., Jan. 23.—The Melrose Co-operative bank has, after 19 hearings before different courts and auditors, received from the bondsmen of Charles Newhall, the defauting secretary of the bank, $3300, being the full amount of Newhall's bonds with interest. Newhall took from the bank over $4000, and is now serving a three-years' term in the house of correction. The bank will make up the balance of the loss.

Dr. Hillis Accepts.

New York, Jan. 23.—Rev. Newell D. Hillis has accepted the pastorate of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, to succeed Dr. Lyman Abbott, whose ill health has made it necessary for him to withdraw from the pulpit. Dr. Hillis' acceptance, telegraphed from Chicago, was read at the morning service at Plymouth church yesterday. Dr. Abbott will take final leave of his congregation the latter part of February.

Policeman Stabbed.

Chattanooga, Jan. 23.—Policeman Baird of this city, who was called to quell a fight in one of the disreputable resorts of this city among discharged negro soldiers from two of the Indiana companies recently mustered out, was set upon by Jonh Glover, a negro from Indianapolis, and stabbed five times. Baird is in a critical condition. If he should die, lynching is probable.

Oil Still Burst.

Olean, N. Y., Jan. 23.—A still burst at the Standard oil refinery yesterday, throwing the burning oil over the adjoining works and causing a fire that caused $75,000 loss. No reason is known for the bursting of the still. Hundreds of employes of the works are at work getting the other stills reconnected, and work will probably go on as usual in a few days.

Twenty Months In Jail.

Auburn, Me., Jan. 23.—In the supreme court Saturday afternoon Herbert E. Merrill of Portland was arraigned on the charge of embezzlement of $2700 from Conant Patrick & Co., for whom he was a travelling salesman. He pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to 20 months at hard labor in the Auburn jail.

Killed His Mother.

Mahonoy City, Pa., Jan. 23.—Dennis McCarthy of Bowmans, a small mining village near here, while intoxicated last night, shot and instantly killed his mother, and then attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

AWFUL DEED.

Aged Woman Becomes Victim of Burglar.

Fatally Pounded and Slashed With Butcher Knife.

Maine Town Wrought Up Over the Terrible Crime.

Kittery, Me., Jan. 24.—One of the most daring robberies, and an undoubtedly successful attempt at murder, were committed here yesterday afternoon between 4 and 4:30 o'clock, the victim being Mrs. Mary Tarlton, an aged widow, living alone in a small 2½ story house on Commercial street, a few steps from Government street, the main thoroughfare of the town, through which the electric cars pass.

Fred Parks, 23 years old, who was seen to jump from the window of Mrs. Tarlton's lonely house, is locked up in the jail, charged with the crime. The entire community is wild with excitement, and last night, after Parks had been arrested at his home, he was openly threatened with lynching as he was led through the wrathful crowd to the jail.

Mrs. Tarlton, who is 88 years of age, lived alone in her little house, which is on the river bank, not far from the ferry, and has always lived a quiet life, with but few callers, although her friends were many.

George A. Williams was walking along the road yesterday afternoon, when some one told him there was a drunken man in the vicinity of Mrs. Carlton's house, who appeared to be acting rather peculiarly. Williams hastened to the house and tried the door, but could not get in, so he ran across to one of the neighbors for assistance. He had scarcely reached the house, which was only a few hundred yards away, when he heard a crash, and saw Parks leaping from one of the windows of the first floor. Before Williams could give the alarm, Parks had ran off up the street, disappearing into the woods.

With neighbors Williams ran back to the Tarleton house, and, after two or three ineffectual attempts, managed to break in the door of the kitchen. It was a grewsome spectacle that met their gaze, for on the floor lay the woman, her head bruised and battered, her shoulders slashed with the butcher knife that was near her, covered with blood, while blood was also scattered in every direction.

It took some minutes for Williams and his companions to ascertain that the woman was alive, and when they did so, one of their number hastened for a doctor, while the others bathed her head and shoulders. The physician, after a careful examination, gave but little hope for Mrs. Tarlton's recovery. She was carried to a neighboring house, and every effort was made to revive her.

In the meantime the police had been notified, and a searching party was at once organized for the pursuit of Parks, the party starting out within half an hour after Williams saw him dash off into the woods.

An examination of the house showed that, while everything was in fearful disorder, very little of value had been taken, although a most thorough search for money had been made.

Within three hours after the police had been notified of the affair, they had Parks under arrest. He was found at his father's house at Spruce Creek, and was readily given up by the family. Parks was at once handcuffed and brought up to the jail, but a great crowd had collected, and all sorts of threats were made, while his captors were unlocking the jail door. Once inside, he was locked in a cell, while two policemen were stationed as guards. The authorities do not expect any trouble from the citizens, although popular feeling is at a white heat. He will be taken to Alfred today, and lodged in the county jail.

Parks was apparently somewhat under the influence of liquor, and a bottle of whiskey was found in his pocket. None of the articles from the Tarlton house were found in his clothing. He talked but little regarding the affair, but did not deny that he committed the assault.

The physicians attending Mrs. Tarlton do not expect her to survive, as her wounds, especially about the head, are deep and of a most ghastly nature.

The room where the encounter took place gave every evidence of being the scene of a fierce struggle, and apparently Mrs. Tarlton did not succumb until her head had been pounded almost into a jelly, and her shoulders and arms cut and slashed as if by a butcher. Nearly every part of the room showed spots of blood, and even the celing did not escape being spattered.

Parks, who is 23 years of age, has already served time for other offenses.

☞ Glenwood ranges bring more comfort to a home than any article we know of. Wonderfully low in price, too, $18.00 to $30.00. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

THE SAMOAN SITUATION

Will Readily Yield to Diplomacy Unless the Unexpected Has Happened.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Inquiries made by the state department show that no further advices can be expected from Apia before the latter part of next week. This is based on the presumption that the reports will come on the regular line of vessels that travel between Auckland and Apia, but there is a possibility of some private sailing craft making the trip if events of sufficient importance to demand an immediate report have occurred there since the last steamer sailed.

By Friday or Saturday of this week the British warship which recently left Wallington should arrive at Apia and thus make it possible for one of the two British vessels which then will be at port to be used for the conveyance of mail advices to Auckland.

Such exchanges as have taken place up to this point between the three governments parties to the treaty of Berlin, in relation to the uprising in Apia, have been rather unofficial in character and have been confined pretty closely to expressions of a willingness to deal with the matter soberly and stand by the terms of the treaty in its adjustment. There is every reason to believe that the affair will yield to ordinary methods of diplomacy unless something has happened in the meantime at Apia to aggravate the situation.

Seeking Identification.

New York, Jan. 24.—The World says: The final report of William J. Kinsley, the handwriting expert, in the Adams poisoning case, has been made to the police. That report shows positively that the person who wrote the request for a sample bottle of Kutnow powder, which the agents of the manufacturers submitted to the police, also wrote the address on the package of cyanide of mercury sent to Harry Cornish as bromo seltzer. Captain McClusky and his entire staff of detectives are now trying to have this person identified. How soon that will be done, if it ever is done, is problematical.

Warships In Collision.

Devonport, Jan. 24.—The British first-class battleship Collingwood, driven by the strong current, collided with the British third-class cruiser Curacoa yesterday, driving a hole in the cruiser below her waterline, sweeping off her boats and damaging a gun sponsor. The Curacoa filled rapidly, and began to list. A scene of utmost excitement followed on board, but the in-rush of water was finally stopped by collision mats, and a number of tugs assisted the cruiser into the harbor, where she was docked. The damage to the Collingwood was not serious.

Death Ended Suffering.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 24.—Timothy Connors of Salem, who had both legs cut off while stealing a ride from Salem on a freight train Saturday night, died yesterday morning at Lynn hospital. Thirty-five cars ran over Connors at 11.30 Saturday night, near the second Swampscott bridge of the Boston and Maine road. He was not discovered until 7 o'clock Sunday morning, he having lain in a ditch most of that time unable, although conscious, to summon assistance.

Doctors Kept Busy.

North Adams, Mass., Jan. 24.—A large number of cases of poisoning by ptomaines were reported to the board of health yesterday, and an investigation showed that nearly all the cases were on the route of one of the milkmen of the city. The board believe that the victims were poisoned through some defect in the milk or the milk cans. None of the cases will prove fatal, although over 25 persons are under treatment by different physicians.

At a Ripe Old Age.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Bridget Fox, Lowell's oldest resident, is dead. She had attained the remarkable age of 105 years and 1 month, and she passed peacefully away yesterday at her home, her only daughter, Mrs. Delaney, and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Fox, being beside her during her last moments. Deceased was born in Ireland Dec. 23, 1793, in county Monoghan.

Georgia Justice.

Atlanta, Jan. 24.—A party of men surrounded the house of Farmer Rustin at Colquitt and demanded that his daughter come out. She refused, whereupon the men fired at the house from every side. One shot killed a boy. Another shot killed old man Rustin. The cause of the shooting was that Miss Rustin had sworn out a warrant for a man named Phillips.

More Earthquakes.

Athens, Jan. 24.—There have been fresh earthquake shocks in the provinces of the Poloponnesus, particularly in the districts of Kyparissia and Philaitra, on the Ionian coast. In the town of Kyparissia a number of houses, which were damaged by Sunday's shocks, collapsed yesterday, injuring many. In one village 50 children were injured.

Copying From Bay State.

Albany, Jan. 24.—The statutory revision commission, at the request of State Factory Inspector O'Leary, is drawing a measure which will increase the jurisdiction of the factory department over the factories in this state. The proposed act will embody the principles of the system in operation in Massachusetts.

Twelve Short.

Harrisburg, Jan. 24.—The fifth ballot for United States senator yesterday showed no change. Senator Quay still leads with 12 votes short of the necessary number to elect. A. B. Widener received two votes yesterday from anti-Quay members. The Democrats are still united on Jenks and the anti-Quay Republicans are divided between half a dozen candidates, with Congressman Dalzell of Pittsburg the favorite.

Frightened to Death.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 24.—Gertrude Walsh, 17, employed in the Nonotuck silk mill, died of heart failure yesterday morning, resulting from fright. While dressing to go to work she upset a lamp, and set fire to her room. She fainted, and never recovered consciousness. She was not burned.

Henry H. Faxon—Houses and land to let.

Good Afternoon.

The taxpayers united with the Ledger in surprise, when they learned that the maturing municipal debt for 1899 was $81,950.25, and that the grand total of the debt maturing this year is $120,450.25. They were astounded and we might say grieved, as well they may be. This wholly unnecessary showing, together with the avowed policy of Mayor Keith's administration to reduce the assessment on real estate to market value, regardless of consequences, will cause a tax rate of over $20 per $1,000 this year, and possibly $25 if the assessed valuation is largely reduced.

City Treasurer Gray of 1898-99 is to be credited with making all the loans of 1898 at a lower rate than ever. Every loan of 1898 was made at three and one-half per cent., where most of the city loans are at four per cent. and some at four and one-half per cent.

The municipal debt of Quincy includes 46 loans, the balance due on each varying from $400 to $60,000. The taxpayers will this year make payments on 40 of these loans and will extinguish 15. The largest payments this year are $8,000 for the new High schoolhouse, upon which there will remain but two payments, and $7,700 the final payment on the mammoth Willard school. $5,000 will also be paid for land for High schoolhouse, and $1,580 will pay the last instalment for the Willard lot. Also, $5,000 for Water street paving, $6,500 for the new Hose 4 house at West Quincy, $7,500 toward the new schoolhouses at "The Rail" and Norfolk Downs, and $4,000 for Hancock street improvement.

Careful figuring will show that Ward Four is decidedly in the lead in amount secured by existing loans for improvements, which foot up nearly $70,000. Ward Five is a good second, but Ward Three which is third got only about half as much as Wollaston. Atlantic leads Ward One nearly two to one, only about $10,000 of the whole loan of $265,505.86 being specifically for the Centre ward, although it pays about one-third of the whole taxes. The Quincy Point ward received even less.

"The new officers" of the Republican Ward and City Committee stand before the whole city as well as the Republican party, to show they are accredited in an unsavory light. From the unimpeachable evidence which is now in the hands of several of the party leaders, the meeting was illegally called, there being two distinct times, three quarters of an hour apart, stated in the notices which were issued to the members. As the matter now stands, the "officers" who were "elected" may have to step down and out with a third. The matter will be brought to the attention of the secretary of the Commonwealth, who has jurisdiction on such cases. The chairman for 1898 should issue another call for organization.

The 1898 Board of Health did not exactly make its exit amidst a blaze of glory. If all of that pent up energy had been scattered through the year it might have done much good to suffering humanity, including the cleaning out of the plague spot complained of.

The latest conundrum seems to be When is the Water Board not a Water Board?"

The National Sailors' Home dikes which were broken by the great storm are to be rebuilt.

Long on the Road.

In a sermon on "Hypocrisy" in St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston, Sunday evening, Rev. C. P. Mills, in illustration of one phase of "appearance vs. true character," related the following experince, says the Transcript:

Eight years ago, when he was the minister of an Episcopal church in a small town in Michigan, there came to him one day an old man, with gray hair and beard, who told a pitiful story of hard luck and temporarily straightened circumstances. He said that his home was in Minnesota and that a short time before he had started to go to New York to meet his son. On the way however he fell sick and was taken to a hospital. When sufficiently recovered to proceed on his journey he found that every penny which he had when he started was gone. As a worshipper in an Episcopal church in his own city, his first thought in applying for help was to seek out a minister of this denomination; and here he was. His threadbare, but neat clothing, his good address and venerable appearance, all gave credence to his story, and for the moment Mr. Mills was inclined to believe him. But a few questions put him on his guard. So he said: "I can recommend you to a man who will attend to your case——" The overseer of the poor?" broke in the fellow. "Yes." Without another word he turned on his heel and walked out, banging the door after him.

Sunday morning in one of the rear seats of St. Chrysostom's church in Wollaston sat an old man of sturdy build, with white hair and a long, gray beard, whose appearance commanded respect. After the service he waited until all the congregation had gone, and then, drawing Mr. Mills to one side, told his story. He said that his home was in Minnesota, and that he was on his way to Augusta, Me., where he was to meet his son. He became sick and was put in a hospital, and when recovered found himself almost penniless. He remembered having a nephew in Dedham, so went there for help, only to find that his relative, who was a carpenter, had the day before packed up his tools and gone to Quincy. He then came to Quincy and continued his search unsuccessfully, and now found himself without friends and with only a cent in his pocket. As he was a member of the Episcopal church in his own city, he looked for help from a minister of the same denomination. Mr. Mills said: "I can direct you to a man who will help you I have no doubt." "The overseer of the poor?" said the man. "No; a minister of another denomination." "You know what he would say to me," said the old man, and walked out of the church. His actions, speech and manner recalled to Mr. Mill's mind his experience of eight years before, and it occurred to him that it was the same man.

The New South Station.

The report that it will take fully a year to equip the subway is incorrect says the Herald. If necessity required it, the lower deck system could be put in full operation within 60 days. The rails for the loop tracks are on their way from the mills and the ballast has been contracted for.

A number of handsome clocks have been placed in conspicuous positions in the midway, and a long-felt want has been filled. Others are to be set up during the coming week, it being the intention of the managers to give passengers all the time they want.

Information was received Saturday from the Wheeler & Wilson factory in Bridgeport, the contractors for the train indicators, that they would be shipped early this week. With these in place, the midway will take on all the characteristics of a part of a real railroad station.

Trade At Home.

The people of the suburbs will do well to be on their guard, says the Herald, against two or three swindlers who pretend to be agents of Boston grocers. Their game is to solicit orders for groceries on the instalment plan, collecting a few dollars when they bind the bargain. The swindlers are now working Cambridgeport and Somervillc, but may be expected to pop up anywhere in the environs of Boston, as they already have left victims behind them in Chelsea, Malden, Everett, Roxbury, Brookline and the South End.

CHURCH BANQUET.

Anniversary Gathering of Wollaston M. E. Society.

The observance of the 25th anniversary of the Wollaston M. E. church was brought to a fitting close on Monday evening with a reception and banquet, at which 115 people participated.

The reception was held in the church from 6.30 to 7.30 o'clock. There was a large gathering of parishioners, guests and friends of the society.

The banquet took place at the close of the reception in the church vestry. At the head table the Rev. Joseph E. Waterhouse graced the seat of honor. At this table were also seated the invited guests the Rev. Dr. J. H. Mansfield, the presiding elder of the South District; Mr. Henry H. Faxon, who was seated upon Mr. Waterhouse's right; the Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Swartz, the Rev. and Mrs. Preston Gurney, the Rev. and Mrs. Carleton P. Mills, the Rev. Edward Norton, the Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Miller, the Rev. Seth C. Carey, Mr. Waterhouses immediate predecessor, Miss Brown, the Rev. and Mrs. James E. Bagley, the Rev. and Mrs. Frederick T. Knight, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Mann Willard, Miss Emmons, and Mr. George H. Waterhouse, a brother of the pastor.

The menu consisted of:

Roast Turkey and Cranberry Sauce.
Cold Tongue.
Mashed Potato, Squash.
Rolls.
Ice Cream, Cake.
Coffee.

The post prandial exercises were wholly informal, the Rev. Mr. Waterhouse acting as master of ceremonies. Letters of regret were received from former pastors the Rev. Dr. Mark Trafton, who owing to feebleness of health was unable to be present; the Rev. Luther Freeman, who is in Portland, Me.; the Rev. Fred H. Knight, who is busily engaged this week with special services; the Rev. Charles W. Wilder, who is quite sick at the City Hospital, and the Rev. C. L. D. Yonkins, who is the superintendent of the North End Mission.

Addresses were made by the Rev. Mr. Swartz who was pastor of the society in 1887-88, when it was in its transition state; the Rev. Preston Gurney, the pastor of the First Baptist church. Mr. Gurney in his remarks referred to the Spanish-American war. Mr. Faxon, who was an attentive listener spoke up "there is none of that beef here." "No," Mr. Gurney said, "the things that we miss in this life are among our greatest blessings."

The Rev. Mr. Carey, under whose ministration the church was moved from its old to its present site, gave an interesting account of the inception and realization of that undertaking.

Dr. Mansfield rejoiced in the prosperity of the church.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon, told in a few humorous remarks how much he felt at home before a Wollaston audience, and how he had always been supported by them in his temperance work. Mr. Faxon laughingly declared that a good Methodist can never be made out of a rumseller, but a Unitarian might be.

Remarks were also made by the Rev. Mr. Norton, the acting pastor of the Wollaston Congregational church; the Rev. Mr. Bagley, pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church; the Rev. Mr. Mills, rector of St. Chrysostom's church; the Rev. Mr. Knight, pastor of the Norfolk Downs Congregational church, and Dr. Horace Mann Willard of the Quincy Mansion school.

Music by an orchestra composed of Miss Bjorkman, piano; Mr. Harry Sprague, cornet; and Mr. James McTear, violin; with Mr. George H. Waterhouse vocal soloist, interspersed the speaking.

The benediction was said by the Rev. F. M. Miller.

MANILA NEWSPAPER

The Ledger Receives a Curiosity From Philippines.

The editor has just received from H. R. Osgood, a Wollaston boy who is in the United States regular army at Cavite, Philippine Islands, a copy of the American, a daily newspaper printed in English at Manila. It is quite a curiosity in many ways. The date is Wednesday, Nov. 30, and it prints dispatches of Tuesday from Washington, New York and Hong Kong.

The most pleasing item in the paper is the effort being made to raise by subscription a sum of money for our soldiers. The article says, "there are at present in the hospital a great many sick and convalescent American soldiers who are far away from home and kindred. In order that they may not be forgotten in the good cheer of the coming Christmas tide, a movement has been started to raise a public fund to be used in entertaining the sick. The money will be expended as the medical department or military authorities may suggest or direct in the detail of arrangements." Only one subscription was for less than $5, and several were for $100 and the total at date was $1,322.00. Subscriptions are received by Dr. Sanger, No. 10 Escolta, Manila, P. I.

The price of the paper is 1.10 per month or $2 per month mailed to United States. Single copies 10 cents. The employes must have a snap, as the office hours are daily from 10 A. M., to 12 M, and 2 P. M., to 4 P. M. Sundays from 10 A. M., to 11 A. M.

The leading editorial says: "The streets of the city previous and up to the arrival of the American troops were in an almost indescribable wretched condition, and remained so until the military sanitary commission took the matter in hand and in a very short time the streets were clean and the entire aspect of the city was greatly improved.

The advertisements are of interest. A liquor dealer takes one whole page to say "Next to icebergs there is nothing so cooling as a glass of Schlitz beer when it is cool. It is so chilly that you must keep it away from your mother-in-law, or the old girlie will make it hot for you." "The American" advertises to do "half tone engraving and lithographic work equal to the best in America," but the appearances of the paper does not indicate it. The La Puerta Del Sol is quite American. It advertises "Goods from 2 cents, up," and adds: "This is the leading bazaar where American soldiers can buy Xmas presents to send to their friends far across the sea; the most beautiful and artistic presents to be had, and at price that defy competition. Our goods are wonders, and our prices are more so." Many lines of business are advertised. The paper is on exhibition at the Ledger Office.

A Very Pleasant Surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Read who entertained Mrs. Roger H. Wilde, Mrs. E. G. Hall, Mrs. Austin Waterhouse and Mrs. E. E. Curtin at their camp at Wolfboro last July were agreeably surprised Monday evening to have a call from the above-named ladies who brought with them bundles, boxes and bottles and proceeded to take possession of the house. After presenting Mrs. Read wth a very elegant chaffing dish the various bundles, boxes and bottles were opened and Mrs. Waterhouse, presiding, proceeded to show what might be accomplished with a chaffing dish, in experienced hand. After chatting, cooking and eating till after midnight, the party broke up and Mr. and Mrs. Read will cherish the evening as one of their pleasant ones, long to be remembered.

Wollaston Pets.

A Wollaston family is the possessor of a cat which is seventeen years of age. Pussy enjoys exellent health and aside from being a trifle rheumatic shows but few signs of her advanced age.

Another family is the owner of a pet lizard (chameleon) which is in its sixth year. He is as spry as he was when he was but a couple of inches long and but as many months old. Mr. Lizard lives luxuriously on flies and powdered sugar with now and then a swallow of water. He is something of an epicure eating only the fattest and juiciest flies out of those which are offered to him. He is very domestic in his tastes and retires every night at sundown. In the winter he sleeps in a regularly made up bed. He is up at sunrise excepting on cold mornings when he lies abed until well into the middle of the day.

Fabulous Piano Profits

There is satisfaction in owning a piano, but the satisfaction is two-fold, when you know you didn't pay a fabulous profit to the man you bought it from. People do pay too much for pianos, pay a great deal more than they are worth. Ask them why and everyone will tell the same old story, "Supposed the price was right and as low as it could be bought." Now here's the difference, we are doing a splendid piano business, saving our customers hundreds of dollars on pianos, selling a first-class new piano for $185.00, worth at least $350.00.

Territorial Expansion.

Editor of Quicy Daily Ledger:

It is surprising in these days of controversy on Territorial expansion to note the silence of the pulpit on the subject, especially that part of it that believe in the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of man;

The issue on which the war was fought seems to have been almost lost sight of, and now rests in a great measure on a question of dollars and cents.

We believe in the separation of church and state, but a nation's religion is the foundation of the state, especially in a country like our own, where the will and sentiment of the people must prevail.

It was purely a feeling of national sympathy that led us into the war, and it was constitutional, because it was national; and we did not stop to question it. Now, because we are a little beyond an imaginary line shall we stop in the good work and begin to compute how much it will cost to convert 'so many heathens.

We have often gone on missionary errands where we were unsought, and even on forbidden ground; now a vast field has opened to us as if by magic, and we hesitate to enter.

Who shall put a price on the glory of England today! What has she done as a nation for the civilization of mankind. The question of profit and loss has ever been uppermost it may be said, among all her exploits. Yet it has been hers by the grace of God, to pour a ray of light and hope into the darkest corners of earth, and for that; and that alone we are proud to call her mother.

War scares will loom up in the horrizon, and be followed by business depressions; yes, war in earnest with all its horrors and agonizing effects; but all of these melt away at the thought of American liberty, and the upward, onward march; the worthy end is what we seek after.

The same constitutional right that led us into the war, will bear us out in the result of the war. Surely we went in to come out best, and our portion is glorious, although some may consider it worthless.

Let us raise our flag over the Philippines; even as the Prophet of old raised the brazen serpent in the wilderness. There need be no doubt about the outcome. American liberty represents the highest ideal of civilized man,—liberty is the civilizing property in man. Shall we then stop to count the cost; or shall we freely share the blessings we enjoy with our fellowmen.

The end has not yet come, "the people of the earth shall dwell together as one people; and the Lords of hosts shall be in their midst." Citizen.

Corp. Hermanson Writes of Camp and Greenville, S. C.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I am going to write a few lines about my first experience at Camp Wetherill, Greenville, S. C. As you all know I was home on a sick furlough; had to goto Fort Warren to get my transportation back, as the government gave free transportation to all who go home on sick furloughs. I had to report at the nearest army post and started for Fort Warren the last day of my furlough. I had to wait there one day before I got my transportation.

En route I stopped off at Baltimore and visited some of my friends there; those who did so much for me while I was in the hospital. I had a very good time there and Mrs. Mitchell presented me with a handsome "catchall" bag, which is a every handy thing to have at camp. I am very glad that they still remember "the boy from Massachusetts," as they used to call me at the hospital.

I arrived at Greenville, S. C., the 16th, at 2 o'clock, P. M., and encountered a very hard rain storm, so I had a very hard time to get down to camp 2. It is about two miles from the depot to the camp. I could not walk up to camp in that rain, so I hired a team to take me up there. The horses had all they could do to get through. The roads here are in a very bad condition after all this rain. There are about six or seven inches of mud and the road is full of big holes. It was a good thing for me and the teamster that I had had some practice in gymnasium, so that I could keep the hack from tipping over. I had very hard work, but some way or other I kept the four heels on the ground, but I had to move from one side to another.

When I got up to camp the company was down in Greenville on provost guard, so I was rather disappointed when I did not find my company there. Particularly as I had all that trouble for nothing. But such things will often happen in the army, because one day we may be in camp and the next day we may be many miles away. I met Corp. Johnson who had been assigned to do some work at the camp, and Sergt. McGrath and Corp. Foster, both of whom have been sick. They showed me another way to get back to town. Corp. Johnson went to show me the way. We started down the railroad track and we met many of Co. K fellows on the road, on provost guard.

When I got down I reported to Captain Neilson for duty, and he sent Quartermaster Sergeant Crane up to camp after my equipment. I had a good dinner down town together with Private Herbert Thunstrom in a negro restaurant, and that was the first meal I had in South Carolina. After that I was put on duty.

The company has quarters in the South End police station. Captain Neilson and Lieutenant Whitney have their office in a hotel near by. There are several small details out around the towns which are in charge of Corporals and they have their quarters in different houses. The larger part of the people here are negroes, and I tell you they are as black as coal. They are a very low class of people. There are a few white people here and they are very nice to the soldiers. They give us lots of good things to eat, and they bring in lots of books for us to read. I don't think all the negroes are bad people, but the majority of them here are of that kind.

The city of Greenville is not very large. It has about 15,000 population. There was not very much business in this city before the soldiers came, but now it seems that everything is picking up. So the people of Greenville want to keep the soldiers here as long as they can.

Our camp is placed away up on a high hill near the 201st New York. The 4th Missouri is down under the hill. I think that our camp is in a very good place, but the weather here is not very good. It is very changeable. At nights it is very cold, and in the day time it is quite warm, so I think it cannot be very healthy. In our company not very many are sick. Only two or three are at the hospital now. I am very glad that Second Lieutenant Spear is promoted to first lieutenant, but I am very sorry that we are going to lose him. I heard last night that he is assigned to Company M from Hudson. I also heard that First Lieutenant William Whitney is going to be promoted to captain. These two officers are worthy of these promotions, but we feel very sorry to separate from them, because they are all liked by the boys.

EAGAN'S OFFENSE.

Conduct Unbecoming an Officer and Gentleman and of Prejudice to Service.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The charges and specifications upon which Commissary General Eagan is to be tried this week have been given to the press.

The charges are:

Charge 1—Conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Charge 2—Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline.

The specifications in support of these charges are simply a reproduction of those portions of General Eagan's statement in which he called General Miles a liar and indulged in the vituperative phrases.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 24.—One of the senate bills of yesterday provided that the counting of votes in elections shall not begin in secondary cities until 2:30 o'clock. A petition for the dredging of Cohasset harbor was received. An annuity of $600 for a former Concord reformatory officer was reported favorably.

Some 20 routine appropriation bills were engrossed without debate.

When the bill making appropriations for the salaries and expenses of the civil service commissioners was reached, Senator Putnam moved that it be tabled in order that he might prepare a bill. The ways and means committee did not object, and the motion prevailed.

Among the bills introduced in the house was one for an expenditure of $3000 for a continuance of the work of publishing the records of soldiers who served in the Revolutionary war. A petition was put in for an act to provide additional compensation for sick and wounded soldiers of the Spanish war.

A resolve was put in for the purchase of suitable counting apparatus for cities and towns to be used in the counting of votes at elections, the cost not to exceed $1000.

Mr. Whipple put in a bill placing all matters relating to the rates and service of telegraph companies under the control of the gas and electric light commissioners. The bill is similar to the telephone bill introduced by Mr. Whipple last week.

A bill providing that a trial justice may issue a search warrant to be executed in the night time was introduced.

Wreckage Identified.

Lunenburg, N. S., Jan. 24.—There can be little doubt that the unknown vessel previously reported lost, from which pieces of wreckage were picked up off White island, is the schooner Leader of this port. The schooner was to sail from Newfoundland on Jan. 11 with a cargo of herring and should have been here before this. John Westhaver, whose name and address were found on a board, distinctly remembers writing his name on the berth board when in that vessel two years ago. The owners have no doubt the wreckage belongs to the Leader. Her crew consisted of seven men.

Sutherland Arrested.

Boston, Jan. 24.—The police have succeeded in arresting James Sutherland, whom they charge with being in some way connected with the death of Blanche Ryan, with whom he lived as her husband. Mrs. Ryan died Saturday night, after suffering for some time with three broken ribs and other internal injuries. The immediate cause of her death was neglect. Sutherland will be arraigned on a charge of murder, and the police claim they have a strong case against him, believing that he kicked the woman, and that her death was due to the result of the blows.

Mrs. George In Court.

Canton, O., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Anna E. George was taken into court yesterday for arraignment on the indictment for the murder of George D. Saxton, the brother-in-law of President McKinley. Attorneys Welty and Sterling were assigned to defend her. They objected to arraignment at this time, claiming that there were features of the indictment they wanted to investigate before allowing their client to recognize it by pleading to it. A continuance was granted, no date being set.

Morphy's Friends on Hand.

New Orleans, Jan. 24.—Santiago Morphy, the Mexican bank embezzler and American turfman, yesterday was turned over to Major Solores, military chief of police of the City of Mexico, last evening. Solores took his man from the parish prison to convey him to the depot. On Canal street, the principal thoroughfare, a crowd of Morphy's friends attacked Solores and rescued Morphy, and Morphy and his friends then escaped.

Murder and Suicide.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24. — George W. Ayers last night shot and killed his wife, Mary, seriously wounded John J. Wilson, who boarded with Mrs. Ayers, and then committed suicide. In a letter left for the authorities Ayers gave as the reason for the crime the relations which he averred existed between Mrs. Ayers and Wilson. It is alleged that the woman had left her husband for Wilson.

Ice Houses Burned.

Bangor, Me., Jan. 24.—The ice houses of the C. G. Sterns Lumber company at East Hampden were totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire started near the engines that run the elevator machinery. The property was valued at about $35,000. The ice in the houses amounted to about 12,000 tons. Several hundred men are thrown out of work by the fire.

The Ball Set Rolling.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 24.—By a party vote the senate yesterday unseated Kidd (Dem.) and seated Morris (Rep.). This makes the legislature on joint ballot stand 50 Republicans, 47 Democrats. The Democrats in the house have introduced resolutions looking to unseating three Republicans. It is expected the senate will unseat two more Democrats.

To Try Again.

Bristol, R. I., Jan. 24.—Another attempt will be made to run the lead keel of the new cup defender today. Both the melting pots have been moved nearer the mould, so that there will be little cooling of the metal in the troughs. The work will begin early, and it is hoped that the entire keel will be in the mould by this evening.

Paid Over Four Millions.

St. Louis, Jan. 24.—The Republic says: The Union depot system of street railways here has been sold to Brown Bros. of New York, who recently bought the Lindell and Missouri systems. It is said $4,100,000 was paid for all of the stock of the Union depot system.

1,000,000 GIVEN AWAY.

By a special and particular arrangement with the manufacturers of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, free trial bottles of this great medicine for the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Constipation will be sent absolutely free, postpaid, to all persons suffering from any of the diseases mentioned above who will send their full name and post office address to the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., providing they mention the Quincy Ledger when they write.

A very simple test to determine whether your Kidneys or Bladder are diseased is to put some of your urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has a sediment or a cloudy, ropy or stringy appearance, if it is pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that you are in a dangerous condition. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedily cures such serious symptoms as a pain in the back, inability to hold urine, a burning scalding pain in passing it. Frequent desire to urinate especially at night, the staining of linen by your urine and all unpleasant and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

By a searching investigation it was found that over 91 per cent. of the people who sent for a sample bottle were so much benefited by its use that they purchased a large size bottle of their druggist, which in most cases cured them, while in some rare instances it took as many as two or even three bottles to effect a permanent cure.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per large bottle, or six bottles for $5.00.

Economical

Some "penny-wise" people practice a kind of economy that is not economical. They save a penny on soap and lose a dollar on clothes. Sooner or later they learn that cheap, common soaps rot clothing by burning the thread with strong alkalies. Then they wish they had used which contains no alkali, no impurities, nothing to injure the most delicate fabric. There is still greater economy in using Fairy Soap, because it lasts longer than common soaps. It's

FAIRBANK'S

Seeks Connubial Bliss.

When a man has been a helpless invalid for 12 years and suddenly announces that he is no longer ill and is now a candidate for matrimony there can be no better evidence of his perfect restoration to health. This is what that scientific wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in health but fully restored, all made over new again, they claim and experience the vigor, activity, hopes and ambitions of youth once more. This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give herewith. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last season was spent in Florada. Employed many local physicians during this time and used scalded sarsaparillas but found no permanent relief till I tried Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 28 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.

Sincerely yours,

ARTHUR B. CUNNINGHAM.

Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

SAMPSON AND SCHLEY.

Senators Not of One Mind as to Who Was the Hero of Santiago.

Champions of Both Men Venitalate Their Opinions.

Merits of the Men to Be Decided by Records of the Navy Department.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The question as to whether Sampson and Schley should be promoted to the grade of rear admiral was discussed enthusiastically and vigorously by the friends and enemies of both officers in the executive session yesterday. The controversy was finally postponed for 20 days, after a vote had been taken to call for the records of the navy department bearing upon the conduct of all affected by the advancement.

The discussion arose over the resolution calling for these documents. As originally offered, it asked for the reasons for the advancement, but the resolution was modified so as to request the record only. The first vote was on a motion made by Senator Hale to lay the resolution on the table, and on this the ayes and noes were taken, resulting 17 ayes to 35 noes. The resolution was then allowed to pass without further discussion.

For three hours previous to this, however, the senate had been engaged in a very animated verbal battle which involved many intricacies, and was participated in by a large number of senators. The main contests were, first, over the general policy of promoting these officers over others who were characterized as quite as deserving, though less fortunate in that they were deprived of such active participation in the war; and second, as to the relative merits of Sampson and Schley.

Senators Gorman and Wellington of Maryland, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, united in a fierce attack upon the navy department for favoring Sampson over Schley, while Senators Lindsay, Pettigrew, Perkins and Money attacked the whole system of promotion as "a species of favoritism which was not warranted by the facts." The method of the administration was defended by Messrs. Hale, Chandler and Lodge. Senator Wellington was especially zealous in his advocacy of the claims of Admiral Schley, and in his presentation of reasons why Admiral Sampson should not be preferred over him, and both he and Mr. Gorman stated that, if the official papers were ordered, they would demonstrate beyond a possible question the fact that Schley, and not Sampson, fought the battle off Santiago.

They contended that, with Sampson 10 miles away, he could not be accredited with having command of the fleet on the day when the Spanish vessels were sent to the bottom. On the contrary, they held that Schley was on the ground; he was the senior officer, and that he was engaged most effectively in the conflict all the world knew, regardless of the favors of the government at Washington.

Senator Lindsay found much in the promotion of both Schley and Sampson, over Commodore Watson to condemn. He praised Watson as a man who would undoubtedly have made a fine record in the war if given the opportunity he should have had as a senior officer, and said that to deprive him of his rightful rank because other men were pressed to the front and given the posts of honor was in every way unfair and unworthy of a great country.

Senators Perkins, Platt of Connecticut and Pettigrew also criticised the system as one liable to result in unfairness unless very cautiously entered upon, arguing that at any rate the senate should have the record before it, that it might decide for itself as to the merits of the men so signally favored compared with those who had received none of the loaves and fishes.

Senators Hale and Chandler defended the action of the navy department in giving preference to the men who took upon themselves the brunt of the battle in Atlantic waters and in preferring the man who was in command of the fleet. They deprecated the opening up of a controversy which, Mr. Chandler said, might lead to a condition which might prove as unsavory as that which the war investigating commission had developed in connection with the army beef contracts.

Senator Lodge joined in deploring this policy, and owing to the fact that he had but recently, in the interest of private research, made an exhaustive investigation, he was enabled to throw much light upon the controversy in behalf of the contention that the controversy should not be stirred up.

During the presentation of this side much was said in upholding the claims of Sampson in preference to those of Schley, and the friends of the latter officer were "warned that, if they insisted upon pressing the investigation too closely, some facts would be developed that would not be agreeable to them. The charge was made that Schley had voluntarily left Santiago after reaching the vicinity of that port and after Cervera had entered the harbor, and also the charge that when the Spanish fleet had sailed out through the narrow mouth of the channel Schley had made a reverse movement with the Brooklyn and gone in a direction opposite to that taken by the Spanish squadron instead of boldly attacking the enemy in the beginning. It was asserted that these facts were among those which the archives would reveal.

The friends of Schley declared they had nothing to fear from having all the facts known. Explaining his start to leave Santiago and his refusal to obey department orders before Sampson's arrival, they said that it was because he had been unable to coal at sea. When asked how it had happened that he had been able to coal 36 hours afterwards they replied that this was due to the fact that a storm had given place to a calm.

Senators Lindsay and Pettigrew, who were not standing for either Sampson or Schley, made the point that these developments emphasized the reasons why the senate should be put into possession of all the facts before voting.

After the decision to send for the records was arrived at, there was a general understanding that the whole matter should be postponed long enough to permit action by the houses upon the naval committee's bill, providing that these promotions "shall not interfere with the promotion of officers otherwise entitled to promotion." The subsequent effort of the senate in open session to pass this bill was the result of the agreement.

During the debate the fact was brought out that Captain Higginson of the Massachusetts had already been promoted to fill Schley's place as commodore, and the criticism was made that this promotion was irregular, but Mr. Hoar defended the promotion and called attention to the fact that Schley had been placed in a precisely similar predicament when he was made commander to succeed Commander Quackenbush, who was dismissed and afterwards reinstated.

In Congress.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Discussion of the policy of expansion occupied nearly all of the time of the senate in open session yesterday. Mr. White of California, who has announced heretofore his opposition to the ratification of the peace treaty, addressed the senate in support of the anti-expansion resolution introduced by Mr. Vest and of the resolution offered by Mr. Bacon, declaring that the Filipinos ought to be free and independent. Mr. White did not enter into a constitutional argument, but confined himself to a discussion of expansion as a policy of this government. He maintained that such a policy was contrary to the fundamental principles of this country, to its history and traditions. He declared his opposition to the ratification of the pending treaty of peace, broadly intimated that a declaration of definite policy on the part of the administration would very much simplify the situation, and, as a matter of good faith, ought not to be antagonized by the advocates of the treaty's ratification.

It was District of Columbia day in the house, and the major portion of the day was devoted to local legislation. The only action of public importance was the passage of the bill to extend the navigation laws of the United States to the Hawaiian islands. One of the provisions of the bill grants American register to all vessels flying the Hawaiian flag owned by Hawaiian citizens July 7, 1898.

Settled at Last.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The state department has just settled a claim of long standing by accepting the offer of the government of the United States of Colombia to pay $30,000 in three installments, in satisfaction of the claim for indemnity of the owners of the Panama Star and Herald. The case has lived through the administration of seven secretaries of state, each of whom has steadfastly urged it along. The claim was based on the arbitrary action of the military governor of the province of Panama in suppressing the newspaper, which was operated under an American charter, on the ground that it was inimical to the government. It was shown that this charge was untrue, but the Colombian government tried to evade responsibility for the acts of the governor. The orignial claim was for $91,000.

Opponents Will Yield.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Although the motion for an executive session was made by the chairman of the committee on foreign relations the peace treaty was not taken up in the senate yesterday. A member of the committee who favors ratification says that the opponents claim to have 33 or 34 sure votes against the treaty. That would defeat it, which would necessitate an extra session. It is believed that in view of the possibilities of an extra session, the opponents will yield before adjournment as a general desire is expressed to avoid an extra session.

Vacancy to Be Filled.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The president is understood to have decided to appoint another member of the Anglo-American commission, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Dingley. It was thought the vacancy would be left open, owing to the advanced stage of the work, but the president desires to have the commission full when its important labors close.

Carried Down Stream.

When a man crossing some difficult place in his working career; spurring all his energies to accomplish some critical passage in his business journey, suddenly finds his health giving way and feels himself swept out of the saddle by the swift-running current of disease—then is the time when the marvelous rejuvenating properties of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will prove an unfailing means of rescue and restoration.

It is a very simple though eminently scientific medicine. It is not a mere stimulant like so many malt extracts. It restores healthy power by reviving the innermost sources of vitality in the nutritive system. It enables the digestive and blood-making organism to manufacture good blood abundantly and rapidly, so that the immense waste of tissue and nerve fiber entailed by hard labor is offset by a speedy upbuilding of fresh energy and strength.

A prominent and venerable Illinois physician, D. W. Vowles, M. D., of Fowler, Adams Co., writing to Dr. Pierce, says: "I send herewith thirty-one (31) cents in stamps for 'The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser' in cloth binding. With this pittance for so valuable a work (truly a gift to the public), I must express my high appreciation of the vast amount of good that you have rendered the public. A correct measure of your usefulness never has been, and never will be estimated by the public; no, not even by the multitude of afflicted humanity that has been relieved and cured by your medicines. Wherever I go or have been in the United States, I find persons who have used, and are using Dr. Pierce's medicines with satisfaction, for all conditions for which they are recommended. Never has one spoken disparagingly of their action, and from having seen so often their good effects, I am also enthused with confidence in their action in cases and conditions for which they are recommended. It is not common for regular physicians to endorse and recommend proprietary medicines, but in this case I have no equivocation or hesitancy in so doing."

GOMEZ STILL GROWLING

Sees No Necessity For Presence of American Troops In Cuba.

Pleads With Spaniards to Unite With Him.

Old Enemies Evidently Inclined to View the Matter Favorably.

Remedios, Cuba, Jan. 24.—General Maximo Gomez, commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, has withdrawn to this part of the island. As previously cabled, he was not invited to be present at the evacuation ceremonies at Havana on Jan. 1, and he is now here nursing his feelings of alleged injury, sustained at the hands of the United States. He has been receiving the adulations of the Cuban populace of the various towns through which he has passed.

General Gomez arrived here last week, and the town was decorated with several triumphant arches. At Caibarien, which the general entered last Sunday, there was a repetition of the same ovation, and a breakfast was tendered the general by the Cuban element of the seaport. After this meal the general met a number of prominent Spaniards of Caibarien, and addressed them in this wise:

"The war is over, and now begins the work of reconstruction and the establishment of the Cuban republic. Past passions are our only enemies to this end, therefore let us obliterate these passions and hatreds. We met war with strife; let us accept peace with concord. I have come to this town more as the friend of every man in it than as the leader of the Cuban army. Here there are neither Cubans nor Spaniards, Frenchmen nor Russians. We are all inhabitants of the island of Cuba. Union, peace and tact should be our guides. We have united today to exchange ideas, to know each other and to preserve our mutual interests. Truth follows peace; honor should not hide away. Therefore, I tell you that union alone will bring about the termination of the present unnecessary occupation of our island by the American army. The inhabitants of this island do not need the presence of the American troops in order to fulfil their duties. Let us unite and devote our efforts to that object, high in favor with us all—the rapid and splendid growth of the Cuban republic."

These guarded and significant words of the general were answered by the Spaniards present in such manner as plainly showed their full acceptance of their import. Two days later these Spaniards entertained General Gomez, his staff and many Cuban officers at an elaborate banquet, where the idea of this new, united party of Cuban independence was developed with much enthusiasm. Captain Landis of the First United States cavalry, collector of the port of Caibarien, and Mr. Anderson, his deputy collector, were present, and both were treated with marked courtesy by General Gomez.

General Gomez remains at the head of the Cuban army. He considers this to be his post until the army is paid off. The amount needed, according to the Cubans, is $40,000, which would give nearly $100 in gold to each soldier. Just what security can be offered for this loan is not clear. The fact that every seaport of the island has its American customs collector is significant that this source of revenue is not in Cuban hands. The United States is to be asked to advance the large amount needed to pay these men. The Americans insist upon knowing how this money is to be spent, but this is regarded by the Cubans as unnecessary curiosity on the part of the Americans. General Gomez will soon proceed to Santa Clara. This city is the capital of the province and was such a hotbed of Spanish sympathies during the war that the Cubans today, in their hour of victory, ignore the town's old name, and have rechristened it Villa Clara. Here General Gomez will proceed upon the same course as adopted in Remedios and Caibarien, namely, the uniting of Spanish and Cuban interests for the immediate establishment of the Cuban republic and the furtherance and growth of the new united party of Cuban independence. This idea is already abroad in the province of Santa Clara, and newly established Cuban newspapers are taking it up and giving it a guarded prominence.

Aguinaldo's Nerve.

London, Jan. 24.—The Filipino junta here has received dispatches saying that if Agoncillo, one of Aguinaldo's envoys at Washington, is not received by the United States government within a few days, Aguinaldo will recall him to Manila and suspend relations with the United States, "thus removing an important medium for arriving at a peaceful understanding."

The junta's advices also assert that "large numbers of the American troops are fraternizing with the natives, and that many of them are engaged to Filipino girls."

Gruesome Keepsakes.

Havana, Jan. 24.—General Lee has ordered the men of his corps, at the request of the chief surgeon, not to keep human skulls and bones in their tents. The soldiers have been taking skulls and crossbones from the piles near Quemados and Colon cemeteries. The Cuban custom has been to rent a grave for a year or so from the managers of the cemetery and then dig up the bones and pile them outside.

Liabilities of $400,000.

Atlanta, Jan. 24.—Malcolm Johnston has filed a petition asking for a receiver for the Atlanta National Building Loan association. Judge Lumpkin granted a temporary restraining order. It is charged by Mr. Johnston that the association has been badly managed and is hopelessly insolvent. The officers of the company deny that it is insolvent, and claim that it has assets worth $600,000. The liabilities are estimated at $400,000.

Lodge Urges Action on Peace Treaty.

Tests of the Constitution Almost Countless.

We Have Undoubted Power to Acquire Territory.

Great Question Before the People Is Purely One of Policy.

Natives of the Philippines Must Have Opportunity to Be Free.

State of War Would Be Renewed by Rejection of the Treaty.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Two notable speeches were delivered in the senate yesterday, one by Mr. Lodge and the other by Mr. Clay. While the two senators differed diametrically as to the policy of expansion, upon which they dwelt, both were in favor of the immediate ratification of the pending peace treaty. They contended that, once the treaty was ratified, congress would have full power to deal with conditions respecting the territory acquired during the war with Spain and not before. Mr. Lodge particularly argued for a formal declaration of peace, which could be had only by the ratification of the treaty. That accomplished, he was willing to trust the American congress and the American people to deal fairly, justly and patriotically with the Philippine islands, with full regard to the principles of our government as set forth in the constitution and the declaration of independence.

He spoke as follows:

In connection with these resolutions two questions have been raised, one of constitutional law and one of public policy. The constitutional questions are many, and the hypothetical situations which have been imagined with such ingenuity as tests of the constitution are almost countless.

I believe that the United States has the undoubted power to acquire territory and to hold and govern it. I am ready to admit, if necessary, that action in these directions must be taken for constitutional purposes, but the constitutionality of the purposes must be determined by congress itself through its majority. I believe that the power of the United States in any territory or possession outside of the United States in any territory or possession outside the limits of the states themselves is absolute, with the single exception of the limitation placed upon such outside possessions by the 13th amendment.

After the cession of Louisiana congress placed in the hands of the president absolute authority, as absolute as that enjoyed by the king of Spain or the first consul of France, over that territory and its inhabitants.

In 1821 it was proposed in congress to insert in the act establishing a temporary government for Florida an amendment prescribing that: Nothing should be done in the Floridas incompatible with the constitution and laws of the United States.

The amendment was voted down and the bill passed giving absolute power to the president.

In our territorial bills, and in that for the organization of Hawaii, now pending, provision is made for extending the constitution to the territory in question. Without a legislative act the constitution does not extend to the territories or other possessions of the United States outside the limits of the states themselves.

Constitutions do not make people; people make constitutions. Our constitution is great and admirable, because the men men who made it were so, and the people who ratified it and have lived under it were and are brave, intelligent and lovers of liberty. There is a higher sanction and a surer protection to life and liberty, to the right of speech and trial by jury, to justice and humanity, in the traditions, the beliefs, the habits of mind, and the character of the American people than any which can be afforded by any constitution, no matter howe widely drawn. If the American people were disposed to tyranny, injustice and oppression a constitution would offer but a temporary barrier to their ambitions, and the reverence for the constitution and for law and justice grows out of the fact that the American people believe in freedom and humanity, in equal justice to all men, and in equal rights before the law; and while they so believe the great doctrines of the Declaration of Independence and of the constitution will never be in peril.

The great question now before the American people resolves itself, in my mind, to one of policy purely. There is only one question demanding actual and immediate decision now before congress and the people, and that is whether the treaty with Spain shall be ratified or not.

I desire to state very briefly what, as I understand it, the question is. I have heard no opposition to any part of the treaty except such portion of it as relates to the Philippines, and that, therefore, is the sole point upon which I desire to touch. The treaty cedes the Philippines to us. When that treaty is ratified we have full power and are absolutely free to do with those islands as we please; and the opposition to its ratification may be summed up in a single sentence, that the American people and the American congress are not to be trusted with that power and with that freedom of action in regard to the inhabitants of those distant islands. Every one of the resolutions thus far offered on this subject is an expression of distrust in the character, ability, honesty and wisdom of the American people and an attempt to make us promise to be good and wise and honest in the future and in our dealings with other people.

We must either ratify the treaty or reject it, for I cannot suppose that any one would seriously advance the proposition that we should amend the treaty in such a way as to make pledges to Spain for our good conduct in a matter which will be wholly our own to decide.

Suppose we ratify the treaty. The islands pass from the possession of Spain into our possession without committing us to any policy. I believe we can be trusted as a people to deal honestly and justly with the islands and their inhabitants thus given to our care. I believe that we shall have the wisdom not to attempt to incorporate those islands with our body politic, or make their inhabitants part of our citizenship, or set their labor alongside of ours, and within our tariff to compete in any industry with American workingmen. I believe that we shall have the courage not to depart from those islands fearfully, timidly and unworthily, and leave them to anarchy among themselves, to the brief and bloody domination of some self-constituted dictator and to the quick conquest of other powers, who will have no hesitation as we should feel in crushing them into subjection by harsh and repressive methods. It is for us to decide the destiny of the Philippines, not for Europe, and we can do it alone and without assistance. I believe that we shall have the ability to restore peace and order in those islands and give to their people an opportunity for self-government and for freedom under the protecting shield of the United States until the time shall come when they are able to stand alone, if such a thing be possible, and if they do not themselves desire to remain under our protection.

During the campaign of last autumn, I said in many speeches to the people of my state that I could never assent to hand those islands back to Spain; that I wanted no subject races and no vassal states; but that we had by the fortunes of war assumed a great responsibility in the Philippines; that we ought to meet it, and that we ought to give those people an opportunity for freedom, for peace and for self government; that we ought to protect them from the rapacity of other nations, and seek to uplift those whom we had freed. From those views I have never swerved, and I believed then, as I believe now, that they met with the approbation of an overwhelming majority of the people of Massachusetts. The only step I can now see to take is to ratify the treaty, for in that way alone we can take the islands from Spain and give ourselves an opportunity to deal with them and bring peace and freedom to their inhabitants.

Take now the other alternative. Suppose we reject the treaty, or strike out the clause relating to the Philippines. That will hand the islands back to Spain, and I cannot conceive that any American should be willing to do that. Suppose we reject the treaty, what follows? Let us look at it practically. We continue the state of war. At the same time we repudiate the president and his action before the whole world; and the repudiation of the president in such a matter as this is the humiliation of the United States in the eyes of civilized mankind.

The president cannot be sent back across the Atlantic in the person of his commissioners, hat in hand, to say to Spain, with bated breath, "I am here in obedience to the mandate of a minority of one-third of the senate, to tell you that we have been too victorious, and that you have yielded us too much, and that I am very sorry that I took the Philippines from you."

I do not think that any American president would do that, or that any American would wish him to.

By rejecting the treaty we renew the state of war. The protocol is but the Disaster Will Overtake Filipinos Should They Open Hostilities.

Otis Has a Good American Fleet at His Back.

Present Situation In the Philippines Considered Extremely Grave.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The officials here are convinced that the situation at Manila is as critical as it can be. Advices from Manila are far from reassuring. It is understood that General Otis reports an expectation on his part that the insurgents are about to force an issue, and if this should be so, the result cannot be foreseen.

While the instructions to General Otis have been to avoid any hostile clash with the natives, so far as that plan is consistent with the maintenance of his position, it is realized here that it is within the power of any excited or intoxicated person to precipitate a battle between the two opposing forces. For it must be understood that there is nothing in General Otis' instructions to prevent him from most vigorously defending himself and the interests confided to his charge.

General Otis is so sure of his ground that officials here feel no doubt as to the outcome of hostile collision between the Americans and insurgent forces under Aguinaldo, particularly as General Otis would have the enormous advantage of the full co-operation of the American fleet under Dewey.

But it is particularly desirable that even a battle ending in victory be avoided just now, for the president has by no means surrendered his conviction that the misguided Filipinos can be brought to an understanding of the real objects of the United States and peacefully accept the conditions sought to be imposed.

Yesterday's dispatches from Manila, via Hong Kong, say that the Filipinos of Caloocan and Geganlangin, mistaking salutes exchanged between British and German warships on Jan. 18, moved 3000 men to the front in order of battle, covering the adjacent country; but they did not attack the American lines.

Reports from the interior indicate that Aguinaldo's authority is now generally recognized. Every available male is being recruited and arms depots are being established at San Bernandino, Union, Trinidad and other large towns. The surrounding country is being levied on for supplies, and the Filipino troops are living on the fat of the land, while the native villagers are compelled to subsist on rice.

There is some friction between the Filipino civil and military authorities, but they are united on the question of independence.

It is estimated that there are fully 30,000 Filipinos under arms, and it is said that there are nearly 50 Maxim guns at Malolos, some of them having been recently acquired.

The Filipino military authorities are convinced, they say, that the Americans will be unable to work effectively outside of Manila in the event of hostilities, hence they feel confidence in the future.

Many of the Filipino officers complain of alleged discourteous treatment upon the part of Americans at Manila.

Death of Mrs. Tarlton.

Kittery, Me., Jan. 25.—In the police court here yesterday morning Fred Parks was arraigned on two charges. The first was for an assault with intent to kill upon Mrs. Elvira Tarlton, and the second was an aggravated assault upon Mrs. Tarlton and an attempt to commit robbery. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was bound over without bail. Mrs. Tarlton, who was 88 years of age, passed a fairly comfortable night, but continued to grow weaker until a few minutes past 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when she died. A charge of murder will be preferred against Parks in place of those under which he was given a hearing.

Successful This Time.

Providence, Jan. 25.—The work of running the lead for the keel of the new cup defender yesterday at Bristol was a success in every way. The wooden mold is now filled with lead, and it marks the actual beginning of the construction of the new boat that is to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock next October. At 4:30 o'clock the work of casting was practically completed. The fires in the furnaces were then slackened and the melted lead was stopped from running through the conducting spouts. The designer left the shops for his home at 5:50 p. m. in every way satisfied with the job.

To Be Tried Together.

Boston, Jan. 25.—An ineffectual attempt was made yesterday by the counsel of John H. Chance and Arthur Hagan, accused jointly with the murder of a drug clerk named Russell last April, to have both men tried separately. The counsel also claimed that they would not be ready for trial on Feb. 6, owing to inability in locating three witnesses, two of whom, it is claimed, saw the shooting. The court announced after the hearing that the allegation as to witnesses was not sufficiently specific, and that there appeared no reason why the two men should not be tried together.

Girl wanted to assist in housework.

Good Afternoon.

At the meeting of the committees on Finance and Streets of the City Council tomorrow evening, the order will be considered, authorizing the Mayor to petition the Legislature for anthority to incur indebtedness beyond the limit fixed by law to an amount not exceeding $150,000, for the purpose of laying out, establishing, constructing widening or improving streets. There are two questions at this time for the joint committee to consider — one whether it is advisable to expend such a large sum this year? And, the other, is it necessary to go beyond the fixed debt limit.

Permanent improvements of the streets are desirable, and should be encouraged, but in the absence of any comprehensive plan or any estimate as to the cost, it would be prudent to go slow, especially as the city will have a new Commissioner of Public Works who has had no experience at road building. With present information it does not seem desirable to expend this year $150,000 for permanent street improvements. Even, if it was expedient it would not be necessary to exceed the debt limit fixed by law. The margin is now $225,281.96, and will increase as the year progresses, as $81,950.25 of the debt will be paid this year.

One of the arguments in favor of a special act is that the loan could be extended over a longer period of years. While opposed to short loans of one, two and three years, which have so seriously handicapped the city, we are of opinion that no street loans should be for more than ten years and this is permitted under existing laws. In support of this position, we have but to note the fact that the city has yet to pay $12,000 for the "permanent" improvement of Hancock street, voted many years ago, which is now in a wretched condition and which it is now proposed to rebuild. Also, that the city has yet to pay $5,000 for the "permanent" building of the Squantum causeway, which now needs rebuilding. If $150,000 was borrowed on a 30-year loan, $5,000 would fall due in 1900, and the maturing debt of that year is already too large.

We would suggest that, instead of going to the Legislature, the City Council appropriate $80,000 this year, $10,000 to fall due in 1902, and $10,000 in each of the seven succeeding years. This would appropriate all that could be judiciously expended this year, and at the same time relieve 1900 and 1901. It could be repeated next year, if advisable, and still not exhaust the debt limit which increases yearly. A new loan of $80,000 would not increase the municipal debt much this year, as the city will pay off $81,950.25, as noted.

The Socialistic idea of a municipal ice plant in Quincy is not entirely bad, but there are reasons which make it impractical to utilize the reservoir of the Water Department. First, because the said reservoir is in Braintree and not in Quincy, and would be subject to taxation in Braintree. Second, because it is so far remote that on a hot day the ice would evaporate before it reached Quincy. Third, the financial reason. When the city wanted to own water works it was necessary to purchase the works of the Quincy Water Company. When there was a movement to establish a municipal electric light plant, it was found it would be necessary to buy out the Quincy Electric Light and Power plant. So it would be with a municipal ice plant, it would first be necessary to purchase existing ice companies. Not one, but three, and possibly those in Braintree, if the plant was located in that town. To purchase and abandon the existing ice plants and rights at $50,000 to $100,000 each would not be very prudent or wise.

The people of Massachusetts will this time pin their faith to the junior senator from this State, relative to the acceptance of the treaty of peace with Spain. The speech of Mr. Lodge in the National Senate Tuesday is generally endorsed by his constituents. As he says, the approval of the treaty commits us to no policy relative to the future government of the Philippines. When that treaty is ratified we have full power, and are absolutely free to do with the islands as we please. By the fortunes of war we have assumed a great responsibility. We ought to meet it.

The movement to place under State control all the county jails seems a move in the right direction. The offences for which the criminals are tried and sentenced are not against county but against State, and a small county which happens to have one or two murder trials in a year finds its expenses largely increased. We agree with Mr. Thrope of the Massachusetts Civic League that the county prison is a very much more important prison factor than the State institutions because a great many more persons are sent to the county jails than to the State institutions.

The voters of the town of Melrose have had their final meeting to frame a city charter. They desire that the Superintendent of Public Works be given charge in the charter of all streets, sewers, water supply, parks and public buildings. The section on franchises provides that all franchises voted for by the Board of Aldermen must be submitted to the voters of the city for their approval. No water commissioners, sewer commissioners or park commissioners for Melrose.

Mayor Hatch of Everett has cut his garment according to the cloth, and has recommended the amount necessary for city departments. If they are adopted he has figured it out that the tax rate will be $16.92, or eight cents less than last year. Can anyone figure it as close for Quincy?

Milton Indignant.

The people of Milton feel rather indignant at the free advertising the town received Tuesday in the Boston papers. The article said that Mortimore W. Reynolds, who claimed to be a legal member of the Milton board of health had brought a petition in the supreme court for a writ of mandamus against the selectmen of the town, asking that they be compelled to rescind their vote of Jan. 5 last, declaring a vacancy in the office, and to have them restore him to his place from which he claims he was illegally removed. He farther claims that he was elected a member of the board at the meeting of March 7, 1898, for three years. The article further said that an order of notice on the selectmen to appear in court and show cause why the petition should not be granted had been taken out.

J. Walter Bradlee, chairman of the Milton board of selectmen, when seen Tuesday evening by a representative of the Ledger, said that someone had certainly blundered. In the first place there was no one in Milton by that name, as far as he knew, and no one had ever been elected to the board of health by that name. The selectmen had not declared the office on the board of health vacant, and nothing of a like nature had been acted upon or brought before them. The present members of the board of health are: Henry P. Jaques, M. D., T. Nelson Perkins and C. Minot Weld.

Slight Fire.

The alarm from Box 171 at 7.50 Tuesday evening sent the fire apparatus through a pouring rain to a slight fire in Old Colony Shoe Co.'s building on Union street, upon which the box is located. The fire started in the woodwork near the boilers, but was extinguished before much damage had been done. The apparatus from the central station and from Quincy Point made quick runs to the box.

The lodge and retiring officers have good reasons to feel proud of the past year's work for it made the largest gain in membership of any lodge in the jurisdiction having initiated forty candidates during the year.

A Good Appointment.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In the appointment made recently by Mayor Keith, I am pleased to see the reappointment of our former chief of police, Joseph W. Hayden. Having seen long service in the Civil war, and several years as a patrolman on our streets, he was appointed by Mayor Hodges to the position of chief, and after four years of faithful service, who could be found in our city, better qualified to be at the head of the Police department?

I was very sorry last year to see him counted out and supplanted by a new man and thus have his official record broken, but such is politics, and right here I agree with your editorial of last week, that we have too much of the political element in the administration of our city affairs; very much to the detriment of our police and fire departments. When we find a good capable man for the head of either of these branches, if he could be kept in office, some improvement might be expected, but where a yearly change, is the order of the day, we cannot expect to take front rank in fighting criminals or fire.

I find a large number of our citizens agree with me, in thinking, that we are soon to have the right man in the right place, and if Chief Hayden could be given some assistance by the Council in the way of new and necessary appurtenances, for the better carrying out the duties of the department, we should all be willing at the end of the year to give him our unanimous approval, and if necessary, vote to give him a permanent berth. Yours for good government,

A Taxpayer.

A NEW LIEUTENANT.

Lieut Spear of Co. K. Transferred to Co. M. of Hudson.

With Co. K, 5th Mass.
Camp Wetherill,
Greenville, S. C., Jan. 22.

K company with the other three companies of the 1st battalion vacated their ten days of provost duty this morning, leaving their respective quarters at a little after noon, and arriving at the regimental camp at 1 o'clock. The regimental band met them about a quarter of a mile from camp so as to serenade their return to the regiment. Major Morrison who is in command of the battalion, marched the companies to the parade ground, where each company was dismissed respectively.

The boys are once more taken into the care of our esteemed commander, Col. Whitney. Dinner was immediately served after the dismissal of the company. The regimental band is greeting the boys with a sacred concert this afternoon, they not having had the pleasure of hearing these beautiful strains since their detachment from the regiment.

The boy who came into camp yesterday accompanied by Private Mead, proved to be Private Herbert F. Tucker. When the team arrived on the grounds, containing Privates Tucker and Mead, the boys thought some relief expedition had struck Greenville, which has been detailed by Uncle Sam, but it was only the boys from home with "a few small bundles." Private Tucker swears that the Massachusetts State House has been painted red, white and blue, in anticipation of our expected arrival home, and that Quincy has begun to make the streets of concrete, so that the boys will look pretty, as well as to help their world renowned marching on the arrival in the city. Mead says that the statement is correct, so we have no doubt from believing same.

While on his furlough, Private Tucker was presented with a handsome gold ring bearing the engraving of his full name.

Corporal Foster who is discharged from the 2d division hospital is convalescent. The corporal is anxiously waiting for the arrival of his sick furlough, which we hope he will be successful in securing.

The boys wish to correct the statement made in a recent paper to the effect of mustering out. They all unanimously desire to be mustered out on the grounds of Camp Wetherill, this gives better satisfaction to all the members of the 5th Massachusetts. It has been said that some companies do not desire to march through Boston. This serves to spoil arrangements made by the companies.

We, as members of K, wish to announce that 1st lieutenat Charles F. Spear is detailed to Company M of Hudson, Captain Clare. The lieutenant was assigned yesterday. The boys are pleased at the lieutenant's promotion and success. The new 2d lieutenant assigned to Co. K is Adolph G. Gustafson, late first sergeant of Co. B of Cambridge.

The glass at 3 o'clock this afternoon registered just 80 degrees. The boys are taking their ease, enjoying the beautiful sun.

K boys are greatly improving in health. Volunteer.

Fabulous Piano Profits

There is satisfaction in owning a piano, but the satisfaction is two-fold, when you know you didn't pay a fabulous profit to the man you bought it from. People do pay too much for pianos, pay a great deal more than they are worth. Ask them why and everyone will tell the same old story, "Supposed the price was right and as low as it could be bought." Now here's the difference, we are doing a splendid piano business, saving our customers hundreds of dollars on pianos, selling a first-class new piano for $185.00, worth at least $350.00.

NORMAL AND HIGH.

Comments of the State Board of Education Thereon.

In continuation of the review of the annual report of the State Board of Education, these facts are noted:

The State has ten normal schools, including the Normal Art School in Boston. The four new schools were opened as follows: the Fitchburg, Sept. 11, 1895; the North Adams Feb. 1, 1897; the Barnstable (Hyannis), Sept. 9, 1897; and the Lowell, Oct. 4, 1897. The standard of admission was raised in 1896, candidates being then required for the first time to be high school graduates, or to have received an equivalent training, and to pass an examination in high school subjects. For ten years before the raising of the standard, the average number of admissions, excluding the Normal Art School, was 420; for the three years of the new policy the average number has been 567, a gain of 35 per cent. The first year of the new policy showed a loss the tide not turning until the second and third years. The average number of admissions the last two years, the Normal Art School still excluded, was 656, a gain of 56 per cent. over the last ten years of the old policy and of 69 per cent. over the first year of the new. The number of students in actual attendance Dec. 1, 1898, was 1,572—the largest in the history of the schools.

NORMAL SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The increase last year in the number of teachers who have attended normal schools was 426; in the number who are graduates of normal schools 322. Ten years ago 33.3 per cent. of the teachers of the State had attended normal schools and 26.6 per cent. were graduates of such schools. The corresponding percentages last year were 38.5 and 33.5.

HIGH SCHOOLS.

There are 261 high schools in the State with 1384 teachers,—an increase of 101; and 38,133 pupils,—an increase of 1,905. The ratio of the number of high schools pupils enrolled to the total number enrolled in the public schools is 8.4 per cent. This means that 25 per cent. of the children avail themselves in due season of high school privileges, the percentage of enjoyment rising in many towns to 30, 40 and even 50. The average annual salary of 233 men who are principals is $1,499.-77; of 28 women who are principals, $563.19. The women and some of the men are principals of small high schools whose length of schooling frequently falls short of the legal requirement of 40 weeks. About 100 of these 261 high schools number from 100 to 1,000 pupils each. They enroll 80 per cent. of all the high school pupils. They are generally, well-officered, well provided with good buildings, and well-equipped with sanitary, laboratory and teaching appliances. Some of the later high school buildings are superbly planned and furnished.

COST OF HIGH SCHOOLS.

Separate returns for high school expenditures are not made to the State. Such expenditures can be determined, however, with close approximation, by indirect methods. Thus, in 1896 the average municipal tax of the State was $15.23 on a thousand dollar, of which sum, if expenditures for buildings are excluded, $2.95 went to all the public schools and 58 cents of the $2.95 to high schools.

ACADEMIES.

There are 25 academies or schools all under the primary control of trustees, that nevertheless offer free tuition to the pupils of the towns where they are established. Town appropriate money towards the expenses of 15 of these schools, either under the academy tuition act (chapter 94, Acts of 1895), or because they have been granted educational control by the trustees, or because they deem it expedient to do so, no one objecting. In 13 only of these academies are textbooks free to the pupils of the town.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

Two hundred and four evening schools have been maintained during the year,—147 elementary schools, 7 high schools, 44 drawing schools, 2 cooking schools and 4 "miscellaneous." The number of evening schools, if the single classroom is taken as the unit for counting was 740. These schools had 1,262 eachers,—90 less than the preceding year; 32,418 pupils,—2,678 more than the preceding year; an average attendance of 16,714, or 52 per cent.; and cost $198,666.43, or $6.11 per pupil, as against $6.24 the preceding year.

SUPERVISION.

The number of superintendents of schools is 166, as against 164 the year before; of towns without superintendents, 87 as against 90 the year before. One hundred and five more teachers than last year are now under supervision, and 4,526 more pupils. Only 5 per cent. of the children in the public schools are now without the watchful care of a superintendent. A policy that has extended in a voluntary way to 95 per cent. of the children of the State bears impressive witness to the value which the public puts upon it.

[To be Continued.]

WEYMOUTH.

A new paper, to be issued twice a week, is to be started in town.

W. P. Sanborn is about again, after a brief illness.

Rondeau Brothers are decorating the interior of Connell's pharmacy which was badly damaged by fire a short time ago.

Clifford Thayer, engineer at Cates factory is confined to the house by illness. Otis Hollis of the F ore River Engine Works is filling his place.

For the Daily Ledger.

What of the Future?

The first Congress of "New" America had assembled. Speaker Reed of the House of Representatives strode up to the speaker's desk and struck a hard blow with his gavel to call the body to order. On the instant, each Malay pirate grabbed his cudgel ready to repel or attack as the case might require. The Philippine interpreter succeeded in quieting their suspicions while the linguists from Hawaii, Cuba, China and Mexico were explaining to their respective countrymen that the action of the speaker was meant to enjoin silence and order.

Several bills were introduced, including one from the Cubans asking that pensions be granted to all of the Cuban soldiers who were disabled by eating poisoned canned beef, or who had contracted pneumonia through the worthlessness of the American tents; one from the Philippinoes for a settlement of damages done to their houses during the bombardment of Manila, and one from the Hawaiians for an appropriation to buy American flags to place on the public buildings in their country. During the passage of these bills the Philippinoes gathered in one corner of the room and discussed with some degree of warmth the various merits of Reed and McKinley for a good potpie. They were dispersed without loss of life, however. After the house adjourned the Cubans repaired to their newly erected arena where the greatest bull fighter in the world was to give an exhibition of his skill; the Malays went out into the highways and byways to help the heavily laden, by carrying their watches and jewelry; the Mexicans disported themselves at the corners of the principal streets where they occupied themselves lassoing horses, dogs and other animals, while the Hawaiians innocently amused themselves by sounding fire alarms; just for the excitement of the thing. F.

Surgeon's Report.

The report of the brigade surgeon Kneedler at Camp Wetherill, as to health and sanitary conditions is of interest to relatives of Co. K members. He says of the Fifth Massachusetts:

Cubic air space per man in tents, 147 feet.
Space between tents, 7 feet.
Ventillation, good.
Lighting, by candle.
Dr anage, good.
Bedding, bed sacks, straw changed weekly.
Food Supply — Quantity, sufficient; quality, good; variety, see remarks; preparation, good; method of serving, in company mess hall.
Water Supply—Quantity sufficient; quality, excellent, furnished by city.
Bathing, hot water facilities.
Disinfection, slack lime.
Exercise, daily drills.
Camp site, camp located on a small hill which gives it excellent drainage.

REMARKS.

The ration issued by brigade commissary consists of fresh beef every other day, bacon, coffee, sugar, rice, hominy, beans, tomatoes, onions, salt, pepper, flour, corn meal and potatoes.

All solid garbage is either burned or hauled away by farmers. The liquid is covered in sinks.

The health of the brigade is excellent.

The prevailing disease is grip, which, however, is now about extinct.

The 201st New York reported one case of measles.

The fact that this brigade is practically without bathing facilities, except the Fifth Massachusetts, is unfortunate and should be remedied.

A Windsor, Eng., cabman, who recently died has bequeathed $250 to a gentleman whom he was frequently in the habit of driving, to show his appreciation of the respect with which he was invariably treated by his fare.

The Fifth Complimented.

Speaking of the provost duty of the 1st battalion of the 5th Massachusetts the Greenville News of Sunday said:

"The 2d battalion under Major Atkinson from the 2d West Virginia regiment will today relieve the 1st battalion of the 5th Massachusetts regiment on provost duty. This is the second term for the Massachusetts men on provost duty and they have again covered themselves with glory. From all parts of the city come remarks commending their good work. The men of the 5th are a fine looking body and they always make a good impression, and their officers being careful, painstaking and considerate, the provost work always moves smoothly. The Massachusetts provosts have paid special attention during the term just ending to the blind tigers and have accomplished much toward rooting out this evil. Major Morrison, who commands the Massachusetts provosts, makes an ideal commander. His natural fondness for excitement makes him an indefatigable worker and though always kindly and considerate towards those under him, he has displayed great activity, which is contagious. Whenever there is the least disturbance Major Morrison is not happy until he is on the scene and knows all about it. He has been ably assisted by the other officers of the detail and perfect harmony has prevailed continuously since the men of the 5th have been on duty.

SAFELY TRANSFERRED,

Passengers on Grounded Steamer None the Worse For Exciting Experience.

New York, Jan. 25.—The Norwich line steamboat Rhode Island left her pier at 6 p. m., yesterday and proceeded through the East river and Hell Gate, with four pilots at her wheel. At 8 p. m., while her 30 passengers were at dinner, she went ashore about 300 feet off the marbleyard of John H. Shipway, at Port Morris. She was soon fast in the mud. Wild confusion followed among the passengers, who rushed for life preservers. It required the greatest effort on the part of Captain McDonald and his officers and crew to quiet them. Rain was falling in torrents. The darkness added to the terror of the passengers, who were bound for New England points. Signal lights were flashed from the stalled steamboat. Rowboats soon put out from both North Brother island and Port Morris. The occupants of the boats offered to take off the passengers, but a thunderstorm was raging, and they were afraid to get into the boats. Captain McDonald advised everyone to stay on board, assuring his passengers that the vessel was not leaking. The New Hampshire, of the Stonington line, was lying below the position of the Rhode Island. She was signalled, and ran up alongside. All of the Rhode Island's passengers were safely transferred to the New Hampshire, which proceeded up the sound. The transfer was made about midnight.

Pile of Money Handled.

New York, Jan. 25.—Monday's enormous stock exchange business caused a breaking of the records yesterday in the clearing house of the city banks, as well as in the stock exchange clearing house. It is estimated that if all the clearings had been made through the former institutions the total clearings would have reached $500,000,000. The total clearings at the banks' clearing house yesterday amounted to $347,216,833. The enormous clearings yesterday were made in just 44 minutes, and not a single error was found in the proof sheet when the operation was concluded.

Arsenic In Coffee.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25.—George Schaffer, a butcher, aged 42 years, and his three children, aged 14, 11 and 3 years, were poisoned yesterday by drinking coffee which contained arsenic. All are in a critical condition. The police incline to the belief that Schaffer attempted to kill his children and himself, but Schaffer says one of the children must have placed the milk used in the coffee in a cup which contained rat poison. His wife died a few months ago, and Schaffer himself has been ill for some time. He is under police surveillance.

Standard Oil Victory.

Columbus, O., Jan. 25.—The motion of Attorney General Monnett for the removal of Master Commissioner Brinsmade of Cleveland in the Standard oil case was yesterday overruled by the Ohio supreme court. The attorney general had asked for his removal on the ground that the funds for conducting such examinations in his department were exhausted, and on the further ground that the master commissioner had granted unnecessary and needless delays at the request of the Standard Oil company's attorneys.

Burglar's Career Ended.

Buffalo, Jan. 25.—Detective Weber of the New York Central railroad shot and killed a burglar in the Central yards early yesterday morning, and captured his companion. The dead man was known as Babalek, and had served time for burglary. The other man gave the name of George Pakowski. The dead burglar fired at Weber, and was about to shoot again, when Weber shot him through the head.

A Hermit's Fate.

Unity, Me., Jan. 25.—Isaac Dow, an eccentric hermit living in the woods six miles from here, was burned in his cabin Monday night. He was more than 80 years of age, and for years had lived alone in a log hut, located three miles from a highway on the border of a swamp. The light of the blazing cabin was seen by the neighbors, but they could not rescue the old man.

Co'o Strike Broken.

New York, Jan. 25.—Dispatches were received at the offices of the Panama Railway company yesterday, stating that the strike among the laborers at Colon is broken. The steamer Finance left Colon for New York last night, and the steamer Advance will sail for New York today. These vessels have been delayed, owing to the strike.

Protest From Americans.

Munich, Jan. 25.—At a meeting of the American residents here yesterday it was decided to send to the government at Washington a protest against the anti-German expressions used in the house of representatives, accompanied by a declaration that no animosity against Americans exists in Germany.

Young Girl Suicides.

Woodsville, N. H., Jan. 25.—Mabel Merrill, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Merrill of Landaff, took strychnine, and died soon after. The only known cause that would have induced her to take her life was an insignificant one relating to some trouble she had had about attending school.

Frightfully Mangled.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 25.—Frank C. Ricker, aged 45, was struck by a train and mangled so badly that the remains were strewn from a point near the station north for a distance of over a mile. The accident happened on the Maine Central railroad.

In Need of Funds.

Boston, Jan. 25.—At a meeting of the Anti-Imperialistic league yesterday it was voted to issue an appeal for funds to carry on the work, and at the same time to point out that the league had already aroused great interest in the movement.

Fishermen Killed.

London, Jan. 25.—The British bark Embleton, when bound down the Thames, from this port for Adelaide, was in collision off Leigh with the fishing smack Violet. Two of the Violet's crew were killed.

Stewart Wins.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 25.—William M. Stewart was elected United States senator yesterday on joint ballot, receiving nine votes in the senate and 15 in the assembly. Newlands was not presented for nomination.

HORSELESS TRUCKS.

Automobile Vehicles For New York Are Designed to Carry Eight Tons.

Autotrucks for use by the New York Autotruck company are now being constructed by the American Wheelock Engine company of Worcester, Mass., and will soon be seen in the streets of New York. Platform trucks for carrying heavy machinery and trucks with high boxes for coal, ice or other commodities will be first used. Compressed air will furnish the motive power.

Motormen who operate these trucks will have a high seat forward, with a double wheel similar to the arrangement on a cable car for controlling the power. One wheel will be for steering purposes, and the other will open or close a valve between the air chambers and the motor. Although these trucks will have a carrying capacity of eight tons and can be run on smooth pavements as fast as eight miles an hour, it is asserted that they can be stopped in their own length. By shutting off the air the wheels are locked and the truck comes to a sudden standstill. The trucks are built with wide tires, so that asphalt or macadam roads will not be injured by them.

Property for the site of a power house has been purchased in New York and a plant costing $250,000 is to be erected for the initial operations. The Wheelock company, of which Edwin S. Cramp of Philadelphia is president, has completed the first air compressor for the New York power house of the Autotruck company. James H. Hoadley, president of the Compound Air Power company of New York, who is largely interested in the Autotruck company, told me recently that Mr. William C. Whitney is not interested in the new company. He said further:

"The International Air Power company, a $7,000,000 corporation, in which Mr. Joseph Leiter is largely interested, will be incorporated in New Jersey. An existing plant has been bought by Mr. Leiter for $3,000,000, and it will be in operation within 60 days. Mr. Leiter has interested the Rothschilds and other European capitals in the introduction of autotrucks in foreign cities. They will be manufactured in the United States and will be first operated in London. Later they will be introduced in Berlin and Paris."

CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

An Important Secret.

The secret is how Brazilian Balm can get to the seat of Catarrh, between the folds and in the deep, tortuous passages of the head, kill the microbes heal the running sores or ulcers and make a radical cure of this putrid and stubborn disease. You see the edges of the folds or curtains that hang from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and in health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the oder to the brain. When a cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swoolen and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can fasten itself. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrain. If you have a cold in the head the use of Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from getting a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes running sored or ulcers in the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They rapidly multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passages clear up in behind the eyes All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of pus into the throat, restoring the senses of smells taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressing Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the Balm as the Catarrh dissapears Also the effects of Grippe however serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permanently cured by this wonderful balsam, Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The annual junior promenade at Yale was a fine affair, and a great success. Within the big hall, which had been transformed by the pink and white hangings that tastefully concealed the bare walls, nearly 300 couples started the evening's gaiety in the grand march.

Speaks of "Existing Government" of Philippines

Which Is Satisfactory to the Inhabitants and at Peace With the World.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Senor Lopez, secretary to Agoncillo, the Washington representative of Aguinaldo, called at the state department yesterday afternoon and lodged with the chief clerk a communication which, according to the common expectation, marked the critical stage in the Philippine question.

This is the third attempt made by the Filipino representative to secure official recognition from the United States government. Secretary Hay was, at the time the communication was presented, attending a meeting of the cabinet at the White House, so that all that Chief Clerk Michaels could do under the circumstances was to receive the paper as he would any other handed in to him.

He now calls attention of the secretary to certain conditions, which, in his opinion, require immediate alleviation. There are, he says, at present 20,000 American troops at Manila, controlling a population of about 300,000. A number of war vessels are stationed in the harbor and many other American men-of-war and transports are to be found within the archipelago, although the actual possession of the American troops extends over not to exceed 143 square miles out of more than 200,000. Despite the enormous forces now in this extremely circumscribed area, he says, "we are informed through the public prints that other vessels of war have been ordered from distant parts of the globe to reinforce those now among the islands in question, while a few days ago a transport sailed from New York carrying about 2000 soldiers and having Manila as its destination, and, as we are informed, regiments of troops are under orders to proceed by way of San Francisco to the Philippines. The public prints inform us also that an attack is contemplated upon the Philippine islands; the islands to be taken in detail, the smaller ones first, the larger ones blockaded so that they may not assist those first attacked."

He says that it is naturally the impression of his government and people that these warlike preparations indicate military operations to be levelled at the existing government of the Philippines.

"As the representative of the Philippine government," he continues, "I hesitate to give adhesion to this idea, for I cannot believe that there is any present or future difficulty between the American and Philippine governments justifying warlike activity and, as a believer in the humanity of the American people, refuse to acquiesce in the idea that America has designs on the Philippine islands."

He states that but lately the United States and the Philippine governments have been associated in a conflict against a common enemy, the United States accomplishing its purpose by the expulsion of Spain from the West Indies, while the desire of the Philippines republic has been practically attained by the almost complete expulsion of the Spanish government from the Philippine islands.

He is unable to conceive any reason why the armies and navies of the United States lately employed against a common enemy should be turned against America's recent associates.

"It is true," he continues, "that Spain has undertaken to convey to the United States its alleged claim to the Philippines, a claim which Spain was not capable of enforcing and which never found its origin in the consent of the people of those islands."

He inquires: "Are my government and people to be left to suppose that it is because of some desire on the part of the American government to enforce against its late associate this exploded claim, that the United States is massing its forces at the late capital of the Philippines?"

He points out that the Philippines are in a state of order, possessing a government satisfactory to their inhabitants and without an enemy within their borders offering any resistance to its operations, and are at peace with all the world.

He is sure the secretary of state will appreciate, in view of the circumstances detailed, the quieting, reassuring effect upon the minds of his countrymen to result from a disclaimer upon the part of the American government of any intention to attack their liberties and independence.

He expresses his gratitude to America for services rendered, hopes that friendly relations may continue, and urges the importance of an immediate answer.

Its Fate In Doubt.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The debate on the army reorganization bill opened in the house yesterday. Practically three propositions are before the house—the house bill, providing for a standing army of 100,000 men; the minority substitute, increasing the standing army to 70,000 men, and lodging with the president discretionary power to call out 50,000 volunteers for emergency service; and a proposition to continue temporarily the regular army at its present war strength, 62,000 men. It is also understood that Mr. Marsh will champion the Miles bill. Among the supporters of the majority bill there are those who favor a provision for a general staff, made up of officers of the line, so as to make the army organization responsible to a single head. The fate of the measure is still considered doubtful, though Chairman Hull and his friends profess great confidence in its passage. The debate yesterday was not exciting. Mr. Hull and Mr. McClellan, in support of the measure, and Mr. Hay of Virginia, in opposition, divided the honors.

Says Beef Was Good.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Major Townsend commissary of subsistence, U. S. V., testified before the war investigating committee yesterday that he had constantly inspected the kitchens and supplies, and said both the refrigerated beef and canned beef were good. He had never heard of the chemical treatment of the beef until he read of it in the newspapers. The only complaint he had known was from the officers in Porto Rico, who said the beef sometimes was not used in time, and consequently spoiled, but there was nothing to indicate it was anything else than the discoloration that might occur anywhere from climatic causes.

Merrimac to Be Blown Up.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The navy department has finally decided to remove the Merrimac from the edge of the channel in Santiago harbor by means of explosives. Lieutenant Clow, who was in charge for a time of the wrecking operations there, has reported that the vessel is not worth the money it would cost to raise her and recommended the destruction of the hull by explosives.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 25.—A bill intended to retain the assessment insurance companies by providing restrictions that will meet the objections to them cited in Governor Wolcott's inaugural was almost the only feature of the 20-minute house session yesterday. Representative Hayes introduced a bill to provide a single cattle commissioner in place of the present board.

In the committee rooms there were hearings for several street railway companies who wish to act as common carriers, for the Anti-Double Taxation league and for the advocates of the 8-hour work day and 58-hour week. The Massachusetts Pipe Line company remonstrated against the tax imposed by the tax commissioners on its last issue of stock, which was delayed for some time after being asked for.

In the senate the Mackey petition for protection of certain birds was put in, practically the same as in other years.

In the house bills were introduced providing for a temporary release of children under sentence of truancy, because of sickness or death in their families; regulating fees of clerks of the supreme and superior courts; to amend the divorce laws so that either party may marry again as if the other were dead; to authorize Leominster to furnish water to Lunenburg; providing for an alderman-at-large for Newburyport.

Petitions: Of mayor of Fitchburg to borrow money for hospital buildings; for amendment to trustee process; for legislation to permit one judge of probate to make compensation for services of another for his own convenience; for legislation to transfer the duties of the Newburyport water commission to the city council; for an appropriation of $35,000 for the Massachusetts soldiers' home.

Maine Treasury Figures.

Augusta, Me., Jan. 25.—State Treasurer Simpson has completed his report for the year 1898. The bonded debt was decreased $50,600. The interest on the bonded debt paid was $73,009. The whole bonded debt is $2,203,000. The temporary loan outstanding has been reduced in the aggregate $50,000, leaving $150,000 now outstanding. The total receipts of the office have been $1,854,304.66. The available cash of the past year was $2,006,654.88, against which warrants have been drawn for $1,851,931.15, leaving a cash balance on hand of $154,723.75. Under the head of liabilities are found the bonded debt, temporary loans and trust funds, school and mill tax, railroad and telegraph tax, etc. They amount in all to $4,100,826.57.

Objections to Uniforms.

Boston, Jan. 25.—Mayor Quincy gave a hearing last evening to a delegation of men who oppose the plan of uniforming the members of the park department. It was pointed out to the mayor that the workmen were not serfs; that no one had a right to tell public laborers what clothes they should or should not wear; that if they accepted the uniforms they would be the butt of every low joker who chose to ridicule them; that the uniform on a laborer was a badge of servitude and not, as in the case of a policeman or fireman, a badge of authority; that they objected to being told to wear an uniform and being deprived of the right to purchase them where they pleased. The mayor took the matter under advisement.

Arbitrators at Marlboro.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 25.—The members of the state board of arbitration arrived in this city yesterday and held a conference with the representatives of the joint council of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union. The board later called on the manufacturers, and again visited the labor organization. The result of the conference has not been made public, but many believe the labor difficulties will terminate within a few days, while others are of the opinion that the difficulties will continue for some weeks.

Waiting.

London, Jan. 25.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times, dealing with the Samoan difficulty, says: No proposal has yet been made for a conference as to Samoa, and I have reason to believe that there is a pause in the interchange of views, the governments concerned waiting fuller information.

Bronze Plates For Shamrock.

London, Jan. 25.—It is announced that the Manganese Bronze company of Deptford has received an order for bronze plates, with steele ribs, to be used in the construction of the America's cup challenger, Shamrock.

Invitation to Vatican.

London, Jan. 25.—Russia, says the Rome correspondent of The Times, has spontaneously invited the pope to send a representative to the forthcoming international conference on the limitation of armaments.

Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

agreement of the commander-in-chief. When the treaty fails, it could be torn to pieces; but whether it is thrown aside or not, still we are in a state of war, and the subjects of Spain, among whom are numbered today the Filipinos, would be the enemies of the United States by all the laws of nations. There, then, would be the president with the country at war with Spain, armed with the war power, which he can use unchecked as the commander-in-chief of the army and navy. The treaty commits the disposition of the Philippine Islands to congress and to the ways and practices of peace. Its rejection leaves them in the sole power of the president, subject to the usages and practices of war alone.

Mr. Clay (Ga.), one of the Democratic senators who expect to vote for the ratification of the treaty of peace, then addressed the senate on the general question of territorial expansion. He made it very clear that nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of prompt ratification, but that this government should hold out to the Filipinos the same promise of ultimate independence that are held out to the Cubans.

He admitted the right of the government to acquire the Philippines and to govern them as any other territory belonging to the United States, but he contended that such a policy would be unwise and against the best interests of the people of the United States. He contended that we have not the right to acquire those islands or any other territory, either mainland or islands in the sea, and govern the people of such territory without constitutional limitations.

Mr. Clay was inclined to the belief that it might be desirable for congress to make a declaration of intention regarding the Philippines before the treaty was ratified. He strongly opposed expansion, especially on the ground that it would necessitate the maintenance of a large and expensive standing army.

Floods In Prussia.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—All the rivers in East Prussia have overflowed and large districts have been flooded and immense damage done to the region inundated.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M. the well-known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church. Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission. Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

AGREEMENT REACHED.

Senate to Vote on Treaty a Week From Monday.

Davis Speaks In Behalf of American Commissioners.

Presentation of the History of the Paris Conference.

Philippine Islands Included In the Agreement as a Matter of Honor.

Should Make Good an Opportunity Providentially Provided.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The senate held two executive sessions yesterday, and at each the peace treaty was the subject under discussion. At the first an agreement was reached to vote on the treaty next Monday week, and at the second Senator Davis presented the American commissioners' reasons for the acceptance of the treaty in the form in which it was finally concluded. The agreement for a vote was reached in an executive session held soon after convening at noon, this agreement being in the following language:

"That the senate agrees to vote on the treaty with Spain and all amendments on Monday, Feb 6, at 3 o'clock, p. m., and that until that time the senate shall go into executive session on each day at 2 p. m."

SENATOR DAVIS.

This was a unanimous agreement, the terms of which were formulated by Senator Davis, in reply to Tuesday's proposition by the opposition, and as a result of yesterday's meeting of the senate committee on foreign relations. The agreement in the committee to accept the proposition was unanimous, and it is understood that Senator Davis informed his fellow committeemen that it was the wish of the president that the proposition for a vote should be accepted and the result made known as soon as possible. Those who are familiar with the views of the president say that he has urged an early vote upon the ground that nothing is to be lost and everything is to be gained by taking the vote. The final action, he is confident, will be favorable when reached.

In accordance with the terms of the agreement, the senate resumed its work in executive session at 2 o'clock, and the entire time of this session was consumed by Senator Davis in making a presentation of the history of the Paris conference. This presentation consisted largely in the recital of the various propositions made on each side of the controversy at Paris, and while the speech was thus rendered somewhat formal, it received the closest and most careful attention. A map of the Philippines on a large scale adorned the rear wall of the senate chamber, and while it was often consulted by senators, Mr. Davis made but one reference to it as such.

Speaking outside of the published record, Senator Davis eulogized the Spanish commissioners in high terms as men of exceptional shrewdness and ability, saying that the Americans had found them armed at all points, zealous of Spain's honor and interest, and prepared at all times to defend her cause as long as there was anything to defend. He said the Americans of the commission had been in constant communication with the president while negotiating the convention; that he was made acquainted with all the commissions' movements, and while he admitted that there had been apparently some division of opinion among publicists in the United States as to the policy of including the Philippines in the agreement, there had been practically no other honorable way out of the difficulty.

As for himself, Mr. Davis was willing from the start to extend our borders so as to include these islands, because he believed their acquisition a most important stride in the advancement of the American nation, commercially and otherwise. He with others was looking forward to the prospective partition of the vast Chinese empire among the European nations, and he foresaw that if the United States did not secure a footing in the Orient such as they now have an opportunity to secure through the terms of the treaty, they would be most effectually and forever shut out from this vast market. On this account there was every reason in the world why the treaty should be ratified, and he contended that few men who would study the world-wide questions presented as the commissioners had been compelled to study them could doubt the expediency of the move. He also touched upon the legal questions involved, contending that there were many precedents for the acquisition; that we as a nation had the right to acquire territory, and that there were no constitutional barriers.

If we should fail to make good our own opportunity thus providentially provided, we need, Mr. Davis said, expect no favors from Europe in regaining a foothold in the eastern markets. We need count upon no display of friendship from Europe in this or any other matter. The European powers were profoundly jealous of the United States, and the senator declared that it was a fact that we had not had one friend on the continent in our recent struggle with Spain or in our efforts to secure a peace favorable to this country. He intimated that but for Great Britain's attitude there would have been intervention by the continental powers.

He referred to the newspaper reports from London accrediting him with an expression favorable to an alliance of the United States with Great Britain and Japan. He had, he said, never advocated such an alliance for the present, but he would say that the time might come when such an alliance would be both wise and necessary for the preservation of our rights and prestige. He dwelt at some length upon the favor shown the Spanish side of the question while the conference was in progress, and said there was an especial effort made to have the Spanish bonds secured on the colonies guaranteed by the Americans. He believed that if the Americans held the Philippines, international trouble would be avoided, but if the contrary course should be pursued he was most apprehensive of the results.

In reply to a question from Senator Hoar, Mr. Davis said there had been no effort to put the Filipinos on the same footing with the Cubans in formulating the treaty. He said the two countries were very differently situated, and instanced the demonstration in Manila harbor as an example of what might occur in a land so distant.

Mr. Davis urged the importance of favorable action upon the treaty at the present session of congress. A failure to ratify meant, he argued, continued uncertainty, renewed encouragement to the insurgent Filipinos, possible conflict with them and a prolongation of the state of war with much of its horrors.

Only a brief time was occupied by the senate in open session. A few bills on the calendar were passed, but no other business of importance was transacted.

Treaty Has Expired.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The Mexican extradition treaty expired at midnight Jan. 24. Its lapse finds a remarkably small number of fugitives from justice in either country to profit from the fact. So far as known at the state department, Santiago Morphy is the only Mexican fugitive now at large in the United States. He made a sensational escape from the Mexican chief of police in New Orleans just one day before the treaty expired. In Mexico there is one American, James Temple, who is technically a fugitive from justice, and against whom extradition proceedings are now in progress, the charge being unlawful homicide, and in his case there is reason to believe Mexico may grant extradition.

Will Be No Clash.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The state department has forwarded to Ambassador White at Berlin full instructions as to the presentation he is to make to the German minister of foreign affairs relative to the indignity reported to have been offered the chief justice of Samoa by the German official at Apia. The department has also had some exchanges with the German ambassador here on the subject. The nature of these communications cannot be revealed, but it is believed that they show an abiding confidence in the disposition of the German government to right any wrong that may have been perpetrated at Apia through over-zealous agents.

Appreciative People.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The following cablegram has been received at the war department from General Brooke at Havana: "People of Matanzas, after three days' peaceful and orderly celebration by their civil governor, mayor, council and junta, convey to the military governor and through him to the president of the United States their grateful acknowledgments of the inestimable services which have been rendered by the army and navy, together with their assurances of such conduct as will convince the people of the United States and of the world that they are entitled to the confidence and respect of all patriotic people."

SCOTT GETS THE PLUM.

Elected United States Senator to Represent West Virginia.

McGraw, Democrat, Files a Notice of Contest.

Claims That Certain Forms of Law Have Been Violated.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Nathan B Scott was elected United States senator yesterday in joint assembly. Scott received 48 votes, McGraw 46 and Goff 1. Necessary to elect, 48. Hunt voted at first for Blizzard, and afterwards changed his vote to Scott. The announcement was received with the wildest applause.

Senator-elect Scott, on receiving the caucus nomination one week ago, telegraphed President McKinley as follows: "On top. Another vote for expansion." He is a pronounced expansionist and a strong administration man.

Hon. J. F. McGraw, the Democratic nominee for senator, last night made the following statement:

"Neither Mr. Scott nor myself was elected today under the forms of law to the senate. I received 46 votes in joint assembly. He received 48, and Judge Goff 1. This gives Mr. Scott a majority of one over the combined vote of Judge Goff and myself, but of the 48 votes received by Mr. Scott, two were the votes of state senators who had forfeited their votes in the senate by reason of the provisions of section 13 of article 6 of the state constitution, by the acceptance of lucrative offices, under the federal government (commissions in the army). Therefore Mr. Scott, in reality and in the law, received 46 votes. The vote for him was 46; the vote for myself was 46, and the vote for Judge Goff was 1, and in consequence there was no election. In addition to this, the ballot in joint assembly was taken in the absence of any and all representation from the county of Taylor, and from the Fourth senatorial district, so that the pretended election was had without any representation from that senatorial district and from one county in the legislature, and with the absence of such representation the vote received by Mr. Scott in the joint assembly was not a majority of all senators and delegates to which the various counties of the state were entitled, under the constitution thereof This question arose and was expressly determined by the court of appeals of Kentucky, and the senate of the United States in the Blackburn-Hunter case. The questions so raised by me are not on personal interest or advantage, but I deem it my duty to see that they are properly presented to the senate of the United States upon the question of Mr. Scott's qualification therein, not only in the name of the Democratic party, which has stood by me so loyally in this contest, but likewise in the name of the constitutional government, which cannot even in the hazard of personal disadvantage be so ignored. I therefore feel it my duty to see that these questions be presented and a protest made to the senate of the United States."

Mr. McGraw makes this statement as the basis of his notice of protest.

Other Elections.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 26.—In joint session of the legislature yesterday William M. Stewart was formally declared elected United States senator from Nevada.

Austin, Jan. 26.—The senate and house in joint session yesterday ratified the election of Charles A. Culberson to the United States senate.

Trenton, Jan. 26.—The two branches of the legislature met in joint session yesterday, and President Reed of the senate, who presided, declared John Kean elected as United States senator from New Jersey for six years, beginning March 4, 1899.

Cheynne, Wyo., Jan. 26.—The election of C. D. Clark as United States senator was formally ratified in joint session of the legislature yesterday.

Still No Choice.

Harrisburg, Jan. 26.—The result of the seventh joint ballot for United States senator yesterday resulted as follows: Quay, 104; Jenks, 79; Dalzell, 16; Stone, 7; Stewart, 8; Huff, 5; Irvin, 2; Tubbs, 2; Rice, 2; Grow, 1; Markle, 2; C. E. Smith, 1; Widener, 3; Frank M. Riter, Rep., 2. Total, 234; necessary to a choice, 118; paired, 18. No election.

Cashier Missing.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The Dominion Atlantic Railway company, as well as the local police, are anxious as to the whereabouts of David J. White, the cashier of the railway company at their wharf in this city, who, it is claimed, left the city Jan. 16 with his accounts showing a shortage of nearly $2000. White is described as 28 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height, and 165 pounds in weight, smooth shaven, and well dressed, having on a shepherd plaid suit and a light overcoat, and a reward of $200 has been offered for his apprehension.

Jury Couldn't Agree.

Providence, Jan. 26.—The jury in the McWilliams manslaughter case disagreed yesterday after having been out 24 hours. They stood 7 to 5 for conviction. John McWilliams, Jr., was accused of causing the death of Arthur F. Adams. This was the second trial, and the attorney general announces that there will be a third attempt.

The results reached by the Assessors of Quincy are probably no better or no worse than in most other cities. Equal assessment of taxes is impossible. Yet there can be an improvement in Quincy, as well as elsewhere, if greater permancy in office on the Board of Assessors is secured, and the board devotes more time to its duties both in the field and throughout the year. That the feeling is much the same in Boston is shown by the following editorial from the Boston Courier, under the head of "Unequal Taxes:"

"There have been several important sales of land in the business centre of Boston, on the lines of the principal streets in the retail district, and in each instance the price paid by the purchaser has been so greatly in excess of the assesed tax valuation as to cause very general surprise. On the other hand, in the strictly residential districts the sales of real property show no such advance in price over the tax value. This does not apply, of course, to property on Commonwealth avenue, Beacon street, and other favored sections of the Back Bay, which seem to share in some degree the preference enjoyed by down town business locations; but outside the charmed circle of the limits of what we call the 'city proper,' the owner of a house and lot, wishing to sell, who can get an offer equal to the amount for which his property is taxed is a fortunate exception.

"Here is an apparent inequality in taxation which deserves more than passing notice. In the case of down town property, is the market price, which is so readily paid, speculative and therefore excessive? Or is the valuation put upon such property by the assessors for purposes of taxation too low? In the case of dwelling house property distant from the centre of the city, are the assessors placing a fancy price upon it, or is it becoming a 'drug in the market?' The assessment of real estate is nowhere made with a rigid adherence to the statute requirements that it shall be placed on the tax list at its fair market value. It is understood that the assessed valuation shall be lower than the price for which the owner can sell his property. There are two conflicting interests at work in the making of tax assessments. One is the interest in keeping the burden of taxation as light as possible, whereby capital and enterprise are attracted to a city; and the other is the pressure to mark up property in order to bring in a larger income from taxes to meet municipal expenditures. The assessors are expected to balance these two interests and bring about a reasonable compromise.

"In working out this problem, however, it is essential that assessments shall be made with an even hand, and that property in one section shall not be favored at the expense of property in another section. It is especially undesirable, if there is any inequality in this respect, that discrimination should lie against the owners of homes and in favor of the owners of land in the business quarters. The balance really ought to tip the other way, if at all. The "unearned increment," which figures so largely in the scheme of the advocates of the single tax, is the chief element of value in land centrally located. The price of such land has been advanced, not through the effort of its owners, but through the growth of the community and the concentration about it of a busy population. It really owes more to the community than property which has not been enriched by these advantages. If any class of property ought to bear its full burden of taxation, it is this.

"It may be said with truth, that to increase the taxes on real estate in the business section would be to impose an additional burden on trade in the city, and that this is undesirable since taxes in Boston are already too grievous to be borne. The owner, bound to make his real estate pay the increase which he considers reasonable, shifts the tax upon the tenant in the shape of rents. It is not the property that pays the tax, it is the man who makes use of the property in his business. And this is a matter which concerns taxation in general. To make the city commercially attractive, to encourage the multitude of small or moderate enterprises which build up a healthy trade community, we must avoid excessive taxation. In Boston this policy has not been pursued. The State has fixed a limit for the tax rate and a limit for the debt which the city may incur; but by one device and another the actual tax has been increased more than one-half above the statutory $9 on $1,000, and the city debt has been rolled up to tremendous figures.

"To get our full measure of prosperity, it will be necessary to find a means of lightening our load of taxation. But in any case the load, whatever it may be, should be equally distributed. The dwellings of the people should not be made to pay a disproportionate share of the tax levy, which, if we may judge by the record of market sales of real estate, is now the case."

The persistence of the secretary of war in shipping food to the soldiers in Manila from San Francisco when more suitable and less expensive can be procured in Asiatic ports, rises some doubts as to his business ability, at least, when it is applied to governmental affairs. We doubt if he ever conducted his lumber business in any such loose fashion.—New Bedford Standard.

We are glad to know that Secretary Alger believes in fostering the trade and commerce of the United States. It is the kind of protection we believe in, even if it does cost a little more. Yankees appreciate Yankee food, and we only regret that the soldiers boys cannot receive some of our New England pies. Certainly they should not be scrimped or served with cheap food. Government or city business cannot be run as an individual conducts his business. An individual may sneak off to Boston and trade at the department stores, but it would never do for the city government to do it.

We wonder if our city government will be so unwise as to help secure an increased appropriation this year for the Metropolitan Park Commissioners, and take its chances in having a part of it expended in Quincy. The feeling is that the Commission is too autocratic, and has altogether too much authority in the expenditure of large sums of money. To secure a larger appropriation from the Legislature in 1897 it coerced the Representative from Quincy, who was a member of the Ways and Means Committee, by an intimation that $200,000 would be expended in Quincy. Their artful evasion of this promise is too well known. A resolution to abolish the commission would meet with more favor.

In connection with the proposed loan of $150,000 for street improvements, the opinion of Commissioner Knowlton may be of interest. When interviewed by a taxpayer the other day, he said, $40,000 was as large a sum as city could judiciously expend in one year on rebuilding streets. The necessity of a special act of the Legislature become less and less apparent.

Congressman Barrows has the qualification necessary to make an excellent librarian of Congress, and the Massachusetts delegation is making no mistake in pushing their claims.

No Money Now Available for the Quincy Boulevard.

The proposed Quincy boulevard or parkway has probably gone up in smoke. That it has gone up somewhere is very certain. Mayor Keith and the committee appointed by Mayor Sears in 1898 had a conference this week with the Metropolitan Park Commissioners in Boston. They were accompanied by City Solicitor McAnarney, and also P. R. Blackmur, Esq., the City Solicitor-elect.

The committee made an excellent report, showing that favorable options had been secured on the land on the route, and it was intimated these could be scaled down twenty per cent. if the parkway was assured. Several of the large owners stood ready to give their land.

At this point the committee was informed by the Commissioners that there was now no money available for the Quincy boulevard. They recommended that the city go to the Legislature and secure, if possible, an appropriation.

This was all the satisfaction that Mayor Keith and the committee could secure.

LARCENY CHARGED.

The Norfolk Downs Building Movers Summoned Into Court.

Alfred Shaw and William Cavanagh were summoned Wednesday to appear in the District court next Monday, and answer a complaint sworn out by Nils Anderson charging them with the larceny of a building at Norfolk Downs last Friday. This is the case arising out of the moving of the unfinished house at Norfolk Downs last week which was fully reported at the time.

George A. Sherman.

We are sorry to note the death of Mr. George A. Sherman who passed away on Wednesday at Wollaston Park, after a lingering illness.

Mr. Sherman, who was an architect, had been in poor health for four years or more. He had sought more favorable climate, both south and west, but to no avail.

Eight and a half years ago he married Miss Albertie W. Merritt, a well known Quincy young lady who survives him. He also leaves a father, mother and two brothers, one of whom resides in Providence, R. I., the other being Dr. Sherman, the dentist, of this city.

To Stay at Greenville.

The Greenville News of Tuesday says Mayor Williams, Alderman Richardson and A. A. Gates, the committee who went to Washington last week to urge Greenville's claims for a permanent camp, returned Sunday with good news. They were assured by the war department that there will be no change in Camp Wetherill with of course the exception of the mustering out of the 4th Missouri regiment until April and probably later. The other five regiments will be kept here until the bill providing for an increase in the regular army becomes a law and then the work of mustering out the volunteer troops will begin. No more regiments stationed here or elsewhere will be mustered out until that event occurs. The strong probability is that none of the regiments here will see foreign service. The committee were told that the strong probability was that all regiments here now would be mustered out in Greenville with each enlisted man receiving about $77.

Marble That Endures.

The Marble Dealers' Association of New England and the Provinces took a new lease of life at its 10th annual meeting and banquet at the American House yesterday. Before the meeting there was a feeling among some of the members that the association had better disband but those who were in favor of continuing the organization made a good fight and when the ballot was taken only two votes were cast against continuing the organization.—Herald.

The officers include John Kelley of Braintree as vice president and W. A. Somers of Dorchester as secretary and treasurer. Twenty odd members were present.

Milton Slander Case.

A case that is being watched with interest by the citizens of Milton is that of Leroy S. Nevons against Joseph Holmes, now on trial at the superior court in Dedham. The case is an act of alleged slander to recover $10,000 damages.

Both parties in the case are well known. Mr. Nevons was formerly superintendent of streets in Milton, and Mr. Holmes is now and has been for some years Milton's town treasurer. The case arose out of a statement it is alleged that Treasurer Holmes made, to the effect that Nevons while superintendent of streets carried a lot of "straw men" upon his pay roll and drew the money, which statement Nevons alleges has been detrimental to his business chances.

SCOTCH HAGGIS

And American Delicacies Enjoyed on Burns Anniversary.

The loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor celebrated the 140th anniversary of the birth of Scotland's favorite poet. After the business meeting of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, No. 1, Tuesday evening, the doors of Doble's hall were thrown open to the gentlemen friends. An excellent supper had been provided by the ladies and at 8.30 o'clock about one hundred and twenty-five couples marched into the main hall, where tables were spread with every thing from the Scotch haggis and oat cakes to the more American delicacies. After the inner man had been satisfied, the hall was cleared and dancing was in progress for the next few hours with songs and recitations intervening.

Those who contributed to the entertainment were Mrs. Alice Nicol, Mrs. Agnes Donald, Miss Agnes Reynolds, Miss Mary Duthie, Mr. Robert Allen, Mr. James Marr, Mr. Dan McCarthy, Mr. Frazier and Mr. Stuart.

One of the features of the evening was a cakewalk, the cake being awarded to Mr. Dan McCarthy and lady.

Much of the success was due to the committee of arrangements, Mrs. Lizzie Johnston, Mrs. Mary A. M. Smith, Mrs. Margaret Pierce, Mrs. Maggie Stronach, Mrs. Mary Daley, Miss H. C. Esson, and Mrs. Margaret Ross.

Reformer or Conservative.

Mr. Murphy, '99, president, Miss Wiley, '99, secretary, presided at the meeting of the Quincy High School Debating society on Wednesday.

The debate of last week on the respective merits of the reformer and the conservative, was continued by the following speakers:

Reformers — Mr. Donovan, Mr. Duggan, Mr. Foster, Mr. Hayward and Mr. Hewson.

Conservative:—Mr. King, Mr. Lawton, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Loring and Mr. McGrath.

Mr. Kenneth Lewis made the best speech for the conservatives, and took occasion to doubt the advantages of many modern inventions. Mr. Carl Hayward made the best speech for the reformers, and replied very effectively to some of Mr. Lewis's arguments. The decision of the board will be waited with interest.

Letter Carriers Farrell and Cunniff are not to receive additional compensation for care of team as reported. The decision relates only to a few rural districts. However, the Quincy mounted carriers receive less than in Brockton and Boston for teams and it should be equalized.

There is talk in the Sunshine club of impeaching the president. One of the rules is that no member shall take unto himself a wife, yet the president himself—a prominent marketman of City Square—is about to violate the rule, and he has not resigned from the club. The members may make it hot for him tonight.

Fabulous Piano Profits

There is satisfaction in owning a piano, but the satisfaction is two-fold, when you know you didn't pay a fabulous profit to the man you bought it from. People do pay too much for pianos, pay a great deal more than they are worth. Ask them why and everyone will tell the same old story, "Supposed the price was right and as low as it could be bought." Now here's the difference, we are doing a splendid piano business, saving our customers hundreds of dollars on pianos, selling a first-class new piano for $185.00, worth at least $350 00.

No matter what kind of a piano you want, come here; buy it through us and save a small barrel of money.

NEW SCHOOL LAWS.

And Facts As to Conveyance, Supplies, Tuition, Etc.

In continuation of the review of the annual report of the State Board of Education, these facts are noted:

The conveyance of children to school at public expense was first authorized by chapter 132, Acts of 1869. No returns of expenditure under the law were made unil 1889; the amount then reported for the year preceding was $22,118.38. The amount has now reached the sum of $123,032.41. This increase means a gain in the policy of consolidating schools and increasing their efficiency.

TEXT-BOOKS AND SUPPLIES.

The total expenditures for text-books stationery and school supplies was $592,905.76, the cost for each child in the average membership of the public schools being $1.56, or 6 cents less than the average for the past ten years. The owns and cities generally report lower averages. Supplies of all sorts, including apparatus, library books, maps, chemicals, material for kindergarten sloyd and manual training work, etc., are included in the State returns, while local reports often confine themselves either to text-books proper or to such books and a narrower range of supplies.

STATE REIMBURSEMENT.

In accordance with chapter 408, Acts of 1896, as amended by Chapter 498, Acts of 1897, 55 towns are now eligible to certain aid from the State in paying the salaries of their teachers, provided they comply with the conditions of the law. Twenty-three towns in 1896-97 availed themselves of the law, receiving from the State $4,117.84 for 127 teachers. For 1897-98, 45 towns took advantage of the law, receiving $7,833.19 for 220 teachers.

HIGH SCHOOL TUITION.

In accordance with chapter 212, Acts of 1895 towns whose valuation is under $500,000 are aided by the State in paying the tuition of their properly qualified children in outside high schools, if they have no high school at home. In 1895, 28 towns were paid an aggregate of $840.41 under the law; in 1896, 38 towns were paid $3,873.05; in 1897, 43 towns were paid $6,121.72; in 1898, 51 towns, sending 255 pupils to 39 outside high schools, were paid $7,309.18. The number of towns whose valuation is under $500,000 is 83. Many of them have high schools of their own.

THE SCHOOL FUND.

The school fund is increased each year $100,000—the increase to continue until the fund reaches $5,000,000. At present it is $4,170,548.14. Half the income is devoted to the general educational expenses of the State. The other half is distributed among towns whose valuation is under $3,000,000 each. For 1898, $90,018.51 was distributed among 255 towns, in amounts varying from $50 to $541.71, the average per town being $353.01.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

Four hundred and eighteen private schools were reported, the same number as the preceding year, with 73,470 pupils,—an increase of 4,682. Boston shows a gain of 4,690 pupils; the rest of the State, a loss of 8 pupils. Of the private schools, 55 are incorporated academies, with 5,817 pupils,—an increase of 399. In 1837, 1 child in 6 attended a private school; in 1867, 1 child in 14; in 1898, 1 child in 7. The ratio has fluctuated between 1 to 7 and 1 to 7.8 for the past ten years.

SCHOOL LEGISLATION OF 1898.

Among the new provisions in the school legislation of 1898 are the following:—

1. Towns whose valuation is above $2,500,000 may unite with towns whose valuation is below in employing a superintendent of schools, with proportionate State help to the latter.

2. Towns may authorize their school committees to arrange such unions for the employment of a superintendent as seem to them advantageous.

3. No child under fourteen shall be employed in a factory or workshop.

4. All schools must be kept at least eight months in the year.

5. The distinction between first grade and second grade high schools is abolished. The standard for high school instruction everywhere involves one or more courses of study at least four years long, forty weeks of schooling in the year, and work that shall prepare both for general culture and for higher institutions. A town may meet the standard wholly in its own high school or partly in its own high school and partly in an outside high school, or, if not required to maintain a high school of its own, wholly in an outside high school.

6. Elementary manual training as well as high is required in towns and cities of twenty thousand inhabitants or more.

7. Provision is made for the payment to towns of the tuition and transportation of certain children placed or kept in these towns in a charitable way and sent to their schools.

8. The compulsory age limits are changed from eight and fourteen to seven and fourteen.

9. The time of taking the school census is changed to September 1.

10. The truancy laws are simplified and strengthened.

11. The system of truancy by-laws is abolished.

12. For other changes, see chapters 315, 394, 466, 494 and 496, Acts of 1898.

☞Admiral Dewey recently contracted with a native to carry stuff from shore to the Olympia. The boatman after doing his duty dressed himself in the latest European fashion to visit the admiral—silk hat, white shirt, cravat, cuffs, etc. When he presented his bill Dewey remarked that there were numerous overcharges which he could not pay. The freighter captain, protested. Dewey politely replied that he would pay the original bill, nothing more. Mistaking the quiet manner of the admiral as an admission of wrong, the freighter became insulting in his manner. With a slight movement of the hand, the admiral remarked to the orderly: "Drop that man overboard." And in a moment the plug hat was floating in Cavite bay, while the insolent native was spurting salt water and swimming to his vessel.—New Bedford Standard.

Danger in Calcium Carbide.

Superintendent Murray of the Bureau of Combustibles has made regulations governing the transportation, storage and sale of calcium carbide which the firemen declare to be a source of danger in a burning building because when water reaches it acetylene gas is given off. A number of stores keep it for use in bicycle lamps. Hereafter in transit or on storage it must be inclosed in hermetically sealed iron receptacles marked "Dangerous if not kept dry." No package may contain more than 100 pounds. It must be stored in isolated buildings that are fire proof and waterproof. No artificial light or heat will be permitted in the building where it is stored. Not more than twenty pounds in bulk or in cartridges may be kept in any store or factory and this must be in a fireproof safe or vault above the street grade and it must be kept six inches above the floor.

The manufacture, transportation, storage, sale, or use of liquefied acetylene is absolutely prohibited within the limits of this city.—N. Y. Sun.

—According to Tesla a man might easily live to be two hundred years of age, if only he would sleep most of the time. Their love for naps in the sunshine thus accounts for the longevity of negroes. It is a fact that the proper method of economizing time is to sleep every moment when it is not necessary or desirable to be awake, but few people today acknowledge that there are more than five or six hours out of the twenty-four when it is not necessary or desirable that they should be awake and— even these they grudge to Morpheus.—Boston Home Journal.

In Bridgeport a league has been formed against Sunday courting. The Bachelors' club have issued a ukase to the effect, "Six day thou mayest keep "steady company," but on the seventh all manner of love making must be abandoned."

—Of the 1379 locomotives built in this country last year, 554 were sent abroad. That shows that they appreciate American labor.

Among the 700 residents of Weston, Me., there are but two persons of foreign birth, and these are naturalized Irishmen. Both are office holders, one being mayor and the other constable of the town.

One Thomaston, Me., family means to take no chances with diphtheria. Every member thereof wears a tarred rope around the neck, and this precaution is extended even to the cat, dog and pig.

DESTRUCTION OF THE MAINE

Will Be Commemorated on Feb. 15 by Americans In Havana.

Havana, Jan. 26.—Seventy-five American women met here yesterday to arrange for a memorial of the anniversary of the destruction of the United States battleship Maine, on Feb. 15. Mrs. Estes C. Rathbourne presided, and a letter from Captain Sigsbee was read, suggesting as features of the program prayer, singing, if desired, addresses by one or two prominent persons, and a volley fired over the graves by a battalion of marines. Captain Sigsbee wrote that he had granted the request of a deputation of sailors and marines of the Texas to be allowed to decorate the graves.

The suggestions were not acted upon, and the preparation of the program was deferred. The executive committee was directed to invite Major General Brooke, Major General Ludlow, Major General Lee, Captain Sigsbee and others to take part in the ceremony.

The question whether the Cubans and Spaniards should be allowed to participate caused a lively discussion. The general wish was to have it exclusively an American memorial, but it was decided, in order to avoid giving offense, to issue an invitation to representative Cubans and Spaniards.

A request is being formulated for presentation to the military administration, asking the suspension for one year of the foreclosure of mortgages that have fallen due, and of public sale of lands for debt, on the ground that this suspension has already been made in Porto Rico.

Major General Ludlow has received from a number of poor widows of Spanish officers, who, under his instructions, have been getting government support, an expression of their deep thanks. They say that never in their lives were they so comfortable and well cared for as they are today.

Lieutenant Colonel Guild, inspector general of the Seventh army corps, has sailed for Boston on leave of absence.

Lieutenant Colonel Maus, chief surgeon of the Seventh army corps, requests to be relieved.

Governor General Brooke has appointed Senor Baldomero Pichardo assistant secretary of agriculture.

Four troops of the Seventh cavalry under Major Hayes, and batteries A and F of the Second light artillery arrived in camp yesterday.

The sick report of the Seventh army corps shows 357 in hospital and 352 in quarters. There has been no increase in smallpox, and the work of vaccination is proceeding. There are 125 cases of measles.

Thought She Was His Mother.

Boston, Jan. 26.—Clifford Lamont was arraigned in court yesterday on a complaint charging him with making threats against Mrs. Annie Aspinwall of New York. The complainant is reported to be worth millions, and she is a woman of social standing. She claimed that, with a sister, she had taken Lamont from an infant asylum some 20 years ago, and had always supported him. Lately, however, he has been making demands for more money, and on Monday, upon Mrs. Aspinwall's refusal, threatened her with bodily harm. The defendant said that he always thought Mrs. Aspinwall was his mother. She never educated him or permitted him to learn a trade. The only threat he ever made was to compel her to go to court and prove whether or not she was his mother. The case was continued, and Lamont held in $2000 bail.

Shows Lack of Clues.

New York, Jan. 26.—The police yesterday gave out for reproduction in the newspapers a fac-simile of the writing on the package sent to Harry Cornish under the guise of bromo-seltzer, but which contained cyanide of mercury, and caused the death of Mrs. Kate Adams on Dec. 28. The object of the police in having the fac-simile made public is to exhaust all efforts in the endeavor to secure an identification of the handwriting. This seems to indicate that the police have not been successful so far in securing any strong clues towards the solution of this mysterious case.

Watching For Counterfeiters.

New York, Jan. 26.—The secret service authorities have received important information regarding the movements and schemes of a band of Italian counterfeiters, now said to be on their way to the United States. Arrests may be expected within the next few days. Detachments of the band of alleged counterfeiters are believed to be aboard each of three steamers, and there is a possibility that they are bringing a large amount of counterfeit money with them.

Judge Hall Now in Charge.

President Clark of The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company sailed for Europe on the 18th of January, intending to go to Egypt and make a long stay abroad for the restoration of his somewhat impaired health. During his absence Vice President John M. Hall will be acting president of the company, having administrative supervision of the whole system.

The Hartford Daily Courant says, Judge Hall came to the vice-presidency in 1893, succeeding Lucius Tuttle. Although then inexperienced in practical railroad management, he brought to the place a combination of peculiarly useful qualities. In the first place he was an able lawyer of large experience at the bar and on the bench. He had served in both houses of the Legislature and as speaker of the lower house and president of the upper one. He had a wide acquaintance with the people of Southern New England and knew their interests, characteristics and sentiments. While these were special and, possibly, decisive qualifications, they were supplementary to a high reputation for general [illegible] acumen, integrity, working power and hard common-sense.

From the beginning he has been intimately and confidentially associated with the president in formulating all the scheme of finance, consolidation, construction and operation of both steam and electric roads that have marked the last six years. Their offices in New Haven have been practically one office, and while the president has been absent most of the time for the past two years giving personal attention to the extensive improvements in and around Boston including the great terminal station, Judge Hall has been, as it were, the president's other self in active management of affairs in the western district, which are now more multifarious and complicated than was the whole system when President Clark took charge eleven years ago.

This does not mean that Judge Hall's work has been confined to one part of the system. He has been called into consultations with regard to all matters of moment everywhere. He has been of the inner council which deliberated upon and determined in general and in detail, the plans of all important engineering and construction. He is thus well acquainted with the great works accomplished and in progress in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York. He will, as president Clark has done, spend a portion of his time at the Boston end of the line, and railroad men at that capital will have an opportunity of becoming better acquainted with him.

CANCER CURED

BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is transmitted by contagion and not heredity. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) adopts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power, a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encouraging to "consumption families." It is not hereditary, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ-laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumption patient should never expectorate when it can dry up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air pasages. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis, thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tissues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. PRESIDENT IS WARNED.

Tom Johnson Says People Will Leave Him "High and Dry."

Ratification of Treaty Will Sound Death Knell.

Dolliver Presents an Able Argument In Behalf of the Administration.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The house yesterday resumed the debate on the army reorganization bill. Mr. Gibson was the first speaker. He advocated the passage of the Hull bill. In the course of his remarks, he argued that it was too soon for us to decide upon a permanent policy regarding the Philippines. Our present policy should be delay, until we had thoroughly investigated the situation.

Mr. Johnson of Indiana then took the floor in opposition to the bill, which was finally swallowed up in the broader question of our future national policy.

"While the president, in the presence of what he may conceive to be a popular demand," he began, "is hurrying the army and navy across the seas to inflict upon an alien people a government against their will, I propose fearlessly, without regard to its effect upon my personal fortunes, to make a plea for liberty and an argument against the perpetration of injustice."

His words flowed forth in a perfect torrent. He denounced the proposition to annex the Philippines as subversive of every tradition dear to the American heart in the past and the inauguration of a policy that would end in the downfall of the republic. He said that the ratification of the treaty by the senate would sound the death knell of all the efforts of those who were trying to prevent the country from rushing on to suicide, and declared that if he were a senator he would rot in his seat before it should be ratified. He denounced the president as the slavish follower of public opinion, but warned him that the tide would recede and the voice of the people would in time rebuke him. Members stood in the aisles 10 deep while he was speaking, but he tried to stop the applause which continually broke out from the Democratic side. For almost two hours his words poured forth.

The following are some of the bitterest sentences from Mr. Johnson's speech:

"If the chief executive would break his silence and openly state that we do not propose to enslave the people of the Philippines, my word for it, the present strained relations in the island will cease."

"A people with the stamina of the Filipinos are worthy of their freedom."

"If William McKinley ever changes his policy regarding the Philippines, he will bend to the weight of popular opinion, to which he bows right or wrong."

"I thank God for the spirit of independence in the senate of the United States."

"Bryan never made a greater blunder than when he said the treaty should be ratified and our policy determined afterwards."

"This world-grabbing policy means constant war, the hurrying of ships, the concentration of great forces of armed men, the embarking on a course like that of England, which has embroiled it in war uninterruptedly for 100 years."

"We have become a miserable mendicant, dependent upon the mother country."

When he had finished Mr. Dolliver came to the defense of the administration. One of the ablest debaters, and perhaps the most eloquent of the house, his reply set the Republicans wild with enthusiasm. He described how the president had been fairly driven into war by those who now sought to embarrass him before peace was definitely obtained, and his eulogy of the president, patiently meeting all the perplexing problems which beset him as the great events of the last year moved on, aroused his side and the galleries to cheers. These rang out again and again when he paid an eloquent tribute to Admiral Dewey, and broke out in renewed volume when he declared that the course of some members at both ends of the Capitol was "almost treason."

But the highest pitch of excitement was reached when Mr. Johnson and Mr. Dolliver got to close quarters towards the end of the latter's speech. Mr. Johnson pressed the defender of the administration to disclose the president's ultimate purpose regarding the Philippines, but Mr. Dolliver for some time adroitly evaded a direct response. At last he contented himself with declaring that this was not the point at issue; that the thing was to end the war by ratifying this treaty. The future of the Philippines was a question for the future.

It was in every respect a remarkable debate. The other speeches yesterday were completely overshadowed by those of Mr. Johnson and Mr. Dolliver.

Strike Hasn't Ended.

Colon, Jan. 26.—The strike which has been in progress here for nearly a fortnight among the dock laborers has extended to Panama, partly owing to the fact that the Chilian line of steamers has increased the wages of its employes, thereby accentuating the deadlock. This company having recently extended its itinerary as far north as Ocas, Guatemala, has suddenly become a serious competitor with the Panama Railway company for freight by way of the straits of Magellan.

Manufacturers Favor Treaty.

Cincinnati, Jan. 26.—The national convention of manufacturers was stirred up yesterday by a resolution being offered most earnestly petitioning the senate promptly to ratify the treaty of peace with Spain. This opened a general discussion on expansion. The resolution was finally unanimously adopted.

Railways Consolidate.

Taunton, Mass., Jan. 26.—The plan of consolidating the several street railway companies centering in this city and the lines centering in Boston, is under way. The lines represented have a total capitalization of $37,000,000.

DID A BIG BUSINESS.

Now the Police of New York Would Like to Find W. B. Deming.

New York, Jan. 26.—The Times says: A man calling himself W. B. Deming, with the intention of inducing people to believe that he was William B. Deming, the broker of 52 Exchange place, is reported to be indebted to a number of merchants in this vicinity and elsewhere to the extent of about $50,000. He has not been seen at his office here since the first of the year. Creditors are looking for him and so are the police. Deming started to do business in New York some time ago. On his cards were the words: "W. B. Deming, shipping and commission merchant, 32 Broadway and 69 New street, New York."

Police Captain McClusky says that stenographers were kept busy for weeks writing letters to business firms throughout the country, particularly in the west, to send big shipments of merchandise to various addresses. The merchants, supposing him to be William B. Deming, the broker, who is rated as being worth $500,000, filled the orders without hesitancy.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The abolishment of the state highway commission, the trial by jury of cases of contempt of court and the state to control life and fire insurance and an aldermanic bill for Boston were the matters of great importance considered by the legislature yesterday. The legislature also administered a knockout blow to the gypsy moth.

There were hearings on bills for better life preservers on steamboats, for licensed gasfitters in towns that wish to accept the Boston act governing the matter, for advancing the waterfront line at the navy yard to allow of the proposed new dry dock, for regulation of assessment insurance companies, and for means of destroying an insect pest known as the San Jose scale.

A bill was offered that all persons who do a pawnbroker's business shall have a pawnbroker's license. The fee shall be $200. Interest shall not be over 4 percent a month on $3 or less and not over 1½ percent a month on $25 or more.

Representative Toomey offered a bill to provide that only citizens of the United States shall be employed on city contract work for public works in Boston.

The legislative committee on federal relations has fixed Feb. 21 as a date for a hearing of the various resolutions on the subject of expansion and anti-expansion which have been presented to the general court. All the resolutions, both pro and con, will be heard at the same time.

By resolutions introduced and reported in the house from the committee on federal relations, President McKinley is invited to visit the general court and a committee appointed to extend to him the invitation and the greeting of the legislature.

At the meeting of the executive council Governor Wolcott announced the following appointments: Ellerton P. Whitney of Milton to be a member of the metropolitan park commission, vice T. L. Livermore of Worcester, resigned; A. Vincent Smith, Middleboro, to be assistant medical examiner for the Fourth Plymouth district; William Slattery of Holyoke to be associate justice of the municipal court of Holyoke.

Money Came Too Late.

New York, Jan. 26.—A sick and destitute man, 55 years of age, was taken from an east side tenement house two weeks ago to the department for outdoor poor. He gave the name of Lawrence Schraeder, and he was dying from sheer want of good food. Yesterday a letter addressed to Schraeder was brought to Superintendent Blair of the Institution. Blair opened it, and found that it contained a check for $5000. It had been sent from England, and was Schraeder's long delayed share of his father's estate. Schraeder, however, died on Saturday last. The money arrived just in time to prevent the body from being buried in the potter's field..

Comfort For the Boys.

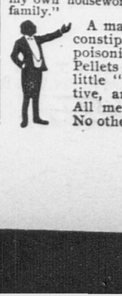
Pinar Del Rio, Jan. 26.—The summer home of the First United States regular infantry will be a massive Spanish barracks, which has been disinfected. Surgeon General Sternberg approves taking the regiment out of the tents when the weather is warm, and a third story will be built to the building so as to accommodate all the regiment. The structure cost $500,000 during the 20 years which elapsed while it was being built.

"Oh Promise Me!"

At some time in her life Cupid pleads in every woman's ear, and when that time comes it is a woman's duty to think twice before she answers. She should think once for herself, and once for the man who has chosen her for his life companion.

If she is suffering from a torturing, dragging weakness or disease so prevalent with her sex, she has no right to answer "Yes" until her health is restored. If she does, she will be wretched and ill herself and her home will be an unhappy one. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific remedy that cures all weakness, disease, disorder and derangement of the delicate and important feminine organs. It is not a "cure-all," but a medicine devised to correct this one class of disorders and no other. It has accomplished its purpose in tens of thousands of cases, as is shown by tens of thousands of testimonials of the grateful patients themselves. It imparts vigor and virility to the entire womanly organism, and is the best of all nerve tonics and restoratives. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It transforms weak, nervous, despondent invalids into healthy, happy women.

"I was so weak I could scarcely walk about the house," writes Mrs. Mattie Scruggs, of Allen's Creek, Amherst Co., Va. "Was reduced to a mere skeleton. I was never free from pain in the back and head and could not sleep at night. I bought three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' After taking these six weeks I felt like a new person: slept well and gained in flesh. I am doing all my own housework and we have nine in the family."



A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All medicine dealers sell them. No other pills are "just as good."

1,000,000 GIVEN AWAY.

By a special and particular arrangement with the manufacturers of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, free trial bottles of this great medicine for the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Constipation will be sent absolutely free, postpaid, to all persons suffering from any of the diseases mentioned above who will send their full name and post office address to the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., providing they mention the Quincy Ledger when they write.

A very simple test to determine whether your Kidneys or Bladder are diseased is to put some of your urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has a sediment or a cloudy, ropy or stringy appearance, if it is pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that you are in a dangerous condition. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedily cures such serious symptoms as a pain in the back, inability to hold urine, a burning scalding pain in passing it. Frequent desire to urinate especially at night, the staining of linen by your urine and all unpleasant and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

By a searching investigation it was found that over 91 per cent. of the people who sent for a sample bottle were so much benefited by its use that they purchased a large size bottle of their druggist, which in most cases cured them, while in some rare instances it took as many as two or even three bottles to effect a permanent cure.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per large bottle, or six bottles for $5.00.

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. EAGAN ON THE STAND.

Testifies as to Miles' Charges and Their Effect Upon Him.

Robbed Him of His Character After Long Service.

Soldier's Honor Cannot Be Impugned Any More Than Woman's Virtue.

Washington, Jan. 27.—When the Eagan court-martial reassembled yesterday, Judge Advocate Davis stated that he wished to submit formally the testimony of General Miles as an exhibit in this trial, and with this statement, he said, the prosecution rests its case. Mr. Worthington, counsel for General Eagan, read several exhibits in connection with the testimony read at Wednesday's session of the court.

The feature of the day's proceedings was the testimony, dramatic in many parts, of Commissary General Eagan himself. Not more than 15 or 20 people outside of the court, and a dozen or so newspaper correspondents, were admitted to the trial room. Several witnesses had preceded the chief figure in the trial.

His call to the stand was something of a surprise, as it had been thought that if he testified at all it would be later. When his name was called, he rose, and, standing before the witness chair, raised his right hand, took the oath administered by the judge advocate, and at first related his army career. As he proceeded in his testimony, it became apparent that the line of defense would be justification and extreme provocation, finally bringing on a serious nervous condition, which rendered the witness unfit for business and made him, to a degree, irresponsible for his acts. It was also made evident that the president's order of immunity would be relied on as applicable to General Eagan's testimony before the war investigating commission, and that therefore it would be claimed that the court-martial had no proper jurisdiction in the case.

When General Eagan began the story of General Miles' aspersions on him, he raised his voice somewhat, and spoke with great earnestness, though with perfect enunciation. In speaking of the criticisms of the newspapers, which he said had been called forth by General Miles' testimony, his manner was intensely dramatic and impressive. His eyes filled with tears, and his voice trembled, and the impression he left with many was decidedly favorable.

After the court adjourned, several members shook his hand, and, in a friendly way, asked after his health.

The following is a report of the more important parts of General Eagan's testimony:

Q—You took some action, did you not with relation to an article which appeared in the newspapers?

A—When I saw the alleged interview with General Miles in the New York Journal it drove me nearly crazy, because it emphasized a thing that affected me most; it emphasized a pretense of experiment; it emphasized to my mind that I was willing and had been guilty of feeding poisonous food to soldiers for gain. I addressed a letter to the adjutant general and asked that action be taken, believing at that time that the immunity granted by the president did not extend outside of the courtroom. I was not astonished that General Miles should be covered by the immunity granted by the president, but I did not believe it extended to his going into newspapers in this alleged interview, and so I sought to ascertain by addressing a letter to him through the adjutant general, and there was returned to me what I considered to be an evasive answer.

Q—Will you state to the court what impression the testimony of General Miles before the commission made upon you as to what he meant by the statements he made, and especially by his words, "pretense of experiment?"

A—The effect on me was that he had taken away from me my character, the honorable position that I had obtained after all these years of service. He stated that I was corrupt. I could not prefer charges against him. I could not go into any court, civil or military, and for a time I felt it better to be dead and in the gutter than to have such an accusation made. When the press clippings came to me—north, south, east and west—stating they believed General Miles, some of them saying he had made out a case and some of the editorials demanding my dismissal and disgrace for it, I felt that I must do something. I did not know what. I put the utmost restraint upon myself and I finally gave a dignified statement to the press to the effect that the court was the place to discuss this, that it was unmilitary and improper to discuss it in the press. The clippings that came to me showed that the press sneered at it, and disbelieved it. I realized then that I was convicted and condemned for wholesale poisoning or attempting to poison the army, in so far as food was concerned that was entrusted to my care; that my whole life, myself and my family, were disgraced, and that it called for something. The honor of a soldier cannot be impugned any more than the virtue of a woman. I held myself in all I could. I did not go in the clubs; I did not go in the streets. I felt that in that chair, on the identical spot where the false charges were made, was the place for me to hurl it back in such language that the American people would believe me. I did not stop to think of any disrespect to any officer. It did not occur to me in that way at all. For the first time in my life I had not been able to sleep. I could not eat. It was all I could do in my office to prevent myself from going and doing what, when I was a boy, men did and were considered right in doing; but I thought that when I went there before the commission and before the country I should answer in some such way that whoever heard it, even in the utmost corner of the earth, would know that I was an honest man.

Q—I think your answer has covered the question. What I am particular about is what you understood to be meant by the words "pretense of experiment?"

A—That I had furnished such meat not as an experiment, but with the pretense of an experiment; that I had used it to cover corruption, and had fed it to the soldiers; that it had made them sick, as General Miles said in his alleged statement; that the people believed I had poisoned them and had furnished them with improper food under a pretense of experiment, when in truth and in fact, it was no experiment, still less a pretense of experiment. It was part of the regular army ration.

Q—You will pardon me for asking a question as to whether or not during the time you administered the office of commissary general you accepted any compensation at any time from any different contractors?

A—On my honor and belief, before my God, not the color of 1 cent has ever touched me, nor, so far as I know, any officer of the department. I have not today enough money to pay you your fee.

Being asked if he desired to say anything to the court as to the state of his mind on the day he read his statement, General Eagan said:

I went into the court feeling as I had been feeling for days; that I had been charged as I say; that I had put out a dignified statement to the press and it was not believed; that I had to say something and I had nowhere else to say it; that I had to say something in some such way that the press and the people would know that I was an honest man. That is what actuated me, and the charges were so foul that I was rent in pieces. I felt burning up inside all the time. Every day that the clippings came to me it was a reiteration of the same thing. Each day would bring clippings showing that I was still further condemned.

Q—On what did you feel to be the state of the public mind in regard to your being an honest or corrupt man?

A—I believed the press and the public mind to be that I was a wholesale murderer for the gain. That was what possessed my mind.

Q—When you were giving your testimony before the commission, will you state to the court whether or not there was any interruption by any member or any suggestion by any member of the court or any person present that it was improper?

A—No, sir. There was no interruption. There was no action indicating that anybody thought it was improper. I was absorbed in vindicating myself, to have the honor of all vindicated. I was wholly oblivious of anything else.

Q—Was there anything else that took place there that gave you a hint or a suggestion, while you were reading that paper, that there was anything improper?

A—I had nothing whatever to indicate to me but what each and every member of the commission thought that I was right. I knew in my heart that every member of the commission ought to know, from examinations of 500 witnesses in all the camps, that I was an honest man, and that I had been goaded and driven to death, and especially by the statements of the press regarding the statements of General Miles.

Held For Grand Jury.

Boston, Jan. 27.—Clifford A. Lamont, who was given a trial on the charge of threatening a wealthy lady named Aspinwall, and who put up the defense that he thought Mrs. Aspinwall was his mother, as she had supported him all his life and provided for him, was yesterday held in $500 to keep the peace for one month. Mrs. Aspinwall's relations to the man were not ascertained. On a more serious charge, involving his relations with a young woman, he was held in $800 for the grand jury.

BELMONT WON'T TALK.

High Life Scandal Has Given His Political Ambitions a Hard Knock.

Sloane Determined to Gain Custody of Daughters.

If His Wife Won't Give Them Up She Will Have to Fight.

New York, Jan. 27.—Perry Belmont, about whom so much has been said in connection with the marital trouble of the Sloanes, and whose name appears in the affidavit Mr. Sloane has prepared to file in his petition for the custody of his children, declines absolutely to say a word on the subject. He will not be seen by reporters.

Every effort has been made by the friends of Mrs. Sloane to induce Mr. Sloane to drop his proposed case, or at least leave the name of "the one particular friend" out of it, but he is understood to have declared that he will do so on condition that he be given the custody of the little girls. If she will not give them up voluntarily she will have to fight, and if he has to fight he does not care whom he hurts so long as it is necessary to attain his desired end.

PERRY BELMONT.

It was to protect Belmont that the lawyers of the warring family, as well as his legal representative, held a conference on Tuesday night, which lasted till after midnight, but which left matters in a worse shape than when it began.

The Sloane case, now that it has become public property to such a great extent, strikes Belmont a rather hard blow, as far as his political ambitions are concerned. He would like, it is said, to receive the Democratic nomination for the vice presidency in 1900, but with the reputation as a home-breaker that this case has given him—rightly or not—it is patent that his presence on a ticket would put a very great load about the neck of the man who happened to be in first place, and his chance of getting the honor, always remote, becomes more of an improbability than ever.

MRS. HENRY T. SLOANE.

Incidentally, his sister-in-law, who was Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and her husband, Oliver H. P. Belmont, are pleased over his troubles. Perry was very much opposed to their wedding, and since it took place has not been on speaking terms with this brother. Oliver, too, has political aspirations, and though a very wealthy man and identified with one of the greatest banking houses in the country, would like to receive the place his brother has set longing eyes upon, even though the nomination would be on a free silver platform.

A Serious Blunder.

New York, Jan. 27.—While at work yesterday in one of the boilers of the cruiser New York, which is in dry dock at the navy yard here, six men were badly scalded through the unexpected turning on of steam into the boiler. One of the men is perhaps fatally injured, while the others are all expected to recover. It is not yet known how the steam came to be turned on into the boiler which the men were cleaning. It was stated, however, that some unauthorized person was tampering with the valve. The men were rescued with difficulty. There were eight men in the boiler. Two escaped without injury.

How should the new sewer debt be apportioned? There is before the City Council an order appropriating an additional $75,000 for sewer extensions, which as drafted provides that three notes of $1,000 each shall mature in 1900 and three of a like amount in each of the succeeding twenty-four years.

The situation is different with the sewer debt than the muncipal debt, inasmuch as the abutters are to pay one-half the cost within ten years. The statement of City Auditor Hall, December 1, 1898, showed a total sewer debt of $319,500, which is so apportioned that $85,000 matures within ten years.

The approximate cost of the lateral sewer, including the proportionate part of the cost of force mains, pumping station, main sewers, etc. has been roughly estimated by the Sewer Commissioners at $10,000 to $11,000 per mile. This would mean an assessment of $5,000 or more per mile.

There are already constructed 15.78 miles of sewer ready to enter. Assessments on this number of miles would give the city an income of upwards of $80,000 within ten years and probably $40,000 in one year. With an appropriation of $75,000 this year, seven to ten miles more will be added, which would give the city an income of upwards of $35,000 more within ten years. And annual appropriations for extension will cause rapid increase in the income.

Oh, that's all right, says one; plenty of use can be found for any surplus. But this exigency has been very wisely provided for in the Sewer Act of 1895. It provides, in Section 13, that the receipts of the Sewer department shall be applied as follows, in the order named:

1—Maintenance and operation of system of sewers.
2—Interest on sewer debt.
3—To extinguish maturing sewer debt.
4—Surplus to be applied only for reduction of the principal of the sewer debt.

The Sewer Commissioners in their annual report recommend an appropriation of $4,000 in 1899 for maintenance. The interest on $325,000, the amount of the sewer bonds, at four per cent. is $14,000, and $75,000 additional bonds would increase the interest $1,500 (six months). The maturing debt is $8,000 less premiums on the sale of bonds, which premium the City Treasurer's report shows to amount now to $5,500 and which will be increased when the $75,000 loan is placed.

The maintenance, interest and maturing debt will not require therefore much more than $20,000 this year, yet the income from assessments as figured above may amount to $40,000. The loans should be so apportioned that the income from assessments can be applied forthwith to extinguishing the debt.

The one immediate and pressing duty before congress, as the average citizen sees it, is to ratify the treaty of Paris. Other considerations can wait, this alone is imperative and vital and demands instant attention. The commissioners after weeks of incessant labor, overcoming all difficulties, concluded a treaty which was welcomed by the whole country with a sigh of relief and which was eminently satisfactory to the American people. Now, the country does not want that treaty amended. It does not desire that it shall be cut up and patched over by any political sewing circle, either in Congress or elsewhere. Its demand is that it should be ratified and ratified at once. It is no time to play the game of politics, when the lives of our soldiers are imperiled, when Dewey and Otis are threatened, and when the hands of the President are tied by delay and inaction. The treaty has the right of way, and in the interest of the county, filibusters and obstructionists should be passed to the rear, with the same patriotic spirit which marked the outburst of the war, the senate should rise above party ends and self-seeking purposes and set its stamp of approval upon this measure which the real sentiment of the country heartily approves. Action, immediate action, gentlemen of the senate, is what we want.

THE WATER BOARD.

Meeting of the Mayor and Water Commissioners.

The Water Commissioners have as yet taken no action in regard to the order of Mayor Keith abolishing the board of Water Commissioners.

At the meeting of the Commissioners held on Thursday evening, Mayor Keith was present, and the matter was discussed informally. The Mayor informed the Commissioners that his action was taken in the interest of economy, and that he did not desire to have the business turned over to the Commissioner of Public Works until Monday, Feb. 6.

The question as to whether the Mayor has a right to abolish the Water Commission is still being discussed among city officials of the past and present. In this connection there is another fact which has not been brought out, and which adds further to the complication. That is that the act of 1891 was not accepted by the city until Dec. 5, 1893, a year after the act of 1892, and the only reason it was accepted then was to secure the Blue Hill supply which was in danger of being seized by other towns.

A Sermon to Scotchmen.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian church, on Water street, Rev. Robert Westly Peach, has invited Clan McGregor, O. S.C., also the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, to attend divine worship in that church on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, when the subject of the discourse will be "Some Aspects of Brotherhood — with Illustrations from the Poems of Burns." The invitation to the clan has been accepted, that to the Loyal Ladies was not sent in time to be acted upon, owing to the supposition that the storm of Tuesday evening would prevent the holding of their meeting, it not being known outside that there was to be an entertainment. On this account, notice of the invitation is spread through the columns of the press. The public in general is also invited.

Reception to H. H. Faxon.

The Wollaston Congregational society gave a reception Thursday evening to Mr. Henry H. Faxon, which was a very pleasant and social occasion. Mr. Faxon was assisted in receiving by Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Crowell. Remarks were made by Rev. Edward Norton and Mr. Faxon, and there was vocal and instrumental music. Light refreshments were served.

A SOCIAL SOCIAL.

A Floral Romance One of the Features of Programme.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Bethany church tendered a reception in the chapel Thursday evening to all the church people. It was very largely attended, and a very social gathering.

An excellent entertainment with plenty of talent was first on the programme. It included solos by Master Wendall Luce, acompanied by Miss Miller; readings by Miss Adelaide Barrett Jump, of the Emerson College of Oratory; cornet solos by Charles Scammell; and musical numbers by Mr. Fred H. Lord and two of his pupils on banjo, mandolin and guitar, in solos, duets and trios. All the artists were popular with the audience, and one encore was not enough; in fact they were unable to satisfy the demand. Miss Jump was particularly good, while Mr. Lord produced upon the banjo classical music which many did not think was in the instrument. Masters Muer and Lord, his pupils, showed marked proficiency although they have taken but few lessons.

"A Floral Romance" was next on the programme. Sheets containing numbered questions were distributed to each and all, and their answers without numbers were pinned upon different people in the room. There were fifty questions and there was a contest to see who could go about and obtain the most answers, all of which were flowers. A few of the sample questions:

4—Who came to the rescue?
5—How did he come?
6—What was his reward?
8—What was his object in matrimony?
14—How did he offer himself?
17—To whom did she refer him?
20—By whom were they married.

While the young people were at work on these the social committee composed of Miss Ethel Jameson, chairman, Miss Laura Tupper, Miss Sadie Parker, Miss Clara Merrill, Miss Nellie Bradbury, Miss Maud Macfarlane, Miss Hattie Sargent, Henry Hayward, Charles Hardwick, George Taylor, Charles Scammell and Edward McVane, served cocoa and cake, and made everybody at home. The answers to the above questions were:

4—Sweet William.
5—With a rush.
6—The lady's delight.
8—He wished to marigold.
14—Aster.
17—Poppy.
20—Jack in the pulpit.

It was pronounced by all a social social and a good time.

Unfair Treatment.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

If the management of the Quincy & Boston do not intend to run cars through the Park and Downs during the winter months why don't they inform the public to that effect, instead of resorting to dilatory tactics which do not in the least blind the people as to the real intent of the company? There is no good reason why cars should not be run over this route during the greater part of the winter as well as the summer months. As a matter of fact, most of the passengers from between Elm avenue and Billings road live in the Park and Downs section and are compelled to walk to Hancock street in order to take a car.

The company should be compelled to run cars on this line with some degree of regularity or the tracks should come up. We are in hopes something will be done in this matter, and that hereafter this section may be accorded the service which it is entitled to receive.

"Nothing Too Good."

There are rumors about City Hall of a movement, on the part of the present city officials who are to lose their political heads the first Monday in February, to hold a reunion that evening, or in the near future, at one of the Boston hotels. It would naturally be supposed that on an occasion of this kind crow would form the principal item on the menu, but on the contrary it will not, for nothing is said to be too good for them. Plans for the reunions have not been fully completed as yet, but it is understood that a meeting will be held at an early date, and a committee appointed to make necessary arrangements.

Favor Special Act.

The joint committees of the City Council on Finance and Streets held a meeting Thursday evening to consider the order seeking authority of the Legislature to borrow $150,000 for street improvements. It is understood that all of the members of the two committees were present and the matter was thoroughly discussed. It is understood, also, that with one exception the joint committee were unanimous in favor of reporting an order to petition the legislature.

COMFORTABLE HOME.

Design For a Dwelling to Cost About $4,500 to Erect.

[Copyright, 1899, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

It is an easy matter for a man with plenty of cash to buy a large house and get what he needs, but it is the man with very little money, puffed up with notions of his own importance, financially, mentally and otherwise, who has the most dangerous rocks and shoals threatening him as a buyer.

In the first place, this class of buyers are the most numerous, and, in the second place, they have been specially catered to by the many speculative building companies and loan associations, which have all had them in tow and have been putting up hundreds of houses with a view to shoving them off on unsuspecting buyers, and today there are thousands of houses within a radius of 20 miles of New York city of this class awaiting buyers.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

some companies having over 100 complete and ready for use. The sellers are persistent, and when they do get hold of a buyer with a few hundreds of dollars their agent stays by him till he lands him in the net and secures his cash. The arts and wiles resorted to by these concerns would fill a book, and the history of some of them would make mighty interesting reading.

A man with $500 in cash and an income of $1,500 a year cannot afford to go into deeper water than his income will allow. Even the most prosperous man cannot afford to pay more rent than 25 per cent of his income, and 20 per cent ought to be the limit. So that he who buys a new house at, say, $5,500, paying $500 on account and agreeing to pay $55 per month on the balance, or $11 per month on each $1,000, is loading himself with a vengeance, as he must pay taxes, insurance, assessments, water rates, gas bills, repairs and what not. The company tells him he will own the house in so many years. Sometimes he will, and often he will not, as there is no guarantee as to time on the part of the company, this being the dark end of the transaction, made light of. It is only when a member, at the end of three years or so, tries to withdraw that he finds how much he has paid on account.

I know of one case where at the end of three years the company credited the grand sum of $1.50, or 50 cents a year, on a $5,000 loan, paid at $55 a month, and the member was rather surprised to find he had paid over 13½ per cent for his money for the three years' use of it, and that poor fellow is still in the toils. He could not get out, as he could not borrow $5,000 anywhere else. And there are lots of others in the same boat. Depend upon it, if you want a house it is best to go to some legitimate architect, tell him your story and let him advise you and keep you within your means. Pay no more interest than you would rent, and you are safe.

Such a house as this design shows can be constructed for about $4,500, and it is just such a property as could be bought for $7,500, yet it is possible for a shrewd business man to get it for about $5,500, as a lot can be bought to build on readily and easily when the plans are shown. The new year is a good time to start aright. Let every man do his own thinking and build to save money for himself. And if these few remarks help him they will not have been written in vain. The design tells its own story and is just the kind of plan to help the thinker along to the right result.

Walnut Stain.

Here is a homemade formula for a reddish walnut stain said by those who have used it to be very good: One quart boiled linseed oil, five ounces burnt umber, a pinch of lampblack, three ounces japanning. To make darker add more burnt umber and a bit more lampblack. Use a week later.—Exchange.

Fabulous Piano Profits

There is satisfaction in owning a piano, but the satisfaction is two-fold, when you know you didn't pay a fabulous profit to the man you bought it from. People do pay too much for pianos, pay a great deal more than they are worth. Ask them why and everyone will tell the same old story, "Supposed the price was right and as low as it could be bought." Now here's the difference, we are doing a splendid piano business, saving our customers hundreds of dollars on pianos, selling a first-class new piano for $185.00, worth at least $350.00.

No matter what kind of a piano you want, come here; buy it through us and save a small barrel of money.

IT WAS A SERENADE.

Given the Popular President of the Sunshine Club.

The Sunshine Club of Paradise Alley, made its first public appearance Thursday evening. Previous to that time the knowledge of the existence of such a club was limited, for the reason that it had not reached that stage when it could hire rooms and have its name appear in the directory among the social organization of the city.

It can be classed in the same school with the "Lazy Men's club" and kindred organizations. The particular objects of the club are not known, other than the principal one which is that the members shall not marry.

Thursday evening the club president violated this iron-clad rule and took unto himself a wife, and for this the club determined to give him a serenade and there was a "Hot time in the old town,"

One of Gallagher's two-horse teams was secured, and the members, some fifteen in number, each armed with a horn, got aboard. Some of the horns were in tune and more were not, but it is safe to say that no two were in the same key, and when all hands let their wind blow through them at one and the same time the noise can better be imagined than described.

It was friend Bob's plan to leave the home of the bride shortly before 10 o'clock and drive to Braintree and take the train. When the happy pair attempted to leave the house, however, they found the hack surrounded, and the walk leading to the house covered with red fire which illuminated the sky for miles.

In the street beside the hack was the club in its team ready to escort their president to the train. Over the team a large transparency reading "Sunshine club."

The first thing then, was a solo by Al. Bisson, with chorus by the club, entitled "We'll miss you darling when you are gone." It was truly heart-rending to hear that solo, and there were few within the sound of his voice who did not shed copious tears of joy when he was through.

Next came a solo by Bowditch, the only Galen Vinton, whose clear tenor voice pierced the cool night air like a mausser bullet.

Then there was more chorus singing and sounds that resembled a broadside discharge of one of Uncle Sam's man-of-war. This was afterward discovered to have been a blast in unison from the horns.

Time, however, was flying rapidly, and with difficulty the bridal party entered the hack, while the vice president of the club mounted the box to pilot the driver. The trip from Edwards street to City Square was slow, and when The Greenleaf was reached it was found that not sufficient time remained to catch the train at Braintree and the horses were turned toward Wollaston. The animals who drew the team containing the club were, however, by this time nearly exhausted, and with a parting cheer and another broadside from the horns, the bridal party drew away and were soon lost in the distance.

Share the Blessing.

Editor of Quincy Daily Ledger:

In reply to your corresondent citizen, who is surprised at the silence of the pulpit on the subject of "Territorial Expansion."

I should like to express myself as very much surprised at this time of journalistic enterprise and expansion, when the expression of the pulpit is so fully aired in the columns of our daily papers, that he should be so poorly informed as to the part the pulpit is taking on this subject.

It would not have required very close observation to have found that the church was being very much criticised for the very decided stand that has been taken by many of the clergy in favor of expansion.

He says "they (the church) hesitate to enter this field which has been opened." Not so; church societies are now raising funds and are otherwise preparing to enter the field, whether the American flag remains there or not. But Citizen refers especially to the church "that believes in the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of man," that is very vague as I understand that is the belief of most all religious bodies, probably he means all, but, for his saying "that a nation's religion is the foundation of the state," I should have put citizen down as an unbeliever. Otherwise I endorse his letter.

It is a great opportunity that has been opened for this country to spread the civilization we enjoy, whatever pleasure we have in this world we enjoy it better when we share it with others, and I am glad that is the stand the church is taking. Expansionist.

—In the days of Queen Elizabeth it was customary to strew green rushes on the uncarpeted floor of the actors' retiring room in the theatres, hence the term green room."

MILTON.

Mr. N. C. Buck, one of East Miltons well known citizens, died Monday after a brief illness. Mr. Buck sustained a shock of paralysis last summer, from which he never fully recovered, and recently when taken with the grip his weakened system could not withstand the strain. Mr. Buck was for years a familiar character about Milton and adjoining towns, through which he travelled buying junk and selling tin ware, etc. He has not, however, been actively engaged in business for some time. He was 74 years of age and leaves a widow and three daughters. His funeral took place Thursday afternoon from his late residence on Adams street and was very largely attended. Services were conducted by Rev. Theodore I. Reese of the Episcopal Mission church. The burial was at Milton cemetery.

Prof. Paul Hanus gave an address on "The modern school and the community on Thursday evening in the course of lectures on education at the High School assembly hall.

The alarm from Box 172 at 9 o'clock Sunday night was for a fire in the Oakland club building at Mattapan, caused by the overturning of a lamp. But little damage was done.

Mr. John Heuss and children, who have been sick with pneumonia and grip, are reported as better.

A social under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E., was held Friday evening at the home of Miss Frye.

A swell dance is on the programme to be held in Ellsworth hall early in February.

The Milton slander case of Nevons vs. Holmes was taken from the jury Thursday and the Norfolk superior court has adjourned sine die.

THIEVING BEES.

Mysterious Robberies In a Candy Factory at Last Cleared Up.

Charles Holt, a Cascade farmer, living ten miles east of Grand Rapids, recently solved what to him has been a mystery for four years. For this period of years in midsummer his bees would suddenly disappear, and after an absence of ten days or two weeks would as suddenly return. After these excursions the bees seemed especially productive of honey, but the honey was not of the usual quality, and last summer it was so strongly flavored with peppermint it could have been used for a colic remedy.

A few days ago Mr. Holt was relating his peculiar experience with his bees to Benjamin Putnam of the Putnam Candy company, and then Mr. Putnam related an experience he had with bees covering exactly the same period of time. For four summers the candy factory has for two weeks in August fairly swarmed with bees. Where they came from could not be discovered, but they were so numerous they practically forced a suspension of business in some of the manufacturing departments. They would disappear as suddenly as they came. Mr. Holt is confident that the bees Mr. Putnam told about were his bees, and that some of the honey they produced was so strongly flavored with peppermint convinces him of it. Next summer he will watch his hives closely and follow the bees when they start on their vacation.—Grand Rapids Cor. Detroit Journal.

HIGH TRAVELING PRICES.

Water Twenty Cents a Glass and Other Things In Proportion.

Passengers who have occasion to go to and from Hongkong and Manila are loud in their complaint about the exorbitant charges for the 60 hours' run and the scandalous treatment on board the steamers. In one German steamer, after charging $125 passage on deck, because cabins were not available, they had to pay 20 cents per glass for water. The regular lines have raised their fares to $75, but take such a quantity of passengers in excess of the accommodation that first class passengers are obliged to pay an extra $30 for one of the officers' cabins or else go down into the hold, where canvas screens have been erected to give the place an appearance of a cabin. Servants are charged $20, children under 12 years $40.

A family who went from Singapore to Hongkong by one of the mail lines paid in all $900 for their passage. The same family from Hongkong to Manila paid $1,215, with cabins for the ladies and children only! Passengers bound from Hongkong for Manila would do well to have a proper understanding with the Hongkong agents before embarking, or they may become victims of these agents' informality.—Hongkong Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Two States Man.

The Hon. John J. Upchurch lives on the boundary line between Florida and Georgia. He is a wealthy mill man, and so popular on both sides of the line that he alternates his public services as a legislator between the two states. He represents Charlton county, Ga., in the lower house of the legislature at the present session. He was a member of the Florida senate at that body's last session. Before that he was sent to the lower house of the Georgia assembly, and further back was in the Florida house and Georgia senate in alternate sessions.—Florida Times-Union and Citizen.

Equal to the Occasion.

Michelot, the famous comedian, suffered a great deal from the spite of his colleagues, and found it necessary to be on the alert at every performance. On a certain occasion he had to scold a servant in one of Moliere's plays, when the "claque," which had been bribed by his rivals, began to hiss.

Michelot was by no means disconcerted. Giving the servant a couple of blows on the ear not included in the part, he extemporized as follows:

"You vile scamp of a varlet, there is nothing you think of! There you stand quietly listening to the vermin squeaking in the house and never trouble yourself to get the rat poison!"

The effect of this sally was striking. The audience broke out in loud applause and no subsequent attempt was made to hiss the actor.

"Drunk With Thy Beauty."

Charles Dickens once had an argument with a friend about Byron's expression, "Drunk with thy beauty," to which he made great objection. During the discussion the novelist gazed as if enraptured at his host's fair haired daughter, who was in the room. At last he sprang to his feet, struck a dramatic attitude, clasped his heart with his hands and stalked to the window, where he wrote on the white woodwork:

O maiden of the amber dropping hair,
Would I, Byronically, thy praise might utter!
Drunk with thy beauty, would that I might dare
To breathe out pæans, borne upon a shutter!

Seeks Connubial Bliss.

When a man has been a helpless invalid for 12 years and suddenly announces that he is no longer ill and is now a candidate for matrimony there can be no better evidence of his perfect restoration to health. This is what that scientific wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in health but fully restored, all made over new again, they claim and experience the vigor, activity, hopes and ambitions of youth once more. This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give herewith. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last season was spent in Florada. Employed many local physicians during this time and used socalled sarsaparillas but found no permanent relief till I tried Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 28 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.

Sincerely yours,

PERISHED IN FLAMES,

Probable Fate of Five Members of the Hedison Family of Malden,

Malden, Mass., Jan. 27.—A two-story house at 31 Pearl street, which had been occupied by Arthur Hedison and family, either up till last night or until quite recently, was completely burned to the ground shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. A man driving into the city from Boston saw the reflection of the fire, and was attracted to the spot by screaming. At the time the house was all ablaze, but he could not tell who had been crying for help. The firemen were called, but the fire had the house too securely in its grasp, and an hour later only a heap of ruins marked the spot. Some mystery clings to the ruins at this hour. A neighbor says the family were in the house during the afternoon, and were living there. Another neighbor reported that the family had moved away. Whether the Hedison family have lost their lives in the fire is yet unknown. If they were in the house, their remains will, with difficulty, be found, as nearly all the embers have fallen through into the cellar. The police are endeavoring to learn something definite in regard to the Hedison family, which is believed to include Mr. and Mrs. Hedison and three children.

Boston, Jan. 27.—The Globe says: Shortly before 4 o'clock Hederson and the children were located at 319 Medford street, Malden, where they had gone early in the evening to spend the night. Mrs. Hederson, it was ascertained, was visiting on Block island.

The inquiries made by the police brought out several suspicious circumstances, and it is probable that the fire marshal will be notified of the affair.

Another Letter.

Cincinnati, Jan. 27.—The Von Mohl company, whose receipt of an order from H. Cornish for a sample box of their medicine is thought to afford some clue to the poisoner of Mrs. Kate Adams, have searched their files with the result of finding another letter ordering a sample. This one is dated May 31, 1898, and is signed H. C. Barnet, 251 West Forty-second street, New York. This letter has also been forwarded to the police of New York. The secretary of the Von Mohl company says the handwriting upon the Cornish letter and the Barnet letter bear a strong resemblance.

Chinaman's Defense

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 27.—One of the five Chinamen recently arrested in this city charged with being illegally in this country was arraigned before United States Commissioner Rice yesterday. The prosecution presented evidence to show the defendant had no certificate of residence. The defense claimed the law could not be applied in this case, because the defendant was a merchant. It was also claimed in defense that it had not been shown that the defendant was a Chinaman. Decision was reserved.

A Rubber Combine.

Trenton, Jan. 27.—Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the Rubber Goods Manufacturing company, with an authorized capital stock of $50,000,000, one-half of which is to be preferred and the other half common stock. The preferred stock is to bear 7 percent cumulative dividends. The company is empowered to manufacture and deal in all goods of which india rubber, gutta percha, balata, or other substitutes form a component part.

Situation Unchanged.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 27.—There is no change in the labor difficulties, and both sides express themselves as satisfied with the situation. The manufacturers say that their position is unchanged, and that they cannot see prospects of a settlement. About 200 sympathizers of the strikers gathered in front of the factories last night, but there were no demonstrations, the state police being on hand.

Back to Navy Yard,

Boston, Jan. 27.—Commander John F. Merry, U. S. N., of Somerville, will return to duty at the Charlestown navy yard. Commander Merry, who went out from Charlestown in command of the gunboat Machias, returned here for medical treatment late in the summer, after some most exciting skirmishes and experiences in Cuban waters.

Killed by Bad Water,

Odessa, Jan. 27.—According to a dispatch received here from Port Arthur, the Russian post in the Liau-Tong peninsula of China, bad water is causing terrible mortality among the Russian troops. Two hundred and fifteen died during the months of November and December, and the average mortality is now four deaths daily.

Mrs. Herrmann's Generosity.

New York, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Esther Herrman, who is well known for her gifts in aid of college and scientific work, has made a gift of $10,000 to the building fund of the scientific alliance of this city. She was one of the first to contribute money to Barnard college and gave $10,000 to the Hebrew technical schools.

Demand For Print Cloths.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 27.—A boom in print cloths is coming, the most sanguine mill men here believe, basing their opinions on the sales of 350,000 pieces at 2¾ cents this week, and that the sale at this figure will stop. Most of the mills are sold ahead, while the market is clear of spots. The price is likely to be 2½ cents.

Calumet's Worst Blizzard.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 27.—The worst blizzard this city has ever seen is now in progress here. Business generally is suspended, and no trains are running. Three men are reported missing. At Escanaba the blizzard has continued since Wednesday noon. Trains are late and business is at a standstill.

His Neck Broken.

Naugutuck, Conn., Jan. 27.—Frederick Lester, aged 38, foreman in the reclaiming plant of the United States Rubber company, was caught in a "drag" yesterday afternoon and had his neck broken. He leaves a widow and three children. The accident was due, it is thought, to his own carelessness.

Corner on Pipe Iron.

New York, Jan. 27.—The Mail and Express says that a new trust has just been formed taking in all the leading manufacturers of pipe iron. Franklin B. Locke of Buffalo is a leading organizer of the new company, which will be authorized to issue $30,000,000 worth of stock.

A LACK OF CONFIDENCE

Shown by President In Dealing With Senate on Treaty Question.

Claim Put Forth by Opponents of Ratification.

Supporters Say His Action Is For the Best Interests of the Public.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The executive session of the senate yesterday was consumed in discussion of the failure of the president so far to send the senate the documents in his possession and on file at the state department bearing on the Paris conference.

Senator Gorman raised the point as soon as the doors were closed that the resolution had been adopted several days since, and addressed the senate at some length on the failure of the president to respond to the senate's request for information.

SENATOR A. P. GORMAN.

Senator Gorman's attack was followed by an attack by Senators Vest and Hoar, and they were replied to by Senators Spooner and Platt (Conn.). The five senators engaged in a running debate, the opponents of the treaty contending that the senate was entitled, as a part of the treaty making power, to all the facts bearing upon the case, and the supporters of the document holding that the president could withhold any papers which he did not consider in the interest of the general welfare to give out.

Senator Spooner cited the precedents to show that the president could hold information of this character at his pleasure, and that such a course frequently had been followed in cases in which the president deemed it unwise to communicate facts bearing upon international complications, when to do so might prejudice the country's best interests and promote the very evils which it was sought to ameliorate. The point was also made that the president might feel more free to communicate with the senate, if he could be sure of privacy in doing so.

No one professed to speak by authority, and all of the senators who were heard in support of the president's course expressed confidence that the president's action, whatever it might be, would be for the best interests of the public.

Replying to this latter point, Senator Hoar said that no one could excel him in admiration for the personal qualifications of the president, or in confidence in his patriotism. At the same time, he contended for his original proposition that the senate was entitled to the president's full confidence in passing upon a question of so much importance as the acquisition of territory thousands of miles from our own shores, and with millions of people totally unlike our own population. He thought there must be some reason for putting the Philippines on a footing so different from the footing on which Cuba had been placed in the treaty.

The opinion is generally expressed that the time allowed for debate of the treaty in executive session will not be, by any means, consumed, as very few senators on either side desire to make speeches behind closed doors.

The friends of the treaty profess increasing confidence that it will be ratified, but there is some talk of adopting a negative resolution to the effect that the treaty does not bind the United States to the adoption of a colonial policy.

As the senate seemingly was about to conclude consideration of the pension bill, late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Butler (Pop., N. C.) offered his amendment, announced some time ago, providing for the pensioning of ex-Confederate soldiers. Upon this he took the floor and delivered a speech, which, as he proceeded, developed into a most unexpected utterance.

While his colleagues on both sides of the chamber listened with interest, Mr. Butler defended the position taken by the south during the great civil conflict of a third of a century ago. He declared that the south was right, and that history would so record; and that every shot fired by a southern soldier was fired in defense of the rights of his state conferred by the constitution, in self-defense of his home and fireside. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Butler withdrew his amendment.

Mr. Bate (Dem., Tenn.), himself a distinguished Confederate officer, declared that, while the south believed it was right, the occasion was not opportune for the proposition which Mr. Butler had made, and that the southern soldiers as a body did not desire pensions from the general government, and he expressed his satisfaction that Mr. Butler had withdrawn his amendment.

Earlier in the session, Mr. Mallory (Dem., Fla.) delivered a constitutional argument in support of the Vest resolution.

For Congress to Decide.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The third day of the debate upon the bill for the reorganization and increase of the regular army passed without notable incidents. Its feature was an hour speech by Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, whose utterances, rightly or wrongly, are frequently supposed to reflect the views of the president. Mr. Grosvenor declared most emphatically that the present situation in the Philippines was due to the open opposition in this country to the ratification of the peace treaty. He announced that the future of the islands was a matter for congress to decide, and that for the president to announce a policy would be for him to usurp the authority of congress.

The friends of the bill continue to express great confidence in the passage of the bill, but they admit that some important modifications may be made. The advocates of a general staff detailed from the line may be successful and the size of the infantry companies reduced.

Otis' Message.

Washington, Jan. 27.—General Otis cabled the war department yesterday from Manila as follows:

"The transport Zealandia left yesterday for San Francisco with 124 officers and enlisted men."

The soldiers on the Zealandia are said at the war department to be convalescents. The dispatch was regarded as satisfactory, because General Otis made no mention of any change in the conditions at Manila, such as he would be sure to do had there been any insurgent outbreak.

Capitol Gleanings.

The joint high commission held a session yesterday, and adjourned until next Tuesday. The sub-committees on reciprocity and the Behring sea held sessions.

The senate committee on commerce agreed to make a favorable report on the Hanna-Payne bill for the encouragement of foreign trade, by granting subsidies to the owners of American steamships. Several amendments were made, but, with a few exceptions, they were of a technical character.

The military forces in Cuba are to be re-enforced by the Third regiment, U. S. V., engineers, now at Macon, Ga. Orders to sail from Charleston were issued yesterday. Four companies of this regiment are now at Matanzas.

Representative Alexander of New York introduced a bill for a Pan-American exposition near Buffalo, with government aid, not exceeding $500,000.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 27.—In the house yesterday bills were introduced to amend the license limitation act so that the number shall not exceed 1000 in Boston; to amend the award of bounty law; for building a model school for the Fitchburg normal school; to secure complete returns from the foreign corporations doing business in Massachusetts; to amend the law relating to conditional sales of personal property; to amend milk inspection laws; for free water supply in cities and towns; for transportation of bicycles as baggage, and for the assessment of voters in Boston by the election commissioners.

There was a brief but lively debate over the order of the socialist member, Mr. Carey, for an investigation as to the advisability of the state's carrying on an insurance business, and the order was rejected, though Mr. Carey will try to have the matter reconsidered.

The following petitions were received: For an increase in salary of the second clerk of the secretary of the state board of agriculture; for amendment of laws relative to the purchase of real estate; for district local option in Boston.

In the senate a bill was reported to incorporate the Nonotuck Savings bank of Northampton.

Petitions for authority to construct the new bridge between Boston and Cambridge without a draw; that the law concerning the teaching of physiology and hygeine in the public schools be made effective so as to promote scientific temperance instruction were presented.

In the committee rooms the activity was more general than at any time before in this session. Everett people argued for a new and larger bridge over the Mystic river from Charlestown to Everett. The hearing regarding a charter for the Massachusetts Electric Freight company was called, but one of the petitioners appeared and asked for a continuance. The committee then discussed proposed changes in the Plymouth and Sandwich charter of last year. Members of the Anti-Double Taxation league were before the taxation committee once more in an attempt to secure exemption for personal property situated and taxed outside this state. This hearing was adjourned until Tuesday. Bills regarding the changing of investments by guardians, and other matters, were considered by the committee on probate and insolvency. The committee on cities voted leave to withdraw on the Somerville petition for placing names of call firemen on the eligible list for permanent places, and also on the bill to require an additional license for sale stables in cities of more than 50,000 inhabitants, aimed to better the conditions near the northern station in Boston.

No Distinction.

Kansas City, Jan. 27.—Last week 17 proprietors of bucketshops, dynamite stock and race horse poolrooms were arrested, charged with violating the city ordinance against betting on any "event." Yesterday Judge Burnham dismissed the cases. He holds that there is no material difference between a bucketshop and the board of trade, and that both come under the ban of the ordinance. He says, however, that the supreme court has decided that the board of trade is legal, and, therefore, the bucketshops are legal.

Carlists Out In Force.

Madrid, Jan. 27.—Senor Mellas, the Carlist deputy who was expelled from the last cortes in May, 1898, for a speech in the chamber in which he used a scriptural quotation referring to "an unfortunate nation whose kings are boys," has just held a reception near Murcia. It was attended by Carlists enough to fill 30 coaches.

Strikers Give It Up.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 27.—The strike in the cotton mills of the Augusta district which began Nov. 21, ended today, and the strikers returned to work at the reduced scale after nine weeks of idleness. Some small concessions are made by the mills in the matter of house rent and fuel. About 4000 hands were involved in the strike.

Two Years Past Century.

Portsmouth, R. I., Jan. 27.—William Earl Cook, the oldest person in this section, yesterday became 102 years old. He is in feeble health. He was born in this town.

Died Within Ten Minutes.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Augustus Garland, former attorney general, was stricken with apoplexy at 12:15, while addressing the United States supreme court yesterday, and died within 10 minutes. Mr. Garland was born in Tipton county, Tenn., June 11, 1832. His parents moved to Arkansas a year later. Young Garland was educated at Bardstown, Ky., and in a Catholic college he received a thorough training. He was first elected to the United States senate from Arkansas in 1867, but was not admitted to the seat. After serving one term as governor of the state, he was again elected to the senate, in 1876, taking his seat March 5, and he was re-elected again in 1883, his term expiring March 3, 1889. Mr. Garland has been in poor health for several years. Several weeks ago he was taken ill with the grip, and had suffered from its effects ever since.

Nervous Dyspepsia

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M. the well-known religious worker and writer of St. Louis.

Secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church. Chief Clerk and Expert Accountant for the Harbor and Wharf Commission. Public Secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League, and writes on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words.

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said "Try Stuart's Tablets." I did, and was promptly relieved. Then investigated the nature of the tablets and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."

Fabulous Piano Profits

There is satisfaction in owning a piano, but the satisfaction is two-fold, when you know you didn't pay a fabulous profit to the man you bought it from. People do pay too much for pianos, pay a great deal more than they are worth. Ask them why and everyone will tell the same old story, "Supposed the price was right and as low as it could be bought." Now here's the difference, we are doing a splendid piano business, saving our customers hundreds of dollars on pianos, selling a first-class new piano for $185.00, worth at least $350.00.

No matter what kind of a piano you want, come here; buy it through us and save a small barrel of money.

Miss Mary Dewson of the Woman's Educational and Industrial union spoke on the domestic problem at Wesleyan hall, Boston, Thursday, at a meeting of the Ladies' Physiological institute. Miss Dewson has made a study of the question and has become an authority on the subject. Many will agree with her remarks that there are many incompetent women who engage in domestic employment also there are too few skilled workers, and yet the wages are higher than those in any other occupation. The former feeling of loyalty to the employer seems to have disappeared, and girls are now willing to stay in places but a short time. On the other side of the question Miss Dewson felt that housekeepers should make some arrangement to have uniform hours, as in Chicago it is said a union of domestics is being formed to force certain conditions upon housekeepers. She spoke of various pleasures that might be found for those girls to make their lives brighter and help to remove the social stigma now attached to domestic employment.

Mrs. George W. Bennett read a delightful paper on Venice "which has long borne in the imagination of the world a distinctive position, something of the character of a great enchantress, a magician of the seas. Her growth between the water and the sky; her great palaces, solid and splendid, built, so to speak, on nothing; the wonderful glory of light and reflection about her; the glimmer of incessant brightness and movement; the absence of all those harsh, artificial sounds which vex the air in other towns, but which in her are replaced by the harmonies of human voices, by the liquid tinkle of the waves—all these unusual characteristics combine to make her a wonder and a prodigy."

The Rev. James E. Bagley treated on Galieo; Miss Clara E. G Thayer on Correggio and his "Holy Nights" and easel pictures; and Miss Eugenia M. Hatch on Dorrizetti.

The music consisted of selections from Dorrizetti's operas by Mrs. Albert R. Moulton, Mrs. Wm. P. Bailey, Mr. E. W. Arnold and Miss Adelaide Thomas.

NEW EVIDENCE.

At the Milan Murder Trial Today.

The Defendant Held for the Grand Jury.

Judge Humphrey Says It Should be Further Investigated.

The continued case of Michael Milan who stands charged with the murder of his wife, Cecelia, on Saturday, Jan. 7, was called this morning.

The first witness was John Crotty, who testified that he met Milan at the Wollaston depot the Friday before the finding of the body at 10.16. They went to Harrison Square and had some drink. Milan bought a pint of whiskey. We got back to Neponset at 11 o'clock and came to Quincy on the 11.30 car. We got off the car near Patterson's and walked the rest of the way. Witness left Milan near his house and he went across the field to his home. Did not see Milan again until he saw him in court. When he left Milan he was not so drunk but what he could walk all right.

Cross examined, witness said he had called at Milan's house and had seen Mrs. Milan drink. The last time was on New Year's day, when she drank some wine.

Mary Zollar testified that on Friday Jan. 6, she saw Milan between 4 and 5 o'clock on Standish avenue, going from his home toward the Wollaston depot. He acted as though he had been drinking. He staggered. Witness took milk of Milan, which was delivered by Mrs. Milan. She came Thursday night with the milk but did not come Friday night. Occasionally Milan delivered the milk, but very rarely. The last time witness saw Mrs. Milan was Thursday night.

William Meuse said he lived near Milan. Saw him Friday night when he came to his house about 9.15. He stopped there until 9.50. While in the house he talked to his dog and sang. When he went out witness accompanied him to within twenty-five feet of his own door. Milan was full. He had a pint of liquor in a quart bottle with him. Milan asked witness to go in and have a drink, but he did not. Witness did not see Milan the next day. While in witness' house, Milan, said "His wife was a good old woman."

George W. Taylor, driver of a baker cart, called at Milan's house Saturday at 12.40. Went to the front door, could not get in as door was locked. Heard dog bark in the house. Heard no other noise. Rang the bell on the door twice but got no response.

John J. Murphy, driver of a tea and coffee team, went to the Milan house about 4 o'clock Saturday night. Saw Milan and some children. Witness asked Milan what was the matter, and he replied that his poor wife had been burned. Mrs Milan was laying across the threshold of the kitchen. When witness saw he could not relieve the woman he left immediately.

Lena Powler, a servant for Mrs. Nickerson, testified that Mrs. Milan left milk at her house Friday morning.

FRYE TAKES A HAND.

Says That Peace Treaty Should Have Been Ratified Ten Days Ago.

Proceedings of Commission Explained to Senate.

President Has Decided to Comply With Request For Documents on File.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The senate continued the consideration of the peace treaty in executive session yesterday, the doors being closed for almost three hours. Senator Frye, a member of the Paris peace commission, and naturally a strong friend of the treaty, held the attention of the senate during the greater part of the time. Constructively he occupied the floor during the entire session, but he was frequently interrupted by other senators. Most of these interruptions came in the way of questions, but some of them took the form of speeches. This was notably the case with Senator Berry's interruptions. He spoke for some time, and in doing so denounced the treaty in severe terms. Senators Mason and Caffery asked many questions.

SENATOR FRYE.

Senator Frye devoted himself largely to an explanation of the proceedings of the commission, reading liberally from the record as already printed, but stopping as he proceeded to explain the quotations which he made. He had not proceeded a great way in his exposition of the subject when he was asked if the president had not originally instructed the commission to only insist upon securing a coaling station in the Philippine group. To this Mr. Frye replied that he did not feel at liberty to give his interpretation of the president's instructions, but it was not necessary that he should do so, as the president had, he said, determined to comply partially, at least, with the senate's request for the documents on file bearing upon the negotiation of the treaty, and Mr. Frye said he felt justified in assuring the senate that the papers would be received not later than Monday.

Mr. Frye devoted the principal portion of his speech, outside of the reading of the report, to an explanation of why the Philippine archipelago was included in the cession to the United States.

He was asked why those islands were not placed in the same class as Cuba, the sovereignty over this island being merely relinquished, while in the case of the Philippines it had been made over to the United States, and he replied that the difference was made because in the case of Cuba the commission was acting under instructions from congress.

He was reminded that the Filipinos professed to be fighting for freedom just as the Cubans were, and that they were still contending for their own independence.

One senator reminded him of the representations of Aguinaldo's American agent, Agoncillo, and asked if he meant to force the Filipino people to actual hostilities, to which Mr. Frye retorted that it was the opposition which was forcing a continuance of the state of war, and which would be responsible for hostilities if they should occur. As for himself, however, he did not know the Filipinos in the transaction. The treaty, he said, should have been ratified 10 days ago, and, if it had been, all danger of war with the people of the Philippines would have been averted.

Senator Mason asked whether the commissioners did not know when they made the treaty, and whether he did not know now, that the natives of those islands were then, as now, demanding their independence. In reply Mr. Frye repeated that the commission had dealt with Spain regarding the Filipinos as subjects of that country. Spain had lost in the conflict of war, and hence the United States had a perfect right, according to the law of nations, to acquire any part of her possessions or people in adjusting the balances after the war was over.

Senator Berry, in his speech, declared that the acquisition of the islands was merely a speculative scheme, containing more of the elements of land grabbing than of patriotism and philanthrophy.

IN CONGRESS.

Peace Treaty, Pension Appropriation and Army Reorganization Discussed.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Particular interest was manifested in the senate yesterday in a brief speech delivered by Senator T. C. Platt on the general subject of expansion.

Mr. Platt took for his text the anti-expansion resolution offered by Mr Vest, but in the course of his speech merely touched upon the constitutional question involved in the proposed declaration. He spoke in a clear, resonant voice, and, not only because this was the first speech he had delivered in the senate since his return to the body, but also because the address was a thoughtful and well considered statement, he was accorded undivided attention. A pleasing, though quiet vein of humor ran through the speech, sharply pointing his statements. He took strong ground for the ratification of the pending treaty of peace. A resolution was offered by Mr. Sullivan (Miss.), declaring that the ratification of the treaty should not commit the government to a colonial policy.

The pension appropriation bill, the second of the general appropriation measures, was passed after some debate.

Late in the afternoon eulogies were pronounced on the late Representative Cooke of Illinois, addresses being made by Senators Cullom, Allison, Wellington and Mason.

The opposition to the army reorganization bill on the Republican side of the house has become so strong that Chairman Hull, after Mr. Henderson of Iowa, one of the floor leaders of the majority, had threatened to vote to recommit the bill, decided it would be wise, in order to insure its passage, to abandon the idea of providing directly for a regular army of 100,000 men.

He announced on the floor that the committee would offer amendments to reduce the number of enlisted men to about 60,000, but lodge in the president's discretion the authority to increase the army to a maximum of 100,000. These amendments have been prepared. How far the proposed modifications will allay the opposition remains to be seen.

Mr. Johnson of Indiana, who took a prominent part in the fight yesterday after the general debate closed, declared that the purpose of the bill was to have an army of 100,000 either by direct authority or the exercise of the president's discretion, and he declared his purpose to fight to the bitter end the machinery which was being forged for a colonial system.

Mr. Henderson, in the course of the debate, declared his belief in the unwisdom of annexing the Philippines.

Mr. Johnson said the vital mistake was made when the president induced the peace commissioners to demand the cession of the Philippines.

The whole debate yesterday was spirited, and so intense was the struggle when the bill was taken up for amendment under the five-minute rule that the first section had not been completed when the house recessed at 5 o'clock.

Faith In Quesda.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Senor Quesada, who, throughout the last war and before, was one of the diplomatic representatives of the Cuban junta in Washington, left Washington last night on a special mission for Cuba. He will go first to Havana and then proceed to join General Gomez as soon as he can locate that officer.

GONZALES DE QUESADA.

Senor Quesada is acting under the instructions of President Palma of the junta, and while it is not deemed expedient to say more of the nature of the mission with which he is charged, it is known that the officials here feel the utmost confidence that results most beneficial to Cuba and satisfactory to the United States government are likely to follow.

Merry Recognized.

Washington, Jan. 28.—United States Minister Merry, who has been at his post in Costa Rica for many months awaiting recognition in his other capacity as United States minister to Nicaragua, has cabled the state department that he has at last succeeded. According to his advices the government of Nicaragua, again an independent state, has sent him a cordial invitation to appear at the capital and present his credentials as United States minister, which invitation he has accepted.

Left to General Brooke.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The war department's order, providing that the Spanish bank at Havana shall collect the taxes in Cuba for the fiscal year ending June 30 next, was revoked yesterday by the secretary of war. General Brooke, at the same time, was cabled to establish a system for the collection of taxes, introducing such machinery as in his judgment may be necessary for the purpose.

Didn't Discuss War.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The cabinet session yesterday was uneventful and practically no attention was paid to the Philippine question. There were no official advices presented from either the Philippines or Samoa. Most of the session was devoted to administrative details of tariff, customs and postal service on the islands now occupied by the United States.

Capitol Gleanings.

Robert P. Porter, special commissioner of the United States to Cuba and Porto Rico, left Washington for Havana last night. He expects to be absent about a week, and in that time will investigate the practical working of the new Cuban tariff.

The Nicaragua canal question was further considered yesterday by the house committee on commerce, but no action was taken and the subject sent over until Tuesday.

Senator Pritchard has given notice of an amendment he will offer to the sundry civil appropriation bill appropriating $10,000 to enable the secretary of war to gather information concerning Confederate cemeteries and as to the number of Confederate dead buried in private cemeteries.

A rough canvass has been made of the house committee on judiciary as to its views on the question of declaring vacant seats held by members holding outside offices, which is understood to disclose that 14 of the 17 members individually favor declaring these seats vacant, although this view has not been expressed in a vote.

SCRAMBLED F... ...DOM.

Spectators at a Prize Fight Were From Frying Pan Into Fire.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 28.—At 11 o'clock last night the police raided the Powell club, corner of Chelmsford and Powell streets, and broke up a prize fight. The ring was laid out on the second floor of a barn, and about 200 were present. When the word was given that the police were coming there was a wild rush for the big hay door in the front, and men and boys of all ages and weights leaped over one another to the frozen earth 10 feet below, landing in a heap with groans and curses. Michael Maloney sustained a compound fracture of the left arm, and 20 others were injured more or less. Some had their fingers broken, others their faces lacerated, ribs broken, ankles sprained, etc. The police, fearing that there were many fatal injuries, made no attempts at arrests, but called the ambulance and turned their attention to caring for the wounded. The principals are as yet unknown.

Grant a Briber.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 28.—The committee appointed to investigate the scandals connected with the election of a United States senator finds that Howard E. Wright, speaker of the assembly, received from U. S. Grant, Jr., through his political manager, Milton J. Green, $900 as a gift, and $750 as a loan; that Wright deceived John D. Spreckels and W. S. Leake to secure their support for the speakership, stating that he was unpledged to any senatorial candidate; that by promising to vote for Robert N. Bulla for United States senator he secured Bulla's support for the speakership; that by the acceptance of Grant's money, and by the solicitation of Daniel M. Burns' influence, this secured his election as speaker. Wright led each of these candidates for senator to expect his vote. The report states that Grant's agent, Green, expended more than $20,000 to secure the election of a Republican legislature. The committee finds that D. M. Burns, R. N. Bulla, W. H. L. Barnes and the other senatorial candidates, except Grant, expended no money and promised no patronage to promote their candidacies.

Cubans' Latest Scheme.

Havana, Jan. 28.—Dr. Castillo is going to Remedios in order to confer with General Maximo Gomez regarding the formation of the projected Cuban independence party. The plan has been discussed at small meetings here of notable Cubans. The platform has one idea, the termination of the military occupation of the island as soon as possible. The Spaniards have been invited to join in the movement, and will be given proportionate representation on the committees. The general purpose is to draw into the party the educated and wealthy, and not to allow the military element to control it.

Two Men Injured.

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 28.—Two serious accidents occurred on the Lewiston, Brunswick and Bath electric railway at nearly the same time yesterday. On the Lake Grove line a car containing half a dozen passengers left the track and went over on its side. One of the passengers, Charles G. Lowell, was thrown through a window and pinned beneath the car. His collar bone was broken in two places, and he was badly bruised. On the Brunswick line John B. Straw was struck by a car while riding. He was thrown 15 or 20 feet and received serious injuries to his back.

Old Warrior Gone.

New York, Jan. 28.—General George S. Greene died of old age at Morristown, N. J., at 1 o'clock this morning. He leaves three sons, General Francis V. Greene, G. S. Greene, Jr., both now at Morristown, and Major Charles T. Greene, U. S. A., retired, of Brookfield, Conn. George Sears Greene was born in Apponaug, Warwick county, R. I., May 6, 1801. He was descended from John Greene, deputy governor of Rhode Island. He was graduated from the United States military academy at West Point in 1823.

Martin May Get Out.

Boston, Jan. 28.—The Herald says: The term of office of General A. P. Martin, chairman of the Boston board of police, will expire May 2. On account of Governor Wolcott's attitude after the investigation into the charges against General Martin, when he asked the executive council to join with him to remove the chairman of the board, it is generally taken for granted that a new member will be appointed to the board. The law provides that the next member shall be a Democrat.

Trawls Found a Wreck.

Provincetown, Mass., Jan. 28.—Two local fishermen reported that while hauling trawls four miles northeast of Race Point their gear fouled submerged wreckage. While examining the gear afterwards they found it was covered with red rust, and this is taken as evidence that the trawl was afoul of metal work, either chains, anchors or machinery. The fishermen failed to buoy the locality, thus preventing search for traces of the Portland at or near that place.

Slated For Guam.

Boston, Jan. 28.—The first definite orders, relative to the marine garrison for Guam, were received at the Charlestown navy yard yesterday. Lieutenant Colonel Pope will take with him from Charlestown a detachment of 45 men, 40 will go from Portsmouth, N. H., 20 from the barracks at Newport, R. I., and a few others from various other points, all of whom will rendezvous at New York about Feb. 10, ready to take passage upon the transport Yosemite.

Strikers Holding Out.

Colon, Jan. 28.—As a result of the strike of laborers here the railroad freight house has been transformed into a veritable barracks, where the loafers and riff-raff of the city sleep in cars and are fed from the ships. The men are showing dogged determination. The railroad is reluctant to pay on a gold basis, as its officials anticipate similar strikes, coincident with each rise in the rate of exchange.

In Mrs. George's Behalf.

Canton, O., Jan. 28.—A motion to quash the indictment against Mrs. Anna George, for murder in the first degree in killing George D. Saxton, was filed yesterday. It is purely technical, and applies to all the work of the grand jury as much as to the George case. It is in 17 counts, each alleging irregularity in the organization of the grand jury.

His Sinecure.

There died not so very long ago a worthy French gentleman who had succeeded, by dint of importunity, in obtaining from a minister who was, politically speaking, on his last legs, inasmuch as the cabinet to which he belonged was already tottering to its fall, a very comfortable berth. For ten years this official called punctually at the ministry in question whenever the moment arrived at which his salary was due, and, having pocketed the money, he returned quietly to his home in a fashionable part of Paris.

One day, while he was chatting with a very intimate friend, who was well versed in the idiosyncrasies and working of the different official departments, he asked confidentially his companion if he could tell him the precise spot in which the establishment of which he had been appointed a deputy custodian was situated, confessing that he had not the remotest idea of its locality. His request having been complied with, the official, nevertheless, displayed no curiosity to visit the scene of his presumed labors, and, as a matter of fact, he expired without having ever beheld it.

After his death this post was abolished, so that at least one badly needed reform may be laid to the credit of the powers that be.—Paris Letter.

The Libelous "They Say."

The one term "they say" is responsible for nine-tenths of the lies which repetition and familiarity finally convert into seemingly bona fide evidence. One usually hears an exciting bit of gossip launched forth with these words, while at the same time the speaker adroitly shields herself by declaring that personally she does not know it to be true. The man or woman who thus screens himself or herself is nothing short of a coward.—Josephine Hill in Woman's Home Companion.

Not Hereditary.

The best medical authorities now agree that Consumption is transmitted by contagion and not heredity. Prof. Grancher of Paris, the eminent authority on Tuberculosis, (Consumption) adopts this theory and also claims it is curable, except perhaps in advanced stages, and that will power, a determination to get well, is a prime factor in throwing off the disease. These are important facts, most encourageing to "consumption families." It is not heriditary, that is the great fact to be kept in mind. The germ-laden sputa is wholly responsible for the spread of the disease. Hence a consumption patient should never expectorate when it can dirty up and release the microbes to float in the air, to be inhaled into the lungs of well people and so inoculate them with this dread disease. However it is only when the lungs are inflamed or raw from a Cold or Bronchitis that these germs can find lodgement and produce tuberculosis.

Many fear they have Tuberculosis when it may be Catarrh of the Lungs or Bronchitis. Of course any of these troubles will eventually prove fatal if neglected. If the sputa does not sink in water it is not consumption. This is a very sure test. The one sure, prompt and radical cure in either case is Brazilian Balm. The minute doses, (10 drops each hour,) of this gentle balsam quickly produces a marked improvement. The cough is soon controlled, not by drying it up but by removing the cause, that is, by subduing the inflamation and healing the raw surface of all the air passages. Brazilian Balm is also the one remedy in nature that has the power of destroying the Catarrh microbe, the germ in Bronchitis and even the coming Bacilli of Tuberculosis, thus effecting a restoration of the lungs to perfect soundness. In the past 15 years it has restored thousands and never failed when faithfully used, even in quick or slow consumption, many cases being apparently near death's door. One thing should never be forgotten, never under any circumstances take laudnum, morphine or any other form of opium for Coughs or Lung Troubles even if prescribed by a doctor. Avoid all cough remedies that contain this nefarious drug. It paralyses, deadens the nerves which life, vitality is absolutely necessary in resisting all bacilli. Brazilian Balm destroys the germs while it gives vigor to the nerves and tissues, thus effecting a cure upon scientific and rational lines. HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

"Yes," admitted the old sleuth, who has been a thief taker for a good many years, "there's such a thing as suicidal mania, and like every other genuine article it has a counterfeit. Let me tell you of a case.

"One of the most worthless and shiftless fellows that ever lived in Detroit was named—well, never mind the name, but a good many of the old timers will remember him by the nickname of Spilley. Every time he got into serious trouble he used to inform me and some of the others who looked after his conduct that he was going to make way with himself. He would bid us goodby, shed tears over his depravity and disappear, always to turn up again like a bad penny.

"One morning Spilley informed me that he was going to end it this time 'sure.' He was tired of the whole thing and must get away from it. I laughed at him and chaffed him about his lack of sand. He indignantly resented the insinuation and asked me to loan him a double barreled shotgun. I replied that one barrel should be enough for him.

"'I'll tell you, cap,' he replied blushingly, 'you're right about it. I'm a good deal of a coward. At the first report I'll run like a scared pup, and I want the other barrel so's to bring myself down on the wing.'

"In two days he returned the gun. 'Cap,' he said, 'durned ef I didn't miss with both barrels. I'm goin to practice up on wing shootin, and then it'll be all off with me.'"—Detroit Free Press.

An Unlucky Mortal.

"It does seem," sighed the old lady, "that my John hain't got any good luck in this worl'. He went in the war, an they shot off his leg. That wuz somethin, kaze he got a pension fer it. But on his way home the train run off the track, an instead o' cuttin off his good leg, so's he could git damages, it run over his wooden leg. An to my sartin knowledge he's been in a life insurance company ten years, an he ain't dead yit, an 'pears like thar ain't no prospects of it. I never did see a man hold on like him!"—Atlanta Constitution.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

COLD STORAGE.

Only Choicest Fruit Should Be Used. Pears Pay Well.

A cold storage house on the farm undoubtedly pays, but it must be run properly. In the first place, it must be on a farm where ice can be harvested cheaply in the winter time. During the winter months the work on the farm is so light that every farmer can spend several weeks or a month in cutting and storing ice. Co-operation should be arranged between half a dozen farmers of one neighborhood to fill each other's icehouse. With ice plentiful, it is an easy matter to keep fruits, poultry and other produce in cold storage, says a correspondent of The American Cultivator, who adds:

One of the best fruits for keeping in cold storage is pears. So far nobody has succeeded in raising the right sort of winter pear—that is, a pear equal to our Bartlett or Seckel. The result is it pays better to keep these pears until late in the fall than to sell them during the height of the season. Boston icehouse Seckel pears are a distinct feature of our late autumn markets, and they sell as high as $3 and $4 per bushel box some seasons. This is due simply to the fact that a specialty is made of keeping these fruits in cold storage in Boston, and the pears are the best in the market.

Now, any grower of these pears can keep his fruits just as well. The very choicest fruits should be selected for this work. Heretofore farmers who have stored their pears have selected the common kinds for the work, because they thought it more or less an experiment. That does not pay. People who buy Bartlett and Seckel pears around Thanksgiving and Christmas are those who can afford to pay the highest prices, and they want only the choice fruits. They must first be free from all spots or blemish, and then they must be kept in a condition that will make them attract the eye when placed on the stand.

What applies to pears is equally true of many other fruits. Choice grades of fall apples kept until late will sell well, but they must be kept in cold storage. A cold cellar will not answer. Ice must be had to keep an even temperature, and it is an even temperature that makes all fruits keep a long time.

Spraying the Currant.

Some of the red and white varieties of currants shed their leaves very early, frequently before the end of summer. As, in spite of this fact, they often fruit well the early dropping has not been very generally regarded as a sign of disease. But some experiments which Professor Goff of the University of Wisconsin tells about seem to indicate that such is the case. He says:

Some years ago the experiment was made at our station of spraying currant bushes with the bordeaux mixture and ammoniacal copper carbonate solution in early spring, and the applications were repeated at intervals until June 1. The result showed that the sprayed bushes retained their foliage considerably longer than those not sprayed, but the fruit was so badly soiled that the treatment was not considered practicable, and so it was abandoned.

The past season the experiment was made of a single spraying with bordeaux mixture after the harvesting of the fruit, and the result was striking, as appears from the accompanying illustration of two plants in the same row, the left one of which received the spraying, while the right one was not sprayed.

The early dropping of the leaves of the red and white currant is due to the attack of a fungus, Septoria ribes, and our experiment the past season seems to show that this disease may be very largely prevented by spraying the bushes after the fruit is harvested. The premature dropping of the leaves reduces the vigor of the plant, and doubtless tends to the production of inferior fruit.

Roses In Winter.

Hybrid perpetual and other roses which are liable to have their wood injured should be strawed or buried a few inches underground. But ever blooming ones are none the worse for being partly frozen down, as it acts as a needful pruning. So, if a covering of leaves be placed about the base, kept there by a spadeful or two of soil, it secures the life of several inches of growth, which is sufficient, says Joseph Meehan in Gardening.

Flower Notes.

Fine results in growing cuttings of the Cyperus alternifolius (umbrella plant) are reported from the Kansas station.

The Japanese snowball is one of the most perfect shrubs that have been added to our lawns for many years. The bush is entirely clean and very pretty. The bunches of flowers are smaller than those on Opulus, but the color is clean and clear, and the flowers persist for two or three weeks, says E. P. Powell in The Farm and Fireside.

Browallia speciosa major, a novelty first offered this season, has received good mention as an acquisition to greenhouse flowering plants.

Whale oil soap is recommended for scale on roses.

the danger is in the neglect— that's why so many colds lead to a fatal disease.

Good Afternoon.

It has been very evident for some time that the city of Boston must soon come to the end of its rope in the accumulation of debt, and any further attempt in Quincy to borrow outside the debt limit should be promptly checked. The Journal says, "the Suffolk County Republicans of the Legislature, who met at the Parker House Thursday night, want it distinctly understood that they were unanimous in their opposition to allowing the city of Boston to borrow any more money outside the debt limit. Their idea is that it is about time to stop the criminal recklessness so apparent in the disposition to burden the city still more and more with debts outside the limit, and so far as they are concerned they will vigorously oppose any attempt to increase this alarming burden."

Our deputy fire marshal is showing an aptitude for his business and a remarkable promptness in getting at the bottom facts, not only in Quincy, but in the district. This was well illustrated at Hyde Park last week; the Gazette says: "Warren W. Adams, the official who has been looking into the origin of our past few fires, was in town Friday afternoon of last week when the alarm was rung in, and was treated to a ride on the hose carriage to the scene of the fire, where he commenced a cross-examination of the occupants of the house."

It was a pleasure to the older graduates of the Quincy High school, who attended the reunion of the alumni, to greet Master Keith, not because he is Mayor of our city, but as plain Mr. Keith, who continues to have a warm place in the hearts of his former pupils. At the same time the guests of the evening congratulated His Honor upon his election, and appreciated the honor which the voters had conferred upon him. It was a happy reunion of teacher and pupils.

Several of the newspapers of the Metropolitan district have cited the corruption at Boston city hall, both of the aldermen for carriage hire, and the teaming frauds of the street department, and used them as arguments against annexation. It is evident that all the cities about Boston continue to oppose any amalgamation.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The coming of a Massachusetts regiment into South Carolina has been most beneficient. Our coming was signalized with such honest demonstrations as to make us feel that the South is as loyal to our flag as the North and leading men have said again and again: "The ending of the war was far best for us and the country."

We may quarr'l about nigger an' franchise
But whenever thar's trubble afoot
The two stocks'll unite in the branches
The same ez they do at the root.

—Chaplain House of the Fifth Mass. Vols.

☞ The corruption which is being unearthed at the Boston city hall is one of the most powerful arguments against the annexation of the suburbs to Boston, Somerville, Cambridge, and the other suburbs can govern themselves more honestly than they would be if swallowed up in the great city, and in many respects a great deal more economically.—Somerville Journal.

☞ The way it looks now, the Vanderbilts will never die with a smile on their faces, until they can call every railroad in North America their own.—Milford Journal.

☞ It has been decided to take a vote on the treaty of Paris on February 6, and let us hope that senators will see their way clear to let their academic discussion of aspects of expansion rest until they have shown that they are patriotic first and fin ical afterwards.—Framingham News.

☞ In 1896 Andrew Carnegie was "agin" free silver. Worse than that, he was a multi-millionaire, the target for much populist wrath. But now Andrew Carnegie is the chief apostle of anti-expansion and he is welcomed by Mr. Bryan and his followers as the very embodiment of statesmanship. In 1886 Andy was born to scare children. In 1898 he is the patron saint of little Americans. Verily times change and Populists change with them. Populism is ever a passing show, a dissolving view.—Beverly Times.

☞ For years and years Massachusetts has enjoyed the notable distinction of possessing more free public libraries than any other commonwealth in the union. The latest compilation shows that out of the 353 cities and towns in the State, only seven towns fail to boast of one of these institutions. The old Bay State ought to be thoroughly proud of the distinction which these facts confer upon her.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The spectacles that have been afforded in the various senatorial fights that have taken place all over this country in the past week would indicate there was a better way to choose these officials than that now in vogue. Some day, perhaps, the improved way will be taken advantage of, when the people get tired of deadlocks and bribery.—Newburyport News.

☞ Boston is in the throes of corruption! The teaming frauds are receiving a judicial hearing, and now there is evidence of rascality in carriage hire by the board of aldermen. The Herald is outspoken in this matter, and it sees a connection between the aldermen and the livery stable keepers to fatten their bank account at the city's expense. Turn the rascals out! —Hyde Park Gazette.

☞ The city of Boston has bills to pay for carriage hire for its board of Aldermen for the year 1898 of $20,000, the largest in the history of the city and three times as large as the same service cost in 1897. And the Aldermen are paid salaries at the rate of $1500 a year! This is the kind of a feast the advocates of Greater Boston invite the suburban cities to partake of.—Waltham Free Press.

☞ The assessors of Hartford got $300,000 additional on the tax list by assessing household furniture in cases where the taxpayers forgot to include any considerable sum under this item, although living in circumstances which made the value exempted, $500, evidently inadequate. There does not appear to be any kicking at the close attention of the assessors to their duties. —New Bedford Standard.

☞ The investment interest rate has gone down to stay in this country, to be in keeping with the rate prevailing in the European money centers. The reason for this is the general confidence, at home and abroad, in our maintenance of the gold standard, together with the recognition of the vast resources of the country. When Wm. Jennings Bryan was nominated for the Presidency the depression prevailing was so great (as was the despair caused by it) that it made most people desperate. It was no wonder, therefore, that so many voters wanted the country deluged with 16 to 1 silver money. They were really like a drowning man snatching out for a straw to save themselves; but with the marvellous change in the money situation that now presents itself, the country has gone to the other extreme by being overburdened with gold money.—Henry Clews.

☞ "You can't fill the bucket by one stroke of the pump handle." Many business men insert a small advertisement once or twice in a publication "as a trial," and then sit back and wait to see what comes of it. Quite naturally, nothing—or next to nothing—comes of it. People who see your advertisement once or twice are just beginning to take note of what you say, and, perhaps, to resolve to give your goods a trial. The next time they look over the advertisements in their favorite paper your aren't there. Consequently the man who advertises steadily and persistently, wins their confidence and gets their trade. It is just and proper that he should. Nobody is going to take the trouble to hunt up a man who shyly bobs up to the surface now and then, and then bobs down again.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE Q. H. S. ALUMNI.

The Fifth Annual Reunion a Perfect Success.

The annual reunion of the Alumni Association of the Quincy High school held last evening was a very pretty party, and the attendance was larger than at any preceding year, ensuring brighter days for the association.

From 8 to 8.30 there was a reception in the study hall, the following party receiving in the southerly front corner: President and Mrs. Charles A. Hall; Mayor Keith, who is a graduate of the school, and who was for many years its principal; Head Master Tupper and wife, and Hon. Charles H. Porter, the chairman of the School Committee.

The guests were presented by the following efficient ushers, representing five of the recent classes; Mr. Percival A. Hall, '87; Mr. George W. Holden, '88; Mr. William R. Thomas, '89; Mr. C. Eaton Pierce, '90; and Mr. Walter E. Simmons, Jr., '91.

From 8.30 to 9.30 there was a varied and interesting literary and musical programme, appreciated for its informality. President Hall graciously welcomed the graduates and their friends, and said it was only loyalty to the Quincy High that accounted for the large attendance on such a cold and blustering night. He was pleased to report that the alumni had weathered the trials of a young association and was able to pay all bills, with still brighter prospects ahead.

A vocal selection by Mrs. Edith Noyes Porter was much enjoyed, and then ex-Mayor Porter was introduced. He brought the greetings of the School Board, and wished a happy and prosperous life for all graduates. One of the best ways in which the graduates can show their appeciation of the High school, is to continue the work of decorating the walls, in which line good progress had already been made. The reunion was honored by the presence of Mayor Keith, for many years the principal of the school.

Miss Alice G. Coe of Atlantic contributed a beautiful solo.

Supt. Lull spoke of the value of education. With scarcely an exception all graduates admitted that the attention, habits etc., obtained at school had been of use. Pupils learned to labor, and it was a most excellent training. It leads to voluntary labor and real happiness results. We should urge the young to get all the education they can.

Miss Phelan who will be graduated from the school in June favored the audience with a vocal solo.

Head Master Tupper also spoke briefly. He said it was not the building, or the teacher or the pupil which was the permanent element connected with the High, but the school associations, possible the Alumni association, and the influence for good. Mr. Tupper encouraged the decorations, and congratulated the Alumni.

The entertainment was concluded by a piano solo by Miss Emma Curtin, '97.

Dancing was then enjoyed until nearly midnight, to the lively music of Treet's orchestra, which played popular airs. The floor was in charge of the same young men who acted as ushers. Round dances predominated, as will be seen by the following order:

1. Waltz.
2. Schottische.
3. Quadrille.
4. Two Step.
5. Waltz.
6. Portland Fancy.
7. Schottische.
8. Galop.
9. Lanciers.
10. Two step.
11. Schottische.
12. Waltz.

The sociability and financial success ensures greater popularity in the future for the Alumni Association of the Quincy High school.

C. H. Johnson, real estate agent, reports the sale through his office of the Bent estate on Arnold street, Quincy Point, to Robert Johnson of Quincy, the estate consists of an eight-room house, stable, 3 large hen houses, also 9 acres of fine farming land. The property is assessed for $6,000.

On Tuesday evening as Motorman Eddie Myatte was descending the hill from Presidents bridge, on Newport avenue, he saw a large obstacle on the track a few feet ahead of him. He stopped his car at once, and discovered it to be a large boulder rock which had rolled down on the track. Mr. Myatte deserves credit for his coolheadedness in stopping the car.

At a meeting of the Wollaston Congregational church held last evening these officers were elected: Deacons, Smith B. Harrington for two years, Joseph W. Lovett for one year. Supply Committee, E. S. He is a young man of 27 and has been racing for five years or more.

The revival meetings of the Swedish St. Paul's church at the corner of Granite and Fort streets, which have been continued since the week of prayer, are giving excellent results. The vestry has been too small to accommodate the people, although extra seats have been placed therein. Every night during next week meetings will be continued with a special programme for each evening. Rev. Frank Edwards will speak during the week.

The public is invited to an address on the single tax theory by J. B. Willis, M. A., of Boston, at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Monday evening at 7 45 o'clock. NOT A RAILWAY.

Boyton Bicycle Railway Declared a Railroad.

An interesting decision, says the Herald, bearing upon the location of the Boynton bicycle railroad through the city of Brockton, was rendered yesterday morning by the board of railroad commissioners, which was incidental to a protest filed by W. L. Douglas of that city against the construction of the road in Belmont avenue.

When the matter was first brought before the board the question of its jurisdiction was raised, and the hearing was adjourned with the understanding that this point would be argued when the case was again up for consideration.

The petition was based upon the provision of the act of 1898, which gives the right of protest to 10 residents living on any street through which a layout has been made or to those representing a majority of the value of abutting property. This act applies to street railways particularly and the contention arose as to whether or not the Boynton railway could rightfully be classed in this category.

Judge W. A. Reed, representing the petitioner argued that there is nothing in the special act of the Legislature relating to the Boynton road that takes it out of the category of street railways. It is not different from other street railways except that it runs a little higher in the air and should therefore come within the provisions of the acts relating to their location.

If this fact was admitted the board had full powers in the case.

Mr. L. E. Chamberlain for the railway company took the ground that the special act gave the railway all the incidents of a steam railroad and not until it is built does it take on the incidents of a street railway. Therefore, in all that relates to its location and construction it is subject to the general railroad laws. The towns on the line of the proposed route have no option in the matter of locations; these must be granted. It is provided however that appeals may be taken to the supreme court for the superior judicial court sitting in equity.

Chairman Sanford in rendering his decision said that the Boynton road was not a railway but was in every sense a railroad. The board of aldermen has only to grant a route after which the general railroad law applies and he therefore decided that the board was without jurisdiction so far as the right of protest under the act of 1898 is concerned and he declared the petition dismissed.

The Boulevard.

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger

In your Thursdays edition, in an article entitled "Only an Air Castle," is stated "The proposed Quincy boulevard has probably gone up in smoke." Also that the advice of the Commissioners to Mayor Keith and the Committee on Boulevard appointed by Mayor Sears, on account of there being no money available for the purpose, was to get from the Legislature an appropriation, if possible.

In Friday evening's paper is a paragraph noting that Mayor Keith is preparing a petition to the Legislature asking for "necessary authority to appropriate $150,000 for streets."

I would like to be informed if this money is to be asked for the boulevard or for the general street building? Also if the people of Quincy are to allow the Quincy boulevard "to go up in smoke?" If the latter should be the fact will it not be a reflection on the representative men of Quincy.

When we see the wonderful beauty added to Malden and adjoining towns by the grand parkway already built, and note the public-spirited citizens who forwarded that grand projection, we certainly, many of us, do desire that the well-being of Quincy should be equally well looked after by interested public men.

Onr shore line is worthy the proposed bouleard, and as we were led to expect a quarter of the appropriation on the Quincy route we can hardly be prepared for it to "go up in smoke."

When the committee was appointed by ex-Mayor Sears was it not expected that they would make known to the public the particulars on their investigations? As yet, no such information has appeared in print.

We await further knowledge but trust that our Commonwealth will not lose the opportunity of beautifying the Quincy portion of her territory from ack of ability on the part of her, Quincy citizens to secure as largely of her bounty as other Massachusetts cities. Boulevard.

NEW EVIDENCE.

Milan, testified she had lived with Mrs. Milan up to Nov. 1. There was trouble between Milan and his wife every Saturday. Always had trouble when was drunk. He wanted the place and said if she did not give it to him he would kill her. Had heard him say five times he would kill her, and would kill witness. Had known Milan to take his wife by the throat and tell her "she was a — — — hag and he would kill her." When sober he was a coward, but a brute when drunk. He always had a gun in the house and an axe which he kept under the bed.

Cross examined: It was brought out that witness had written letters about the case to Mrs. Lemuel Osborne, S. S. Blanchard, Mrs. Ufford of Dorchester, J. W. McAnarney counsel for Milan, and Clerk Churchill of the District court. There had been trouble between Milan and his wife for eighteen years. The morning she saw Milan try to choke his wife she had caught him by the back of the neck. Witness felt superior to Milan when he was sober, but was afraid of him when he was drunk. Was no reason why they should not get along well together. July 10 witness had seen Mrs. Muese come out of Milan's bedroom with him. Mrs. Milan remonstrated with him and told him he ought not to have done so. Mrs. Milan also told Mrs. Meuse not to come there again.

Catherine Maguire of Boston, testified that she visited Milan's house last April and of a conversation of Milan's, who was swearing and shaking a knife in his hand saying he was on probation. He made no threats. Witness was not used to that kind of language and left soon after.

Crosse examined, witness never knew of Mrs. Milan drinking.

Bertha Quinlan of Danvers had been at the Milan's and had heard Milan fighting about the place. Witness had also heard him threaten to shoot his wife.

Cross examined, witness never saw Mrs. Milan drink any liquor.

Dr. F. E. Jones, who made the autopsy, was recalled and said there was a possibility that she could not have made an outcry, but it looked as though she could. The inhaling of a flame would produce a congestion which would close the larynx. Strangulation would have had the effect of producing the congestion. If flame had been enhaled the tongue would have been scorched. The tongue was not scorched.

Cross examined, witness said it was a possibility that she might have come in contact with flames.

Catherine Maguire of Danvers knew the Milan family. Was a sister of Mrs. Milan but had not seen her but twice within two years. Had not been to the house for many years. On the fourth of July, witness could not tell the year, Milan was drinking and singing disgraceful songs. Such disgraceful acts she never saw before, and would not stay in the house again all night for the whole of Quincy. She heard a gun go off and she went into the yard until Milan went to bed. In the morning Michael made love to her.

Chief of Police Litchfield, recalled, testified to a visit to the house with Counsel McAnarney. A dipper was found on shelf with a little whiskey in it. A partly burned log in the stove and oil can were taken to the police station. He also testified to finding cinders in the sink and on the edge of the sink. Also to finding marks on the wall made by some one walking by.

Counsel for government desired to put in Milan's court record, which counsel for Milan objected to, on the ground that it could only be admitted to contradict testimony of a witness.

The court ruled the record out.

The government closed its case at this point and the defendant had no testimony to offer.

The court felt this case should be further investigated. It was evident from the testimony that the defendant had made statements that were not true. Was no occasion for an innocent man to lie.

No arguments were made and the court held Milan without bail for the grand jury.

WEYMOUTH.

Thursday evening closed a most successful fair of the Third Universalist Society of North Weymouth. "A Vision of Fair Women" was presented by local talent on Wednesday evening under direction of a committee composed of Mrs. Alice Drew, Mrs. J. H. Pratt, Mrs. J. P. Marvin. Thursday evening Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Marvin presented the entertainment, consisting of Mr. Kingsbury Foster, the well known humorist from Tufts college. A large audience was present both nights, and patronized the various tables.

Last night ended the fair held by the Ladies' Social Circle of the M. E. church of East Weymouth. An excellent programme by the Y. M. D. Mandolin and Banjo club of Boston as given Thursday night, which was well received by the large number present. On Friday evening a "Japanese Wedding" by local talent was presented. The various tables were well patronized.

Mr. D. M. Easton is at home from a business trip to New York.

The Ladies Social circle of the Pilgrim Congregational church have arranged for the annual fair to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 14 and 15.

Make It 1899 Guests.

Great is the demand for tickets to the Home Market club banquet to President McKinley. It is stated that the total seating capacity according to the latest arrangement, will be about 1900. The increase in number of seats is to be gained by the tables on the stage and extension of the floor tables out under the balconies. Colonel Albert Clarke has sent out this circular to members.

"The requests of members for tickets for themselves and friends exceed the seating capacity of the hall by nearly 2,000, but the members themselves will be seated and their guests first named in their returns will be seated so far as there may be room. The seating committee will begin its laborious task next week, and as soon as the assignments are made, tickets will be sent to the applicants, with checks for their over subscriptions. Each ticket will bear the name of the member or guest to whom it is issued, and will not be transferable. If you wish to substitute one or two names for those at the head of your list you will please do it now. The executive committee regrets the impossibility of seating all who wish to come, and every extension of the lay-out will be made that will comport with comfort, but nothing will be provided or allowed that will mar the pleasure of the great company."

Diamond Saw for Stone.

The use of the diamond saw for cutting stone is facilitating the erection of the buildings for the exposition of 1900 at Paris. This new circular saw is due to Felix Fromholt, a Parisian engineer. The diamonds which form the cutting teeth of the saw are common crystals, worth about ten shillings a carat, and they are fixed in a steel disk over six feet in diameter, which is mounted on a spindle, and revolved by steam power like an ordinary circular saw. For sawing hard stones there are two hundred diamonds in the cutting edge, and the speed is three hundred turns a minute. It advances into the stone about a foot in that time. For soft stones the teeth are of steel, with diamonds at intervals of every five teeth, and at a speed of twelve turns a minute. The saw advances about a yard in that time.

The new saw has been at work in the workshops of the Champs Elysees for several months, and has given every satisfaction. It cuts and dresses the stone on all sides and gives it sharp outlines. Moreover, it does so at one-eighth to one-tenth the cost of hand labor. A saw of this kind with an alternative movement sawing stones four to six feet high, is to be set up. Evidently this new implement has a future before it, and may be recommended to the attention of stonecutters in this country, especially the granite workers of Scotland. — Boston Transcript.

SOMETIME.

Out of today's mad struggle and distress,
Out of its ashes and dull weariness,
Hope sweetly rises with a patient grace
Strange to the fury of life's grinding place
And, pointing o'er the hills where Sometime dwells,
A whispered promise of her pleasure tells.

And we, who drag our yoke o'er heavy roads,
Close in the shadow of more crushing loads,
Pause when the lash is still and lift our eyes
To pictures hung against the distant skies.
There we forget the sorrows of this clime
In the glad gardens of that fair Sometime.

Tomorrow is today again renewed,
With added penalties and servitude,
And smaller chance to dream of Sometime's peace,
Where wasting weariness will find release.
Yet faith is stronger than our galling cares,
And so we wait; but, oh, the waiting wears!

THE ROOT.

"I think, my dear," said Cheedle, "I shall begin by observing that money is said to be the root of all evil."

"But do you think she will like that, Josie?" asked his wife.

"And," continued Cheedle sternly, "I shall add that now is her chance to disprove that statement."

"I hope she won't think we want any of her money."

"We don't want it."

"We do. If we didn't it wouldn't matter."

"My dear, you must really allow me to speak for myself sometimes. I don't want any of Aunt Jane's money."

"Then there will be all the more for me."

"If she sends any"—

"She is bound to!"

"If she sends any, I shall of course expect to have a voice in the matter of its administration."

"If your voice is going to be as big as your words, I can see that the money might just as well not come, as far as I'm concerned."

"My dear, you really must not be petty."

"I'm not petty, and I shall be as petty as I like."

"Really, Nell, you surprise me sometimes."

"You are always a surprise."

"You almost speak as if I were an unpleasant surprise."

"Surprises are too sudden to be pleasant."

"How a thing that is permanent can be sudden also"—

"Now I know what you are going to do," she said. "You are going to make me cry."

"My dear"—

"Yes, you are. You know arguing always makes me cry. And it's very cruel of you. If I could argue back"—

"You can cry."

"I suppose you want me to?"

"God forbid!"

"Don't be wicked!"

"Don't suppose."

Mrs. Cheedle dropped into a chair. "And to think that before we have been married three months I should be forbidden to suppose."

"Now, really, my dear," said Cheedle, "don't you think you are a little unreasonable?"

"Don't you think you are unreasonable to expect me to answer that?"

"Of course. I don't expect you to answer it. I was merely"—

"Then why ask the question? It makes you more unreasonable still." Cheedle laughed. "Now you are laughing at me."

"Really, my dear, I think the laugh was on your side that time."

She smiled. "How nice you are when you don't argue, Josie!"

"But about this money," said he. "In the improbable contingency of Aunt Jane mistaking the intention of my letter"—

"Don't make it too improbable, Josie, you know. If you don't want the money, I do. I wonder how much she will send?"

"You have no right to expect anything. I don't expect anything."

"Oh!"

"I don't."

"Oh!"

"It wouldn't be more than £25 anyway."

"If she has the insolence to send me anything less than £100 after the shameful way poor dear grandfather has behaved to us, I—I shall—I shall"—

"Spend it, I expect."

"I expect so too. No, I won't. I'll waste it."

"That would be silly."

"It would be jolly."

"You would be very sorry afterward."

"Of course!"

"Really, my dear"—

"All nice things make you sorry afterward. It's worth it."

"From what you say I gather"—

"Oh, don't gather, Josie! It sounds so dreadfully formal and proper. I feel as if I oughtn't to be alone with you when you gather."

"I 'understand,' then. Is that better?"

"Not much. But go on."

"I understand that you have a system of wasting money. Will you explain it?"

"It isn't a system at all."

"What is it, then?"

"It just isn't a system. I just let the money go, you know, and get nothing for it."

"And you find that—jolly?"

"Jolliest fun in the world."

"Well, I should be very sorry to have to exert any—ah—marital authority."

"Yes, you would be very sorry," said she.

"I should be very sorry to have to do it. But I really could not permit you to squander"—

"My aunt's money."

Cheedle frowned. "You forget," said he, "that I am your husband."

"No," said she; "you make that impossible."

"When I married you"—

"You did not marry my aunt."

"Thank God—I beg your pardon—of course not."

"You are very horrid and disrespectful today. I don't think I shall listen to you."

"I can reassure you; you haven't."

"Do you mean to say, Josie, that you haven't been talking all the time?"

"Of course I do!"

"You can say that, calmly standing there?"

"Or frantically sitting, if it is possible to sit frantically."

Mrs. Cheedle sighed. "I feel almost sure you are being funny," she said.

Cheedle was hurt. "Once you were proud of my sense of humor," he remarked, "or you said you were."

"I tell you what we'd do!" cried Mrs. Cheedle, with sudden animation. "We'd go to Paris."

"When? Why? How?"

"As soon as we got it—one. Because we could waste it better there than anywhere else—two. With it—three."

"You speak of the money that isn't coming from Aunt Jane?"

"If it isn't coming, may I have it?"

"How can you?"

"Never mind. You're so positive. May I? All to myself?"

"Well, I am disappointed in you. I thought when I married you—no, I didn't think enough."

She rose—one yard and a half of rigid, scornful femininity.

"Do you regret our marriage, sir?"

"No, no. Of course not."

"I desire you to explain, then, Mr. Cheedle—oh, bother the beastly money! I wish it wasn't coming."

"Perhaps it isn't."

"Don't be such a wet blanket, Josie."

"Why, you just said"—

"I don't care what I said! I hate you! Oh, Josie, and I was going to buy you such a lovely new chain!"

She wept aloud.

"Look here, Nell," said Cheedle, some minutes later. "I won't write to Aunt Jane at all."

"That will be best," said she.

"I might only go and put my foot in it. I know I'm not a very great favorite of hers."

"And, really, my dear boy, that bit about the root of all evil wouldn't have done at all."

"No?"

"No. Now I shall just pay"—

"You?"

"Of course."

"I could not think of letting you"—

"But somebody must write to her."

"I don't see the necessity."

Mrs. Cheedle froze slowly as she withdrew from him.

"And you would let"—

She stopped on seeing the servant enter with a letter.

"For you, sir."

Cheedle broke it open.

"Who is it from, Josie?"

"Aunt Jane."

"Oh, what does she say?"

"She's donated £50 in our joint names (yours and mine, Nell) to the Society For the Beatification of St. Matthew's Little Ditch!"

"It's a judgment on you for quarreling with me!" said Mrs. Cheedle.—Black and White.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

GOWN FOR YOUNG MATRON FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A pretty gown originally designed for home comfort, but which may, if of rich material, be allowed to do duty as a tea gown or be used by a convalescent, is of pale blue nuns' veiling. The back of the garment, which is easy-fitting, is of princesse form, and is made upon a fitted model lining. The front of the gown is made with a plain yoke, upon which the full skirt is gathered, the gathering being gently distributed across the entire width of the front. From under the collar long stoles, twenty-two inches wide at the bottom, fall quite to the foot of the gown. These may be as elaborate or as plain as may be desired, and of single widths of silk or a divided breadth of the veiling. In the present instance the latter material is chosen, the stoles having insertion applied at intervals throughout their length, and the lower edge being finished with deep lace ruffles. The wide Medici collar and the lower collar, which assumes almost the proportions of a cape, are correspondingly trimmed. The bottom of the garment is made with a demi-train, and may be finished with a simple hem or a pinked ruffle of the veiling or any preferred mode of trimming. If a drop skirt be desired, it may be made separately, and belted or put upon a sliding tape, according to individual desire. The proper cut of this gown, reproduced from Harper's Bazar, can be obtained only by the use of Harper's Bazar cut patterns.

To make this cosume for a medium sized person 7 yards of veiling 44 inches wide will be required, or 15 yards of silk 22 inches wide.

In using this model for a cloth costume the skirt will give more complete satisfaction if made up entirely without stiffening except for a crinoline band two or three inches wide at the bottom.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 29—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—God's army.—Ps. xx, 1-9. (Christian Endeavor day.)

Ancient kings of Israel before going to battle offered up bloodless offerings and whole burnt sacrifices in the temple unto God. This ninth psalm was probably intended to be sung while the king on such an occasion was making these offerings. The psalm consists of three parts. 1. The prayer of the congregation probably chanted by the Levites while the smoke of the sacrifices ascended to heaven (verses 1-5). 2. The king himself takes up the strain and expresses his faith in God (verses 6-8). 3. The congregation respond, praying again, "God save the king" (verse 9).

The army of ancient Israel going forth to battle against the heathen nations of the world may be symbolical of God's army today going forth to battle against the kingdoms of the world. Such a conflict is constantly being waged. The kingdoms of satan and of this world are constantly arrayed against the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The battle rages more fiercely every day. The elements of evil contend against the elements of good, and each one of us is enlisted on the one side or the other. The desire for victory is the great ambition of one who goes forth to battle. In this psalm we have pointed out what God's army must do today to have success and victory. Let us study these essentials to success.

1. God's army to succeed must be willing to make sacrifices. The king made sacrifices before going forth to battle. God's church, God's people, must be willing to make sacrifices today to be successful. It costs something to win battles. War is expensive to the victor as well as to the vanquished. It will cost God's people today money, time, labor, sacrifice, to war successfully against the powers of evil, but victory will pay for all the cost.

2. God's army to succeed must pray to God. This both the people and the king did. God decides the destinies of men. God gives victory or defeat. How necessary, then, that we should earnestly and fervently beseech Him to be with us in our struggles.

3. God's army to succeed must set up its banners in the name of the Lord. "In the name of our God we will set up our banners" (verse 5). To expect even to succeed we must be sure that we are advocating the cause of God. We must not confound the cause of self or of the world with God's cause. We must be on God's side rather than expect God to be on our side. This will give us a just and worthy cause, an essential to success. "Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just."

4. God's army to succeed must trust in God. "Some trust in chariots, some in horses, but we will remember the name of the Lord our God" (verse 7). Faith in God is an absolute essential for success in fighting for God. Our trust must be in Him rather than in man. The battle is not to the strong, but to those who put their faith and trust in God.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xxvii, 1-6; xxxiii, 13-20, Prov. xxi, 31; Eccl. ix, 11; Isa. xxxi, 1-3; Amos. ii, 14-16; Hosea i, 7; Jer. ix, 23, 24; Zech. iv, 1-6; Rom. xii, 1, 2; II Cor. iii, 5; Gal. vi, 9; Eph. vi, 10-18; Phil. iv, 12, 13; II Tim. iv, 7, 8.

Heroism Without Suffering.

There is sometimes as much merit in taking pains for Christ's sake as in suffering pain. We are more apt to conceive of a saint as one ready to expire for Christ's cause than as one ready to perspire for it, but the call to duty is oftener one to patient, plodding, thoroughgoing fidelity in little things, rather than one to yield up the life in some supreme act of sacrifice. A mother who takes the trouble daily to teach her child, patiently and wisely, how to conquer the evils in the world against which it needs to guard, may be more truly the savior of the child than if she threw herself into the flames to rescue its body from death. The fidelity to details that makes a life luminously consistent and Christlike may be a stronger argument than martyrdom for the truth. Conscientious living often counts for more than conscientious dying.—Sunday School Times.

The Rewards of Faith.

Rich indeed are the rewards of faith. Sure and certain is the course of a life illuminated by its rays. Faith takes hold upon Him who cannot lie, upon Him who is not willing that any should perish and whose infinite love is only paralleled by His ability. Well may we who trust Him and rely upon the atoning work of Jesus rest assured that no one shall pluck us from His hand, fully persuaded that He is able to keep that committed unto Him.—Episcopal Recorder.

Selfishness.

Selfishness shuts out God and leaves one to himself. It also involves the eternal separation of man from man. Dives lived alone upon earth and the companionship of the once despised Lazarus was denied him in eternity.—Presbyterian Journal.

Sincerity.

Sincerity must always remain the ingredient of all our actions, of our thoughts and their expressions. Insincerity is the curse of life and cannot be smoothed over by any effort.—Jewish Voice.

Accumulation and Distribution.

The happiness of the man who lives for mere self interest here is in accumulation. The blessedness of the man who lives for God is in distribution.—Stopford A. Brooke.

Here Already.

There is a success bound up in every noble effort. The hour of triumph may be far distant, but in the sight of God it is here already.—Presbyterian Journal.

EAGAN'S TRIAL ENDED.

Court-Martial Decided Upon Verdict an Hour After Testimony Closed.

Defendant's Daughter Feared That He Would Kill Miles.

Findings In the Case Will Not Be Made Public Except Through Prescribed Channels.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The taking of testimony in the case of General Eagan was concluded yesterday and arguments of counsel were submitted. The trial has lasted three days, and consumed less than eight hours of actual sitting.

A session behind closed doors, of an hour or so, sufficed for the court to reach a conclusion and embody it in a report. What the verdict was is altogether a matter of speculation, and, officially, at least, will not be made public by the trial board, military regulations requiring that its finding shall go through prescribed channels and be kept secret until action be had and promulgated by the proper reviewing authorities.

The attendance at the court-martial was much larger yesterday than at any time since the trial began, and among the spectators was a score or more of ladies. Several of them were friends of General Eagan's daughter, who was called as a witness, while others were attracted by curiosity. The testimony at the closing session of the court was directed largely to establish the fact that the general had lost his mental balance as a result of the charges made against him by General Miles. His daughter and her husband told of the general's changed condition, and intimated that they had great fears that he might at any time kill his accuser. Mr. McKee, a life-long friend, stated that at that time he believed him actually insane. The facts in this connection were brought out strongly by Mr. Worthington in his efforts to show that General Eagan at times was wholly irresponsible.

A dramatic incident of the trial yesterday was the testimony of the general's daughter, in which she described her father's appearance on the day he first read General Miles' statement. Standing in the door of her house, with the newspaper containing the evidence in his hand, he had exclaimed wildly: "I have been crucified by General Miles."

Through the three days of the trial the members of the court sat in their places and attentively listened to every word of the testimony. Only on two or three occasions did they ask the witness any questions, and then an answer of "Yes, sir" or "No, sir" sufficed. Where their sympathies were or what was passing in their minds was not disclosed by even the slightest change of expression.

Immediately upon the case being closed, the room was ordered cleared, and the court went into executive session to deliberate upon its findings. The court was in executive session for a little over an hour, and in this brief space of time reached its conclusions, for it soon became known, when the doors were reopened, that the court-martial had made its findings.

The fact was confirmed by the announcement from the judge advocate that the court had adjourned without day. It can be recalled only to correct a fault in the proceedings, which is a rare occurrence. Of the nature of the findings nothing is known positively outside of the members of the court, who are all under oath to keep the proceedings secret. This secrecy is maintained for all time by the court, but there is nothing to prevent a reviewing officer from making the matter public, though it is also the custom for him to refrain until the last chapter has been written and the conclusion of the court is ready to be officially promulgated.

In the regular order the findings and proceedings must now be carefully gone over by Judge Advocate Davis. He thought that it was possible to conclude his task Monday. He will place the papers in the hands of Judge Advocate General Lieber, whose duty it will be to make a most careful examination of every part of the recorded findings, with a view to the detection of any irregularities in the forms. If he finds all of these things regular, he will forward the papers to the secretary of war with his endorsement, if he sees fit to add one, and the secretary will act finally "by direction of the president," according to the form of practice adopted in Secretary Lamont's time.

It is possible for the papers to pass through the hands of General Miles at some stage in the proceedings, he acting also in the capacity of a reviewing authority, but this is not a uniform practice, and there was a notable exception in the Carter court-martial.

Contradicts Miles' Testimony.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The war investigation commission yesterday received and gave out an affidavit from Major General Ludlow, now military governor of Havana. The statement is principally in answer to the statements of General Miles before the commission in reference to the lack of preparation made by the engineer corps, of which General Ludlow was the chief officer in the field. General Ludlow, in his statement, disclaims all intention of disrespect toward General Miles before categorically contradicting the latter's testimony as reported in the papers.

Foreclosure Ordered.

Baltimore, Jan. 28.—Judges Goff and Morris, in the United States circuit court, handed down a decree ordering the sale of the Baltimore and Ohio railway property under foreclosure proceedings. No date was fixed for the sale, and it is understood that it will not take place, the order being merely for the purpose of expediting the reorganization of the system.

Cup Defender's Mate.

Boston, Jan. 28.—A Globe special from Narragansett Pier says that Captain Frank M. Allen, one of the best known yachting masters about Rhode Island waters, has accepted the position of mate on the new America cup defender.

SOARING UPWARD.

Large Transactions and Buoyant Prices on Certain Staples.

New York, Jan. 28.—Bradstreet's says: The apparently steady rise in the tide of general business has been diversified this week by an outburst of speculative interest in a number of staples, notably cotton and wheat, which heretofore have registered steady gains on actual consumptive demand rather than on the development of marked bullish speculation. Large transactions and buoyant prices have been features in these staples, and signs are not wanting that sympathetic, though smaller, movements in a number of other lines are either under way or contemplated. Exceptional industrial activity, particularly in the iron and steel trade, is another feature of note, and here, too, price advances are all but general, reflecting so far as can be seen chiefly the urgency of consumers' requirements.

In the regular channels of distributive trade conditions continue in the main satisfactory, the volume of spring orders at most markets being reported as larger than in any recently preceding year at this time.

While it is hardly possible to fix the entire responsibility for the bullishness in wheat and cotton upon the movement which so far has proved so successful in stocks, the claim is freely made that considerable profits realized in the stock market have sought expression in the channels of staple food and textile distribution.

Better reports are received from the lumber trade, and all the old advances are maintained with confidence in the outlook for spring business.

Some improvement in the dry goods trade is to be noted at eastern points, notably Philadelphia and Boston, where advances in cottons are maintained.

Wool, though firm, is slow of sale, and finished products, with the possible exception of dress woolens, do not move as freely as hoped for, a feature this week, in fact, being the very low prices announced by some manufacturers.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 28.—The Democratic members of the state senate and house of representatives had a caucus at the state house yesterday to decide on some definite policy to be pursued in the legislature this year. After considerable discussion it was voted that the Democrats in the legislature should support bills to regulate street railways, to provide for the popular election of police and other commissioners, to keep the so-called "double taxation" laws on the statute books, to provide against the use of contract labor, to compel the state and municipalities to pay union wages when contracts are let, to regulate telephone charges and to bring about a reduction of fares on steam railroads. Committees were appointed to draw up bills on each of the subjects mentioned.

Republican members of the legislature from Boston, who had a conference on Boston matters, have decided to give their united opposition to any bills that may be offered to give Boston a right to contract any indebtedness outside the debt limit. The matter was not voted on, but has been agreed upon among the members.

Representative Lomasney introduced bills intended to give greater power to the Boston common council in regard to securing information from the city departments, and Representative Root put in a bill for the publication of the names of registered voters in Boston, with the names of the persons vouching for them. The gypsy moth bill, coming up for its third reading, was assigned first for next Tuesday.

There was an attendance that crowded the judiciary committee room at the hearing on the bill to abolish capital punishment. Other hearings were of minor importance.

The new annual report of the harbor and land commission was transmitted to the legislature; and the house refused to increase the appropriation for salaries of state house messengers.

Earthquake Wrecked Houses.

In the district of Kyparissia, on the gulf of Arcadia, a number of houses fell yesterday.

TROUBLESOME ENVOY.

Agoncillo Getting Points Inimical to the Administration's Policy.

Denies Advising Filipinos to Fight For Independence.

An Impression That He Is Trying to Keep Himself Before the Public.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The officials at the state epartment are mute respecting the treatment to be accorded Agoncillo, the representative here of Aguinaldo, although it is known that he has been held under surveillance ever since his arrival in this city, and that it was learned that he was in correspondence over the cables with his chief, generally through some one of the Philippine juntas in Hong Konk, London or Paris, but whether any telegram has been actually intercepted cannot be learned.

There was good ground also for the belief that Agoncillo was receiving advice from certain persons inimical to the policy the president has adopted for the treatment of the Philippine question at this stage. This had been tolerated reluctantly by the administration rather than to make an open issue of what is still a case possible of adjustment. The publication two days ago of what proved to be a very good abstract, with exact quotations, of the letter left the day preceding the publication by Agoncillo's secretary at the state department, likewise was resented as a notable breach of official decorum.

The first inclination of the officials after this publication was to get rid of Agoncillo, but officials were loth to take any action in advance of the senate passage upon the pending peace treaty, especially as action might involve passing upon certain legal and diplomatic points involved as to which it is desired not to establish precedents at this time.

Administration officials believe the general tenor of the advices Agoncillo has sent his principals has been in the line of admonition to hold off from the acceptance of any terms from General Otis in view of the prospect that the peace treaty might fail in the United States senate.

The situation at Manila is regarded as critical, of course, but the officials see no reason why they cannot command it for a time at least. General Otis reported Thursday that he could hold out beyond a doubt until his reinforcements arrived, and added that as the news had reached Manila that there was every prospect that the peace treaty will be soon ratified by the United States senate the effect upon the native element had been salutary.

Agoncillo authorized the following statement concerning a published report that the government had intercepted dispatches from him to Aguinaldo, in which he advised that the Filipinos would have to fight for their independence, and that now was the time to act:

"The statement is absolutely false, and is calculated to excite feeling and animosity in this country and to prejudice the Philippine cause. No such telegram has ever been sent by me, and for that reason no such telegram could have been intercepted. The falsity of the statement is shown by the fact that I have cabled my government to continue the same friendship which was born on the battlefield against Spain. The Philippine people have no wish and no purpose to fight against the Americans unless they are driven to it. Their only desire is to strengthen the bonds now existing."

Other members of the Filipino junta who were present when Agoncillo made his statement concurred in what he said and emphasized the latter's declaration that all his advices had been toward an avoidance of a rupture.

In other quarters it was stated that Agoncillo had sent dispatches from time to time, three rather long ones going within the last few days. According to the Filipinos nothing that has been sent advised fighting, but everything has counselled continued friendship. Under such circumstances the members of the junta assert that any incriminating dispatch which has come into the hands of the government is a forgery if it ascribes to Agoncillo any advice to Aguinaldo to begin fighting. Beyond denying this report Agoncillo said he had nothing to make public.

The fact is Aguinaldo has been so persistent in his efforts to get into a quarrel with this government, that some well informed persons suspect that if he wrote the dispatch it was with the deliberate intention of letting it fall into the hands of the administration. He evidently fancies that by keeping before the public eye in a threatening way he can cause pressure to be brought upon the state department for his recognition, as the easiest way to save further trouble. He probably did not realize that he was taking a pretty large risk.

Want a 'Square Deal."

Philadelphia, Jan. 28.—The Business Men's league yesterday offered rewards aggregating $25,000 for information leading to the discovery of purchase or attempt to purchase the vote or influence of members of the Pennsylvania legislature in the interest of any legislation and the conviction of the perpetrators.

Tomorrow's Almanac and Forecast.

The area of high pressure, central Thursday night in north Dakota, has moved southeastward and stretches in a ridge of high pressure from Texas to New England. The temperature has fallen sharply in this ridge, Albany and Boston reporting a fall of 30 degrees in 24 hours. Fair weather may be expected in New England. The temperature will remain nearly stationary. Brisk westerly to southwesterly winds may be expected on the north Atlantic, and brisk to high winds on the middle and south Atlantic coasts.

Sydney Smith's Prescription.

The late Henry Reeve, C. B., D. C. L., for many years leader writer of the London Times and until his death editor of the Edinburgh Review, has narrated much amusing gossip of the celebrities of his acquaintance in his "Memoirs and Correspondence." The book contains one great rarity—a new story of Sydney Smith.

Mr. Reeve was dining one night at a house where the other distinguished guests included Macaulay and Sydney Smith. Macaulay was at that time laying society waste with his waterspouts of talk. People in his company were always bursting for want of an opportunity of dropping a word, and this was not an exceptional occasion.

At length, dinner being over, Sydney Smith, Reeve and a few others went away by themselves, and immediately got on the overpowering subject of Macaulay.

"He confounds soliloquy and colloquy," said Reeve.

"He is a book in breeches," Smith declared.

"The very worst feature in Macaulay's character is his appalling memory," said Reeve.

"Aye, indeed," said Sydney Smith. "Why, he could repeat the whole 'History of the Virtuous Bluecoat Boy,' in three volumes, post 8vo, without a slip."

After a pause, as if of consideration, the witty divine added, "He should take two tablespoonfuls of the waters of Lethe every morning to correct his retentive powers."

Cheap Living.

Government experts say that a man can be well fed for 35 cents a day. This, however, means feeding men in mass. There is a man in Philadelphia, however, who laughs at this lavish expenditure, inasmuch as his bill of fare for the entire week only costs that amount. Twenty years ago he made up his mind that Americans ate too much. His staple meal is in the middle of the day, and it always consists of soup—good, rich soup—and a baked potato. Some days instead of the baked potato he has what southerners call cowpeas, which are extremely cheap and wholesome. They cost 5 cents a pound and swell very much in cooking. He cooks them with a bit of salt pork. Rice is also one of his staple foods and occasionally a little milk. He buys two loaves of stale bread a week, which cost 2½ cents a loaf. These are always toasted.

Cabbage is another article of diet, cheap and of great value. He has an arrangement with his grocer by which he buys the scraps of cheese left over from the large cuttings at 2 cents for a day's scraps. He is in sound health and has not had indigestion for 20 years.—New York World.

Linked Eyebrows.

It is popularly believed that if one's eyebrows meet it indicates deceit. Charles Kingsley indorses this belief, but Tennyson has other ideas and poetically speaks of "married brows."

In Turkey meeting eyebrows are greatly admired, and the women use artificial means to bring the brows to this condition, and if art cannot induce thin eyebrows to grow they make up by drawing a black line with paste.

It would appear that the Greeks admired brows which almost met, and the fashionable inhabitants of Rome not only approved of them, but resorted to pigments to make up the lack which sometimes existed.

Some proverbs state that the person whose eyebrows meet will always have good luck, while others state exactly the reverse. The Chinese say that "people whose eyebrows meet can never hope to attain to the dignity of a minister of state," and in Greece of today the man whose brows meet is said to be a vampire, while in Denmark and Germany it is said he is a werewolf.

The English of 1453.

The English population consisted of churchmen, nobles and craftsmen, as well as common people. It was a novel and significant division. Traders and manufacturers took their places somewhat noisily beside their fellow politicians of older standing, filling the whole land till it seems for a moment as if nothing counted any more in English life save its middle class—a busy, hard, prosperous, pugnacious middle class, slowly emerging from its early obscurity. In this century it had arrived at power definitely, ostentatiously, carrying a proud look and a high stomach, intent on its own affairs, heedless of the court, regardless of ministers save when it had to bribe them, irreverent to the noble, the "proud penniless with his painted sleeve," tolerant of ecclesiastics only so long as they could be kept rigidly within their allotted religious functions. — Denton's "England in the Fifteenth Century."

His Last Question.

The counsel for the opposition had been bullying the witness for an hour or more, when he finally asked:

"Is it true that there are traces of insanity in your family?"

"It would be folly to deny it," replied the witness. "My great-grandfather, who was studying for the ministry, gave it up to become a lawyer."—Exchange.

A Remarkable Vane.

On the roof of a brewery at Maidstone, Kent, is to be seen one of the most remarkable vanes in England. It represents an old brown jug and glass. The jug, which is made of copper, stands 3 feet 6 inches in height and is 3 feet in diameter and capable of holding 108 gallons.

Overdid It.

"I understand she married him to reform him."

"That was it. And she did the job so thoroughly that now he doesn't like the kind of woman he liked when he married her and is trying to get a divorce."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Porto Rican Shave.

The Porto Ricans, who are all, from their highest to the lowest, great dandies in their way, make soap out of cocoanut oil and homemade lye. And a fine soap it is, smooth and fragrant. This cocoanut oil soap is used for shaving. When a man wishes to have a shave in the morning, he starts out with his cocoanut shell cup and his donkey tail brush and bottle. It is never any trouble to find an empty bottle in Porto Rico, Cuba, Jamaica or almost any of the larger West India islands, even in remote spots in the mountains. At least 20 generations of thirsty people have lived there and thrown away the bottles.

The man carries no mirror. He is too poor to own such a luxury. Not one house in 20 in Porto Rico has even the very cheapest looking glass. But generally rich nature provides the mirror as well as the soap. The man goes to some convenient pool in the mountain stream where the water is quite still. There is his mirror. He breaks his bottle on a stone and deftly picks out a sharp piece of suitable size. Then he lathers his face profusely and begins to scrape away with his piece of glass, which in his hands works as well as the best steel razor. A cut, or even a slight scratch, is extremely rare as a result of this al fresco form of shaving.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Larynx.

The larynx has been compared to a wind, a reed and a stringed instrument. The comparison of it to a violin gave rise to the not very accurate phrase "vocal cords," as the name of the two cushions which are its most prominent features. But no string so short as those "vocal cords" could produce a musical bass note. In fact, the comparison of the larynx to any instrument which produces only musical tones is inadequate, to begin with. There is no instrument but the larynx which produces both song and speech, and as those comparisons view the larynx merely as a producer of musical sounds we have no further concern with them at present. Besides, the voice can be trained for speech, elocution and oratory without a knowledge of the physiology of the larynx.

We have the power of adjusting the larynx; of varying the tension of its cords, cushions or ligaments, as they have been variously called. We can do these things without scientific technical knowledge of how they are done, without any knowledge at all of vocal physiology, and it is the work of the trainer of the voice to teach his pupils—or her pupils we may be allowed to say—how to do them. — Chambers' Journal.

The Boy and the Hare.

A pleasant story of the Duke of Devonshire comes from Chatsworth. He was strolling, gun in hand, through one of his own fields near Baslow when he started a hare, which he shot, and was going to pick it up when a small boy jumped out of a neighboring hedge and warned him off. "Here, meester," cried the small boy peremptorily, "yo' must nae touch that."

"Why not?" asked the duke, amused, seeing that he was not recognized.

"Why, it's th' duke's," answered the boy, "an he'll have you locked up if he knows."

"Oh!" said his grace. "Then will you take charge of it?"

"Aye, that I will," answered the boy promptly. "Me fayther's a keeper."

Half an hour afterward the boy and the hare arrived in the kitchen at Chatsworth. The duke had taken a short cut home and had the boy brought to him. The little chap was dumb with terror when he learned what a mistake he had made, but the duke gave him a 5 shilling piece, called him "a good lad" and sent him away rejoicing.

Smart Little Girl.

A little girl who has just entered school jubilantly announced to her father that she had beaten all the girls above her in the arithmetic class and gone to the top.

"That was clever of you," said he encouragingly. "How was it?"

"Well, you see, the teacher asked the girl at the head how much was 8 and 5, and she didn't know and said 12, and the next girl said 9, and the next one said 11, and the next one said 14. Such silly answers! Then the teacher asked me, and I said 13, and she told me to go top. 'Course it was 13."

"That was nice," said the father. "I didn't think you could add so well. How did you know it was 13?"

"Why, I guessed it. Nobody said 18."—Pearson's Weekly.

[Special Correspondence.]

Great men are beginning to crowd each other in the old statuary hall at the capitol. Statuary hall, as most visitors to the big white building know, was formerly the chamber of the house of representatives, and the congress has devoted it to the exhibition of effigies of great men, each state in the Union being privileged to send two of its best men in marble or bronze to make the representation. A very few years ago the hall was occupied by only a few statues. Then interest in the matter developed in several states at the same time, and presently there was an increase in the number of effigies and an almost equal diversity of scale adopted for the statues. Almost before it was realized the hall began to look as if it was crowded. Unless some new arrangement could be made of the marble and bronzes it looked as if it would be necessary to set up a double row of them, which would give the men in the front row an unfair advantage.

The architect of the capitol has discovered a way of making room. He has determined to move out into the rotunda, under the great dome, the statues of national characters hitherto forming part of the collection in statuary hall. Visitors to the rotunda have been surprised to find such eminent and admired personages as Hamilton, Jefferson and even Washington entangled in coils of rope and suggesting the disagreeable possibility that all are presently to be hanged. But the ropes were about their heads and necks simply to enable the workmen to lift them to their pedestals when those foundations were ready.

Vifquain and the Double Dragon.

Senator Allen of Nebraska has introduced a bill to authorize Victor Vifquain of Nebraska to accept the decoration of the Double Dragon tendered him by the emperor of China. Under the constitution of the United States no person holding any office of profit or trust under the United States shall, without the consent of congress, "accept of any present, emolument, office or title of any kind whatever from any king, prince or foreign state." Colonel Vifquain is now colonel of the Third Nebraska infantry, having been promoted when William Jennings Bryan left the service, but under President Cleveland he was consul general at Panama. While acting as consul many of the Chinese inhabitants of Colombia were persecuted by the citizens of that country. Mr. Vifquain offered the Chinese assistance and hospitality at the American consulate in Panama. This was several years ago, but the information at last reached the Chinese emperor, and he expressed his gratitude by conferring the decoration upon the American official. The order of the Double Dragon was founded in 1881, and indicates personal merit.

Changes In Seats of Senators.

The death of the late Senator Morrill has caused a switching of seats on the Republican side of the chamber.

Mr. Chandler now occupies the seat of the late Mr. Morrill, he having filed his application in 1893, when it was reported Mr. Morrill intended to resign. Mr. Elkins has secured the seat of Mr. Chandler, thereby moving from the back row to a desirable place in the second row. Mr. Fairbanks got the seat of Mr. Elkins.

The retirement of so many Democrats in March will cause a shifting of seats on that side. Butler, the North Carolina Populist, will get the seat of Mr. Gray—the pick of the chamber, being on the end of the front row, next to the center aisle.

Mr. Murphy's seat will be occupied by Mr. McLaurin, and Mr. Gorman's desk, the most prominent on the Democratic side, has been pre-empted by Mr. Daniel of Virginia.

Agoncillo's Airs.

Agoncillo, the personal representative of Aguinaldo, has a high and mighty air. He is living in style at the Arlington hotel, accompanied by a retinue of servants, interpreters and the like. Being a man of much business, he finds it impossible to see callers except during specified hours. Newspaper men are afforded the sacred privilege of basking in the sunlight of his presence one hour each week, on Thursdays, between 11 and 12.

To Feed Federal Jurors.

The troublesome question of feeding a federal jury is proposed as a topic of legislation for the senate. A bill allowing this has passed the house, providing that in all cases the court when need therefor arises may order meals to be provided for the jury by the marshal and the reasonable expense thereof actually paid by the marshal shall be allowed the marshal in his accounts as part of the expenses of the court.

Cigar Makers and Expansion.

Protests from Illinois lodges of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America against the annexation and permanent retention of the Philippine Islands are being received by Senators Cullom and Mason. The cigar manufacturers claim if the Philippines are annexed the cigar business in this country will be ruined.

CARL SCHOFIELD.

Victoria's Autographs.

A curious instance of the relative values of Queen Victoria's autograph letters written early and late in her reign recently occurred when a letter written by her majesty to the queen of Sardinia, in 1848, telling her of the birth of Princess Louise, realized 58 shillings, while another written on Dec. 31, 1895, to the queen of Wurttemberg, announcing the birth of Prince Edward of York, fetched 4 guineas. The "bargain" of the collection seems to have been a signature of the queen when still Princess Victoria, in June, 1835, which was secured by a lucky bidder for the very modest sum of 2 shillings.

Castle Square Theatre.

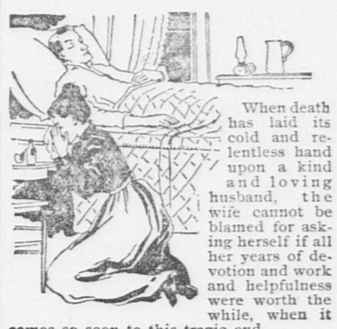
The attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week will be Margurite Merington's delightful comedy "Captain Lettarblair," which was written for and produced by Edward Sothern a half dozen years ago. Its only performances in this city were at the Hollis Street Theatre where the play proved an immense success. The hero, Capt. Lettarblair, is an army officer, a son of Ireland, with all the impetuosity of his nation, a true gentleman and a devoted lover of his cousin whose wealth proves an obstacle to his advances. The plot is developed very cleverly, the characters are strongly drawn and the dialogue is bright, witty and most cleverly written. For the Castle Square production the cast announced is as follows: Capt. Lettarblair Litten, J. H. Gilmour. Dean Ambrose, J. L. Seeley. Percival Pinckney, Tony Cummings. Francis Merivale, N. H. Fowler. Mr. Seton, Giles Shine. Jorkins, Lindsay Morison. Fanny Hadden, Lillian Lawrence. Polly Messiter, Mary Sanders. Hyacinth Messiter, Lizzie Morgan. Following "Capt. Lettarblair" on Monday, Feb. 6th, comes a production by the Castle Square company of J. R. Tillotson's comedy drama "Queena" which had a great success at the old Union Square Theatre in New York when originally brought out there some fifteen years ago.

Keith's Theatre.

Edwin Milton Royle and Selina Fetter, supported by Mamie Dupont, William Frederic and John Layfoot, will provide the dramatic attraction at Keith's Boston Theatre the week of Jan. 30, the name of the piece in which they appear being "The Highball Family," which Mr. Royle, the author, says is a homeopathic principle allopathically administered. To "point a moral and adorn a tale within the space of thirty minutes is a task of extraordinary magnitude," and that is what, according to a Western exchange, Edwin Milton Royle has done in "The Highball Family," an uproarious farce which provokes shouts of laughter, but which carries in every line and situation the most illuminating satire and the most unmistakable lesson. The lesson may not be palatable to some, but even those whom the shoe pinches will make much talk of this latest effort of Mr. Royle's pen. Other attractions will be: Edward F. Reynard, the famous English ventriloquist; the Baron's Dogs, said to be the greatest troupe of canines ever seen in this country.

☞ The cough that comes with the grip, or with a severe cold, is very exhausting and weakens the whole system. Instant relief can be had, if taken in time, by using the old family remedy, Crooker's KOFF KNOTS. On sale at druggists. They cost but ten cents, are absolutely pure—herbs, honey and sugar—and perfectly safe for children.

The greatest depth, writes Prof. Seeley in his "Story of the Earth," at which earthquakes are known to originate, is about 30 miles. It has also been calculated that a heat sufficient to melt granite might occur at about the same depth.



When death has laid its cold and relentless hand upon a kind and loving husband, the wife cannot be blamed for asking herself if all her years of devotion and work and helpfulness were worth the while, when it comes so soon to this tragic end.

If men would only take the most common sense precautions against the encroachments of ill-health, there would be fewer houses of mourning, and fewer women left alone almost helpless before the battle of life is half over. A man's liver and stomach are twin machines that work together, either to make or unmake. If they work wrong, they deplete and poison his blood. Impure and impoverished blood mean sickness and death. If they work right, they purify and enrich the blood. A man whose blood is rich and pure, and whose liver is active cannot well be unhealthy. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and costiveness, which men generally disregard, are Nature's warnings that the twin mechanism, stomach and liver, is working against, instead of for him. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine to use under these circumstances. It creates appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver and fills the arteries with rich, red, healthy blood. As an invigorating, restorative tonic, it is far superior to all the malt extracts. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It does not build sickly, flabby fat as cod liver oil does, but the firm, muscular tissues of health.

"For the last nine years," writes William Miller, Esq., of 651 Mulberry Street, Reading, Pa., "I have been very poor in health. I suffered with a running sore leg. I tried many kinds of different medicines, and doctors without relief. Then I used three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and can say that I am entirely cured. I can now do as good a day's work as the next man."

Unfailable—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for constipation and biliousness.

Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. I suffered after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack becoming more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although I was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN PIKE, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." THINKS IT IS SAFE.

Chairman Hull Counts Upon Passage of His Military Bill.

Peace Treaty Will Consume Senate's Time This Week.

Possibility That Final Action May Be Postponed For an Extra Session.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Interest centers in the army bill in the house of representatives during the early part of this week. The final vote will be taken at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Prior to this the debate will be under the five-minute rule in the main, although sufficient time has been reserved to give Mr. Bailey and some of the leaders an opportunity for extended speeches.

Chairman Hull, of the military committee, is confident the bill will pass, saying that the Republican disaffection will not exceed eight, while several affirmative votes will come from the Democratic side. The opposition will direct its efforts toward having the bill recommitted.

With the army bill disposed of, the house will turn its attention to the important river and harbor bill, and then to the military academy appropriation bill. The river and harbor bill probably will have Wednesday, with two hours' debate on a side. The military academy bill is not likely to take more time than is required to read it through.

No exact program has been fixed for the rest of the week, but Chairman Mercer, of the committee on public buildings and grounds, has been pressing for a hearing on some of the public building bills now pending, and he is likely to get a day. Chairman Lacey also wants a day on public land questions.

The Hawaiian bill is the most important piece of general legislation which will be urged to a hearing, although its friends may let it go over until next week.

The house continued the consideration of the army reorganization bill until 2 o'clock Saturday, when the members paid their tributes to the memory of the late Representative Simpkins of Massachusetts. Very little progress was made with the army bill, the only amendment adopted being that offered by the committee to give veterinary surgeons in cavalry regiments the rank, pay and allowances of second lieutenants. The time before the eulogies began was chiefly devoted to a continuation of the debate on the advisability of retaining the Philippines.

The senate will devote practically all of the time this week to the consideration of the peace treaty. Senator Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, says he will not interfere at any time with the consideration of the treaty by asking to have appropriation bills taken up, and as a consequence the treaty will have complete right of way.

This week will see the close of the memorable debate, both in executive session and in open senate, as the vote is set for 3 o'clock a week from today. Notice has been given of set speeches for every day except today. Senator Berry will speak tomorrow; Senator Spooner, Wednesday; Senator Rawlins, Thursday; Senator Money, Friday, and Senator Chilton, Saturday.

These speeches will be based upon the various resolutions in the general question of expansion, and will be delivered in open session. They will, however, be practically devoted to the treaty, and will afford senators an opportunity to say openly what they would say in secret session if the resolutions were not under consideration. There will be an effort to get the speeches in before 2 o'clock each day in order to permit the closing of the doors at 2 o'clock in accordance with the unanimous agreement to that effect, when the treaty will be taken up formally and the executive consideration of the subject proceeded with.

Senator Bacon and Senator Mason both announce their intention of continuing their efforts to get action upon their respective resolutions before the vote is taken upon the resolution to ratify the treaty, and hope to succeed some time during the week.

The friends of the treaty are still most sanguine of success and most of them announce that they will accept no compromise. Others express a willingness to accept some such resolution as that of Senator Sullivan. Those professing to know say it is the policy to force the treaty to a vote before taking action on any compromise proposition, and that if the treaty should by any chance be beaten to move to reconsideration and then to consider the question of accepting some compromise like the Bacon resolutions before final adjournment in March. Almost a month of session will be left after the vote of Wednesday week, so that if the senate should prefer to accept the treaty with a resolution of construction and instruction to postponing action for an extra session, it could do so.

A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate Saturday while the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was under consideration. The appropriation committee was sharply criticised for not providing adequate salaries for some of the consular officers and secretaries of legations of this government in foreign countries, and the parsimony of the government in this respect was denounced as a disgrace. Mr. Hale (Me.) was in charge of the bill, and, despite his protests, several amendments increasing the salaries of diplomatic officers were incorporated in the measure. The bill was passed. A recess of an hour and a half was taken to enable senators to attend the funeral of ex-Senator Garland.

Punishment Is Dismissal.

Washington, Jan. 30.—General Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, has been found guilty of the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and of conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline, and of the specifications thereto, and has been sentenced to dismissal from the United States army, but with a recommendation from the court for the exercise of executive clemency. Under the regulations, the court, having reached the conclusion that the accused was guilty, had no choice in selecting a penalty, the regulations prescribing absolutely the one punishment—dismissal—for the offense. Therefore, the only hope for General Eagan is in the direction of the commutation, mitigation or disapproval.

Extending Postal Service.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The postal service in Cuba is being vigorously pushed under the direction of ex-Assistant Postmaster General Rathbone at Havana, and military postal stations, in connection with the New York city postoffice and having money order and registry facilities, have been ordered established at seven more large towns, making 35 military postal stations there in all.

Three Strong Men.

Washington, Jan. 30.—President McKinley says that he has not yet selected a librarian for the congressional library, but may do so at any time. Thomas G. Alvord, chief clerk of the library, and Representative Barrows of Massachusetts are regarded as the leading candidates, though H. B. F. MacFarland, a well known newspaper correspondent, is being urged for the place by influential friends, including ex-Secretary Day.

Capitol Gleanings.

Representative Sereno Payne of New York has been appointed a member of the Canadian commission, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Dingley.

The executive committee of the American Boys' association, the object of which is to build a first-class battleship for the American navy, is in Washington consulting various officials in furtherance of the plan.

The department of state is informed by Minister Powell that the Haytien government will put in force the act passed by the chambers to increase all import duties 25 percent on and after Feb. 1, 1899.

A Fisherman's Experience.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 30.—Martin Olsen, a fisherman, was found in his dory off Salt island in an unconscious condition Saturday afternoon, after having been blown away from his schooner off Minot's light, last Thursday, and undergone untold hardships in battling with the waves of Massachusetts bay, with the temperature far below freezing. Edward Parsons, who picked up Olsen, took him to East Gloucester, where he was restored to consciousness. Olsen rowed all Thursday night and Friday, being blown 20 miles across the bay, the cold overpowered him, and Saturday afternoon he gave way. Fortunately Parsons discovered him an hour or two after.

An Expansionist.

Boston, Jan. 30.—Father Cummings, who visited the Ninth Massachusetts volunteers at Montauk point, lectured last night at the Columbia theater on his experiences in the camp. He made an appeal to the American people to support loyally the administration in the policy of expansion which the country is now entering upon. Grafton Cushing, who represented the Volunteer Aid association at Montauk, presided, and in his remarks blamed the American people for the needless deaths of soldiers, claiming that politics were responsible for the filling of important positions by men of insufficient ability.

Surplus Clothing and Jewelry.

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 30.—A man, who gave his name as James Lewis, applied for lodging at the police station last night, and upon being searched for liquor over $100 worth of jewelry was found pinned on an undershirt. The jewelry answered the description of that stolen on Dec. 15, from the house of Charles E. Davis of New Bedford. The man wore three undershirts, two vests, two pairs of pants, two jackets and an overcoat.

Killed His Wife.

Albany, Jan. 30.—Theodore Kirchner, aged 60 years, shot and instantly killed his wife, Paulina, aged 45 years, in their house in Newtonville yesterday. There was no apparent motive for the crime, and it was undoubtedly the result of the careless handling of a gun, which was accidentally discharged. Kirchner surrendered himself to the police.

Coasted to His Death.

Rochester, N. H., Jan. 30.—George Gagne, aged 5 years, was drowned yesterday in the Cocheco river. He went into the open water while coasting, and immediately went out of sight under the ice.

A PARADE OF CUBANS

Feature of the Celebration In Honor of the Memory of Marti.

Speeches Tend Toward Ultimate Independence.

Americans May Make Blunders, but They Are Likely to Be Corrected.

Havana, Jan. 30.—Four thousand persons, men in their best clothing and women gayly dressed, stood amid a pouring rain in Paula square yesterday listening to six intensely patriotic eulogies upon Joseph Marti, the Cuban patriot and first president of the Cuban revolutionary government.

A tablet to his memory was unveiled at the house where he was born, in a street near by, and two societies of 2500 persons, with banners, flags and five bands, marched through the principal thoroughfares to the square.

The procession, whose distinguishing feature was 500 girls wearing white dresses and red liberty caps, started at 1 o'clock, reaching the square two hours later. The streets were gayly decorated with Cuban and American flags, and though the interest ran high, there was no disorder of any kind.

Marti's widow, mother and sister led the parade, with the first Cuban flag used by the patriot, which was loudly cheered.

The eulogies contained few references to the United States or the military administration, and the only two vituperative references to the Spaniards were quietly received. The tendency of all the speeches was toward the ultimate independence of Cuba, which the orators recognized as a fact not yet accomplished. They declared that all Cubans should unite to reach the great end, to make their desires known to the world and to claim independence as a right when the proper time arrived.

Juan Gomez, a mulatto with a considerable reputation as an orator, made the best speech of the day. He counselled firmness, concord and determination as means to gain the coveted independence.

"The power which has intervened between the old regime and the one we are striving for," he said, "is unfamiliar with the ways and habits of our race, and naturally it will sometimes blunder in its efforts to fulfil its obligations to Cuba. The Cubans must realize this and keep it in mind. They must calmly indicate a mistake when it is made and have faith that the error will be corrected."

All the references to Cuba libre were applauded, and Marti was held up as an example for all Cubans. A telegram of salutation was sent to General Gomez. Only two Spanish flags were on view throughout the day, one over a building used by a Spanish steamship line and the other over the Banco Espanol.

The plan of General Gomez to unite the Spaniards in Cuba with the Cubans proper in a party whose platform should be the independence of the island, does not altogether thrive in the Spanish mind.

Some Spaniards say: "Yes, give us the Gomez program of amity." Others are silent. As for the annexationists, they are very outspoken in Havana, but more reserved in the interior of the island, where they are outnumbered and far from the protection of the American troops.

The Marquis of Pinar del Rio has caused some apprehension among the Spaniards by the assertion that during his recent visit to the United States he became convinced that the United States government did not intend to hold Cuba permanently. Spanish bankers decline to lend money or to give liberal credits because they fear that the American occupation will be brief and that the reconstruction of the insular system of government will be retarded in consequence.

Three Hundred Landed.

Halifax, Jan. 30.—Three hundred of the 2000 Doukhobors in quarantine on the steamer Lake Superior have been landed. All will have been landed by tomorrow. Not even a letter is allowed to come off the island. Several supposed new cases of smallpox prove to be harmless. Owing to the delay in completing accommodations the steamer will be detained a week longer than otherwise. There is no modern method of fumigating skin coats and other leather goods, and a plant ordered from New York has not arrived. The cotton and woolens will be carted ashore to the steam chests, but the leather goods must remain on shipboard to go through the sulphur fumigation when the ship's hatches are sealed.

All Well Loaded.

Boston, Jan. 30.—The 11 trans-Atlantic liners, which left this port last week, are believed to have represented the largest total gross tonnage which ever sailed from here in one week. Hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, thousands of tons of provisions, besides cattle, machinery and a general cargo, were exported.

Fight Against Liquor.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 30.—A majority of the Concord ministers yesterday praised the action of Mayor Martin in enforcing the prohibitory law. Selectmen in several of the adjoining towns have already followed Mayor Martin's example in compelling all bars to close.

With newspapers from Cuba, Hawaiian Islands, and the Philippines on our desk at the same time, we feel that expansion is at hand. The Hawaiian Star is the most advanced of the three, and its advertisements show American ideas in goods offered, as well as neat typographical appearance. The news columns speak of a high school graduation, Christmas trees and candies, an art exhibit, board of health business, arrival of bicycles, etc.

The City Council will be going to extremes, after its numerous one and two-year loans, if it extends a street improvement loan over forty years. It is fallacious to think such a long loan will be a relief. Loans spread over the years 1901 to 1908 inclusive within the debt limit would not be oppressive, as $120,855 61 is the total which falls due in these eight years. The large item which would be necessary on a forty year loan against us, and had much better be put directly into improvements.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Great preparations are being made in Boston for the reception of the President when he comes in response to the invitation of the Home Market Club to be its guest at its annual dinner next month. The Legislature will receive him also, and altogether the chief magistrate of the nation will receive honor due his high office.—Somerville Citizen.

☞ The Boston aldermen spent over $20,000 last year for carriage hire. Now is the time for Mr. Quincy to establish a municipal stable. — Lynn Item.

Rather, now is the time for him to see that the present extravagance does not become stable. — Newburyport News.

Some would like to declare Josiah insane, and confine him in a horse-pital but he appears to be well shod and sharpened and wins every heat; he will soon be in the Governorship race.

☞ Wouldn't it be a very good idea to settle the Spanish treaty difficulty quickly, and then turn the army and navy loose on the Philippine insurgents and teach them the proper way to entertain guests?—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The debate upon expansion goes on in the senate, but the poignancy of the interest in it is reduced since it has become known that a vote upon the Spanish treaty is to be taken on Feb. 6, and it has become apparent that opposition may be expected to wear itself out in speech-making. That the treaty will be ratified is confidently expected, and the president's firm and definite attitude will do much toward bringing that result about.—South Framingham News.

☞ "Young women are too stylish," said a clergyman in a sermon recently. "They want a house and lot and the house furnished before they will consent to wed." Well, the girls are not altogether blameworthy. There are enough of them living from hand to mouth with improvident husbands now.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Hon. Andrew D. White, the American Embassador at Berlin, says that the insinuations that have prevailed in the American press regarding the unfriendliness of Germany, are utterly baseless. Mr. White ought to know what he is talking about and it will be a source of much gratification to all Americans, and especially the German Americans, to be assured that there is no friction between the fatherland and the great republic.—Barre Times.

☞ Brockton is interested in the passage of the Means electric freight bill. There is no reason why the electric systems could not be successfully and satisfactorily employed in carrying freight.—Brockton Times.

☞ About all of the Old Colony papers are discussing the merits of district attorney Robert O. Harris of Bridgewater for attorney general next fall. Of course they endorse him because he as the ability to fill the position.—Hyde Park Gazette.

☞ The Boston Herald bewails the presence of the tinplate trust; and yet it was the Boston Herald which not a great many years ago was ridiculing the idea that tinplate would ever be made in this country. What a confoundedly changeable world this is!—Milford Journal.

☞ Dewey's four hours' fighting at Manila was a knockout blow to American contractionists. Against its results Hoar's speeches, Bryan's declamations and Carnegie's pocketbook will prove impotent and unavailing. — Beverly Times.

☞ The larceny of a house is a rather unusual charge and suggests a monumental kind of theft; yet this is exactly the crime with which a resident of Quincy is charged. He is a builder, and failing to secure his pay for a house he had erected, simply had it moved during the night to a lot owned by himself.—Brockton Times.

☞ On the last day he was in Washington Gen. Lawton called up a young fellow who had tried in vain to get into the Spanish war, and told him to come to the War Department at once. "Get a move on, young man," he said, "you are to go with me to the Philippines tomorrow and you have got to go over to New York tonight." The young man got a move on hurried to the department, secured his appointment, rushed home and while his mother packed his trunk went out and married his best girl, and was off with Lawton on the midnight train, leaving wife, mother and father (who was an old comrade of Lawton's on the plains) wondering what had happened. A boy of 22 with so much hustle in him, is sure to make his mark in the Philippines.—Lynn Item.

Sudden Death.

Deacon Jones Howe, one of Wollaston's oldest and most respected citizens passed away at two o'clock Sunday morning after a brief illness of bronchopneumonia. For over 28 years Deacon Howe and his worthy wife, who is now dangerously sick with the same disease, have been residents of Wollaston. It was but a comparatively short time ago that their golden wedding was observed. They were both constituent members of the First Baptist church of Wollaston.

Deacon Howe was born at Holden, Mass., in 1819. By trade he was a mason. Up to within a few years all of the cellar walls for houses at Wollaston were his handiwork.

He was a gentleman of the old school and was beloved and respected by all with whom he came into contact.

Besides his wife two children survive him,—Mrs. Lucy Howe Elliot and Mr. Franklin A. Howe.

Thomas & Miller Win.

Thomas & Miller, the well known, high classed, granite manufacturers, have received settlement on a law suit, that has been running in the New York courts for eight years This case is of great importance to the granite business, inasmuch as the defendant tried to rescind a contract when partly completed. Thirty-six different judges have passed upon it, the defendant won at three trials, and the plainiffs were victorious at four trials. On the last decision of the Court of Appeals it was the unanimous opinion that the defendant was in error, and the plaintiffs should be paid the verdict of the lower courts and all costs. The costs of the courts and attorneys fees amounted to over $2500.00.

THE HOUSE LARCENY.

Real Estate Men and Builders Interested.

Defendants Plead Not Guilty.

A Bill in Equity and an Injunction are Pending.

The case of Alfred Shaw and William H. Cavanagh, who moved the dwelling house at Norfolk Downs recently in the night, and against whom a warrant for the larceny of the building had been sworn out by Nils M. Anderson, came up for hearing in the District court this morning. The government was represented by Judge Pratt of the Abington court and W. W. Jenness represented the defendants.

The defendants waived the reading of the complaint and entered a plea of not guilty. Counsel for the defendant then asked for a continuance on the ground that a bill in equity and an injunction covering the same matter were now pending in the Suffolk Superior court. Counsel for the government objected, but the court ordered a continuance unil Thursday, February 9.

Much interest is being taken by real estate men and builders all over the State in this case and many builders were noticed in attendance at court. As many important questions are involved the outcome will be awaited with interest.

Counsel Jenness stated in court that it had been reported in the newspapers that Mr. Shaw had legal advice before he moved the building, and further that he was Mr. Shaw's counsel. He desired to inform the court that he was not consulted about the moving of the building.

Second Attempt.

The alarm from Box 49 at 9.20 Sunday night was for a slight fire in an unoccupied house off West street, owned by Adolph Wittich. The fire when discovered was in the pantry down stairs and apppearances indicated that the fire had been set by someone on the outside who opened the window and applied the match. On the outside of the building was a tomato can which had contained oil and there was a strong odor of kerosene on the inside of the house. The damage will not exceed $225.

This is the second time that an attempt has been made to burn this house within a few days, although previous attempts was not discovered until Sunday.

That afternoon Mr. Wittich visited the house to show it to a party. While looking about it was discovered that a previous attempt had been made to burn the building. In a closet upstairs a quantity of burned paper was found, and the floor was saturated with oil. The fire had evidently smothered itself out.

The Winner Lost.

Warren E. Birse and John P. Kennedy both live at East Weymouth. Last Thursday night shortly after midnight, or rather early Friday morning, Birse called at the Kennedy mansion and asked to come in. Kennedy let him in and the two then began to play "High Low Jack" for money. At first the limit was fifty cents and was then raised to $1. Sometimes Birse was ahead of the game and sometimes Kennedy was. The two played until 7 o'clock the next morning, when Kennedy found himself $16 out. This he claims Birse obtained by claiming more points than he actually made. Kennedy then had a warrant issued against Birse and he was brought into court this morning.

The Late Mrs. Spear.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Horace B. Spear were held at her late home on Adams street, on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The services, which were very simple yet impressive, were conducted by the Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, the pastor of the First church. Rev. Mr. Butler read "I am the Resurrection and the Life," and made a prayer. Two of Mrs. Spear's favorite hymns,—"Nearer my God to Thee" and "O Paradise!" — were sung by Miss Mary Virginia Hastings. There were a large number of flowers sent by the relatives and immediate friends of the family. The interment was in the family tomb at the Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

FORTY YEAR LOANS.

Why a Councilman Would Extend Street Improvement Debt.

Councilman Bryant, the chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council has been interviewed by the Ledger as to the order, requesting the Legislature to authorize a loan of $150,000 outside the debt limit of the city, for street improvements. It was his claim that if the Legislature passes the bill, that it simply gives the city the right to use such portion thereof of the 150,000. As it needs from year to year on making permanent improvements on the streets, mainly in widening them, and at the same time allowing the city to extend the payment over a period of 40 years, whereas under the general statutes all payments for improvements, etc., must be made in 10 years.

For example, supposing that the city concluded to widen Coddington street at an estimated expense of $40,000. Under the present loans the entire cost must be paid within 10 years, or at the rate of $4,000 per year. Under the proposed act the city can draw against this $150,000 to the extent of $40,000 for this specific improvment, issuing bonds therefor to that amount, payable in sums of $1,000 annually for 40 years; thus making future generations bear the burden of improvements which directly benefit them more than they do us, as we are taking the real estate while it is cheap and rushing these permanent improvements through, because in 20 or 30 years hence in order to do this same work the expense would be vast owing to the appreciation of real estate values. It is not proposed to borrow this $150,000 in a lump sum, but to get the right too use such parts thereof as are needed in permanent highway improvements, from year to year, and to have the payments extended over a period, so that those whom these undertakings are intended to benefit should also be called upon to pay directly their just share.

BROTHERHOOD.

Clan Mc Gregor and Loyal Ladies Allies of the Church.

Members of Clan McGregor to the number of nearly 100, and about half as many Loyal Ladies, accepted the invitation of Robert Westly Peach on Sunday evening, and there was a crowded house at the First Presbyterian church.

It was in some respects a Burns' anniversary, the special subject being suggested by the birthday of the Scotch poet, the pastor announcing as his subject, "Some aspects of brotherhood, with illustrations from the poems of Burns."

The scripture reading was from the last part of the 17th chapter of Acts which furnished themes for the introductory and sermon. In opening, the Rev. Mr. Peach said, there were in every community many who were not regular in church attendance. He was gratified to see so many out on this special occasion, and it was his devout wish that some say, as in the chapter read, "I will hear you again." The pastor took occasion also to say that the church endorsed the fraternal and benevolent objects of the orders represented, as allies in good work and a help to the church.

The special text was found in Acts 17: 26—"God hath made of one blood all nations of men." He spoke of the common origin of brotherhood, and quoted freely from the poems of Burns during his discourse. Special consideration was given to the brotherhood of man, race brotherhood, and the closer brotherhood of companionship, protection and friendship. Everything in the life of Burns was not commended, and it was necessary to be guarded in reading his poems. A brotherhood should be more than a mutual aid to its members, it should protect the honor of a brother's wife, sister and daughter. In friendship brothers should yearn for a fellow brother's eternal blessing.

The singing led by Mr. Charles Stewart was a feature of the service, and included a solo by Mr. Frazier.

Subscription Dance.

The subscription dance given by Mr. C. Frederick Howe, Mr. John Bainbridge and Mr. Stanley Hall, assisted by Mr. Robert B. Witham, Mr. Joel Pillsbury and Mr. Harry Hall at Brasee's hall, Wollaston, on Saturday evening was a brilliant society event. There were about thirty couples present, Quincy, Braintree and Dorchester all being represented by large contingents. The music was sublime. There were three pieces in the orchestra, with the famous Thomas Mullaly of the Boston Cadet band, who by-the-way is also a member of the Quincy Yacht club, as cornetist.

The matrons were Mrs. John A. Barbour and Mrs. H. T. Whitman.

Funeral services over the remains of Mr. George A. Sherman, the architect, were held at his late home at Wollaston Park on Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. Edward Norton. There was music by a quartette and a wealth of floral offerings. The interment was at the Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

James P. Fitzgerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzgerald of Brackett street, died very suddenly Sunday morning. The young man had been a sufferer from the grip, and undoubtedly this malady was indirectly the cause of his sudden demise. He was in his twenty-second year. The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning from St. John's church and will be attended by Division 18, A. O. H, of which body he was a member.

The New England Telephone Co. has increased the efficiency of its service by adding the suburban exchanges to the places which can be had free of charge under the local 500 call measured service system. Up to within a few days subscribers to this system only had the privilege of calling 500 times free of charge, parties connected with the local exchange, but with the new additions many more subscribers will doubtless be connected. Five hundred calls in a year is more than the average private family would use, for it means about two calls a day which is considerable when one comes to think of it.

WHY IT FAILED.

The Quincy Boulevard Project Reviewed.

Refusal of Land Owners to Co-operate.

Ex-Representative Thompson Writes at Length.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In your issue of Jan. 26, you comment upon the action of the Metropolitan Park Commission, in its decision respecting the Quincy Boulevard, and say, "To secure a larger appropriation from the Legislature in 1897 it coerced the representative from Quincy, who was a member of the Ways and Mean Committee, by an intimation that $200,000 would be expended in Quincy."

This is a mistatement and misleading, which I cannot believe you knowingly intend, and it may not be out of place to state a few facts:

In the winter of 1896 I presented to the Legislature a petition and bill of the Mayor of Quincy and others, "To construct a Boulevard in Quincy." The matter was referred to the joint Committee on Metropolitan Affairs. In due time a public hearing was given and the petitioners and eminent citizens, supported by equally prominent non-residents, former citizens, made able presentation of the benefits to be derived by this community not alone, but the contiguous parts in the Metropolitan District as well, and speaking in private and public capacities argued strongly with the great benefits accuring to the public by the reservation for all time of the shore front. The low cost at which the land could be obtained, it being stated by the petitioners if action was then had the land could be obtained for a nominal sum; also being in keeping with the statute empowering the Metropolitan Park Commission to condemn lands and improve the same for breathing places and places of recreation, they hoped the committee would take favorable action and recommend to the Legislature an appropriation of the sum asked.

Numerous petitions of similar character from many sections of the district were presented and heard by the same committee, but in my opinion none impressed itself upon the committee more strongly than the Quincy one. But the action of the committee, in keeping with that of its predecessors, refused all specific appropriations, reporting instead a gross sum be placed at the disposal of Metropolitan Park Commissioners for boulevard and parkway purposes. This passed.

By subsequent action at this session the Legislature postponed until year 1900 the proportional assessments commencing in 1896, levied upon the cities and towns in the district for sinking fund and interest requirements incured for park, parkway and boulevard purposes, without providing the means to the Treasurer of the Commonwealth to meet the requirements imposed under the several park acts. The Treasurer under the advice of the Attorney General retained and set aside of the Park appropriation of 1896 a sufficient sum to meet the requirements of the five year period, 1896 to 1900 inclusive, leaving the Metropolitan Park Commission stranded, and making impossible proceeding with any new undertakings.

Upon the assembling of the Legislature of 1897, with the non-performance of expected work in the district, after the supposed tc be liberal appropriations of 1896, and a multitude of new petitions urging similar work awaiting presentation, produced many grumblings and unjust criticisms against the commission. In view of the confusion produced by the postponement of the proportional assessments in 1896, and to meet the arguments advanced of incompleteness of the park system, and with a fair knowledge of the benefits to be derived by the several communities because of it, the governor in his inaugural suggested all takings be had before the year 1900, and as a meritorious one referred to the Quincy bay shore as a most proper and necessary one to balance, if that were possible, the very liberal expenditure at Revere beach.

The Metropolitan Park Commission, in its report, made most favorable references to the matter, and were as committal as any judicious board could be expected, contemplating the acquirement of lands along a fixed route by gift, purchase, or otherwise.

In due time the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs reported the sum of $1,000,000 be placed at the disposal of Park Commission for parkway and boulevard purposes. Under the rules of the House the report was referred to the Ways and Means Committee, of which I had the honor to be a member. The commission by its chairman, other members of the board, and its secretary, appeared at the hearings granted by the committee, made frank statement of its purposes, presented elaborate plans, gave much data and in answer to the question, "if a million dollars were appropriated where was the money to be expended," named several important projects, the Quincy bay shore being one of them.

I believed the statement, confirmed later by the acts and records of the board, however much its chairman would now evade or deny. My official action was voluntary and a free one, dictated by my belief it was in the interest of my constituency. No coercion, or pressure, could or would have been permitted.

The appropriation after some tribulation finally became a law in the summer of 1897. The Commission now having the means proceeded to act. Further surveys and plans determining the route of the Quincy boulevard, the width of the taking, etc., were had. The unwelcome information that much of the property had changed hands, and what was previously to e obtained at a nominal sum was now an uncertainty, confronted them. Where, as they understood, cooperation awaited them, an indifference existed; even a refusal to name a price for the land; for the agent of the commission after many months was able to obtain only 16 per cent. in options, nd yet the owners knew all might be lost if definite cost was withheld, as no specific appropriation existed, and honor alone bound the commission to execute. After fruitless efforts and many protests at changed condition the Park Commissioners decided adversely.

The action of the city government and the representative meeting of citizens at the commissioners' office in Boston, the first and only effort of that kind, except by the petitioners and individuals, in furtherance of the scheme, is fresh in the minds of all. I am sorry so much delay followed that meeting, as by its character and numbers it made its impress, and nothing is more powerful with officials than an aroused public sentiment. With our most influential citizens ready and anxious to further the matter it should have been pushed.

The object of this communication is to correct your misstatement, and restate facts that the public may make its own deductions as to why this great improvement has failed to materialize.

Yours truly,

James Thompson,

Member of the Ways and Means Committee, House '97-'98.

One of Toole's Jokes.

One of Toole's greatest practical jokes was as follows: He once gave a supper to 80 of his friends and wrote a note to each of them privately beforehand, asking him whether he would be so good as to say grace, as no clergyman would be present. It is said that the faces of those 80 men as they rose in a body when Toole tapped on the table as a signal for grace was a sight which will never be forgotten.

IMITATES DEATH THAT WILL

Pennsylvania Youth Who Deceives the Physicians.

DIEFFENDERFER'S ODD POWER.

He Can Imitate a Mesmeric Subject Perfectly and Endure Pain Without Wincing—For Four Months He Completely Deceived the Jail Doctors.

In Albert Dieffenderfer, who lives at Hinkletown, a small village near Reading, Pa., the officers of the law recently secured a strange character. He can throw himself into a cataleptic state at will, can imitate a mesmeric subject perfectly, can appear as if dead, can suffer needles to be thrust into his body, can endure hot irons placed at his feet and can resist electric shocks, the sudden dash of cold water, a plunge into ice water and other rough and unusual treatment, all without wincing or showing a sign of life. He deceived the Lancaster county officials for four months so completely that he was transferred from the jail where he was confined to the hospital. Finally one night recently his opportunity arrived, and when morning dawned the supposed unconscious cataleptic had disappeared.

Dieffenderfer comes from a good family, but when still a lad a few years ago was sent to the Huntingdon reformatory. There he excited unusual attention among the boys by his imitation of death. He could undergo about any sort of punishment and had such control of his nerves that he could endure pain and even torture without wincing. He was on his good behavior, however, and was finally released on parole and sent home to his people in Lancaster county. He had not been home long before he was suspected of being concerned in a burglary. When an attempt was made to arrest him, he wounded several constables.

Four months ago he was placed in the jail at Martindale. Soon after this he startled the jail officials by appearing as if dead in his cell. They thought he was in a trance. He was seen to breathe, but he could not be aroused. No matter what was done to him, with heat or with cold, with needles or an electric battery, the young man lay there, apparently unconscious. The prison physician diagnosed the case as seemingly one of catalepsy. The attention of the court was directed to the matters and a committee of three physicians was appointed to investigate.

The physicians made a thorough and rigid inquiry. Dieffenderfer stood every test. On the strength of the report of this committee the court ordered the lad to be removed from the jail to the hospital. He remained there as a remarkable cataleptic patient until Nov. 20, when the guard at 5 a. m. discovered that he had vanished. With him went the clothing of another patient, as Dieffenderfer's had been locked up.

The patient disappeared during a howling blizzard. For awhile it was feared that he had perished in the mountains if he had escaped while out of his mind. For days nothing was heard from him. Then he was found at the house of his grandfather, John McCarthy, at Hinkletown. The lad told the constable that he had walked all the way from Lancaster to his grandfather's; that he had trudged through the snow alone and unaided all the way in his weakened condition; that several times he felt as if he must drop and perish in the cold, but that the same will power which he had employed in his game of possum in jail and hospital had carried him through. In speaking of his experiences while in custody he said he could not keep up the deception any longer, as it was too hard on his nerves, and that he was obliged to keep up the semblance of death so very long because the attendants watched him so closely. He is thin and pinched, yet he looks fairly well in flesh, because he invariably rallied to consciousness at long intervals when driven by hunger.

Those who know Dieffenderfer best say he was not playing possum all the time. His condition may not have been total unconsciousness at all times and he may have been conscious at intervals and still kept up his appearance to deceive those about him, all for a purpose, they admit. When in a cataleptic condition, he is insensible to pain. It was nothing for his arms to remain outstretched for an hour while in a standing position. Finally the muscles would relax and the limbs would fall. The movement of his heart and lungs is normal, and the patient can be fed for weeks through a tube leading into the stomach.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Standing In Death.

William Nelson told a remarkable story at the coroner's inquest recently at Tesla, Cal., into the killing of Ole Eikland by an electric wire. Eikland was not killed by grasping the wire, but ran into it with his face. Death was instantaneous, but his comrades did not know it and could not understand how a dead man could stand on his feet with his face against a live wire for several minutes. Nelson testified that he saw Eikland strike the wire, and he immediately tried to push him away. Eikland could not be moved, and Nelson thought he was "asleep," meaning shocked. Nelson tried to push his companion away from the wire half a dozen times, but could not move him. He then went to another man, and the two together took Eikland from between the cars and discovered he was dead.—Oakland Special San Francisco Call.

Seeks Connubial Bliss.

When a man has been a helpless invalid for 12 years and suddenly announces that he is no longer ill and is now a candidate for matrimony there can be no better evidence of his perfect restoration to health. This is what that scientif- wonder, Brazilian Balm has accomplished in this case as well as in hundreds of others. It is one of the marvels of the age. The pre-eminent characteristic of Brazilian Balm is that it does not merely benefit but makes radical and permanent cures People long invalided by the ravages of Grippe, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Throat, Stomach or Nervous troubles are not only improved in health but fully restored, all made over new again, they claim and experience the vigor, activity, hopes and ambitions of youth once more. This seems to be the case with Mr. Cunningham whose portrait and letter we give herewith. For the truth of his statements he writes he can testify in any court and all his neighbors know it as well as his own people. Here is his letter:

For about twelve years have had stomach trouble and general debility. Have changed climate many times. From one trip to Colorado was brought home on a bed. The last year was spent in Florada. Employed the season physicians during this time and many local [illegible] no permanent relief till [illegible] Brazilian Balm. I am now so fully restored to health that would be pleased to find a congenial companion. Have a modest home and would be pleased to answer all letters from ladies matrimonially inclined of over 28 years with $5000.00 or more to their credit.
Sincerely yours.

CANCER CURED
BY ABSORPTION
NO KNIFE.

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist. A pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvellous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

The Twelfth Week.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 30.—With today commenced the 12th week of the labor troubles here, and it would seem that the settlement is nearly as far off as ever. The manufacturers operate their factories, partially, at least, and the substantial part of the business community feels keenly the discouraging conditions. A mass meeting was held by the strikers last evening, the attendance being large. The Canadian element connected with the strikers also held a meeting, the speeches being made in French.

An Erratic Island.

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—The news has been brought here from Australia that the British man-of-war Penguin has just returned to Sydney, N. S. W., after taking soundings between the islands of Longh and Auckland, N. Z. The officers found that Falcon island, which suddenly came up out of the ocean in 1885, is gradually receding. When relocated by the Penguin's officers they discovered that the island is now three fathoms under water.

Commission Wants $200,000.

Boston, Jan. 30.—The report of the Gypsy moth commission of the state board of agriculture has been made public, and its most striking feature is the emphasis with which the commission urges upon the legislature immediate appropriation of $200,000 for carrying on the work. The commission claims that the inability to exterminate the pest is due to the delay in appropriations.

ENGLAND'S BATTLES.

A Prediction That They Will Be Fought With Yankee Aid.

True Meaning of British and American Friendliness.

Significant Utterances by Two Influential Members of the Government.

London, Jan. 30.—Walter H. Long, president of the board of agriculture, addressing the Farmers' club at Newcastle, used the word "alliance" in referring to the future relations between Great Britain and the United States. The frank employment of this term by a member of the government is likely to evoke much discussion, not all of which will be of the friendliest character, inasmuch as seeking an alliance to fight England's battles is not regarded as the best policy to promote an Anglo-American entente.

Mr. Long, who had been discussing the proposals to establish national granaries, and had said that "after all, and in last resort, England's safety depended upon having a navy strong enough to meet any possible combination the nations could bring against her," proclaimed as follows: "I am glad of our improved relations with our American cousins, because I believe the true meaning of that increased friendliness is that the Americans have realized our blood relationship and have firmly resolved that, if Great Britain is called upon to face difficulties, she shall not face them alone, but in alliance with her wealthy and populous sister country, the republic of the United States. I am confident, seeing that the two countries are pursuing the same policy and have the same ends in view, they must be friends, firm and true to one another."

Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, speaking in Birmingham at the annual dinner of the Jewellers and Silversmiths' association, said: "We now see our cousins across the Atlantic entering the lists and sharing in a task which might have proved too heavy for us alone. Under the circumstances, the first business of this, the worst government of modern times, is to draw closer the bonds which unite us to the other members of the English speaking race and to promote their co-operation in the great work of civilization, which appears to be the mission of the Anglo-Saxon race."

Speaking of the government's imperial policy, Mr. Chamberlain said: "Providence shapes our ends and intends us to be a great governing power, conquering, in order to civilize, administer and develop vast areas of the world's surface, primarily to our advantage, but to their own advantage as well.

"As to the result of this mission hitherto, an impartial witness, Rear Admiral George Dewey, has said that one of the mightiest factors in the civilization of the world is the imperial policy of England. But it will not be longer the imperial policy of England alone, for all the nations that have sprung from our loins will share in the task which has hitherto fallen upon our shoulders alone."

Harcourt Going Abroad.

London, Jan. 30.—A meeting of the Liberal members of the house of commons has been convened for Feb. 6, to discuss the question of party leadership in the house. The proceedings, it is expected, will be very brief, and Sir Henry Campell-Bannerman, who was chief secretary for Ireland in 1884, and secretary for war in 1886, and again from 1892 to 1895, and who now represents Stirling district, will be chosen leader.

SIR WILLIAM HARCOURT.

Mr. Harcourt, whom he is to succeed as party leader in parliament, is still engaged in writing long and brilliant letters to The Times on the church ritual question, and in denunciation of the so-called "Roman Catholic revival." He will shortly go abroad to remain until May.

Under Martial Law.

Colon, Jan. 30.—The strike conditions do not improve. A special train from Panama brought reinforcements Saturday night, and now the whole city is under military guard. Nevertheless, an uneasy feeling prevails everywhere, for, though quiet has been restored, fears are entertained on all sides that the striking dock men and railway employes are only awaiting an opportunity to fire the city. A proclamation was issued yesterday forbidding the assembling together in public places of more than three persons, under pain of imprisonment.

To Utilize a Bank.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—The government's new departure in issuing a loan through a single bank, instead of directly to the public or through a syndicate, is almost the exclusive topic in circles principally affected. In some quarters it is believed that the Deutsche bank will be chosen as the government's medium, because this institution has the best connections with Great Britain and the United States, where some portions of the loan might be placed.

Friendly Toward Americans.

Manila, Jan. 30.—According to a dispatch just received from Iloilo, at the election held on Jan. 17 Senor Ramon Melliza was chosen president of the so-called Visayan federation for a term of two years, his predecessor, General Lopez, being appointed commander-in-chief of the forces of the revolutionary government. Senor Melliza is kindly disposed to the Americans, and it is hoped that the difficulty between the natives and the United States authorities will be settled amicably.

Orleanists Are Busy.

London, Jan. 30.—The Brussels correspondent of The Daily News says The Duke of Orleans holds daily receptions for the Orleanists in Brussels. A local factory has received an order for thousands of buttons adorned with his portrait and bearing the inscription: "Le Roi Est Rentre. Vive Le Roi." Many royalists are already wearing these buttons.

THE DUKE OF ORLEANS.

Smoothing It Over.

London, Jan. 30.—It is semi-officially asserted here, says the Berlin correspondent of The Times, that all three protecting powers have agreed to refrain from sending further naval reinforcements to Samoa.

Murder at Pana.

Pana, Ills., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Mary McIntyre, a wealthy widow, 60 years old, was found murdered in her home yesterday. The body had been frightfully mutilated with an ax. Mrs. McIntyre is supposed to have kept considerable money about her. She lived alone in a small house. It is supposed that the crime was committed two or three days ago. Neighbors became suspicious when Mrs. McIntyre failed to appear at church, as was her habit. The doors of her home were broken open. Everything about the place showed that a desperate struggle had occurred. Everything of value had been carried away by the murderers. Mrs. McIntyre is said to have sympathized with the union miners in their struggle against negro labor. Her house has been fired a number of times.

Nearly All to Wife,

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 30.—The will of the late Congressman Dingley has been filed for probate. The will first makes a small bequest to each of his children and grandchildren. All the remainder of his estate, personal and real, is left to Mrs. Dingley. At Mrs. Dingley's death, this property is to be divided "equally among the children, or in such proportion as their circumstances may require." It is expressed as his especial wish that one or more of his sons shall succeed to his interest in the Lewiston Journal company. Mrs. Salome M. Dingley, and the eldest son, Henry A. Dingley, are appointed executors without bonds. The will was written by Mr. Dingley himself in Lewiston Oct. 21, 1897.

Cuban Politics.

Havana, Jan. 30.—This promises to be a lively week in Cuban politics. The special commission from the Cuban military assembly will return to Havana after its interviews with the Washington government, and popular interest is increasing in the preparations for the mass meeting on Feb. 6 at the Tacon theatre, when a Separatist party, proclaiming the principles of independence, will be founded under the direction of such men as Senor Gilberga, a noted autonomist; General Leyte Vidal, General Lacret, Senor Font Sterling and other opponents of annexation.

Disastrous Snowfall.

Apex, Colo., Jan. 30.—Three lives were lost in a snowslide here yesterday. The dead: Mrs. W. H. Rudolph and her two children, aged 2 and 4. Snow has been falling almost continually during the past week, and had reached a depth of 15 feet on the mountain sides. The pack gave way yesterday, swept down on the Rudolph home and carried it away. Rudolph escaped, but his wife and three children were swept in the avalanche of snow. Searching parties rescued the 6-year old son alive. The other three have not been found.

Magazine Exploded.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 30.—A fire which, it is believed, was started by boys on Stratford meadows yesterday, communicated to one of the magazines of Billings & Clambitt, used for storing explosives, and caused a heavy explosion. There was a ton of dynamite and 25 kegs of powder stored in the house. There was no loss of life and the money loss will not exceed $500. The shock was felt throughout this city, Stratford and Derby, and the noise was heard as far away as New Haven. Many windows were wrecked.

KOUTNIK'S QUEER STORY.

May or May Not Furnish a Clue In the Adams Poisoning Mystery.

New York, Jan. 30.—Interest in the Adams poisoning case centered at police headquarters yesterday. A story was current that George W. Koutnik, a young man living in Hoboken, N. J., had furnished one of the missing links to the police. He told the police that on the evening of Dec. 23 he had met a man at Madison avenue and Fortieth street, who asked him to deliver a package addressed to Harry Cornish at the Knickerbocker Athletic club. This he refused to do, he said, but agreed to mail the package at the general postoffice, which he did. According to his story, also, the man from whom he received the package answered the description of one of the men prominently mentioned in the poisoning case.

Koutnik was taken before officials at police headquarters, and after the conference Koutnik was detained as a witness in the case.

George W. Koutnik, who is better known as William Koutnik in Hoboken, has, however, been before the public eye several times before. He was married on Sept. 28 last, and two days later, according to the Hoboken police reports, what was supposed to be his corpse was found in the Hackensack river. The report that Koutnik had drowned himself was given extensive publication. It subsequently developed that Koutnik had simply disappeared from Hoboken, and that the drowning story had been planned some time before. To aid the deception Koutnik's hat had been thrown into the river and portions of his clothing were found on a pier.

Regarding Koutnik's story to the New York police, Captain McClusky said it is now under investigation. He declined to say how much weight he attached to it.

Parks Charged With Murder.

Kittery, Me., Jan. 30.—At the coroner's inquest on the death of Mrs. Mary E. Tarlton the jury returned a verdict holding Frank Parks on a charge of premeditated murder. The report was at once handed to County Solicitor Matthews, who swore out a warrant for Parks' arrest for murder in the first degree. There is a report here that Parks will plead guilty. The penalty for the offense in this state is life imprisonment. The warrant charges Parks with deliberately committing an assault upon Mrs. Tarlton, from the effects of which she died. When found last Monday afternoon the unfortunate woman, who was over 80 years of age, was suffering from fearful wounds on the head and shoulders, apparently inflicted with a bottle. Mrs. Tarlton died the next day.

Train Mowed Them Down.

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 30.—A gang of 26 track men were working on the railroad at the western opening of the Gallitzin tunnel yesterday when they heard the approach of a locomotive, which was running west through the tunnel. They stepped from the north track, on which the west-bound trains move, to the south track. The smoke in the tunnel prevented them from seeing the locomotive, which, in order to avoid obstructions on the north track, was running on the south track. One man was instantly killed, one died in the Altoona hospital, and 16 were more or less seriously injured. None escaped without injury.

Hat Makers In Combine.

Danbury, Conn., Jan. 30.—Plans for the combination of the hat manufacturers engaged in making the lower priced derby hats have been completed, and will go into effect Feb. 1. The firms that have combined represent practically all of the large manufacturers of this class of goods. The combine was formed for the purpose of regulating the output, and all the goods will be disposed of through a New York firm, who will have the control, it is estimated, of $2,000,000 worh of goods annually. There will be no combination of capital by the different firms.

Hyde Park's Boom.

Hyde Park, Mass., Jan. 30.—A syndicate of capitalists have purchased the Brainerd Milling Machine company of Hyde Park and the Recker Manufacturing company of Fitchburg, and have organized the Becker-Brainerd Milling Machine company, a corporation having a capital of $500,000, to take over the plants of both concerns. The Becker Manufacturing company will be removed to Hyde Park. The new corporation will employ 300 hands at the outset, and the consolidation will bring in about 100 new families here from Fitchburg.

Rescued Seamen.

New York, Jan. 30.—On the steamer Madiana, which arrived yesterday from the West Indies, were Captain Mills and five members of the crew of the schooner Harry and Grace Reynolds, which went ashore at St. Croix, while on a voyage from South Amboy with a cargo of coal. The schooner was off the port of St. Croix awaiting a pilot, when she was driven ashore and became a total loss.

Annie Wants Pardon.

Boston, Jan. 30.—Miss Annie Maud Brewer, who, in January, 1896, was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment at Salem for the murder of her lover, Gideon Lattimer, is about to apply to the governor's council for a pardon, the necessary papers having been drawn up and the signatures of influential persons being solicited preparatory to its presentation.

Gave Himself Up.

York, Pa., Jan. 30.—Chief of Police White of this city has received a message from Boston announcing the surrender there of ex-Constable Charles Still of York. Still has been a fugitive from justice since 1895. He was convicted of administering stupefying drugs, with felonious intent, and receiving stolen money.

Good Ice Weather.

Bangor, Me., Jan. 30.—Ice cutting on the Penebcsot was resumed yesterday, and, with clear, cool weather, the harvest will be finished by the last of this week. The cold snap was just what the ice men here needed, and several concerns are running ice 18 inches or more in thickness.

Clark Succeeds Mantle.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 30.—On the 17th ballot the Montana legislature elected William A. Clark (Dem.) of Butte United States senator to succeed Lee Mantle. The vote was 54 for Clark; Conrad, 27; Marshall, 4; scattering, 4. Of those who voted for Clark, 11 were Republicans.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Charles McGuire, aged 29, died, as a result of a fall through a trap door at a factory at Riverpoint, R. I.

The Bulgarian cabinet has resigned, owing, it is believed, to the discontent aroused by the adherence of M. Stolioff, the premier, to the schemes for Macedonian autonomy, which are considered to be antagonistic to Bulgarian aspirations for obtaining predominant influence in Macedonia.

The building of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Daily Standard company, which was badly damaged by fire Christmas day, was the scene of another blaze Saturday night, which caused $15,000 damage.

James Mulvey, a machinest, died at Lowell, Mass., from the effects of an overdose of morphine which he took to induce sleep. He leaves a widow.

While crossing railroad tracks at Somerville, Mass., Samuel Hickey, aged 48, was struck by a train. He died later of his injuries.

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surface of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet composed of Diatase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia tablets and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher of 2710 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarah of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuarts' Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of stomach, biliousness sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for little book mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

TREATY DOCUMENTS.

Senators Get Inside Facts Concerning the Negotiations at Paris.

Why the Entire Archipelago Was Gathered In.

Commmissioner Gray Is Shown to Have Been an Anti-Expansionist.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The correspondence on file at the state department bearing on the peace treaty was sent to the senate yesterday. It includes most of the letters and cablegrams from the commissioners to the president, and from the president to the commissioners in the way of instructions in return.

The documents are numerous, as there were telegrams, letters and reports for almost every day the commissioners were in Paris. One of the first cablegrams from the president instructed them to demand the cession of Luzon island only of the Philippines, and told them that full sovereignty should come with it. The reading of the correspondence received the closest attention from senators.

In submitting the papers the president sent a brief message saying that he transmitted them in accordance with the resolution. The reading consumed the entire executive session, lasting from 2 to 5:30, except a few minutes at the close. Much of the matter covered the same ground as that already published, but it was presented in the form in which the proceedings were outlined from day to day in the cable correspondence between Secretary Hay, as the president's representative on the one hand, and Commissioner Day, as the representative of the American commissioners on the other.

The principal interest among the senators attached to the president's instructions to insist upon the cession of the island of Luzon, and after that the decision to take the entire group of islands. This latter development appeared from the correspondence to be a growth and the suggestion was made by the commissioners to the president as the result of occurrences at Paris after the arrival there of the commissioners. In his dispatch concerning Luzon he said there was but one alternative. The United States must either take the island and assume sovereignty or return it to Spain, and of the two courses he preferred the former.

Spain was from the first unwilling to cede any of the Philippines, and she made especial objection to letting go of Luzon alone. The commisioners, with the exception of Senator Gray, urged that to take Luzon and leave the other islands of the archipelago in the hands of Spaniards would be to invite innumerable complications with other nations, and especially with Europe and with Spain. Much stress was laid upon the probability of future trouble with Spain. With Luzon under American administration there would soon be such a vast improvement, they wrote, that the other islanders would soon grow more and more rebellious, and with Spain's oppressive methods of government we would soon again find that we had another Cuba at another door. Furthermore there would be constant filibustering and we should find ourselves spending millions to preserve a state of neutrality just as we did in the case of Cuba prior to our declaration of war on account of that island. General Merritt's testimony on this point was cited and was made the reason for much of the argument in favor of taking the entire group.

The president does not appear to have at any time given explicit instructions to consummate the bargain by taking all the Philippines, but rather, after hearing a full explanation, to have left the matter to the discretion of the commissioners.

The entire controversy was over the Philippines and of assuming responsibility for payment of the Spanish bonds, for which the Cuban revenues were pledged. The Spaniards from the first insisted upon an indemnity for the Philippines, and the correspondence shows that after the proposition to pay $20,000,000 was made the negotiations proceeded much more smoothly and were soon brought to a close.

The American commissioners appear to have been of one mind as to the wisdom of taking over all the Philippines with the exception of Senator Gray, who, notwithstanding he signed the treaty, held out to the last against the policy of acquiring these islands. In one notable dispatch he pleaded zealously against the policy as unpatriotic, un-American and inconsistent with propriety and good statesmanship.

After a brief debate the senate refused to print the correspondence.

IN CONGRESS.

Good Progress Made on Army Bill—Discussion on Peace Treaty.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The house put in a hard day's work on the army bill yesterday, and when it adjourned 13 of the 20 pages had been completed.

The committee amendments giving the president discretionary power to reduce the size of the infantry companies and cavalry troops to 60 men each were adopted, and also a series of amendments to reduce the officers of the staff to 331. A substitute was adopted for the section providing for promotions, which is designed to equalize promotions. A fight was made to reduce the age limit for officers to be appointed to the various staff departments from 50 to 30, but it failed. An amendment was, however, adopted, to require a mental and moral as well as a physical examination for such appointees. Much of the time was occupied in short speeches on the general disposition to increase the army and annex the Philippines, and there were several lively personal controversies. The final vote is to be taken at 3 o'clock today.

An effort on the part of Mr. Allison to obtain consideration in the senate yesterday for the Indian appropriation bill precipitated a running debate, which occupied all the time until the senate at 2 o'clock went into executive session on the peace treaty.

Mr. Jones, leading the opponents of the treaty, opened the debate by insisting that time should be taken for the discussion of pending resolutions having a collateral bearing upon the treaty before the treaty itself was disposed of and Mr. Bacon's resolutions finally were laid before the senate. After some parliamentary sparring the resolutions were made the text of a strong speech by Mr. Carter of Montana. Ordinarily calm and deliberate in his utterances, Mr. Carter spoke with impassioned earnestness, warning his colleagues that a favorable vote on any of the pending resolutions would be a vote of lack of confidence in the American people. He declared that the adoption of the resolutions would be a pledge to those who were destroying the authority of the country in the Philippines, and that when the treaty had been ratified this government would inquire who in those islands were in rebellion against our authority, and, if necessary to maintain our authority, we would whip them to death.

Will Go to Samoa.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Our government has not cancelled the orders to the United States cruiser Philadelphia to proceed from San Diego to Samoa to represent the United States interests there, so that if it is in contemplation to reach a joint agreement between the three powers interested in Samoa not to send warships there, that will apply to the future. As Germany has now one vessel at Apia and the British government two, no complaint is expected of the presence in that harbor of at least one United States vessel.

General Stanton Retired.

Washington, Jan. 31.—General Thaddeus H. Stanton, paymaster general of the army, was retired at noon yesterday in conformity with the age requirements of the service. The officers of the paymaster's department in Washington presented their retiring chief a handsome silver loving cup as a mark of their personal regard and appreciation of his public service. Colonel Carey is his successor.

Capitol Gleanings.

There is good ground for the statement that the president has no intention of supplanting General Brooke by General Wood as governor general of Cuba.

The United States supreme court adjourned yesterday until Monday, Feb. 20.

"Mysterious" Smith has accepted the offer of $5000 made by the Olympic club of San Francisco for a 20-round bout with Lavigne.

The government commission for the revision and codification of the criminal and penal laws of the United States is now considering and, it is understood, will incorporate into its final codification an amendment to the existing law prohibiting the maintenance in any city of any private letter box scheme.

The president has nominated Colonel Asa B. Carey, assistant paymaster general, to be paymaster general, with the rank of brigadier general.

Because of continued failing health, Mrs. J. Myers, 50 years old, a wealthy visitor from Pittsburg, committed suicide by jumping into the ocean at Atlantic City.

Money Talks.

Hartford, Jan. 31.—Colonel Albert A. Pope arrived in Hartford from Boston yesterday. Soon after the train left Boston the colonel read in a newspaper the statement which General Miles had made, as follows: "In reference to a statement in a morning paper that the packers are willing to pay $100,000 for proof that their beef was chemically treated, I will say that if these gentlemen will put up $1000 in any bank as a guarantee of good faith, I will endeavor to show that the charges that chemicals were used to embalm beef can be sustained." Colonel Pope left the train at the first stop and sent the following telegram to General Miles: "Draw on me for $1000 to prove that chemicals were used to embalm beef furnished our soldiers."

McCormick Put Out of Business.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—Tom Sharkey put out Jack McCormick of this city in the second of what was to have been a 6-round go at the Arena last night. Jack landed on the wind in the second and Tom sent his left to the jaw, following with a left to the head. Then he brought his right to the chest and they clinched. Sharkey landed another left and Jack clinched again. Sharkey then decided to end the exhibition. He put in a left upper cut, went right and left in turn to the jaw, and brought the right up again to the same spot. McCormick went down and stayed the limit. When he got to his feet again Tom banged a right in the stomach and left on the jaw, and the local man went down and out.

WOODFORD MISTAKEN.

That Is If He Said Our Country Was Unprepared For War.

Secretary Long Says Statements Were Erroneous.

Ordnance Bureau Proves That Ships and Guns Had Plenty of Powder.

Washington, Jan. 31.—General Stewart L. Woodford was reported in yesterday's papers as stating in a speech Saturday night that this country was so unprepared for war that at the time the Maine was blown up the government did not have enough powder "to provide its warships and forts with two rounds for each gun."

Secretary Long takes General Woodford to task for this utterance. He shows that the statements attributed to General Woodford have no foundation whatever.

STEWART L. WOODFORD.

Yesterday the secretary of the navy sent to General Woodford the following letter:

"Navy Department, Washington, Jan. 30

"My Dear General—I find the papers attribute to you certain statements with regard to the supply of ammunition in the navy during the war, which are so erroneous that I cannot believe you have been correctly reported.

"I have asked the bureau of ordnance to give me the exact facts, and enclose you a copy of its statement. I am sure you will be glad to read it. Very truly yours, John D. Long."

"Navy Department, Bureau of Ordnance Washington, Jan. 30.

"Memorandum for the Secretary of the Navy: Referring to the reported speech of General Woodford at the Army and Navy club at New York on Saturday evening last, in which he is quoted as saying: 'That on Feb. 18, 1898, three days after the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, he received information by telegraph that this government did not possess powder enough to provide its warships and forts with two rounds for each gun,' so far as relates to the navy this is an error, as every vessel was practically filled up with her allowance of ammunition.

"The regulations of the department prescribe that the reserve ammunition for guns of the main battery, except on monitors and coast defense vessels, shall not be allowed to fall below 40 rounds per gun for 6-inch calibre and above, nor below 50 rounds per gun for the rapid-fire guns, and no vessel of the navy was reduced so low as this.

"In addition to the supply of ammunition afloat, the navy had a fair amount in reserve, and a supply of projectiles. There were less rounds of powder per gun than of shell, and for this reason, by direction of the secretary, an emergency order was placed for powder on Jan. 15, 1898, just one month before the destruction of the Maine, and by the 15th of Febuary, the date of the catastrophe, the navy department had about three-quarters of a million pounds of powder, and it was being turned out in large quantities daily.

"So far as relates to the supply of ammunition on board Dewey's ships, the fact is they were never reduced below the limit prescribed by the department, and they could have safely gone into action without receiving further supply.

The total number of rounds fired from the guns of the main batteries in the Manila engagement was 1414, viz: 157 8-inch, 635 6-inch, 622 5-inch, and from guns of the secondary batteries, 4445, viz: 1987 6-pounders, 826 3-pounders and 1632 1-pounders.

"The vessels engaged expended only about one-third of their allowance.

Headlines come higher than Quincy granite headstones! How much would one of those war head lines in war times have cost?

Mayor Quincy of Boston evades the tax limit law by recommending an order, "That all streets and portions of streets within the city limits be watered during the current year, wholly at the expense of the abuttors."

Quincy will not have to establish a municipal ice plant, as the Socialists in the legislature propose to have one for the whole Metropolitan district which may furnish ice at cost to the inhabitants.

Advertising pays. Last week George Ames, the plumber, advertised for a young man to learn the trade, and yesterday an eight-pounder arrived at his residence. He will board with Mr. Ames.

Instead of helping the Metropolitan Park Commissioners to get a large general appropriation this year it might be well to imitate the people on the North Shore. They offered a bill this week to provide for the construction of a parkway from Chelsea to the Crescent Beach reservation.

Chief Williams believes in keeping up the efficiency of the fire department, and is to be commended because he did not make a "clean sweep" of all the fire men. Such action strengthens the popular chief in the strong hold he already has upon taxpayers and insurance people, and it will be many years before Chief Williams is again displaced, although there may be yearly changes at City Hall.

The exhaustive review of the Boulevard movement by ex-Representative Thompson was appreciated and generally read. The large land owners who did not keep their promises, and others who obstructed the movement are themselves the greatest losers. A mistake was made at the start in not making it a city movement, rather than a move of land owners.

Now taxes are assessed in Quincy upon a valuation of about nineteen millions of dollars. The land value alone of the city is about eight millions. If as the advocates of the "Single Tax" claim, land would be cheaper, the assessible value would perhaps be about five or six millions. This would cause the tax rate to be three or four times as large, or from $60 to $70 per $1,000. The man with a $1,000 lot would not relish that.

There seems to be quite a sentiment in Quincy in favor of the election of more city officers, especially the city clerk, city treasurer and assessors. Under town government permanency was secured in the first two at least through all the vicissitudes of politics. If the assessors are not elected they should become a continuous board. If three of the assistant assessors held over each year, it would give the incoming Mayor the opportunity to appoint a majority of the board,—the principal and three assistants. It is not right that the board should be composed either of seven Republicans or seven Democrats, particularly as a man's privilege to vote depends now upon being assessed. The city of Taunton goes further, and has this week asked the Legislature to provide for the election of superintendent of streets by popular vote. This we would not endorse, although frequent changes are very detrimental and retard progress.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The scheme to Republicanize Boston by gerrymandering the aldermanic districts, is a delusion and a snare. There is a fatality about this sort of legislation. Every time a partisan attempt has been made to put the Democracy in a hole, somehow or other the Republicans have got the worst of it.—Worcester Spy.

☞ The passing years but brighten the illustrious memory of Bobby Burns. The bard of the common people, the most gifted votary of Dame Nature, the sweetest, and the truest singer of modern times, his poems glisten with poetic fire, and once read their echoes linger in the heart and keep recurring as oft his simple themes are suggested by the routine of daily life. Thus are the poems of Burns, Nature's own poet, a joy forever.—Lowell Sun.

☞ The net debt of the towns and cities in this State is $121,385,130 against $115,798,889 the year before, and $104,000,000 the year before that. ☞ We are in danger of removing some of the most valuable safeguards of society through excess of sympathy. We are inclined to shift the responsibility for all personal failure, for the folly and wickedness of men, from the individual to society. Society — that is, all men thinking and feeling together—has is duties; the duty of sympathy, of mutual protection, and mutual service. But society has no duty to the individual which absolves him from responsibility for his own acts.—Christian Register.

☞ We are told that the "Filipinos are ugly." When a man defends his own family and fireside, is he "ugly?" When a man defends his country and his life on his own premises, is he "ugly?" The actions of the imperialists will drive the trade of the Filipinos from us, and we will be the catspaw to remove the chestnuts from the fire.—Wade's Fibre and Fabric.

☞ The member of Camp Witherill and the civilian community were thoroughly disgusted when they read of the marriage of Private William J. A law of South Carolina makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $500 or imprisonment or both. Section 1 reads: "It shall be unlawful for any white man to intermarry with any woman of either the Indian or Negro races or any mulatto, mestizo or half breed, or for any white woman to intermarry with any person other than a white man or for any mulatto, half breed, Negro, Indian or mestizo to intermarry with a white woman and any such marriage or attempted marriage shall be utterly null and void and of none effect."—Greenville News.

A NEW DEPARTMENT.

A Councilman Who Believes in Permanent Improvements.

Councilman Packard of Ward One, a member of the Finance Committee of the Council, was seen this morning regarding the $150,000 loan. He says Quincy must get out of the makeshift policy and take a radical departure for permanent improvements.

A weak, nearsighted Council allowed the erection of the Kincaide and Music hall building, when the syndicate were anxious to give the land for street widening. They wanted the city to raise the grade, doing away with the so-called "Hollow." The increased valuation would have paid all the expense, and the street line would have been straight, instead of bulging out, which will always be an eyesore. Never heard any one criticise a street that had been widened.

He thought that some years ago it was not unusual for the abutters to steal land from the street, as well as from their neighbors, and related a story which he heard when a boy, of a carpenter who wanted a job to build a fence for a man. So told Mr. A. that he could get him a few inches of land all right.

The Councilman thought there would be plenty of uses for that amount of money, $150,000. For instance the State is to pay out a large sum for the construction of Washington street to Chubbuck street. They will continue to Pond or Union streets if we widen to those points. Be assured we shall not be as foolish as our predecessors.

Then again Coddington street has been talked up as long as the oldest citizen can recollect.

How about Copeland street, the retail business street of West Quincy. That really needs it more than any other. It is positively dangerous.

And so you might go on, Hancock at Atlantic, School, Franklin and Beale that nightmare of Wollaston. The extension of Brook street under the railroad is liable to come up at any time. They will all benefit future generations more than they will the present.

It is intended to make a map of the most important parts of the city so the Council can vote on them understandingly.

Mr. Packard thought City Square could be very much improved by taking land from the church at the corner of Temple street, and on the north side near the fountain. As the land is not liable to be built upon he could see no reason why the public spirited people comprising the church, if approached properly should not give it. If not pay them for it.

Unlike some cities, Quincy is right in the track and will have more residents than Brockton or Taunton in 10 years. Three cent fares, free transfers and two hundred thousand people is not at all unlikely in 40 years, and we should commence to build for all time, and let future generations pay some of the bills as they will have to do on the water and sewer debts.

—In excavating the Roman villa at Darenth, Kent, a pane of window glass was discovered, the first found in England. It is broken, but the pieces show that its size was 9 by 12 inches.

Miss M. Marion Macleod of Taylor street, Wollaston, celebrated her 14th birthday at her home on Saturday. She was the recipient of many presents of flowers, books, china, and a chain bracelet from the members of her class. Among those present were Misses Helen Barnes, Louise Bates, Winnifred White, Ethel Parker, Kathleen Reece, Mildred Rice, Ethel Jordan, Flora Wight, Clara Ela, May Belle Krook of her class; Miss Riley, her teacher; Hattie May Mitchell, Ethel McKey, Bell Penley, Miss Miner, Mrs. Gurney from Wollaston and Mr. and Mrs. Savin, and J. A. Duggan, Jr., from Atlantic.

After games, music and dancing, the girls entered in a contest to guess the largest number of things placed on a table; also the number of spices they could recognize in a taste which was given them. Miss Ethel McKey had largest number of all, and Miss Helen Barnes had largest number in the class, so each was given one of the cakes marked "Marion, 1885—1899."

GAS VS. PLUMBERS.

A Few Pertinent Suggestions Regarding Sewer Connections.

To Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

Those of our citizens who are thinking of connecting their houses with the sewer, should first carefully read the plumbing ordinances, and have the plumbing on their premises thoroughly examined by the inspector with a view of ascertaining how much of the original system must be removed. To those whose building have been piped for more than five years, I would say, do not enter the sewer, until you have a proper estimate of the cost.

It will be extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the owners of tenement houses to keep them up to the standard of perfection required by the ordinance which regulates plumbing. To do this, frequent inspections are imperative. Right here let me say a word regarding the qualifications of an inspector. He should first of all be a man of unquestioned honesty, as he would be given many opportunities of using his position to reward his political friends or to secure liberal commissions for himself from favored plumbers. In either event the interests of the taxpayer would suffer. Moreover for obvious reasons he should not be either directly or indirectly engaged in the business.

For the protection of property owners from flimsy and light weight stock and exorbitant charges, a provision should be inserted in the ordinaces requiring the inspector to examine all material used in the plumbing and in connections with sewer. Plumbers' patrons should also be relieved of the imposition to which they have long been subjected, of being obliged to pay $2 per day for a green apprentice and $4 for a journeyman plumber when much of the time of the latter is employed in correcting the blunders of his incompetent assistant.

At my age I prefer to risk my life by exposure to the dreaded sewer gas rather than suffer the plumbers deadly bills and their attendant perplexities.

SINGLE TAX MEETING

William Lloyd Garrison Among the Speakers.

Many out of curiosity attended a meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Monday evening under the auspices of the board of directors. While the audience agreed with the advocates of the "single tax" in some of the results they claimed would follow, they could not see just how the new method of taxation was going to bring them about.

Mr. C. F. Cummings briefly introduced William Lloyd Garrison, who presided during the evening. Mr. Garrison said taxation was at the root of all government, and charged that the present system was faulty. It was better in this country, however, than in other countries. Statistics told him that the rich pay on only seven or eight per cent. of their wealth, while the poor man pays upon 70 to 80 per cent. The monopoly of land was an oppression, and we must free the land.

J. B. Willis of Boston was the principal speaker and paid tributes to the principles of liberty expressed by Adams, Hancock, Lafayette, Cromwell and Garrison. The single tax movement was unselfish in its aim, and should invite attention. It was the outcome of the evolution of the planet. God is beneficient, and intended an abundance for all. The natural resources of the earth designed for all should not be controlled by a few. Land included all the natural resources.

He is a monopolist who seeks to control and benefit by values enhanced by the public. All have a right to a fair chance and result of his labor. Comunal rights were emphasized. The removal of fines would stimulate industry.

Single tax means one tax and tax one thing. The present system tempts all to evade, whereas the single tax would remove the temptation. The single tax would stimulate industry. It would make land cheaper. The proposition is to tax the value of land sites. The single tax is not a step toward Socialism, but a step away.

Many questions were asked by Mr. Henry H. Faxon and others, but there was a feeling that practical answers were not received.

Expert Swimmers.

The Siamese spend three-fourths of their existence in the water. Their first act on awakening is to bathe. They bathe at 11 o'clock, again at 3 and again at sunset. There is scarcely an hour in the day when bathers may not be seen in all the creeks, even the shallowest and muddiest. Boys go to play in the river just as our children go to play in the street. A traveler tells of a Siamese woman sitting on the lowest step of a landing place, while, by a girdle, she held in the water her infant of a few months. Were not the Siamese expert swimmers many lives would be lost, for the tide flows so swiftly that it requires the greatest skill and care to prevent boats from running foul of one another.

A story is told of an English boat running down a small native canoe containing a woman and two children. In an instant they all disappeared. The Englishmen were on the point of jumping to their rescue when they bobbed up, and the woman, upon recovering her breath, poured forth a volley of abuse. Having thus relieved her mind, she righted her canoe, ladled out some of the water and bundled in the children who had been composedly swimming around her, regarding with mingled fear and curiosity the barbarians who had caused the mishap.

Chinese "Diplomacy."

Pekin, Jan. 31.—At a meeting of her relatives, the dowager empress selected the successor of the present emperor, but his identity is not divulged. All reports, however, agree that a change at the palace is impending. The emperor is still strictly guarded in the southwest corner of the island palace. The drawbridge connecting the island with the shore is drawn up at night, and every morning the ice around the island is broken, in order to prevent unauthorized persons from approaching it. Finally it is asserted that the dowager empress now practically ignores the grand council of state and the Chinese foreign office.

Selectmen Investigated.

Sanford, Me., Jan. 31.—The selectmen are investigating the death of Moses Moulton, who was found dead in his house at South Sanford yesterday. Moulton, who was 72 years old, lived with his son, Dr. Howard Moulton. The body was nude, and bore marks of bruises and several scars. The man had been sick for some time. The doctor said that his father died from natular causes. He stated, however, that his father was out of his mind at times, and was very difficult to manage. He had been obliged to handle his father roughly.

Robbed Church-Goers.

Montreal, Jan. 31.—John Lancy, as he calls himself, but in reality "Mollie Matches," alias Dr. L. Denmark and Dr. Simpson, one of the best known pickpockets in the United States, has been arrested here. He was detected picking the pockets of worshippers at the Church of the Holy Sacrament.

He Knew Chester.

Mr. Gladstone had a nice taste in hot mutton pies. One of the Wesleyan journals recalls a conversation which R. W. Perks had with Mr. Gladstone at a public dinner in London, when the ex-premier asked all sorts of questions on matters pertaining to Methodism. A man who happened to sit exactly opposite, wishing to divert the conversation into another channel, asked, "Do you know Chester, Mr. Gladstone?"

"Yes, a little," was the answer, an ominous smile playing about the mouth. "Do you know Chester, Mr. ——?"

"Not very well," said the unwary questioner.

"Well, if you go to the city of Chester you will find a confectioner's shop in such a street," giving the number. "Go into that shop, and you can buy a hot mutton pie, deliciously hot," and here Mr. Gladstone screwed up his eyes, and his face beamed with delight as he recalled the taste and smell of those savory pies, "and all for threepence." Then, turning to Mr. Perks, in deep, earnest tones he said, "Let us resume where we left off."

There was no further interruption from the opposite side of the table.—St. James Gazette.

Beau Nash as a Gambler.

When the late Earl of T——d was a youth, he was passionately fond of play and never better pleased than with having Mr. Nash for his antagonist. Nash saw with concern his lordship's foible and undertook to cure him, though by a very disagreeable remedy. Conscious of his own superior skill he determined to engage him in single play for a very considerable sum. His lordship, in proportion as he lost his game, lost his temper, too, and as he approached the gulf seemed still more eager for ruin.

He lost his estate. Some writings were put into the winner's possession. His very equipage was offered as a last stake, and he lost that also. But when our generous gamester had found his lordship sufficiently punished for his temerity he returned all, only stipulating that he should be paid £5,000 whenever he should think proper to make the demand. However, he never made any such demand during his lordship's lifetime, but some time after his decease, Mr. Nash's affairs being in (sic) the wane, he demanded the money of his lordship's heirs, who honorably paid it without any hesitation.—"History of Gambling in England."

Absolute Indifference.

A woman who has been a victim of indigestion and is kept to dyspeptics' diet most of the time was recently invited to a dinner, which she was anxious to attend.

She went to her telephone and, trusting to a somewhat unreliable memory, she asked to be connected by the ever obliging "central" with telephone 2394. When the connection had been made, she began her plaintive query, without any prefatory, "Is that you, doctor?"

"I want very much to go to a little dinner tomorrow night," she began rapidly, "and do you think it would hurt me if I ate just a taste of soup, and perhaps a little fish or the least trifle of game and a bit of salad or ice? I really think my stomach"—

Here she was interrupted by a voice from the other end of the wire.

"Madam," it said coldly, "eat whatever you please. This is the Meteor Rubber company."—Youth's Companion.

To Give Up Every Vice.

"Well, sir," demanded Horatio Bullion, "what particular reason have you to offer for asking me to let you have my daughter Gladys?"

"I—I love her, and she loves me," Reginald Biddlethwaite replied.

"Oh, of course," the blunt old magnate retorted. "I've heard that song from half a dozen others. That's to be taken for granted. But what other qualifications have you?"

"I must confess," the trembling young man answered, "that I am not rich, but I can truthfully say that I have no expensive habits. I don't drink. I don't gamble. I don't chew tobacco. I don't smoke. I don't"—

"Hold on!" the millionaire broke in. "That's enough! You'll do. Your board and clothes won't cost much more than the gas you've been burning lately. What I object to is supporting fellows like my other three sons-in-law, who have all the faults you say you have not. I don't mind furnishing the husbands of my daughters with the necessaries of life, but I do hate to have to settle the bills for their luxuries. Now, there is just one other point I want to have settled before I give my consent."

"What is that?" Mr. Biddlethwaite eagerly asked.

"Promise me that you will not start a newspaper. The others have all tried it, and I can't stand many more such experiences."

Reginald's promise made three hearts happy.—Cleveland Leader.

Vaseline Pancakes.

Cæsar's creek, on the Florida coast, was named after a famous old pirate called Black Cæsar, whose profession added to the risks of marine insurance. After the pirates the Florida wreckers came, of whom H. A. Willoughby, in his "Across the Everglades," tells this story:

A large steamer was stranded on the reef not far from Cape Florida. No sooner had she struck than the news spread rapidly along the shore. The people for 20 miles around gathered on the beach opposite the stranded steamer. Among them were a number of Indians from the Everglades, who chanced to be down there and knew what a "wreck" meant to the wreckers.

The steamer, loaded with an assorted cargo, began to break up, and barrels, cases and boxes drifted gradually ashore. There were casks of wine, boxes of soap, cases of bottles of wine and iron and a hundred other articles. The Indians seized upon the wine and soon were in a condition that allowed the white men to secure the more valuable prizes.

The squaws struck a bonanza in a case of vaseline. They thought it a new variety of the white man's frying fat and, starting a fire, fried pancakes in it. What a dish—pancakes a la Seminole!

Messages by Vibration.

Curiously enough, the fact appears, according to a recent traveler among the Indians of Catuquinarn, between the rivers Embrya and Embyrasu, that those people have long employed a wireless telephony, but rather after the order of unwritten science.

It is made by digging a hole in the ground inside a house and laying the bottom with coarse sand, well piled. On this is laid a wooden drum or hollow cylinder of wood, half filled with fine sand and layers of broken wood, bone and powdered mica—the upper part of the cylinder, which is empty, rising above the floor of the hut and closed first by leather, then by wood, and lastly by india rubber. Outside, the cylinder is packed round with fragments of wood, leather and resins, and covered with hard rubber at the level of the soil.

To use this peculiar apparatus the drum is struck by a wooden hammer, and the vibration is evidently transmitted through the soil. The answer is heard in the drum, which acts as a resonator, and messages are thus sent over 1,500 yards from house to house.

Politics, Indeed.

"There is a rather crusty old gentleman attending my church," says a Detroit clergyman, "and his absence for several weeks led me to call upon him. He is not a communicant, and I am afraid at times that he is slightly skeptical. He is very pronounced in his political views, and as conversational material ran rather short I sought to interest him by asking, 'How's politics?'

"'How's politics?' he repeated without a change of countenance. 'How's politics? That's a pretty question for you to ask when you know that I haven't heard you preach for the last seven Sundays.'"—Exchange.

The Story of a Letter.

The National Advertiser tells a story of an old bachelor who bought a pair of socks and found attached to one of them a slip of paper with these words: "I am a young lady of 20 and would like to correspond with a bachelor with a view to matrimony." Name and address were given.

The bachelor wrote, and in a few days got this letter: "Mamma was married 20 years ago. The merchant you bought those socks from evidently did not advertise or he would have sold them long ago. Mamma handed me your letter and said possibly I might suit you. I am 18 years old."

For Insomnia.

A curious remedy for sleeplessness is used by the inhabitants of the Samoan islands. They confine a snake in a hollow bamboo, and the hissing sound emitted by the reptile is said to quickly induce slumber.

An Important Secret.

The secret is how Brazilian Balm can get to the seat of Catarrh, between the folds and in the deep, tortuous passages of the head, kill the microbes heal the running sores or ulcers and make a radical cure of this painful and stubborn disease. You see the edges of the folds or curtains that hang from the roof of the nasal passage in cut 1. They extend clear across the passage from side to side and are shaped like cut 2. These spongy folds or curtains of membranes contain the nerves of smell and in health are separated from each other just enough to allow the air to circulate between them. The nerves taste the air as it passes and carry the oder to the brain. When a cold in the head or catarrh occurs these folds become swollen and form into a solid mass so no air can get between them, hence the loss of smell. A cold in the head causes this membrane to become inflamed and raw. It is only on a raw surface that the catarrh germ can fasten itself. We are always breathing in Catarrh germs when we are near anyone who has Catarrh, but we cannot "catch" the disease unless there are raw patches on the olfactory membrain. If you have a cold in the head the use of Brazilian Balm as directed will heal the raw surface and prevent the Catarrh germ from getting a lodgement. When the Catarrh germ does find lodgement it soon causes running sored or ulcers in the membrain between the folds as seen in cut 1. They rapidly multiply till the surface of these folds is a mass of ulcers, also the passages clear up in behind the eyes. All scientific men agree that Catarrh can only be cured by exterminating the last one of these microbes. Nothing has been discovered which destroys these germs and heals the ulcers like Brazilian Balm. It is a perfect germicide and by flushing the nasal passage with it as directed in the circular it reaches between the folds and to the deepest openings destroying the last microbe, healing all the sores and raw places, stopping the dropping of pus into the throat, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The poisonous pus from Catarrh often cause Chronic Cough, Ulcerated Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma and distressing Stomach troubles. All these are quickly and permanently cured by the Balm as the Catarrh dissapears. Also the effects of Grippe however serious. Tens of thousands of cases have been permanently cured by this wonderful balsam. Brazilian Balm. Do not fail to give a full trial. B. F. Jackson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Indianapolis, Ind.

Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EBEN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

TREATY DOCUMENTS.

"As further showing of the state of the ammunition supply of this fleet, it is remarked that on Nov. 2, 1897, orders were issued by the bureau of ordnance to the Mare island navy yard to prepare for the Olympia, Boston and Petrel a quantity of ammunition which would completely fill their allowance, and give them one-quarter target practice in addition."

The letter then shows that the supplies sent to Dewey's squadron were sent after the battle of Manila bay. It concludes thus:

"In addition to this, large supplies of ammunition were sent to Tampa and Key West. One hundred and seven auxiliary vessels and fourteen newly commissioned regular vessels were supplied with complete outfits of ammunition, and a good reserve supply was maintained at the principal naval stations, so that at no time, either before or during the war, can it be said that the navy was so short of ammunition that it could not at any time have carried on active operations.

Respectfully,
Charles O'Neil,
Chief of Bureau of Ordnance."

FURTHER ARGUMENT.

Another Document From Agoncillo Reciting Filipinos' Woes.

Achieved Independence Before Protocol Was Signed.

Inhabitants, He Says, Have Established a Satisfactory and Orderly Government.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Agoncillo's secretary called at the state department yesterday afternoon and left another communication addressed to the secretary of state, protesting against the attitude toward the Filipino "republic."

Accompanying the communication is a long memorial addressed to the senate containing a comprehensive argument in opposition to the ratification of the treaty, and which the envoy asks the president to send to that body. The letter of transmittal contains more than the mere request, but Agoncillo feels that he is bound by courtesy not to make it public until an opportunity is had by the state department officials to make a reply.

The memorial to the senate is a long document, both historical and argumentative in character, and is a protest that this government has no jurisdiction, natural or acquired, through any of its agencies, to adjudicate in any manner upon the rights of the Philippine country and its people. He refers to "the historical fact that a large number of my countrymen have never been subdued by Spanish power, and as against their liberties, the oppressive arm of Spain has never been able to sustain itself; that the remainder, because of their adhesion to the cause of liberty, have been in almost constant insurrection against the government of Spain, these conflicts existing continuously with greater or less fury for the past 100 years."

The impression, he continues, has been created in America that at the time of the declaration of war between America and Spain the Philippine revolution no longer existed. He quotes from communications from Consul General Williams at Manila, and Mr. Pratt, as a result of which Agoncillo says that "without additional authority it must be evident to your honorable body that an extensive revolution existed in the Philippine islands at the time of declaration of war by America against Spain."

The purpose of the Filipino patriots in conducting this revolution was, it is asserted, to secure the complete independence of their country, and in this effort they received the encouragement of the United States and were never informed that the obtaining and preservation of such independence would be regarded as a hostile act by America, and they never believed that their struggle in such a cause would lead to enormous aggregations of American armies and navies at their doors.

Additional historical facts are here presented and quotations made from manifestos of the Filipinos and from other documents, from which, says the envoy, it must appear "that the Philippine nation had achieved independence free from any danger of losing it at the hands of the Spaniards, prior even to the signing of the protocol."

Spain having been driven away from the islands, and the inhabitants having established a government satisfactory to themselves and maintaining order throughout the territory, what justification, Agoncillo asks, can any other nation advance for interfering with his country or refusing to extend toward it the obligations of international laws. Could Spain, he asks, give to any nation a better right than she possessed? She could not confer possession, for she did not enjoy it, and any former right of possession claimed by her had been extinguished by the destruction of her sovereignty.

Bearing on the discussion of the question whether the American government can acquire right to the Philippines from Spain by treaty, the memorial calls attention to "several notable and exact American precedents," and Agoncillo says he could ask for his country "no better fortune than to have the republic of America as at present constituted adhere to the teachings of international law as laid down by some of its founders."

Senor Agoncillo, in conclusion, summarizes the various reasons set out in detail why the treaty should not be ratified, and expresses an earnest hope that the representations he has ventured to make will receive the grave consideration of the senate before final action is taken upon the treaty which contains so much of consequence to his people.

Carlists Have Lost Ground.

London, Jan. 31.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times, in a letter reviewing the situation in Spain, says: The prospects of Carlism are waning. The Carlists themselves complain that Don Carlos allowed a great opportunity to slip, when, six weeks ago, the country was filled with dismay and indignation at the price of defeat. He might have had a hope of success then, for such a possibility was openly and freely discussed. Now the enthusiasm of even his ardent admirers is chilly, and as the general opinion is that he has little chance, that the subject being dropped, the people realizing that salvation is not to be had that way. At the same time, the suspicions entertained in some quarters that Great Britain has been secretly backing the pretender are being dispelled.

Must Explain Matters.

Havana, Jan. 31.—Senor Galbis, president of the Banco Espanol, which is a government creditor to the extent of $7,500,000, was notified yesterday by the special commission now investigating the finances of the municipality that he must appear before the commission today to answer interrogatories, or must take imprisonment as the consequences of contempt. This inquiry will either establish or negative the various statements of connivance and corruption on the part of the Spanish government, which deposited with the Banco Espanol in silver an amount equal to one-third of the $20,000,000 note issue guaranteed by the bank. It is not clear where the silver is. The officials of the bank assert that Spain withdrew it, but some of the note holders say that the silver is still held by the bank.

Sad Enough.

Barcelona, Jan. 31.—Steamer Chateau Lafite, from Cienfuegos, Jan. 6, arrived yesterday with 1250 repatriated Spanish soldiers, 350 of whom are seriously ill. Fifty-six died on the voyage. Darkness had come on when the debarkation began, and the scene was most mournful. The removal of the dead and the torch-lit funeral procession made a painful impression upon the population.

They Hate Americans.

Barcelona, Jan. 31.—El Dario publishes a letter from Manila declaring that the Spanish residents there prefer independence to American annexation. The writer says that "they forget the conduct of the insurgents in the hatred they bear the Americans."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 31.—There was a rush of bills and petitions in the legislature yesterday in anticipation of the close time allowed under the rules for admitting new business, and among the bills introduced was that of a Socialist member for compelling employers to grant interviews to their employes.

Among the bills introduced were these: To limit medical experts as witnesses in the superior court to one competent physician to be agreed upon and examined by either party; to provide that Taunton's superintendent of streets be elected by popular vote; for aye and nay vote in elections by city councils; to extend time for filing petitions for recounts to seventh (instead of third) day after elections; to enlarge powers of boards of health.

Among the petitions were these: For compensation to towns along the Sudbury river for damages by construction of metropolitan water system; for repeal of the statute relative to the watering of streets in cities; that Boston park commissioners may control streets and lands in the neighborhood of parks, boulevards and parkways; for legislation relative to preparation of voting lists by placing voters on the lists by streets; for license suffrage for women; for change of law relative to liability of innholders for losses sustained by guests; for regulation of peddling from house to house; for legislation to define officers empowered to convey, by mortgage or lease, property or corporations; of Boston park commissioners for authority to take land by eminent domain for playgrounds; that Andover, North Andover and Methuen be annexed to the judicial district of the Lawrence police court of Northern Essex; for establishment of employment offices; for legislation to punish persons defrauding innkeepers; that the act of 1899 as to Boston sewerage works be amended; that the Independent Congregational, Barton Square and East churches in Salem may unite; of Massachusetts charitable eye and ear infirmary, for $25,000 appropriation; for authority to buy more land for the state normal school at North Adams; for improvement of the channel in Lewis bay, in Barnstable; for the repeal of the law assessing the expense of laying out highways in Boston on the abuttors, and for a revision of the laws regulating the descent of property.

The Democratic committee appointed to draft bills on the lines laid down at a meeting recently held, held a meeting yesterday and voted to introduce the following measures: A bill to regulate the fare on all steam roads for a distance of 25 miles out of Boston, fixing the rate at 1 cent a mile to each station, providing, however, that no fare shall be less than 5 cents; a bill establishing a fare of 2 cents a mile on all steam roads in the commonwealth; a resolution declaring for the election of United States senators by the people; a bill for municipal control of street railways, with 3-cent fares for workingmen and school children.

Too Many Changes.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 31.—The attempt to have legislation in favor of a new city charter has probably failed this year, as the common council last night promptly defeated the new city charter by laying it on the table indefinitely. The charter would have gone to the legislative committee on cities today in order to be referred to the legislature. The city government was specially called together last night to act upon the charter. The aldermen voted to abolish the city council, substituting 12 aldermen in the draft, which also made the terms of city officers two years, gave the mayor the appointment of the city solicitor, relieved the mayor of the presidency of the aldermen, and gave him power to suspend heads of departments. The aldermen passed the charter, 6 to 3. The proposed abolition of the lower board caused the defeat of the measure.

Quarles Elected.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—The senatorial deadlock was broken last night. Joseph V. Quarles of Milwaukee was nominated in the Republican caucus to succeed John L. Mitchell, whose term expires March 4. A big crowd filled the lobbies in expectation of a nomination, and the keenest interest was manifested. When the caucus had opened, the names of Stephenson, Babcock, Cook and Webb were withdrawn, and a rollcall was ordered. Every member of the caucus voted for Quarles and he was declared the nominee.

Reduction In Salaries.

Boston, Jan. 31.—Mayor Quincy issued an order yesterday to the heads of departments directing them to make a reduction in salaries of city employes. The reduction will be 7½ percent in salaries of $1000 a year or more, and of 5 percent in all salaries amounting to $700 a year and not exceeding $1000, and also a reduction of 7½ percent in all wages amounting to $3.25 per day or more, and of 5 percent in all wages of not less than $2.50 a day, and not exceeding $3.25 a day.

Tomorrow's Almanac and Forecast.

Sun rises—6:58; sets, 4:58.
Moon rises—11:12 p. m.
High water—4:45 a. m.; 3 p. m.

Light snow may be expected in the middle and north Atlantic states, and rain or snow in the south Atlantic and east gulf states, except rain in Florida. Much colder weather will occur in the Atlantic states. Light, variable winds will prevail on the north Atlantic coast, and light to fresh southerly winds on the middle and south Atlantic coasts, shifting to northwesterly and increasing. The forecast for New England is: Fair, probably followed by light snow; light to fresh west to northwest winds.

GOMEZ IS OBDURATE.

May Advise His Troops to Refuse to Accept American Money.

Havana, Jan. 31.—President McKinley is understood to have empowered Robert P. Porter to arrange for the disbursement of $3,000,000 among the Cuban soldiers. Mr. Porter will probably go, with Senor Quesada, to Remedios to meet General Gomez, to persuade the Cuban commander-in-chief to disband his forces and to lend his influence to the United States military administration.

Dr. Castillo, who returned from Remedios yesterday, after a two days' visit to General Gomez, says the latter is much hurt by what he regards as American neglect of his authority and rights, and is determined to advise his soldiers to go home penniless. Gomez purposes coming into the neighborhood soon, and will review the Cuban troops at Mariano.

There is some doubt whether he and the other military chiefs will accept the $3,000,000, no matter what other favorable conditions may be offered. Mr. Porter, who, it is understood, will act as the personal representative of President McKinley in the negotiations, has been directed to learn the best terms that can be made, and is empowered to propose what it is hoped will be agreeable terms. Much is expected of the assistance he will receive, when approaching General Gomez, from Jose Miguel Gomez and Senor Quesada.

Daring Daylight Robbery.

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 31.—The house of Mrs. Leon Smith, 16 Washington avenue was entered by a second story thief yesterday while Mrs. Smith was in her kitchen. On hearing a noise in the apartment above, Mrs. Smith went up stairs to investigate and was met in the hallway by a man, who threatened her life if she made any noise. As she turned away the man struck her on the head with the butt of a revolver, knocking her unconscious. When she recovered sufficiently to give the alarm the assailant had disappeared, taking with him only a small amount of money which he abstracted from a child's bank and a few juvenile trinkets of little value.

Working For Small Pay.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 31.—There was a small strike on the Hamilton corporation yesterday. Twenty-five girls employed in No. 4 mule room, shortly after the noon hour, waited on Overseer Dodge, informing him that their pay should be increased because of the character of the work they were performing. Their request was not complied with. They were told to either go to work or go out, and all but five of the 30 girls left. The girls are employed on piece work at 82 cents a hundred, and the most they can make is $3.50 a week. They are determied to remain out until some concession is made in their behalf.

Birdshot and Stones.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 31.—The state police were informed yesterday that some unknown person fired a charge of birdshot at the house of Joseph Carrello, a non-union shoe workman, on Saturday night. The shot struck the lower part of the window, but did not injure any of the inmates. There have also been a number of cases of stone throwing reported to the police, but as yet no arrests have been made.

General Alger at Cambridge.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 31.—General Russell A. Alger, secretary of war, was here yesterday visiting his son at Harvard college. Captain Alger, the secretary's son, who is a student at Harvard, was among those who enlisted from the college. He was injured at Santiago, and an operation has become necessary. Secretary Alger came here to be present while the doctors were at work.

Oct. 29—6m G. A. LORING, Wollaston.

—A good deal has been said and written of late concerning the men who have reaped millions of dollars in the recent New York stock operations. Now who will tell the world something authentic about the multiude who have been ruined in the same time?—Old Colony Memorial.

The Amen! of marriage is always a baby. Without it, wedlock is a summer field that never blooms, a flower that never buds, a night without stars, a sermon without a benediction, a prayer without an Amen.

There never was a husband worthy of the name, who did not aspire to be the father and the grandfather of healthy, capable children to hand down his name and the fortune accumulated by the sweat of his brow, from generation to generation. There never was a wife fit to bear that noble title, who did not wish to wear womanhood's most glorious crown, the sceptre of motherhood. Thousands of wedded couples, otherwise happy, fall short of wedlock's greatest happiness because they are childless. In the majority of cases, this is because the wife, through ignorance or neglect, suffers from weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. For women who suffer in this way there is one great medicine that does not fail to accomplish its purpose. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned and makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones the shattered nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It quickens and vitalizes the distinctly feminine organism. It banishes the maladies of the expectant months and makes baby's introduction to the world easy and almost painless. It insures the little new-comer's health and nourishment in plenty. It is the best supportive tonic for nursing mothers.

Mrs. Jennie Parks, of Marshall, Spokane Co., Wash., writes: "I am glad to tell of the good results of your great medicine,—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was benefited by your medicine in confinement. It gives me strength. I have no tired feeling and my baby is the picture of health. I feel better than I have in ten years."

In cases of constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used as an adjunct to the "Favorite Prescription," they are extremely simple, perfectly natural and insure prompt and permanent relief.

SAVED BY A POSTAL CARD.

Thousands who have written for one of the free trial bottles of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy have literally had their lives saved by a postal card. They got the trial bottle, and it proved to them that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was the only real cure for diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation. They bought a large sized bottle of their druggists and it benefited or cured them (the above is not an idle statement, but the result of careful investigation).

You can do the same thing. If you are in doubt as to whether you have trouble with your Kidneys or Bladder, put some of your urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours, if it has sediment, or a milky, cloudy appearance, if it is ropy or stringy, pale or discolored you should lose no time in taking Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, it can be had of all druggists at $1.00 a large bottle or six bottles for $5.00. It is without question the surest medicine of the age to put a stop to such dangerous symptoms as pain in the back, a frequent desire to urinate especially at night, scalding burning pain in passing water inability to hold urine and all the unpleasant and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

Send your full name and address to the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., and be sure to mention the Quincy Ledger when a trial bottle, with pamphlet of valuable medical advice, will be mailed to you absolutely free. The publishers of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this liberal offer.
